Poetry.

TRUE FRIENDS.

Sometimes amid the tossing cares
That roll along Life's ocean,
We find true hearts that cling to us
With earnest, pure devotion.
Hearts that unselfishly will give
Their best years to our serving,
And love not less though we withhold
The thanks they are deserving.

Hearts that will turn aside from hopes
It would be sweet pursuing,
And patiently attend our wants,
Unwearied in welldoing.
Yes, there are hearts whose pious love
Will hide from us their sorrow,
And for our ills, however slight,
Will seek a balm to borrow.

Hearts that will fold within themselves
Their burthens, grief and losses,
And though ours be the lighter far,
Still help us bear our crosses.
O blest are they who find such friends
Upon life's stormy ocean,
And doubly blest the heart that beats
To bless with its devotion.

GOING TO A BEACH PARTY.

'Nine o'clock by the threshold mark,' said Mr. Job Stryker, looking meditatively down at the yellow September sunshine on the kitchen floor as he laid aside his straw hat, and wiped his forehead with his capacious red hand and handkerchief. 'Nine o'clock and the nicest kind of a day for the young folk's frolick. I most wish I'd half gone myself with Mehitible. But then there's them yellow apples to be harrested, and——hallo! I'd like to know who that feller is comin' over the hill; looks like a snow window got under way.'

Mr. Strykers criticism was not inappropriate. Augustus Chaloner's personal was a little suggestive for the advertising department of a gentleman's furnishment Establishment, as he toiled over the summit of the hill, below which was the old red Stryker farm house. Dove-colored throughout—embroidered linnen clapped in front of a diamond—a narrow magenta tied gracefully round his throat—and a hat which the worthy Job Stryker called 'a new tangled bee hive, with a hole sot half way up.' This was a tout ensemble calculated to create a sensation on Broadway and astonishment among the stony wilderness of Connecticut.

Mr. Chaloner doffed the new fangled bee hive as he approached.

'Good morning, sir. Have I the pleasure of addressing Mr. Stryker?'

'Handkerchief perfumed like a muskrat and gloves as yaller as that lot of corn, commented honest Job inwardly, as he answered aloud, 'that's my name squire.'

'I believe there is a young lady from New York visiting you, sir—Miss Seldon.

'That's so,' ejaculated Job. Kitty Seldon—that's my wife's cousin, sir; but she ain't at hum.'

Not at home?

Mr. Chaloner's countenance fell.

'The fact is Squire she and Mehitable and Ann Powers, and my boy Tom, and a lot of young folks round, have gone to a beach party.

Mr. Chaloner started.

'And what the——dickens may a beach party be?

'Well laughed the farmer, good humordly, 'its a little bit of work mixed up with a good deal of play; the boys digs up a sight of clams, and the gals boils the kettle, and then they all take a dip in the sea if the tide is right. Well I guess you'd better go and see for yourself. Its silver beach, just a mile or two beyond Bridgeport..

'As my time is very limited, perhaps it would be as well,' said Augustus Chaloner, looking at his watch. 'I shall just be able to catch the down train by stopping very briskly.,

'Well ejaculated the farmer, looking thoughtfully after his retreating visitor. 'I'm blessed if that ain't one of Kitty's beaux. He's dreadful spruce looking; but I mistrust he is a little too fine for every day wear, like Mehitible's white cheeny tea things.'

And the jovial old fellow laughed, all by himself, till the smoked brown rafters over head echoed again.

'Look here sonny,' quoth Mr. Chaloner accosting a little ragged boy who was hanging round the station; can you tell me where Silver Beach is?'

'Guess I can,' replied the youth defiantly. 'Jest go down this ere street to yonder corner, then turn to your right, and keep straight ahead a spell, then down till you come to Squire Duckman's big white house and then strike into the fields, and you've there afore you know it.'

'How far is it.'

'Well its better than a mile.'

'Better! I should hope it was,' groaned Augustus. 'It seems to me worse!—Good Jupiter what a second-rate suburban sort of a place this Bridgeport is. No policemen, no omnibusses—no Ruse pavement—no anything.

And Mr. Chaloner set out for Silver Beach in a sort of placid desperation.

There it lay, like a crystal floor, the blue sparkling Sound, with the gleam of far off white sails seeming to lean against the mighty azure of the horizon—one of natures great eternal pleasures. Mr Chaloner did not stop to waste his time in rhapsodizing.

'I'm dreeed glad I've got here at last he thought, glancing disconsolately down at the tarnished splendours of his boots.

'That must be the party down at yonder point—a good eighth of a mile at the smallest calculation. 'Well here goes.'

With that Augustus resumed his journey along the yielding sands at a sort of slow measured trot.

Kitty Seldon the bewitched little Ignus Fatus, whose pretty face had drawn Gus Chaloner so far out of his brilliant Broadway orbit, was sitting on a grassy point of land, looking excessive piquant in her bathing dress of dark blue, belted with scarlet, while her brown curls fell in a bright shower around her face, from under the shadow of a broad brimmed straw hat, while bending over her—

'Hallo! hal—lo,' muttered Chaloner stopping short, and clenching his canary colored gloves after the manner of jealous heroes on the stage. 'I should like to know who that fellow is. Our rural friend's boy Tom, by all that's execrable. Confound his impudence. What does he mean by putting his head so close to hers? I must look into the affair and send boy Tom about his business in the turnip field. The young lady who is destined one day to become Mrs. Augustus Chaloner musn't demean herself by flirting with these young farmers, who—actually work for a living.'

'Why Tom,' exclaimed Kitty, suddenly looking up, at the same moment, 'here's somebody evidently intent upon joining our party—who can it possibly be?'

Tom Stryker, a handsome, stalwart fellow tall and straight as a young pine, shaded his eyes with a sunbrowned hand.

'I can't imagine, Kate, he's a stranger to me. Shall I go and——'

'Oh, I know now,' exclaimed Kate, laughing and blushing in the same breath 'It's Gus Chaloner.'

'And who pray is Gus Chaloner,' questioned Tom, with a quick color rising into his olive cheek.

'Now don't be jealous, you dear of a Tom,' laughed Kitty. 'He's one of my old beaux. What can have brought him here? I wish he was in Jerico'

If the gorgeous Gus could but have heard her. But he came bowing and smiling up in the next moment, all unconscious that the rosy flush in her cheek was anything in the world but a welcome signal.

'My dear Miss Sheldon, if you but knew how delighted I am to find you once again——,

'How do you do, Mr. Chaloner,' said Kitty, rather tragidly. 'My cousin Tom, Mr. Chaloner.'

Cousin Tom and Mr. Chaloner glared defiance at each other, and the latter gentleman was presented to aunt Mehitible, Susan Ann Powers, and the rest of the party.

'You're just in time to go into the water with us, Mr. Chaloner, said good natured aunt Mehitible. 'Of course you can swim?

'Oh, of course,' said Gus, knowing about as much of swimming as a kitten. 'Anybody can swim—It comes naturally.'

'But you haint got no old clothes to swim in,' went on Aunt Mehitible. 'What a pity.'

Gus's face grew black—it was no very agreeable prospect, that of sitting staring on the shore, while everybody was having particularly nice time under water.

'Couldn't I—ahem—wear this suit?'

'O, bless you, no. Salt water would be the ruination on 'em; and besides, what could you put on afterwards? They'd be wringing wet. I'll tell ye what—there's an old caliker gownd of mine up in the covered carriage, if you're a mind to wear it; twould be better than nothin' I guess.'

An old caliker gownd. Gus winced, but the sight of Tom preparing to escort Kitty into the briny elements decided matters.

'Where—where did you say it was, ma'am?' he stuttered hastily.

'D'ye see them horses tied to the waggon back? Well, the carriage is the second one back on em, and the gownd is rolled up under the back seat. You can just get in and change your things snug's a herth,' added the motherly old lady in a whisper, as Augustus disappeared.

He was considerably disconcerted by the irrepressible peal of laughter that rose from the merry party as he came to join them. To be sure it was rather a comical sight, as the calico gown was rather above Augustus's ancles, and did not quite meet behind, and, moreover a tall young man stalking along in a flattering dress, is not the least ridiculous aspect of human nature. Kitty Seldon tried hard to stifle her merriment, but Tom Stryker did not trouble himself to hide the amusement he felt.

Sir,' said Gus, loftily, 'I am unaware what your standard of politeness may be, but mine——.'

And here Augustus' foot slipped, and down he went into the sea.

'Is a little liable to be cut short by a mouthful of salt water,' said Tom, good humorodly finishing his speech for him.—'Allow me to help you up sir.'

As he set his sputtering rival neatly on his feet, Gus regarded him with a malevolent eye. 'What business had Farmer Stryken's boy Tom to patronize him.

Kitty Seldon looked so like a delicious little sea-nymph, up to her shoulders in the green, transucent tides, that Augustus became more desperately in love than ever, and felt that unless he could woe and win her, out of hand, life would not be worth having on any terms. Here was a delightful opportunity—silver gleaming shores misty oceans—enough romance to surround the whole thing with a fictitious glow; in short he resolved the crisis of his existence must be reached now or never.

'Miss Seldon—may I not venture to say Kitty—' he began, when Kitty uttered a little cry.

'My hat, the string has got loose and it is floating off to sea? O, please, Mr. Chaloner, get it for me.'

Augustus gave a horrible glance at the brown ribbons gleaming across the summit of the retreating billows, and tried to remember some practical receipts for swimming. For the life of him, all he could recall at that moment was an exhortation to imitate the light fantastic movement of the frog, who is unquestionably an adept in the art. Accordingly our valiant Gus threw one of his limbs as much a la as possible, and precipitated himself boldly out to sea.

Alas for the fallaciousness of theory, in spite of his frog-like gyrations, Augustus' heels went up and his head went down with irresistible impetus—a thousand lights seemed to flash before his eyes, and a thunder as of Niagara roared through his ears—when all of a sudden he felt himself sprawling upon the sand, whither he had been ignominiously dragged by one foot by Cousin Tom, who was at the self same moment adjusting the fatal hat with the brown ribbons on Miss Kitty's dishevelled curls.

'I'd keep out of water if I were you, Mr. Chaloner, until I had first learned to swim, said merciless Tom, striking out across the billows as easily as if he had been born a fish.

'I'm sorry you had such a fright, Mr. Chaloner,' said Kitty, sweetly.

'Oh, it's nothing—he—the cramp I suppose,' returned Mr. Augustus, spluttering involuntarily as the salt, bitter sea-water sent a shudder through him.

As he spoke he rose and began to splash through the receding tides towards Kitty.

'You were saying something, I think when that unlucky hat broke loose,' smiled Kitty.

'Yes—I—I believe I was,' said Gus. [Hang it there goes another hook off the back of this confounded dress.] 'I was just going to say, dearest angel of my—H-d-l-o-o-o.'

Augustus' sentence terminated in a cute howl gradually increasing in strength and volume.

'Help! Murder! Thieves! A shark, a shark! He's tearing me to pieces—help I say.'

The whole party attracted by Mr. Chaloner's dismal yells, gathered round, and Tom Stryker made a bold sortie to his relief.

'Where's the wound? Let me see. Keep back, ladies. Kitty, be sure you remain in shallow water. Now, Mr. Chaloner.'

White with terror and quaking in every limb. Augustus held up his foot with a tenacious little crab clinging fiercely to his toe. Tom burst into a peal of laughter holding his sides, and splashing from side to side in the water.

'Isn't it a shark?' questioned Gus, staggerly. 'I'm sure it's a little shark.'

'Nothing on earth but a crab,' roared Tom, between fresh gusts of laughter.—Mr. Chaloner, you'll be the death of me yet.'

Augustus felt as if he could cheerfully have assumed that responsibility at that moment.

'It's no use trying to pop the question under water,' he mused., 'I'll go back and get this odious calico toggery off before it bursts apart like a bomb-shell—I'll have to go backwards, as it is—hang everything.'

Mr. Chaloner commenced a brisk retreat after the manner of his enemy the crab, painfully conscious of a suppressed tittering among the girls. He was glad enough to scramble into the carriage with dripping garments, smarting feet, and a disgust at everything connected with beach-parties, always saving and excepting—Kitty Seldon.

'I'm sure I put my trousers on this cushion,' he mused. 'Why where the deuce can they be? And my cravat. I hung it though this loop, with the diamond pin fastened in it—it's very singular.'

While he was pursuing his investigation with his head part away under the carriage seat, a little white hand was slipped between the curtains.

'Please, aunt Mehitable, give me my shoes.'

Augustus grew pale—it was evident that he had made a blunder and got into the ladies' carriage instead of the gentlemen's. He groped about for the shoes, and extricating them from a crinoline that was coiled up on the floor, dropped them out of the carriage.

'So far I'm undiscovered,' he thought, 'and now I'll beat a retreat as quickly as possible.'

Easier said than done: the girls had unconsciously formed a cordon sanitaire under the carriage, and were chattering innocently away.

'Is my hair parted straight, Susy?' asked Kitty Seldon.

'Exactly. I say, Kitty, I wonder how your city exquisite is getting along after his adventure with the shark.'

Kitty, curved her lip.

'Did you ever see such a conceited fool in your life,' she said emphatically.

'The ridiculous coxcomb. Do you suppose he knows anything about your engagement to Tom Stryker.

'Of course not, how should he. Give me the hair pins, Susy.'

Augustus Chaloner's blood ran cold as he listened to these very frank opinions regarding himself. He would have given worlds for an opportunity to escape, and was, in fact, contemplating openly running the blockade, when the girls all swarmed round Kitty to examine some bit of finery, leaving one side of the carriage clear for a retreat. He put aside the curtains and sprang rapidly out, shooting like a meteor into the next carriage, where he found the dove-colored suit and diamond pin all safe.

'A conceited fool eh,' he muttered blankly to himself as he hastily exchanged the calico dress for habiliments better befitting his sex and size. 'Engaged to Tom Stryker, is she? Then the sooner I make myself scarce the better, I think.'

The Magenta neck ribbon had never been carelessly tied before—the great soul of Augustus Chaloner was shaken to its very foundation. And within ten minutes he had vanished silently and without a sign from the heartless scene. What to him was currant wine, coffee, biscuit, or cold chickens.

'The clams are done, girls,' said Tom Stryker, lifting up a ponderous pot lid and peeping into the chaldron, where a vigorous ebullition was going on, thanks to the fire of driftwood underneath.

'And the table is ready,' responded aunt Mehitable. 'Somebody go and call that ar' feller from York.'

Somebody went and somebody returned with wide open mouth of amazement.

'He's gone.'

'Gone,' echoed Tom Stryker. 'Nonsense—I'll look for him myself.

But all in vain Tom's diligent search—the primmed exquisite had vanished like an exhalation of the down.

'It's a fact,' quoth Tom, 'he has disappeared.'

'Let him go,' said Kitty Seldon merrily 'we are a great deal happier without him. Oh, Tom, dont you think beach parties are splendid.'

Tom thought so—and said so, with a kiss by way of emphasis.

Augustus Chaloner's opinion on the subject however, was essentially different.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

SKETCH OF THE LIFE AND SERVICES OF ANDREW JOHNSON, OF TENNESSEE.

Andrew Johnson was born in Raleigh, North Carolina, December 29, 1808. When he had scarcely reached the age of four years, he lost his father, who died from the effects of an effort to save a friend from drowning. His mother was unable to afford her child any educational facilities whatever. He therefore never had the advantage of attending school. It is even said that during his younger years he was an inmate of an alms-house of Wake county, North Carolina, where he remained until his tenth year. At that age he was apprenticed to a tailor in his native city. He thus laboured for seven years. His lack of schooling, however, was in a great measure overcome by a strong desire to acquire knowledge, and he spent much of his leisure time in educating himself. An interesting anecdote is mentioned of his anxiety to learn to read. A gentleman of Raleigh was in the habit of visiting the tailor's shop and reading while the apprentice and journeymen were at work. He read well, and generally made his selections from a volume of speeches of British statesmen. Young Johnston listened with great delight, and his first ambition was to be able to read and comprehend these speeches. He at once procured an alphabet, and without an instructor, attempted to learn to read. When at a loss to know a letter, he applied for assistance to the journeymen with whom he worked. After acquiring his letters, he asked the owner for the loan of the book he had so often read. The owner gave him the book and some instruction as to its use. He soon learned to read, and at night, after having finished his daily labour of ten or twelve hours, he spent two or three in study. In 1824 he completed his apprenticeship and removed to Laurens Court House, South Carolina, where he worked as a journeyman. While there he fell in love with a girl in the neighborhood and courted her. Mr. Johnson tells the story himself. The young lady saw something more in him than her mother was able to discern. She engaged herself to him, provided he could get her mother's consent. Andy went one Sunday to speak to the old lady. His heart failed him till towards night, when he mustered up courage, and popped the question to the mother. He says she broke out on him in a most terrible tirade of abuse, and said: "You trifling, worthless vagabond, do you suppose I am going to let my daughter marry a wandering journeyman tailor? I know what you want. You are too lazy to work, and you are after my property." The old woman had four children and three negroes. This was her fortune. In utter despair, young Johnston returned to the village mortified and crestfallen.

In May, 1820 he returned to Raleigh, where he procured work, and remained until September. At this time he removed to the west, taking with him his mother, who was entirely dependent upon him for support. He stopped at Greenville, Tennessee, and engaged in work. Remaining there about a year, he married, and soon after went still further west. Failing to find a suitable place to settle, he returned to Greenville and commenced business. At this time Mr. Johnson's education was limited to reading. Under the instructions of his wife he speedily entered the higher branches. The only time he could devote to his studies was in the dead of night, but forgetting the fatigues of his daily work in his thirst for knowledge, he overcame all the weakness of nature, and rapidly acquired a good fund of information. In 1828 Mr. Johnson was elected to his office as alderman of the village. His satisfactory acquittal of himself in this office led to his re-election in 1829, and again in 1830. In the latter year he was elected mayor, and held that position for three years. In 1835 he was elected to the State Legislature. In the session of the year he took a bold stand against the measures of internal improvement proposed by some members on the ground that it would entail upon the State a burdensome debt. The measure not meeting the popular approval in the election of the next year, 1837, Mr. Johnson was defeated. In 1839 he was again a candidate. His predictions in opposition to the internal improvement bills having been realized, he was elected by a large majority. In 1840 he served as Presidential elector for the State at large on the democratic ticket. He canvassed a large portion of the State, meeting on the stump some of the Whig orators. In 1841 he was elected to the State Senate. In 1843 he was elected to Congress, serving by successive re-elections until 1853. During his career in that office he advocated the bill for refunding the fine imposed upon General Jackson, at New Orleans, in 1815, the annexation of Texas, tariff of 1846, the war measure of Mr. Polk's administration, and a homestead bill. In 1853 he was elected Governor of Tennessee after an exciting canvass. He was elected in 1855 after another spirited contest. At the expiration of the second period as Governor, in 1857, he was elected to the Senate of the United States for the term ending, March 3, 1863. He, however, never completed his term. On March 4, 1862, he was confirmed by the Senate of the United States Military Governor of Tennessee, with the rank of brigadier general, with all the powers, duties and functions pertaining to that office, during the pleasure of the President, or until the loyal inhabitants of the State should organize a civil government, in accordance with the constitution of the United States. The designation of General Johnson for the position was considered by everybody as eminently proper both in view of his peculiar fitness for the office and of his great popularity among all loyal people, besides his devotion to his own State. The Governor, by the acceptance of the office, necessarily vacated his position as Senator.

Mr. Johnson's administration in Tennessee was very generally approved, though it had some enemies. Under him, and with the assistance of the armies operating in Tennessee, order was restored in many sections of the State, and most of the inhabitants who remained loyal were protected.

On June 8, 1864, Mr. Johnson was chosen by the National Republican Convention as the candidate of the party for the Vice Presidency of the United States. In his letter of acceptance, in the fol owing month, he expresses of views were, to the most, in harmony with the settled opinions of a majority of the thinking minds of the country.

On March 4 last, Mr. Johnson was regularly inaugurated as second to the good man whose death we lament.

Since Mr. Johnson's induction into office as Vice-President he has not been called upon to act in an official capacity, but a brief review of his career may enable us to draw some inferences in regard to his fitness for the vast public duties about to devolve upon him. He was born and reared amid the lowest poverty. It is evident if he had been without natural abilities of the rarest quality he never would have risen, particularly so high, above his trade. His master, though he failed to have him taught even the rudiments of an English education, at least trained him up to love the truth, work hard, and be straightforward in his dealings with every one. By his own efforts he taught himself a little, and marrying, after his apprenticeship was complete', a woman who knew something about books, he was fairly started on the road to learning. Though Mr. Johnson is no scholar in the sense of books, his experience and observation have taught him more valuable lessons—a knowledge of man and strong common sense. His political bias was in early years exceedingly democratic. Previous to the breaking out of the present rebellion he was the idol of the Southern democracy; and had he permitted himself to float upon the wave of secession and treason there is not a doubt but he would have been placed at the head of that revolutionary movement, the Southern Confederacy. But his devotion to his country—his whole country—impelled him to sever the bonds that connected him with a people whom he had for so long a period led and controlled, but who were snatched from his influence by the infamous crime of treason. Those people he could still have wielded could his potent voice have reached them, but the monster of intolerance closed her jaws upon him. He was not permitted in Middle and West Tennessee to address the people. Had he attempted it a mob would have been ready, not only to stop his voice, but to take his life. Too well the leaders of rebellion in Tennessee knew his power over the people; and they were conscious that if he were permitted to make public speeches the people would rally round him—that he could preserve Tennessee from their fatal sway. He stood firm and yet stands firm, as a monument of loyalty and devotion to his country, while many of his contemporaneous political lights have been for ever extinguished and enshrouded in the perfidy of the conspiracy against the life of the nation. Among his old political friends he saw Isham G. Harris, the late Governor of Tennessee; A. O. P. Nicholson, his colleague in the United States Senate; Andrew Ewing, Langdon C. Haynes and a host of others fall into the secession pit. Of his political opponents he saw E. H. Ewing, G. A. Henry, the "Eagle orator," his opponent the first time he was elected Governor of Tennessee, and who said, in the Bell and Everett Convention in Baltimore, that he wished he might be struck blind before he should ever see the Union dissolved; and even Bell, whose wisdom had shone as a beacon light to the nation for more than a quarter of a century, cower before the monster secession But he, amid all this wreck, stood firm, keeping the Union and the constitution of our fathers ever in view, and making them the polar star to which he steered amid the mighty convulsions and upheavings which beset him on every side, and he now appears upon the world's great stage as a living witness that public virtue and unselfish patriotism are not extinct even in those States that have inaugurated this unholy war. While the names of many who formerly shone in the same sphere with him will be buried beneath a mausoleum of infamy, his will shine like the bright star of the morning, and be honoured by generations yet unborn.

With efficient counsellors, and acting upon the profound sentiment of his inaugural, "The duties are mine; I will perform them, trusting in God," we have every right to expect Mr. Johnson will fill the unexpired term of his lamented predecessor with honour to himself and glory to the nation. Relying upon this, upon the virtue of our armies and the devotion of the good people all over the North, there may be in the terrible dispensation so recently enacted the finger of God pointing to unseen dangers, warning us by His terrible presence to beware of the treacherous hand rendered powerless by the dominion of right, raised in the dark to avenge the humiliation of pride, and prosecute at our backs further infamy, villainy and treason.

DEFENCES OF CANADA.—The Globe says:—The London Star, of the 25th ult., informs us that Lieut-Colonel Gallway, of the Royal Engineers, proceeds at once to Montreal to take the direction of the works about to be commenced for the defence of that city. Col. Gallway is well acquainted with Canada, having only returned thence in 1858, after a period of service in this country of seven year. Immediately after his return to England he was placed in charge of a section of the defensive walls then about to be erected on Portsdown Hill. Subsequently he was appointed a member of the Ordnance Select Committee, and in the Spring of last year he was sent out to America, in conjunction with Captain Alderson, a distinguished artillery officer, to report upon the system of fortification and the ordnance of the Federal armies. After having been treated with the most distinguished consideration by the Federal military authorities, and after the fullest opportunities had been afforded them to obtain the information they were in quest of, Colonel Gallway and his colleague returned to England to report to the War Department the result of their mission.

A SHERIFF IN DEFAULT.—At the last meeting of the Perth County Council a singular disclosure was made, and one that involves the sheriff of that county, Mr. Moderwell, in a rather serious mess. He has appropriated the monies received by him on account of non-resident land taxes to his own use, amounting to £10,663; and when called upon to pay over the same to the treasurer, he was unable to do so. He has offered security for its payment, but it is doubted whether he can really pay it at all. The matter has caused considerable talk in the county.—Leader.

A REVELVING SPECTACLE.—This afternoon, a team of horses attached to a waggon came into the city by the Dundas road, and were proceeding leisurely along, without a guide when taken in charge by a citizen in the vehicle was a man in a state of unconscious intoxication, who was lying upon a coffin containing the dead body of his own mother! The bloated and unclad countenance of the wretched man, and the associations of his drunken repose, presented a spectacle truly revolting. The waggon was driven to the Police Station, and its load of physical and moral corruption given in charge of the authorities.—Times.

RECONSTRUCTION.

Now that the war is virtually over—and that the seceding States have not been able to gain their independence—the only wise course for them is to return to their former friends and seek a settlement of their difficulties in the most liberal possible manner they can. But to settle the matter amicably and satisfactorily to both parties will require greater statesmanship and more profound political wisdom than it did to conduct the war. There are so many interests to be consulted that it will be difficult for one party to act wisely and equitably towards the other. The mind of the South has to be eased of its fears of undue northern influence, and the North must feel that their rights are not to be bartered for nought in the great desire to reconstruct on their former scale, so as to have the Union as potent and influential as before the outbreak. The negro had his part in the great civil war; he must also occupy the attention of the American statesmen in the settlement. Some difficulty will arise in settling the part this hitherto degraded race will perform in the future of the United States. It is urged that with their freedom they should have the right of voting in order to give them a degree of protection against their former oppressors. On the contrary it is argued that the slave ought not to have a part in the settlement of the difficulty not being a party before. The old State lines too have been in some degree removed.—Virginia instead of being one State, now finds her soil partitioned into three States, thus offering another obstacle to a pacific settlement, as by such partitioning of States, the influence of the North may now stand a little different from what it was before the troubles arose. It may be urged that the rebel states, however, have no voice in the settlement and must therefore calmly submit to whatever terms the conquerors may impose. This may be what they deserve and may be acted upon—but would it be wise? In the reconstruction it is necessary to consider that if they wish to make the people united they must grant them equal rights and immunities. They must treat them as near as possible as one people, and remove even the appearance of a cause for another outbreak, which will assuredly take place unless the cause, whether real or imaginary, is removed. In the days of semi-civilization it may have been the practice to treat rebellious subjects as a conquered people. But it may be really asked, did such conduct ever strengthen the parent or victorious state? Was it not rather the cause of weakness and eventual destruction to all those powers which acted so unwisely and unmercifully. If the Americans wish to come out of the present struggle as strong or stronger than when they commenced it, their surest way of obtaining that end is to overcome the past enmity of the Southern States by generosity and kindness. This we find was a part of President Lincoln's plan, and so far he acted the part of a wise statesman. The case of the slave will be the most difficult to settle. They, in thousands of cases, are wholly unfitted for receiving all the rights and privileges of Freedom, until by a proper system of wise education they are made acquainted not only with the advantages of Freedom but also with its amenabilities. If the accounts that we have hitherto received have been true, many of them must be in a very backward state of civilization, and hence it would be a very easy matter to grant them either too much or too little. The desire of the American people to have an amicable arrangement of the matter will materially aid the Washington Authorities in aiming at a satisfactory basis of reconstruction, satisfactory alike to both South and North. A little care and wisdom now, tempered with moderation and leniency might soften and bring back the Southern people as well as make them grateful. But what course will be pursued by President Johnson remains yet to be seen. He has expressed himself strongly against the Rebel Leaders and Traitors to their country. Should he act with a severe hand he may do what hereafter the nation will grieve for, and will thereby deviate very far from the course pursued by his lamented and highly honored predecessor. We sincerely trust, for the sake of humanity, that they will not exercise the liberty of Republican principles to the destruction of their fellow man, but rather deal mercifully towards him.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.

The anniversary day of England's Patron Saint falling on Sunday this year, the members of the society considered it best to have no public demonstration for the present. They however anticipate having a picnic some time through the summer, when a pleasant time may be expected, and it is hoped a fresh impetus given to the society by a large increase of members, and more general action and co-operation of all true sons of Albion, in their generous benevolence to aid in carrying out the object of the Association.

THE PETERBORO' LITERARY CLUB.—A meeting was held in the Firemen's Hall on Monday evening April 24th 1865, for the purpose of organising a Debating Club. It was decided that the name of the Society should be the "Peterboro' Literary Club," and that it be in connection with the Peterboro' Fire Company.

The following gentlemen were appointed officers of the Club for the ensuing year:—

R. Dennistoun, Esq., President.
James Hall, Esq., 1st Vice-President,
W. H. Scott, Esq., 2nd do
Mr. P. C. Blaitcher, 3rd do
Mr. J. O'Donnell, Secretary,
Mr. Robert Innes, Treasurer.

The following Committees were also appointed, viz:—To draft a Constitution and By-Laws, Messrs. W. H. Scott, J. F. Dennistoun and the Secretary. To select subjects for debate and other general business Messrs. J. F. Dennistoun, W. H. Scott, J. Bertram, and George Edmison.

Subject for debate this evening:—Whether would 'Free Trade' or a 'Protection Tariff' be the most beneficial to Canada.

THE ASSASSINS.

Booth the murderer of the late President Lincoln has not been yet arrested. Wild rumours are set afloat every day concerning his whereabouts. The New York World however thinks he may still be in Washington in the disguise of a negro or some other character. It is also surmised that he is endeavouring to get away either to Europe or Mexico, and thus escape the punishment which awaits him. But it is not likely that he could yet have got out of the United States. He may be in the Southern States, however, awaiting a fit opportunity. His position must now be miserable indeed, and little fear may be entertained but that he will be found and justly punished. $100,000 reward are offered for the apprehension of the assassins of President Lincoln and the Sewards. $50,000 for Booth; $25,000 for Atzerot or "Port Tobacco," and $25,000 for David C. Harold, one of Booth's accomplices. Pennsylvania has offered $10,000 more and Maryland $10,000: to what extent the amount may yet reach few can conjecture. No effort is being spared to secure them, and if reward will be any incentive to any of the accomplices to reveal the whole affair we may expect that a sufficient sum will be forthcoming to tempt the cupidity of even the most trustworthy associate. The following has been issued:—

"All persons harbouring or screening the "said persons or either of them, or aiding "or assisting their concealment or escape "will be treated as accomplices in the mur"der of the President and the attempted "assassination of the Secretary of State, and "shall be subject to trial before a military "commission and the punishment of death. "Let the stain of innocent blood be removed "from the land by the arrest and punish"ment of the murderers. All good citizens "are exhorted to aid public justice on this "occasion. Every man should consider his "own conscience charged with this solemn "duty, and rest neither night nor day until "it be accomplished."

LOCAL—ORNAMENTAL.

It is with pleasure we notice the praiseworthy efforts of our citizens to improve the appearance of the town by planting ornamental trees. Nothing could add more to the beauty of any place than the tasteful decoration of the streets and grounds in front of dwellings with trees. It gives a healthful and pleasing appearance to the Town. It speaks well for the taste of the inhabitants. When the trees grow up they lend a look of freshness to those localities where they are, and they draw more or less of the gentle breeze in the warm sultry evenings of the summer. There is one thing however about the work that is much to be regretted, and we think could easily be remedied, and that is that there does not appear to be much uniformity about the work. For in nothing more than in this work could the truth of the adage "many men of many minds," be forcibly exemplified, each one carrying out the individual impulse. So, also, some appear to be willing to improve the look of the place, but a near neighbour cares nothing for such things. Hence these beautiful improvements are found interrupted now and then by the intervention of some one who does not partake of the spirit of improvement of his neighbour. The cost however, would be very trifling if a number would unite and get the part opposite themselves done all at once. There would be more regularity in looks and size of the young trees, and there would also be a more general interest in their care and growth.

In Ashburnham we discover the spirit of planting has also taken a tangible shape, and with a great deal more regularity and order than we present. We find the whole main street neatly planted in the most regular orderly manner. The young trees have been selected of a uniform size, as near as possible, and they are put in as straight and neatly as the most fastidious could wish. In other streets also we observe the villagers are decorating. We advise all to take a look at Elizabeth street before they commence and then go and do likewise. Lake street also is tastefully done.

In the building line we cannot yet report much progress; but the season is yet very early, and no doubt before long we will be enabled to report favorably in this respect also. We find our enterprising townsman, Mr. Hopkins, however, at work erecting a building on the North side of the market block. Perhaps this is only the first of the season.

THE LADY'S FRIEND.

The May number of this favorite periodical opens with a truly beautiful engraving called "The Cup of Cold Water," an illustration of a poem by Thomas Hood, which conveys the profound moral lesson that often in the doing of very little and simple things is to be found "The accepted sacrifice." The Fashion Plate of this number is as usual, double, and remarkably well engraved. The wood engravings lead off with a pretty picture of a child "Among the May Flowers," followed by the usual variety of cuts devoted to the illustration of the fashions, needle-work, &c. Among the literary matter we may specify "Under the Apple-tree," by Miss Virginia F. Townsend; "One of the Martyrs," by Emma B. Ripley; "My Ruth and I," by Margaret E. Starr; "Before God and Man;" "The Ghost of Mac Gran's Abbey," by Mrs. Hosmer; "Pinewold," "Four Birthdays," "Story of a Stove," Novelties for May, Editor's Department, &c. The music for this number is an amusing song called "Pa has struck Ile."

Price $2.50 a year; 2 copies $4.00. To those desirous of making up clubs, specimen numbers will be sent for 15 cts. Wheeler & Wilson's celebrated Sewing Machines are furnished as Premiums. Address Deacon & Peterson, 319 Walnut street, Philadelphia.

Now is the time to send on subscriptions for 1865.

THE Leader says Mr. Henry Stabler, of Smith, Peterboro, was killed while boiling sap in the woods during the late gale. We are glad to be able to contradict it. Mr. Stabler was living at last accounts, and improving fast. He was severely hurt, however, as stated in the Examiner of last week.

CRIME CAUGHT AT PORT HOPE.—The Guide says a man named Alfred Gardiner was brought before Messrs. Garnett, Anderson and Brent on endeavouring to enlist a youth named Graham for the Federal service. Gardner was found guilty, sent to gaol 6 months, and fined $200, and to remain in gaol till the fine was paid—Served him right.

REV. H. W. BEECHER AT CHARLESTON—THE OLD FLAG FLOATING OVER SUMTER.—On April 13th the old flag that Major Anderson pulled down four years ago was raised to float over the fort again, and raised by Major Anderson himself who four years ago pulled it down. A Rev. gentleman present read psalms 126, 47, and 48, on the occasion, and the Rev. H. W. Beecher delivered an address.

WAR NEWS.

The assassination and funeral of Mr. Lincoln is the great topic yet. Since the surrender of Lee the great Army of the Potomac is scarcely heard from. Sherman is also quiet. He and Johnston have had several communications on the subject of surrendering, and it would appear as far as Sherman is concerned Johnston has negotiated very liberal terms. The authorities at Washington however do not acknowledge Sherman's authority to enter into any stipulations with the rebel General except for the surrender of troops. It remains yet to be seen how the soldier will bear to be opposed in his schemes for peace. General Grant has been despatched to Carolina to take the direction of affairs there, not to suspend or remove Sherman however, unless he appears refractory. Sherman in the mean time is ordered to assume warlike operations against all opposing rebels. Jeff. Davis is reported in Texas, on his way to Mexico, or perhaps to Europe, having escaped the Federals hitherto. Mosby the noted Guerrilla has also succeeded in arranging terms of capitulation which are to be the same as General Johnston is to obtain; but in case of Johnston's failing to obtain any, the same as Lee obtained. The war is almost at an end.

Mobile has fallen before the Federals very many are anxious to take the oath of allegiance, and are glad to be released from rebel rule. Deserters are arriving in large numbers. The Post Office will immediately be opened. The wharves and docks are in fine order.

The Mayor of Mobile formally surrendered the city about three o'clock on the 12th instant, tendering the service of the pilots to bring the fleet safely up to the city.

Gen. Granger met a most enthusiastic reception upon entering the city. He remarked that he had never met so warm a reception in any place before.

Three hundred guns in good condition, and a large amount of ammunition were captured. Twelve hundred prisoners, sick and stragglers, were found in the city, including 250 officers. All were sent to Ship Island.

The contents of the Confederate Commissary Department were turned over to the poor of Mobile.

Thirty-eight hundred prisoners were captured in Spanish Fort. Several Confederate gunboats were also captured.

The Mobile papers having suspended publication, Gen. Granger has authorized O. E. Hinde, correspondent of the New Orleans Times, to issue a daily paper, and he has commenced publishing the Mobile Daily News. 20,000 to 30,000 bales of cotton were also captured.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—As reports have been in circulation for some time of a correspondence between Generals Johnson and Sherman, the memorandum or basis of what was agreed upon between these two Generals, and the results, are as follows:

Memorandum, or basis of agreement, made this 18th day of April, A. D. 1865, near Durham's Station, in the State of North Carolina, by and between General J. E. Johnson, commanding the Confederate Army, and Major-General William T. Sherman, commanding the Army of the United States, in North Carolina, both present:—

1st. The contending armies now in the field to retain their status quo until notice is given by the Commanding General of either one to its opponent, and reasonable time, say 48 hours, allowed.

2nd. The Confederate armies now in existence to be disbanded and conducted to their several State capitals, there to deposit their arms and public property in the State arsenal, and each officer and man to execute and file an agreement to cease all acts of war, and abide the action of both State and Federal authority. The number of arms and munitions of war to be reported to the Chief of Ordnance at Washington city, subject to future action of the Congress of the United States, and in the meantime to be solely to maintain peace and order within the borders of the States respectively.

3rd. The recognition by the Executive of the United States of the several State Governments, on their Officers and Legislatures taking the oath prescribed by the constitution of the United States, and where conflicting State Governments have resulted from the war, the legitimacy of all shall be submitted to the Supreme Court of the United States.

4th. The re-establishment of all Federal Courts in the several States, with powers as defined by the constitution and laws of Congress.

5th. The people and inhabitants of all States to be guaranteed, so far as the Executive can, their political rights and franchises, as well as their rights of person and property, as defined by the constitution of the United States and of States respectively.

6th. The executive authority of the Government of the United States not to disturb any of the people by reason of the late war, so long as they live in peace and quiet, abstain from acts of armed hostilities, and obey the laws in existence at any place of their residence.

7th. In general terms, war is to cease, a general amnesty, so far as the executive power of the United States can command, on condition of disbandment of the Confederate armies, and the distribution of arms and the resumption of peaceful pursuits by officers and men as hitherto composing the said armies. Not being fully empowered by our respective principals to fulfil these terms, we individually and officially pledge ourselves to promptly obtain the necessary authority, and to carry out the above programme.

W. T. SHERMAN,
Major-General Commanding the Army of the United States in North Carolina.

J. E. JOHNSTON,
General Commanding Confederate States Army in North Carolina.

This proceeding of Gen. Sherman was unapproved by the following, among other reasons:—First—It was an exercise of authority not vested in General Sherman, and its face shows that both he and Johnston knew that he, Gen. Sherman, had no authority to enter into any such agreement.

2nd. It was a practical acknowledgment of the rebel Government.

3rd. It undertook to re-establish the rebel State Governments that had been overthrown at the sacrifice of many loyal lives and an immense treasure, and placed arms and munitions of war in the hands of the rebels at their respective capitals, which might be used as soon as the armies of the United States were disbanded, and used to conquer and subdue the loyal States.

4th. By the restoration of the rebel authority in their respective States they would be enabled to re-establish slavery.

5th. It might furnish a ground of responsibility by the Federal Government to pay the rebel debt, and certainly subject loyal citizens of the rebel States to the debt accumulated by the rebels in the name of the State.

6th. It put in dispute the existence of loyal State Governments and the State of Western Virginia, which had been recognized by every department of the United States Government.

7th. It practically abolished the confiscation laws, and relieved rebels of every degree who had slaughtered our people from all pains and penalties for their crimes.

8th. It gave terms that had been deliberately, repeatedly, and solemnly rejected by President Lincoln, and better terms than the rebels had ever asked in their most prosperous condition.

9th. It formed no basis of true and lasting peace, but relieved rebels from the pressure of our victories, and left them in condition to renew their efforts to overthrow the United States Government and subdue the loyal States whenever their strength was recruited and an opportunity should offer.

Publication has been made of certain changes of several officers, including Gen. Halleck, to command at Richmond. This is not correct. Gen. Ord remains in command of Virginia as heretofore. Gen. Halleck commands Virginia and North Carolina. Gen. Gillmore remains in command of the Department of the South.

THE PLAGUE.

A terrible epidemic is raging in Russia, Poland and Eastern Prussia, causing the greatest alarm in Europe. Seventy of every hundred attacked, are said to die within a few hours from the beginning of the attack.

Physicians from Austria and Prussia are leading all possible aid to stay the awful ravages of this dreadful scourge. It is said that there are ten thousand cases of it in St. Petersburgh, the capital of Russia. This plague is said to be so destructive and so unlike others, that it is called the "unknown disease" but generally the 'Siberian plague' Great alarm is felt lest it may extend to western Europe, and cause such destruction as the plague of 1665, called the "Black Death," which carried away 100,000 victims before it could be arrested. Other writers consider it nothing more than a cholera such as visited Europe in 1832, and again in a milder form in 1849, some a violent form of Typhus; and some consider it a leprosy, arising from the blood of oriental races. England, France and other countries of Europe however, are taking preparatory measures so as to be prepared for it, should it extend to them, and it is to be hoped that their efforts will be successful. The description of this fatal disease as they reach us, are nearly the same as the more violent cases of yellow fever: sudden pain in the nape of the neck, in the hand or foot, or indeed any part of the body, followed by violent chills and fever. This paroxism is generally fatal, a third invariably so. Another peculiarity of the disease is:—patients who appear to be entirely convalescent or recovered, at the end of four or five days are subject to a fatal relapse if they leave their beds. One great cause of the ravages of this disease is supposed to be low diet, especially vegetable.

The Times says:—Authentic intelligence touching the Russian epidemic states that three several maladies exist at the same time in St. Petersburg. In October last meningitis spinalis appeared at St. Petersburg. This is a spasmodic affection of the brain and spinal cord by which children are chiefly attacked; the mortality from twenty to fifty per cent. In November typhus was added to the first-mentioned disease, occurring sporadically at first, and gradually developed into a malignant species of febris recurrens. The fever lasts a week at a time, the several attacks being separated by intervals as long. During these intervals the health is apparently so good that people have been dismissed from hospital who died soon after. A special committee has been appointed under Governor General Suwaroff to look after those apparently cured. On a second or third attack there is a general collapse, decomposition of blood, and paralysis. Quinine and stimulants have no effect. The deaths, at first but twenty, have risen to forty per cent. The spleen and and liver are not affected. In the many cases epidemical inflammation of the spleen, or postula maligna, has been observed. Quite recently the Siberian plague has broken out also. Of this seventy per cent die in a few hours. A strong disposition to vomit, which cannot be satisfied, a swelling of the belly, pestilential carbuncles, and dark colour of the skin are its unmistakable symptoms. It is Black Death. St. Petersburg papers deny the existence of the plague in the capital, but the official Northern Post states it to have broken out at Szoniewo, in the Wahlai Hills, and the description given in the St. Petersburg official Medical News and Exchange Now, in which the dissection of the pu ils is especially dwelt upon, shows the malady in its present stage greatly to resemble the plague. In many cases, indeed, it is difficult to distinguish plague from febris recurrens at a time when typhoid epidemics are abroad. The disease is apparently on the decrease. Dr. Erichsen, surgeon to the Czar Nicholas, aged seventy-five, died while attending hospital. In Poland, also, an epidemic has broken out. One case at Kole, near Warsaw, is represented in the Warsaw Gazette as a magna spinalis. Out of five thousand inhabitants in that town there are thirty-six sick and fifteen dead. In Eastern Prussia there are many cases of meningitis near Dantzic.

A FULL ACCOUNT OF THE WORKINGS OF THE TERRIBLE DISEASE—SEVENTY PER CENT. OF THE CASES FATAL.

The Nazione of Florence publishes the following communication from Dr. Gallige, director of the medical L'Imparziale, on the serious epidemic now prevalent in Russia:—"We have received from Dr. Tillour, physician to the Grand Duchess Maria of Russia, who has just returned from St Petersburg, some important details respecting the disease now raging in that capital. This malady appears to be neither a fever of an intermittent or continuous nature, nor yet a simple typhoid fever; but it certainly is very virulent and dangerous. According to the opinions of the Russian physicians, it is the same fever that was observed for the first time in Scotland in the year 1819, and denominated in that country the intermittent fever, from the length of the intermissions and the prolonged attacks. This fever is ushered in by cold shivering, altering with remarkable heat (from 40 deg. to 43 deg centigrade, or 100 deg. Fahrenheit), the pulse bearing 130. Great prostration and disorder are observable in the nervous actions, although the state of the mental faculties remains undisturbed; frequent pains are felt in the head and limbs, great pain is also felt in the left hypochondriac region, and an examination of the palpitation and percussion proves the spleen to have enormously decreased in volume. The skin is yellow in color, owing to the liver being likewise affected by the malady. The initiatory attack of the fever lasts from seven to eight days, and terminates with a very copious perspiration. After the first paroxism, an interval occurs of seven or eight days, during which the patient appears almost as well as ever, but on the expiration of that period a second attack manifests itself like the first, but accompanied with still greater prostration. This continues also about seven days, terminating, like the other, with profuse perspiration. Sometimes a third paroxysm declares itself after a further interval of seven days, one of the symptoms being a burning thirst and complete aneurism, and the patient sinks into the most profound state of prostration. The rate of mortality is 8 per cent., and the victims of this malady die during the second attack, usually from a kind of general paralysis, or through serious derangement of the nervous organs, with extreme decomposition of the blood and an enormous increase in the spleen. The liver also becomes greatly enlarged, but the intestines, on the other hand, are either found healthy or else hardly congested. Everything has hitherto failed to shorten the duration of he febrile attacks. Salts of quinine, given in large and small doses, have been quite ineffectual to overcome the attacks characteristic of this malady. In the second paroxysm, in which there is increased prostration of the forces, the most powerful stimulants have been administered—such as musk wine, alcohol, ether, camphor, &c.; but they produce little or no effect. The chief cause of this disease is supposed to be the arrival in St. Petersburg of an immense number of workmen from the neighboring provinces, and even from the most distant towns. It is said there are just now in the capital 43,000 workmen more than the usual number. The consequence of this is that they cannot find work and are obliged to live in unhealthy localities, and to live upon the black bread, which contains this year much more horned rye than in previous years. It has been discovered by chemical analysis that this bread contains one per cent. of horned rye in the flour with which it is made. Thus every working man living on the same may be calculated to eat 100 grains of horned rye per diem. Besides this, the offal, guts, and other animals being no longer slaughtered in St. Petersburg, but at Moscow, whence the meat is despatched ready prepared, the heads, hoofs, feet, and intestines of these animals, which previously formed one of the staple articles of sustenance of the poorer classes, on account of their cheapness, are no longer to be had at St. Petersburg, and the poor are now compelled to live almost exclusively upon the above-mentioned bread, which contains injurious substances, partly contributing to produce the disease in question. The malady is exclusively confined to the poorer classes.

The epidemic is still committing fearful ravages at St. Petersburg. Official returns as to the number of cases have altogether ceased of late; but from the large sums voted by the metropolitan authorities, or supplied by Government, some idea may be formed of the extent and virulence of the malady. Besides 200,000 roubles contributed by the treasury, 400 additional beds have been placed at the disposal of the town, and large subscriptions made by the princes and aristocracy. The town, too, has opened a new hospital at the cost of 60,000 roubles, considerably augmenting at the same time the funds of the various charities, and aiding the convents in the care and reception of the sick. The malady is stated to have broken out originally on the other side of the Ural Mountains, whence it slowly threaded its way towards St. Petersburg, increasing as it went, and culminating at length among the destitute classes of an unhealthy and densely populated capital. In its steady advance towards the west it has now reached the Prussian frontier, and in a milder form, already shown itself in the towns of Konigsberg, Dantzig, and Gumbinnen. In the Waldai hills, to the southwest of St. Petersburg, whole villages are said to have been depopulated.

The British Consul at Washington.

Sir Frederick Bruce has arrived at Washington, and was introduced to President Johnson on the 20th. Expressions of the utmost good will between Great Britain and the United States were exchanged on the occasion. Sir Frederick made the following remarks:—

Mr President,—It is with deep and sincere concern that I have to accompany my first official act with expressions of condolence. On Saturday last the ceremonies that took place to-day were to have been performed, but the gracious intentions of the late lamented President were frustrated by the events which plunged this country into sadness and affliction and which will call forth in Great Britain feelings of horror as well as the most profound sympathy for the victims. It becomes, therefore, my painful duty sir, to present the letter from my sovereign, which I am bearer of, to you as President of the United States, and it is with pleasure that I convey assurances of regard and good will which her majesty entertains towards you, sir, as President of the United States. I am further to express Her Majesty's friendly disposition toward the great nation of which you are Chief Magistrate—her hearty good wishes for its peace, prosperity and welfare. Her Majesty has nothing more at heart than to cultivate those relations of amity and good understanding which have so long and so happily existed between the United States and Great Britain, and it is in the spirit that I am directed to perform the duties of the important and honorable post confided to me. Permit me sir, to say that it shall be the object of my earnest endeavors to carry out my instructions faithfully in that respect and express the hope that you will favorably consider my attempts to meet your approbation, and to give effect to the friendly intentions of the Queen and Her Majesty's Government. I have the honor sir, to place in your hands the letter of credence confided to me by her Majesty.

To which the President replied as follows—Sir Frederick Bruce,—The cordial and friendly sentiments which you have expressed on the part of Her Britannic Majesty give me great pleasure. Great Britain and the United States by the extended and varied forms of commerce between them, the contiguity of a portion of their possessions, and the affinity of their language and laws, are drawn into contrast and intimate intercourse at the same time. They are, from the same causes, exposed to frequent causes of misunderstanding, only to be averted by mutual forbearance. I therefore eagerly are the people of two countries engaged throughout almost the whole world in the pursuit of similar commercial enterprises, accompanied by national rivalries and jealousies, that at first sight it would almost seem as if the two Governments must be enemies, and at best cold and calculating friends. So devoted are the two nations throughout all the most remote territorial and colonial possessions to the principle of civil rights and constitutional liberties, that, on the other hand, the superficial observer might erroneously count upon a continual concert of actions and sympathy amounting to identical interests. Such, however, is not the case with the development and liberty of a considerable portion of the human race; each in its sphere, is subject to difficulties and trials, not participated in by the other. The interests of civilization and humanity require that the two should be friends. I have always known and accepted it as such. Soon after its accession, I went in to the parlour, and found her in a chair, supported by her son Robert. Presently her carriage came up and she was removed to it. She was in a state of tolerable composure at that time, until she reached the door, when glancing at the theatre opposite, she repeated three or four times, "That dreadful house!—that dreadful house!"

Before I myself left, a guard had been stationed at the door of the room in which the remains of the late President were lying. Mrs. Lincoln had been communicated with, to ascertain whether she desired the body to be embalmed or not, and the Secretary of War had issued various orders necessary in consequence of what had occurred.

The Lumber Trade.

We have been furnished with the following views of the present position of the Canada lumber trade by a shrewd business man in this city:—

"There is great danger to the interests of this most important product that holders may become panicky and too anxious to sell, in view of the possible early termination of the Reciprocity Treaty with the United States. As most of our producers are relying on the United States market, it is important that they understand a few facts, and act with reference to them.

"First,—It is well known that fully three-fourths of the white pine lumber used in all the eastern markets, is received from Canada; the remainder being principally from Pennsylvania and Michigan, with small quantities from Maine and New York.

"Second,—The supply in dealers' hands throughout New York and the New England States, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and farther south, is unprecedently small; the cities of New York and Albany being the only exceptions to this rule.

"Third,—The recent floods in Pennsylvania have swept off very large amounts of logs and ready-made lumber, and as damaged mills and dams that the estimated deficiency of supply from Williamsport and Loch Haven alone will not be less than sixty millions of feet. This will force Philadelphia and some points south to Albany and New York for supplies.

"Fourth,—The Genesee Valley and Black River canals, from which considerable supplies reach Albany, are so destroyed that little, if any, use can be made of them this season.

"Fifth.—The Western and South-western States will need the entire production from all points west of Saginaw—and the largest part of that—and any supplies needed during the year to rebuild the devastated Southern States must come from eastern markets.

"From all these facts the inference is conclusive that, to an extent much greater than usual, the eastern market must rely on Canada for supplies of pine timber; and there can be no doubt that a wise policy on the part of producers, in holding their lumber at home till it is called for by dealers from the United States markets, will give them remunerat ve prices for all they have, without the cost of a commission or the risk of depreciated currency. The fact should not be lost sight of that this Province now contains a larger supply of seasoned lumber than usual, and there is not on this continent another considerable supply which is not green and unfit for present use. It should also be borne in mind that, in the general tendency to reduced prices of property which will result from political changes now going on in the United States, any article which is in excessive supply in their market will suffer unusual depreciation. Should the supplies of lumber now here be pushed forward so rapidly, and in advance of immediate wants, they would incur the cost of high freights, and the depreciation, if any, would be on the freights as well as the lumber. But if the stock is firmly held at home there are the best of reasons for believing that it will all be called for before the close of the season, and that this important branch of Canadian industry, instead of meeting the disasters apprehended by many, will prove more productive than for many years past."—Globe.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S FAMILY.—Mr. Johnson's family reside at present in Nashville, Tennessee, and consists of his wife and four children—two sons and two daughters. His son Robert is twenty-nine, and Andrew Johnson, Jr., is twelve years of age. His two daughters with their families, also reside in Nashville, having been driven from their homes in Eastern Tennessee. One of Mr. Johnson's sons (Charles) a surgeon in the army, was thrown from his horse in 1863, and killed; and Colonel Stover, a son-in-law, commanding the 4th Tennessee infantry, was killed in the battle of Nashville, while gallantly leading his command, on the 18th of December, 1864. Judge Patterson, who is also a son-in-law of the President, lives in Nashville. Mrs. Johnson has been in very delicate health for some time past, and it is probable Mrs. Colonel Stover will preside over the Presidential household.

The Brockville Recorder says that Mr. Peter Clow has lost five cows and one hog within the last ten days, by some disease that is prevalent in that neighborhood. The animals only lived about five or six hours after being seized. The bodies do not swell and they die without a struggle.

IMPORTANT FROM BELIZE.

The British Honduras correspondent of the New York Tribune, writing under date the 18th March, states that Maximilian of Mexico had undertaken his first war outside the limits of the empire. Four thousand of the imperial troops had reached La Sal, Yucatan, en route for Bacala in order to attempt the complete conquest of Yucatan and the subjugation or extermination of the Mazeual or Maya Indians. One half of the Mexican force is made up of Belgians, the other of native Mexicans. Their enemies number half a million of Indians, brave, vindictive, patriotic to a fault, and very superstitious. Since the year 1542 the Mexicans have held a small portion of the State of Yucatan. They now seek to take and hold the remainder, with the capital. While the inhabitants of Belize were agitated by the news of this movement, a corps of French officers from Mexico arrived in their town—an event which increased the excitement. The Frenchmen said they were naturalists, journeying on a scientific expedition; but it was feared that their object was more strictly professional in a military point of view.

THE FENIANS AGAIN.

The New York Herald of Wednesday says "The Fenian Brotherhood in America has become an established institution. Its object is the independence of Ireland. It numbers half a million of ardent souls, many of whom have been expatriated from their own blooming island by the tyranny and persecution of Great Britain. These men are burning with an implacable hatred of the English government and nerved by an intense devotion to their native land. Their first step will be to seize Canada with an army of one hundred thousand fighting men. The Americans don't want Canada although the English think we do. We have enough soil already. In Canada the Fenians will establish a provisional government, and operate for the deliverance of Ireland. The United States will play the neutral game, precisely like Great Britain in our present contest with the rebels. Under color of armed vessels to cruise against English me chantmen, filling the seas as it were, with Fenian Alabamas and Floridas. This will not be perfectly proper under the president established by Great Britain in building ships to prey on American commerce. This is the present programme of the Fenian brotherhood to secure the independence of Ireland. In conjunction with a large invading force upon the soil of the Emerald Isle, it must work curiously. England will find, before many years, that the neutrality game is one that two nations can play at."

SMALL POX CURED.

Startling as this announcement may be, it is nevertheless true. Let not skeptics doubt, or refuse the proffered remedy, but rather hail this blessed medicine as a truth, until proved otherwise. This wonderful cure for Small Pox has been tried in over one hundred cases and succeeded in every case. The cure is their indication of cure is to draw the poison from the skin, blood and other viscera, and purge it from the system through the bowels. By this means the patient is protected against pitting and eruptions of the skin. There are no other purgative pills or medicines that are safe to administer in cases of Small Pox and other eruptive fevers; the irritation and increased inflammation that a dose of the drastic pills would produce in these cases, and the weakness that would follow, would prove fatal. Radway's Pills will throughly purge, and at the same time heal and soothe all internal eruptions.

DR. RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS:

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY
IN CANADA.

The following testimony from a well known and highly respected Merchant of Prescott, is corroborative of the general approval given to Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY:

PRESCOTT, C. W., Dec. 8th, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Co., Boston.

Gentlemen:—

Being solicited by your Travelling Agent, for an expression of opinion of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. I with pleasure assert that it is, in my belief, the best remedy before the public for coughs and pulmonary complaints.

Having tested the article with myself and family, in case of severe coughs and colds, for years, with uniform and unexceptionable success, I unhesitatingly recommend it with full confidence in its merits.

Yours truly,
ALFRED HOOKER.

MELODEON
AND
COTTAGE ORGAN EMPORIUM,
PETERBORO, C. W.

Estey's Perfect Melodeon
AND
COTTAGE ORGAN.
ESTABLISHED 1864.
FORMERLY ESTEY & GREEN.

The only Manufactory in this Country of the Perfect Melodeon and Cottage Organ with Patent Bass Damper, Patent Harmonic Attachment, and Patent Manual Sub-Bass.

These inimitable instruments have won their way to public confidence purely on their merits, and not by force of extensive advertising and purchased recommendations. With our increased facilities for manufacture, we are still unable to meet the extraordinary demand made upon us; but we hope soon to be able to fill all orders promptly.

Some of the points of superiority claimed for our instruments, are these:—

1st.—Smooth, steady and pipe-like quality of tone.

2nd.—Great delicacy of touch and promptness of action; producing, when desired, a low, sweet, lute-like tone, unequalled by any other instrument of the class.

3d.—The Patent Bass Damper, which enables the performer to swell the treble without increasing the volume of the bass; or, by drawing the Stop, to swell the notes by the action of the foot.

4th.—The Patent Harmonic Attachment. An ingenious octave coupler, which doubles the power of the Instrument without increasing its size or the number of reeds.

5th.—The Patent Manual Sub-Base, which are played with the ordinary keys and controlled by a stop. This new and valuable invention requires no extra room and serves as a substitute for the Pedal Bass, and can be used by an ordinary performer.

6th.—The Knee-Stop, in the Cottage Organ, which swells or diminishes the tone by a slight movement of the left knee, without interfering with the action of the feet,—having this advantage over the Automatic Swell that the volume of tone may be readily increased without extraordinary effort, and diminished without waiting for the change in the actions of the bellows.

Our recently constructed Cottage Organ, without the attachments, is unsurpassed by any Reed Organ or Harmonium of the size: but, with the Harmonic Attachment and Manual sub-base, it is pronounced by competent judges to be far superior to any other instrument of the class in the world. Its power, sweetness, and variety of tone, simplicity of construction and ease of management, recommend it to every one as being all that is claimed for it, both for the parlor and the church.

The Harmonic Organ, for Churches and Public Halls, has a fine, powerful Pedal Base, with independent reeds: and, with the Harmonic Attachment, is believed to be the most powerful Reed Organ made, being nearly equal to a pipe organ of three times its cost.

All our Instruments are made in the most thorough manner, and warranted in every respect

JOS. R. WALTON,
Agent.
Peterborough, Jan. 1865. 4

Rev. A. C. Rose, of Troy, N.Y. says:—These give the value of five Melodeons in one. The ease of touch and promptness of action are unrivalled. It can be played with all the sweetness of the lute or Æolian harp, and changed in an instant to its full power, nearly equal to a twelve stop organ.

All orders addressed to the undersigned will receive prompt attention.

JOSEPH R. WALTON, Peterboro.

TESTIMONIALS.

JAMES BROWN, Esq., M. D.

Peterboro, October 20th, 1864.

I am happy to inform you that after the most persevering and testing trial for some weeks of the Cottage and Parlor Organ, we like it better every day. It is remarkable for variety of tone and power, and several of the best judges here say it is unequalled by any instrument of the kind (with double reed) they have ever heard You can so control and command all its parts, as to passe ally and rapidly from the softest tones of the Harp, Lute or Piano, to the rich full swell of a large Organ. It is easily played by child or adult, and is already a very great favorite with us. Its compact structure, ingenious combination of power with the new and beautiful Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-bass are greatly admired and are highly creditable to the maker, Estey, of Vermont. I think it is peculiarly adapted for Church Music.

EDW. F. CROWLE, A. M. &c.

Sherbian Villa Seminary, Peterboro, Dec. 1864.

We are delighted with the Cottage Organ with Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-bass. We prefer it to any instrument of the kind we have ever seen; its tone, sweet and harmonious in the parlor, possesses sufficient power for a church.

REV. J. C. SLATER.

Wesleyan Parsonage, Millbrook, Jan. 1865.

I have much pleasure in testifying my entire satisfaction of the Cabinet Organ, purchased from you, as an instrument possessing superior qualitities in sweetness, variety and strength, to anything of the kind I have ever seen. Two experienced musicians who have examined it, concur with me in recommending it as a perfect instrument adapted to Church or Parlor.

GEO. A. NORRIS, M. D., Recording Steward of the Wesleyan Church, Omemee.

Omemee, July, 1864.

In reply to your inquiries as to the Harmonic Organ, purchased from you for our church, we have to express our highest satisfaction; in purity and sweetness of tone as well as volume of sound, it is all that can be reasonably expected.

Peterborough, Dec. 20th, 1864.

MR. J. R. WALTON.—Having examined and played upon the Parlor Organs sold by you, and manufactured by Mr. Estey. I have great pleasure in pronouncing them a first class instrument, The Harmonic attachment and manual Sub-base being a very great improvement and well worthy the patronage of the Musical public. Yours truly,

A. T. HEATHFIELD,
Organist of St. John's Church,
Peterborough.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of six thousand dollars for the purpose therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $6000 in constructing, making and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County.

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $6000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $600 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the temporary investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised assessment roll of the said Municipality, being for the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three was $2,786,683.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of $6000 and interest, as hereinafter mentioned, it will require an equal annual special rate of thirty-one sinetieths of a mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same, upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $6000, and so much the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than $100 each; and that the said debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden and counter-signed by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable in 10 years at the farthest from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum, per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first day of April and the first day of October in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon, an equal special rate of thirty-one sinetieths of a mill in the dollar shall, in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the 24th day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at its Council Chamber in the Court House, in the said County, on Thursday, the 22nd day of June, 1865, at the hour of 12 of the clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

Poetry.

PRISON POETRY.

Prison philanthropy is going mad in England, where criminals are frequently better housed and fed than honest poverty. An Inspector going through one of the prisons the other day came across the following lines written on a slate belonging to a prisoner under sentence of penal servitude for the second time, and who has repeatedly been convicted besides. He sends them for publication to the London Times:

"I cannot take my walks abroad,
I'm under lock and and key;
And much the public I applaud,
For all their care of me.
I've more than others I deserve—
In fact much less than more;
Yet I have food while others starve,
Or beg from door to door.
The lowest pauper in the street
Half naked I behold;
While I am clad from head to feet,
And covered from the cold.
Throughout is there are who scarce can tell
Where they may lay their head;
But I've a warm and well aired cell,
A bath, good books, good bed.
While they are fed on workhouse fare,
And grudged their scanty food;
Three times a day my meals I get,
Sufficient, wholesome, good.
Then to the British public, health,
Who all our care relieves,
And while they treat us as they do
"They'll never want for thieves."

A REBEL GIRL ON UNION.

The following letter was captured among the effects of Hood's army, so the story goes. There is a good deal of music in it.

Nashville, Jan. 20, 1865.

Dear brother Tom—I wrote to you some six months ago, and feel quite uneasy about you, as not a line has reached me since your letter last June. I now repeat to you that matters and things are getting worse every day. You will be astonished to hear that your friends of the female denomination are dropping off every day. Yes, dropping off too, into the arms of the ruthless invader. Just think of it! Mollie, the uncongenial, who used to parade that large Beauregard breastpin, and who used to sing "Maryland, my Maryland" with so much pathos, was married four months ago to a Federal with but one bar on his shoulder. Sallie, who used to sleep with the "Bonnie Blue Flag" under her pillow; who looked daggers and pistols at the invaders; who would not speak to her schoolmates, N—— and C——, because they received and treated Federal officers with due politeness, she too is gone—yes, married to a Federal officer with two bars! Sue, the historical one, who carried the glittering stiletto in her belt, who was going to imitate in Charlotte Corday and assassinate somebody for her country's sake, she, too, has gone the way of all flesh, and married an officer with that detestable eagle on his shoulder. And now, pull out your handkerchief, and prepare for the worst, my poor brother Tom. Your old sweetheart, Anna, the one to whom you dedicated your sweetest verses, and whose melodious voice so often mingled with yours in days of yore, who defied both Generals and the whole 15th army corps, who was sent first South then North, but upon whose rebellious temperament no climatorial change could have the least influence, she, too, has hauled down the stars and bars, and is about to surrender at discretion. I should not have believed this, but to convince myself I passed her house the other night with a gentleman who protects us during your absence, on purpose to find out the state of her political sentiments from her musical programme.

Take it like a man, Tom! for I must tell you that I heard very distinctly the words of "Rally 'round the flag," and the "Union forever," sung in her best style, with a glorious tenor voice mingling with it.

Poor brother Tom! You know I considered her always the Gibraltar of the South, and now when she surrenders, I must think that the Confederacy has gone up. You had better come home immediately, and look to your interests in that quarter, and perhaps it may not be too late yet to produce a favorable change in your favor. Tell the boys down in Dixie, if they do not return soon they will not find a single girl or widow below conscript age in these parts, as the watch word now seems to be "Semve qui peut," which means "Marry who you can." My principles are unchanged, and I am as true to the South as ever. We have a captain boarding with us, merely by the way of protection, who appears to be rather a clever fellow for a Federal. He takes a sly glance at me at the table sometimes, but of course I do not return it. You know me too well for that. Let me hear from you soon, and believe me ever. Your loving sister, MARIE.

P.S. I—Do you think it would be a violation of my Southern principles to take an occasional ride for my health with the captain? He has such a nice horse and buggy. You know there can be no possible harm in that.

P. S. II. That impertinent fellow actually squeezed my hand as he helped me out of the buggy this evening. We had such a delightful ride. I want you to come home and protect me, Tom as I don't like to live this way much longer.

P. S. III. If ever I should marry a Yankee, (but you know my principles too well for that,) I would do it merely as the humble instrument to avenge the wrongs of my poor oppressed country. Little peace should he find by day or night; thorns should be planted in his couch; his dreams should be of Holofernus, and my dry goods bill as long as the International Revenue law.

P. S. IV. Come home, brother Tom, and take the amnesty oath for two months, or thereabouts. I want to tell you a secret! On due consideration I have come to the determination to make a martyr of myself! Yes, brother Tom, I am going to marry the captain on patriotic principals.

A lady condemning the wearing of moustaches, declared: "It is one of the fashions I set my face against!"

To prevent the kitchen door from creaking, keep a servant girl whose beau comes to see her of an evening.

'INTERESTING EVENTS,' are occasions when a nurse takes absolute possession of the house, and the husband has to sleep on the sofa. Babies are the tyrants of the world. The Emperor must walk softly—baby sleeps. Monarchs must hush his nascent requiem—baby sleeps. Phidias must drop his hammer and chisel—baby sleeps. Demosthenes be dumb—baby sleeps.

BUGS.—The "death-ticking" in the wall or the bedstead is a solemn warning of death [to the bugs], and dreaded by many; and yet the insect so called has a great fancy for old walls and old bedsteads [and tender young folks. The only remedy we can name for this, is to keep your bed and bedsteads clean.]

Agricultural.

WORK FOR APRIL.

The tug of farm work begins this month. First comes the care of fences. These should be kept in thorough order, that there may be no danger of unruly cattle breaking in on growing crops. It is a good plan to renew a portion of the fencing on a farm year by year, so that it may all undergo a constant process of renovation. A common evil in early spring, is letting cattle and horses upon meadows and pastures, while the ground is wet and springy. Avoid this by all means. It injures the root of grass, and while there is but little feed, only tantalizes the stock, and makes dry food distasteful. As soon as meadows are tolerably dry, loose and projected stones should be picked off, and the land rolled. In these days of mowing machines, it is desirable to get meadows as clean and smooth as possible. Stumps should be got rid of, brush exterminated, and small hillocks levelled down. Let bare spots be re-seeded, and the whole top dressed with fine well-rotted manure, unless indeed this was done last fall, the preferable plan. Put in force old Richard's advice this month: "Plough deep while sluggards sleep." Of all operations on the farm plowing most needs to be done well. Eschew all slovenly skim-faced work. Let teams be well cared for, grooming and attention generally. They should be gradually brought to hard work, so as to harden to it. Horses are very apt to get collar and harness galls in the spring; guard against this. A dutch collar is often very useful, to change the bearing and prevent wounds.

Clover may still be sown either alone or on winter grain. Give it a dressing of plaster. Various crops of oats, and barley are much affected by the time the seed is got into the ground. Sow as early as the state of the land will permit. Pull out red root and cockle from among the wheat. New milch cows and their calves will require attention. To rear calves, they must be kept clean and comfortable, fed regularly with nutricious food, and sudden changes of food avoided. They do best when they are weaned early. Lambs must be cared for, and needless exposure guarded against. The yearling ewes must not be neglected. Manure heaps should be turned over, compost arrangements made, and well-rotted dung that may be on hand carted out. Orchards and shade trees may be planted out as soon as the weather and land are favorable. Trees heeled in last fall, may be delayed longer than trees left in the ground until the buds are swollen. Rainy days this month, should be improved in cleaning out cellars, putting tools in order, greasing waggons, oiling harness, preparing seeds, squaring up account books, and reviewing plans for the busy season. In the garden, as well as on the farm, there will be enough to do this month. Early potatoes and peas should be planted as soon as the ground is free from frost.—Rake off the coarse litter from asparagus beds, fork in fine manure, and give it a dressing of salt. The beginning of April is early enough to start the hot-bed for family gardens in it is climate Cold frames and hand glasses, will be found useful in starting and protecting tender plants. Remove the covering from strawberries, grapes, and plant out cuttings of currants, gooseberries, &c. Early in the spring is the best time for setting out strawberries. If properly done they will bear a little the same season. Draining, manuring path-making pruning and transplanting should all be attended to as early as possible. In the garden as well as on the farm it is wisdom to take time by the forelock, and never put off till to-morrow what can be done to-day —Canada Farmer.

EFFICACY OF ONIONS.—A writer says:—We are often troubled with severe coughs the results of colds of long standing, which may turn to consumption or premature death. Hard coughs cause sleepless nights by constant irritation in the throat, and a strong effort to throw off offensive matter from the lungs. The remedy I propose has been tried by me and I often recommend it to others with good results, which is simply to take into the stomach before retiring for the night, a peice of raw onion, after chewing. This excellent, in an uncooked state, is very heating, and tends to collect the waters from the lungs and throat, causing immediate relief to the patient. Sliced onion, in a raw state, will collect poison from the air, and also from the human system when taken internally, or externally applied to the arm pits.

SALVE FOR FROST BITES.—The following is the receipt for Wahle's Frost Salve, so long known and valued in Germany, but the recipe for which has been kept a secret till recently purchased by the government of the kingdom of Wurtemburg, and made public:—2½ oz. mutton tallow, 2½ oz. hog's lard, ½ oz. peroxide of iron (red iron rust,) ½ oz. Venice turpentine, 2 oz. oil of burgamot, 2 oz. bole armeman. rubbed to a paste with olive oil. Heat together the tallow, lard and iron dust, in an iron vessel, stirring with an iron spoon constantly till the mass assumes a perfectly black colour; then add gradually the other ingredients, stirring till well mixed. It is applied upon linen, daily, and its effect upon even the most painful frost sore is most extraordinary. In all probability, for other similar wounds it would also be an excellent application.—Ex.

BOXES FOR POULTRY.—Fasten pieces of wide boards on three sides of a hard stone; and with a hammer break the bones from the kitchen in small fragments, not larger than peas. Hens that are laying will eat them with avidity. Bones from fresh meat, if broken fine so that hens will swallow the pieces, are excellent to make them lay. Poultry of all kinds should be well supplied with sharp gravel also at this season of the year. Pounded oyster shells, where they can be obtained, afford one of the best means of supplying lime.

CURE FOR WARTS AND CORNS.—The bark of the willow tree burnt to ashes applied to the parts, will remove all corns or excrescences on any part of the body.

QUIVERING OF THE EYELIDS.—Should you experience this sensation, it indicates that some person is stepping on the spot where you are to be buried. [Horrid! Call him off at once. How could he do such a thing! Won't you please raise your claim.]

ENGLISH CHRISTMAS PUDDING.—Two lbs. superfine flour; 2 lbs. beef suit; 2 lbs. raisins; 2 lbs. currants; 2 lbs. sugar; 2 dozen eggs; 2 gills brandy; 2 ounces allspice; made into a thick batter with new milk. Boil eight hours.

FOR TOOTHACHE.—A little horse radish scraped and laid on the crisis of the side affected, will, in many cases, it is said, give speedy relief. Another way is to place a little scraped horse radish in the mouth, or the tooth, and just around the gum. It relieves rheumatic pains in the gums and face also. The mouth may afterwards be rinsed with a little camphorated water, lukewarm.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!
CAN BE FOUND IN
Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF
Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER SHAPE internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the RADIX OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL AND FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs FROM THE BLOOD ITSELF, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Womnn in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable curatives. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

Poetry.

A YEAR'S SPINNING.

BY ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING.

He listened at the porch that day,
To hear the wheel go on and on,
And when it stopp'd—ran back away—
While through the door he brought the sun;
But now my spinning is all done.

He sat beside me, with an oath
That love ne'er ended, once begun;
I smiled believing for us both
What was the truth for only one,
And now my spinning is all done.

My mother cursed me that I heard
A young man's wooing as I spun,
Thanks, cruel mother, for that word,
For I have since a harder known!
And now my spinning is all done.

I thought—O God!—my first-born's cry
Both voiceless to my ear would drown,
I listen'd in my agony,
It was the silence made me groan!
And now my spinning is all done.

Bury me 'twixt my mothers grave,
Who cursed me on her death-bed lone,
And my dead baby's—(God it save!)
Who not to bless me would not moan,
And now my spinning is all done.

A stone upon my heart and head,
But no name written on my stone!
Sweet neighbors! whisper low instead,
"This sinner was a loving one—
And now my spinning is all done."

And let the door ajar remain,
In case he should pass by anon;
And leave the wheel out very plain,
That He when passing in the sun
May see the spinning is all done.

ALL ABOUT LACE.

Since the time of the French revolution, men having ceased to wear jabots, ruffles, laced night-caps, and laced bands have lost all perception of difference between Nottingham manufactures, point d'Alencon, and that crown and glory of all lace, the rose point. Lace has a peculiar and subtle charm, quite independent of its costliness. It is a peculiar mystery, which partakes of the charm that lies in the wonderful wood carvings in Gothic cathedrals. Lace, old lace, is a product of art, not of manufacture; human life, human violation, is expressed in every inch of the delicate mesh which makes the costly ground to set forth the pattern. There is individually impressed upon each kind of lace, just as there is upon each great school of painting; in each put their seal upon their work. It took a life time to produce even a small quantity of 'Les belles et eternelle Valenciennes,' as they were called, required so much labor that some workmen only produce twenty four inches in the year.

The changes in the atmosphere and the fluctuations in the health of the workers, told on the finer kinds of lace; and it was a well known fact that if a piece were begun in the city of valeciennes and finished outside its walls, it would be inferior, though it might be the work of the same hand, made with the same thread, and on the same pillow. The flax of which the brussels and the point d' Alencon were made was cultivated on purpose; it was chiefly grown in Brabant Halle and Coutrai, and had to be spun in under ground cellars, because contact with external air made the thread brittle. The thread was so fine as almost to elude the sight, the spinner has to go by the sense of touch, examining every inch of it as it left the distaff, and at the slightest irregularity stopping the wheel. The room was kept in darkness except 'or one ray of light, arranged to fall on the thread, which was thrown up by a back-ground of dark paper. As it was in the sixteenth century so it is now. The wheel and distaff are still used for spinning the flax for lace thread and under the same conditions. No machine has yet been invented to equal the work of the trained flax spinner and her distaff. At the present day, the hand spun thread is often sold at £240 sterling for one pound of avoirdepois of thread; and at the French exhibition in 1859, it was stated that sometimes the price runs as high as £500 for the kilogramme. Fine lace may well be costly.

Formerly it required eighteen workwomen to produce one yard of point d' Alencon; each of them bore a different title to indicate her function as piquise, tiaceuse, educeuse, remplisseuse, &c. Now, however, the number of workers is reduced to twelve. The time required to produce point d' Alencon is as great as that needed for Valenciennes; it was not made with a pillow but with the point of a needle. The old rose point lace was superior even to point d' Alencon. The superiority consisted in this; that whereas point d'Alencon was the work of several hands, the bride or button hole stitch, by which the pattern was edged, was worked over a thread of horse hair, which gave it firmness and made the point stand well up; but unfortunately this horse hair was apt to shrink in the washing and the pattern was drawn up from the ground. In rose point the pattern was edged round by innumerable stitches, one over the other, repeated until the required effect was produced, which no washing could change or injure. Rose point was always the work of one person, and it was done in a single piece. The chain like work between the flowers was varied in pattern, like the finest and loftiest jewel work.

'Lace,' says Mrs. Palliser in her preface, 'is an art essentially Catholic.' Lace was, in the begining dedicated to the exclusive service of the Church; but needlework was the forerunner of lace; curiosities of fine needlework have existed from the earliest period. Phrygian women were famous for their embroidery; we read of divers colors of needlework worked on both sides, in the Song of Deborah; gold thread work was known to the Romans; the mysteries of needlework and embroidery were brought from the East by Odin and his followers to the Scandanavians. When Balder the 'white god' died, and his wife had voluntarily gone down with him to the kingdom of the dead and when Hermoder was sent to seek and deliver them in vain, then Balder sent his ring to Odin and his wife Nanna sent her thimble to Frigga for a remembrance. In 1747 a Scandanavian barrow was opened at wareham near Dorcetshire, and there, within the hollow trunk of an oak, were found many bones wrapped in deerskins neatly sown together; also the remains of gold lace four inches long and two broad of a lozenge pattern, which is the most ancient of all designs, and to be seen on the coats of the ancient Danes.

The Anglo Saxon nuns were famed for their embroidering, and their church garments were so beautifully and so richly trimmed that the 'opus Anglicanum' was sought after by the Popes themselves. St. Dunstan designed patterns for the lady Ethelwyne to embroider on a stool, and sat in her bower designing and singing songs, while the lady and her maidens wrought with their needles. It was the custom for knightly families to send their daughters to their lord's castle there to be trained under the eye of the lady, to weave, spin and embroider. These young ladies are the 'bower maids' of the old hall; they beguiled their work by singing chansons a toile,'—songs of the loom, as they might be called. It those days women seldom walked abroad, daily exercise being quite a recent invention.

Catherine of Aragon brought great improvements into English embroidery. She had been taught under her mother, Isabella the Catholic, famous for her skill in needle work. Catherine introduced the 'Spanish stitch,' and the fashion of embroidering black upon white, a fashion recently revived. When Wolsey and Cardinal Campeggio came to Bridgewell to speak to her about her divorce, she came to them out of her workroom with a skein of red silk hanging around her neck. The smocks of Catherine of Arragon 'for to lie in,' were all wrought about the collars with silk and gold. A Book of Abuses, written in 1583, is bitter on the luxury of fine linnen. 'These shirts were wrought throughout with needlework, and curiously stitched, with open seams and many other knacks besides.' From this curious embroidery lace took its rise. In the fifteenth century there is mention made of 'nun's work;' but the monks were equally industrious with the needle, and indeed, down to a late period men used to embroider for employment or recreation. Moreau and Hoche' heroes of fame, embroidered satin waistcoats long after they had become soldiers.

The earliest lace work was made of very fine linnen, the edges of which was worked in close embroidery; the threads in the body of the piece were drawn and fashioned into the figures of birds, beasts and trees with their leaves. If the ends of the cloth were not embroidered then they were raveled out and plaited into geometrical patterns. The winding sheet of St. Cuthbert was a miracle of this kind of work.

'Cut work,' not unlike what we call applique was an early kind of lace; It was kept exclusively for the services of the church, and indeed until the dissolution of the monastries in England the art of making it was considered a church secret.

In the reign of Henry VIII, 'cut work came' into secular wear for those who could afford it. The widow of John Whitcomb, a wealthy clothier of Newbury, is mentioned as 'coming out of her kitchen in a fair train gown, stuck full of silver pins, having a white cap upon her head, with cuts of curious needle work, the same on an apron white as the driven snow. Cut work was made in various styles; one method was to place in a frame, threads radiating from a common centre at equal distances; these the threads were then drawn in squares, triangles, rosaces or any geometrical form, or in any shape of birds or beasts; the patterns were worked round the edges in button hole stitch. Some portions were left open, and others made into a heavy compact embroidery like linen cloth.

The word 'lace,' was first applied to very narrow braids, like those used to draw portions of dress together; these braids were wrought into patterns not unlike maltese lace, and these were laid on the garment as a trimming or passement. At the coronation of Richard the Third, Queen Ann wore 'a white cloth of gold mantle, garnished with a mantle of lace and Venyse gold.' The French term 'dentelle' in modern, and took its rise when first braids and passements were made with a toothed edge. Marguerite, sister to Francis the First, paid six pounds for sixty yards of 'dentelles de Florence,' to put on collars in 1545. Twenty years later there is a notice of 'une pacque de petite dentelle,' furnished to Mary Stuart.

Pillow lace was a novelty which appeared in 1623; it was called 'Passement au Fuseude.' It is curious to trace the progress of lace as shown in the illustrations of this work. At first the braid is made into the pattern, to be laid on the dress as a trimming, then it comes to have a network ground, with the braid worked as a flower. The term for ground of the lace was 'entoliage,' because it surrounded the pattern; sometimes the patterns were 'grilles,' from the little space left between the threads like gratings, as distinguished from the close toile of other patterns.

Point lace and guipure lace were not made with a ground of network like pillow lace; they retained the type of the old braid, but the flowers, or pattern, were connected by threads or chains overcast with button hole stitch, and wrought into a variety of delicate and irregular chains. These connecting threads were called, in English, 'pearlittes' and 'corcombs;' the Italians called them 'brides.' The difference between point lace and pillow lace is that point lace is made with a needle on a parchment pattern; hence it is called 'needle point' 'point a l'aiguella;' it is incorrect to apply the term 'point' to any lace made on a pillow. 'Point also signifies a particular kind of stitch; thus there is 'point de Paris,' 'point de neige,' &c.

It was not until the time of Colbert, 1665, that the manufacture of lace became a great branch of French industry. He may be called the father of lace, for he caused a general development of the trade throughout Europe. Guipure lace was a coarse thread, covered or whipped about with silk; it was also made with a little strip of thin parchment, covered with gold or silver, or silk thread, which formed a raised pattern; the instrument that made it was called guipoir—hence its name. It was very costly, and only worn by those of high degree. Mary, Queen of Scots, loved guipure, and while she was at Loch Leven, Sir Robert Melville gave her a pair of white satin sleeves, edged with a double border of silver guipure. In England, guipure was called 'parchment lace;' and kings nobles and princes were all patrons of guipure.

Up to the time of Louis the Fourteenth the lace trade was entirely in the hands of the peddlers, who carried the wares to the large towns and country houses. These hawkers attended the great faits of Europe, where everything could be bought.

The Italians claim the invention of point or needle made lace; they derived the art from the Greek refugees, who fled to Italy to escape the troubles of the Lower Empire. They may also have learned from the Saracens. The Spaniards learned the art from the Moors of Grenada. The fabric appeared in Italy about the fifteenth century. The laces of Venice, Milan and Genoa were the best known in the early period of the manufacture. 'Venice fringes' were worn by Richard the III. at his coronation; and there is frequent mention of 'lace of Venice, in silver and black silke.' In the reign of Elizabeth, 'Italian cut work' and 'Venice lace' became general in England; about the same time they found their way into France. The earliest patterns of Venice point were stiff and formal; they passed, at the period of the Renaissance, into a flowing graceful guipure, without any set pattern. There is a charming legend of the origin of this design. A Venetian sailor brought home to his betrothed a bunch of the coralline sea weed, known as the 'Mermaid's lace.' The girl, a lace maker, struck by its graceful appearance, imitated it with the needle, and after several trials produced the graceful guipure, which soon became the fashion throughout Europe. We have not space to enumerate all the choice and delicate species of lace produced by Venice in those days.

Mr. Palliser gives a learned and elaborate history of the art of lace making in Greece, Turkey and Malta. So much lace was used in Spain for the dressing and redressing of the Madonna and the saints, and for ecclesiastical garments, that there was little left for general consumption. The lace of Spain was hardly known in Europe until the dissolution of the monasteries in 1740, when splendid specimens of nun's work came suddenly into sight—pieces of lace so exquisite as only possible to be the productions of those whose time was money, and whose devotion to the church made their works a labor of love. The chapter on Flanders lace is most interesting—Flanders and Italy disputed the invention of lace. Mechlin, the queen of lace, is distinguished by the flat thread that forms the flowers, making the lace look like embroidery. It continued to be so for nearly a hundred years. Queen Anne was extravagant in Mechlin; and the dandies trimmed their cambric shirts with Malines, dipped in coffee grounds. It was a slow manufacture; it took a good worker a fortnight to make twenty-eight inches. The fashion called about 1755, when French blondes came into vogue. In France, when Louis the Fourteenth ascended the throne, the money spent in lace was enormous. Lace was a rage which sumptuary edicts endeavored in vain to quell. Anne, of Austria, set the example of disregard to the laws. The boot tops of the great seigneurs were very large and the open space at the top was filled with rows of the richest Genoa point.

When Louisa the 18th married in 1560, the young Infanta wore a black lace, which speedily became the fashion. Black lace came to England in the reign of Charles the Second. Sumptuary edicts being vain to curtail the extravagant sums expended on foreign lace, Colbert resolved to develop the manufacture of lace in France, that at least the money might be spent in the country. In 1665 he selected a certain Madame Gilbert, a native of Alencon, well acquainted with the art of Venice point, and established her at a chateau of his own, De Louray, near Alencon, with thirty workwomen, brought, at his expense, from Venice. In process of time Madame Gilbert brought to Paris the specimen of her skill. Colbert inspired the king with a desire to see the new work; and during a supper at Versailles, he announced that he had established a manufacture of lace, far more beautiful than anything that had yet been seen. The laces are arranged around the walls, over crimson damask, to show them to the best advantage. The king was delighted; he ordered a reward to Madame Gilbert, and issued a Nebuchadnezzar like decree, that nobody should appear at court except in the new fabric.

By way of uniting religion and luxury, the Parliament in Paris, in the year 1665, passed an edict by which no one was allowed to sell lace until she had made profession to the Holy Roman Catholic and Apostolic faith. A company was formed on a large scale, with a monopoly for ten years of the privileges of making point de France. The ordinance bore date of 1665. The first distribution of profit on each share was declared and paid Point de France superseded Point de Venice; but still it continued so costly that none but the rich could buy it; those who could not content themselves with pillow lace—a manufacture which greatly increased and improved; indeed the production could not keep pace with the demand. The royal manufacture ceased to be a monopoly in ten years and other lace manufactures were set on foot, and the lace trade became a most flourishing branch of commerce and industry. Lace was, in France, a rage, a fashion, a luxury, a necessity of life. It was the Queen of Aragon who introduced the knowledge of lace making into Bedfordshire when she resided at her juncture house at Ampthill. She passed her time, when not at her devotions, in working, with gentlewomen, costly vestments, which she intended, for the honor of God, to bestow on some of the churches. The country people loved her extremely. To this day the lace makers of Buckinghamshire hold "Cattern's Day" the 25th of Nov. as the holiday of their craft kept in memory of the good Queen Catharine, who, says their tradition, when the trade was dull burned all her lace and ordered new to be made. The feat of St. Catharine has not long ceased to be held. Everybody, young and old, used to subscribe a sum of money for a feast: a 'Cattern Cake,' a cup of good Bohea tea; after tea a dance and after that a grand supper of boiled rabbits smothered in onions.

Queen Catharine, who loved good cheer, would have sympathized with this hearty mode of commemorating her day. The French refugees who came to England after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, exercised and wonderfully improved the manufacture of bone lace. English lace, however, could never attain to the beauty and fineness of French and Flanders lace, because neither the flax nor the thread could be obtained of such good quality; and after many attempts to overcome that difficulty, the lace dealers took a more compendious course, they smuggled enormously from Flanders, and sold the lace in Paris for dentelles d' Angliterre. Nevertheless, a great deal of genuine English went to Paris. The French Revolution set the fashion for transparent gauzes and love of lace declined. Frippery, blonde, and machine made gauze usurped the beautiful and costly lace. At last after years of neglect, when a reaction took place, the knowledge of lace was entirely lost. Madame Camille brought back the fashion, with discretion and understanding. Since the exhibition of 1851, the taste for lace has spread throughout England.—London Athenæum.

A Parson with Great Moral Ideas.

Decent people in the Republican party are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of the old proverb which counsels those who would sup with Satan to provide themselves with a long spoon. The "incoherence" of their new Vice President, Johnson, sits easily on their stomachs; and the worse than incoherence of the vulgar ruffian, in a white cravat, whom they have bayoneted into the position of governor of Tennessee, has reached a pitch beyond the tolerance even of that plantipede crusher of copperheads, the New York Times.

The Times reprints, with mild expostulation, the following specimen of crapulous ferocity toward the Southern people, just vented by Parson Brownlow, at Nashville:

"Impoverish the villians—take all they have—give their effects to the Union men they have crippled and imprisoned—and let them have their "Southern rights." They swore they would carry on the war until they exhausted their last little negro and lost their lands. Put it to them, is our advice, most religiously!—fleece them, and let them know how other men feel when robbed of all they have. Let them be punished—let them be impoverished—let them be slain—and after slain, let them be damned!"

The Times gently protests that whilst such "strong language" is proper enough on the lips of an exiled parson, it is unpolitic and unbecoming on those of an installed governor! That a professed minister of Him who, when he had not where to lay his head, so loved the world as to give his life for it, and when he was reviled, reviled not again, should thus unpack his heart with curses and yell for vengeance like a Sioux squaw, the Times thinks consistent with "great moral ideas." It objects to the like proceedings from the same quarter now, because the party of "great moral ideas" hath a need of conciliation and tactical skill. But the ravings of this weak and wicked man, in the eyes of all honest Christians and patriots, were just as revolting two years ago as they are to day; and it is utterly silly for the partizans who took him up and made a "martyr" of him that they might make a governor of him now to expect that the stream will rise above its source. Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh, and the man who is mean and malignant in his hour of trial will not easily be made magnanimous in his hour of triumph.

POPULAR SUPERSTITIONS.

FISH AND THE CAT.—If a cat washes her face, you will have company before night. If you dream you catch fish, it is a sign you will make a good bargain, according to the size of the fish.

FINGER NAILS.—If you cut your finger nails on Monday without either speaking or thinking of a red fox's tail, you will have a present during the week. [Forget the tail, if you can!]

KNIFE AND FORK.—If you drop a fork and it sticks in the floor and remains in a standing position, it is a sign a gentleman will call; but if a knife, a lady will call.

DISAPPOINTMENT.—When putting on your shoes and stockings, if you complete dressing one foot before commencing the other, it is a sign that you will be disappointed. [Dear me!]

DEATH IN THE FAMILY.—The breaking of a mirror by any member signifies death in the family before the year closes. [Ergo, be very careful not to break the looking-glass.]

AN ITCHING FOOT.—If the right foot itches on the bottom, you are going where you are wanted; if the left foot, where you will not be welcome. [Bathe the feet on rising every morning and they will not itch.]

MARRIAGE.—If a young lady finds a four leaved clover and puts it in her hair, the first young man she meets she will marry. If a lady asks a gentleman's hat, it is a sign she wants a kiss. If you swallow a chicken's heart whole, the first young man who kisses you, you will marry. If one sits on the table, it is a sign they wish to be married.

THE BUCKHORN ROAD.

For some time there have been impressions afloat that the completion of this portion of the road to the back country was absolutely necessary in order to open up communication with the new settlement in our rear. Application was made to the Government for aid to build the road, and we are glad to find that the committee appointed to see after the building of this portion have been successful in obtaining the necessary assistance.

The only thing that is now required is to have over the cash promised by the county, and Town Councils to the amount of $1500, which and the government will immediately proceed to build the road. The cost of its construction will not be less than $6000. Thus by the timely aid of the government the county will be saved at least $3000, this is no great a saving to lose sight of. The great difficulty in the way to the immediate commencement of the whole is the necessity of getting over the money promised by the Councils. The unwise policy of keeping the rate one below the expenditure or necessary demands of the year, leaves both the Town and County Councils in arrears, when they should always have a little in the hands of their Treasurers to meet expenses. There is now difficulty in the way of obtaining the cash for immediate deposit. We do not see why the government cannot take security. That the money will be forthcoming by the month of June or July there is little doubt. It would be a very small favour on the part of the government to proceed and expend the sum that they calculate on expending, and then give the County and Town Councils time to make arrangements to obtain and pay over the portion guaranteed by them. The committee however have hitherto managed the affair satisfactorily, we may therefore rest satisfied that no effort will be wanting on their part to secure the construction of the road.

We learn that T. F. Nicholl has been appointed superintendent of the road; this we think will meet with general approbation. Mr. Nicholl is already appointed County Engineer, it were therefore be expected that he will take an interest in having the road substantially constructed. The county cannot complain of the appointment, as he is the same as if their own nominee. We expect to hear progress reported very soon.

THE MAYORALTY.

The question is put in last week's Review. "Have we a Mayor or not? We do not take upon ourselves to vindicate the character or acts of the Mayor or any member of the council, neither are we prepared at present to censure.

We need not tell our readers that in a moral point of view, the Mayor's character stands as high to-day as when he was elected at any time heretofore. Legally he may have rendered himself unqualified to act as chief Magistrate, by claiming the advantage of our Civil Law, morally he stands in as favourable a position as when he was elected to the office. In regard to official acts, it is time enough to complain, when something is done contrary to law. It was understood by several of the members of the Council, if not by all, that the Mayor did not intend to act in an official capacity so as to invalidate or run the least hazard of invalidating any act of the Council. His not resigning does not in any way interfere with the working of the Council. That body can appoint a chairman who can preside and discharge all connected with a presiding officers duty, and thus independent of his resignation there need be no fear of malefeasance on the part of our chief Magistrate or on the part of the Council because of his position at present. In relation to the legality or illegality of any act of his as Mayor while in office not provided he did not resign his seat in the Council, we refer our readers to the article of our very able correspondent, "Lex" in this issue. He very clearly establishes the fact that though he may hold his seat illegally, his official acts would not in consequence be illegal.

The question could very easily be proved to be more the off-spring of spite, than any desire to protect the interests of the Town.

The Review condemns those who, in his vain imagination, stand in the way of his own pecuniary advantages; truculence or extravagance has less to do with our contemporary than personal spleen. We trust we shall not be wanting (when called upon) in exposing wrong doing whether in the Mayor or any one else, but never let us be found venting our little personal squabbles on any one because perchance he appears to be in in our way to honor or emolument. Personally the Mayor may or may not be the man of our choice, but inasmuch as he is the choice of the people, we bear with him, only finding fault when there is reasonable and just cause for it.

AMERICAN NEWS.

The war is over to all intents and purposes. Johnston surrendered to Sherman on the same conditions that Lee did to Grant, when he found that his first negotiations with Sherman would not be tolerated at Washington. Grant was with Sherman at the time, yet permitted the surrender to be made to Sherman in honor of his eminent services. The two greatest armies of the South are thus bound not to take up arms against the Republic, and the two best generals of the South are thus obligated not to engage in acts of war at least for the present. It is not possible that any force of any account can be mustered by any other general of note. Jeff. Davis is trying to make good his escape with immense treasures. There are great anticipations that his treasure will be captured and perhaps himself and his retinue, at last account he was said to be in South Carolina. The army of the United States is to be reduced to 400,000 men—

VICE ITS OWN PUNISHMENT.

The murderer of President Lincoln ran but a very short race, vengeance seems to have been taking hold of him from the very moment he committed the foul deed. It would appear that while jumping unto the stage from the place where he fired the fatal shot he hurt his foot or ancle, which so much retarded him in his flight that he only proceeded about 80 miles in about fourteen days. He was also delayed, getting medical aid. These things combined to aid his pursuers so that they eventually overtook him (by chance) not far from Frederick-burgh. He had been left at one Garretts, under the pretence of being a wounded Marylander returning home, but some suspicions were cast upon him as the guilty party or one of his accomplices. Harrold his associate was with him all the time. When a company of Federals in pursuit came into the place, it appears the Garretts directed them to the barn where Booth and Harrold were, but although there was a squad of 28 men they lacked courage to close on Booth so as to take him alive. Harrold surrendered, and was taken, but while he was being handcuffed a Sergeant shot at Booth and wounded him in the neck of which wound he died about four hours after. When just about expiring he was asked if he had any thing to say, he whispered to tell his mother that he had died for his country. Poor deluded fool to thus become a murderer, bring upon himself the just vengeance of the law and bring himself under the penalties of Divine Law. The short period since the murder, must have been to him a period of great mental anxiety as well as great bodily suffering. Every step must have been full of terror. The blood of his innocent victim must have been crying aloud in his ears for vengeance. The winds no doubt often added to his alarms as it raved around the buildings or trees where he lodged. How dearly he has purchased an immortal fame? how miserably his career closed? Now while memory remains and while history is read the name of J. Wilkes Booth will ever be associated with crime, and posterity will remember it with contempt, ignominy will be everlastingly associated with it.

HORSE SHAVING IN CAVAN.

There is nothing speaks louder than action! "By their fruit ye shall know them" is truth. When an individual or number of individuals engage in actions which only the vile and most infamous would be guilty of, at once the epithet, "villain" is, by common consent, attached to him, and deservedly so. When men profess to be loyal subjects of any government, to get credit for being such, requires that they be law abiding subjects, else, what right to such claims. In a free Country like Canada many think that there should be freedom to do whatever the corrupt imagination may invent. Some of the good people of Cavan have lately demeaned themselves so much as to take to horse-having, and that on a pretty large scale. No less than four very respectable persons have had their horses shaved because they voted for the Dunkin Bill, and urged that those who violated the Law should be punished.

No act more loudly bespeaks the character of those who generally oppose the Bill. What a pity that some decent people should have allied themselves with any party who would thus disgrace their connexions, their Township, and the Province, with such outrageous disregard for civil and moral Law? What a pity that the perpetrators of these unlawful acts could not be found out and made to suffer the penalty of their crimes—a few years in the penitentiary? If the Law is obnoxious to the mass of the people—repeal it, but why resort to those acts of wanton villainy, which does not materially injure either the man or the beast, only shews the true character of the perpetrators, and speaks very badly for the training received in the bar room or under the direction of those who carried on the traffic. The spirit of alcohol has not created or cherished a good spirit in those who are guilty of these outrages.

Board of School Trustees.

The Board met on Tuesday evening. The regular night of meeting. Present,—The Chairman. Colonel Haultain, Rev. Mr Roger, Messrs. Edwards, Forde, Hehn, Conter, Stevenson, Lundy and Walton.

The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed.

A letter from Miss Hardie was read, tendering her resignation.

The report of a Special Committee recommending the appointing of a Drill Instructor was read. All who spoke appeared to think it unwise to engage one just now because of the low state of the Town finances. The adoption of the report was lost. Yeas 4; Nays 5.

A Committee appointed to report on Rules of order, &c., for the Grammar and Union School, through some misunderstanding concerning convening a meeting of Committee, were unable to report. The Chairman and Mr. Conter, who had been appointed to visit the school on the usual monthly visit of two members of the Board, were unable to report or make any suggestion, one had forgotten all about it; the other thought it useless to go for reasons we indistinctly heard.

A very lengthy report of the Principal was then read on the general state of the school which seemed to reflect rather severely on some of the Teachers. It sets forth heavy charges against four of them.

On motion of Mr. Edwards a Committee consisting of Colonel Haultain, Rev's. Messrs Roger, Brock, Burnham and the mover were appointed to examine into the matter complained of in the report of the Principal, and report thereon.

The Subject of indigent pupils attending was also referred to; it was declared that they were not provided with books, &c. The general opinion expressed was either to see they were provided with the necessary books or remove them.

The Board then adjourned.

THE SHOW OF HORSES.

This show came off on Saturday last according to hand bills. The judges were J. Walton, Isaac Gartlat, and J. Darling Esq's. The number of entries were very small, only six. The horses were of the small size, and a number of them were young, 3 or 4 years old. The first prize was awarded to the Phenomenon, owned by Mr. Lawrie. The second prize to a horse owned by Mr. McCanius. The third prize to a grey horse owned by Mr. J. Montgomery. There is no doubt but that the awards were given according to merit, all present would no doubt have unanimously fixed on the same horses in the same order. The Phenomenon is a very neat horse of medium size, and very well built. The day was not as favourable as all would have desired, the morning's rain made it rather unpleasant. The ground selected, however, was very suitable. Very few people were present, and there was not a great interest in horse flesh exhibited [illegible] immediately concerned.

SPRING ASSIZES.

The Spring Assizes for the County of Peterborough commenced on Monday last. Mr. Justice Adam Wilson, presiding. C. A. Weller Esq., conducting the business of the Crown.

The following gentlemen were sworn as Grand Jurors:—Walter Brodie, Esq., Foreman, and William Landy, Patrick Burk, Henry Bennett, Thos. Bradburn, Ed. Chamberlen, William Claxton, Francis Crow, Thos. G. Hazlitt, William Lang, Alex. McDougall, John H. Preston, Alex. Rosborough, George Strickland, John Smith, John Sullivan, Ben. Weller, Wm. Curtin, sr. and James Cameron, Esqs.

There was only one criminal case before the Court, Patrick Murphy, charged with Arson, against whom a "true bill" had been found at the last Fall Assizes. Prisoner has been in Jail ever since and hears evidence of the effect of confinement. Verdict guilty.

The Civil docket is heavier than for some time past, there being eighteen records of trial, almost all of them important cases. The following cases have been disposed of:

Cooney vs. Dunsford—Burnham for Plaintiff—Scott for Defendant. Verdict for Plaintiff—damages—$600.

Hazlitt vs. Hall.—Dumble for Plaintiff—Dennistoun for Defendant. This was an action against the Sheriff for a false return to a writ of taxation against lands: upon a statement of facts, signed by the attorneys being put in. A verdict was returned for the defendant.

The Bank of Toronto vs. Fowlds, et al,—C. A. Weller for Plaintiff—Dennistoun for Defendant. Verdict for Plaintiff—damages —$127.40.

Dundass vs. Johnston and Wilson.—S. Smith for Plaintiff—Donald Bethune for Defendant. This was an action of ejectment to recover possession of the East half of lot number Ten in the Tenth Concession of North Monaghan. Plaintiff Gustavus Dundass being a discharged soldier in 1825 or thereabouts obtained a location ticket for the lot in question, which he transferred to Mr. Jas. Robertson of Port Hope, the consideration being a Heifer. Robertson afterwards sold his right to Defendant Wilson, who is the landlord of Defendant Johnston, and Wilson in 1833 obtained the Patent which was issued in the name of Plaintiff Dundass. Wilson went into possession some time about 1833 and sought to establish his title by right of possession since. A number of witnesses were examined to prove the possession and Dundas' knowledge of it. After a lengthy trial the Jury found a verdict for defendant Wilson.

Martyn vs. Dickson.—Smith for Plaintiff—Dennistoun for Defendant. Referred to arbitration by consent.

Hilliard vs. Shaw & Wait.—Smith for Plaintiff, assisted by Hector Cameron—Dennistoun & Son for Defendants, assisted by Christopher Patterson. This was an action brought by George Hilliard, a Saw Mill owner, on the Otonabee river, against Shaw & Wait, who are also Saw Mill owners, occupying a mill on the same dam with plaintiff, and another mill at Lakefield, about 8 miles further up the river. Plaintiff alleged that Defendants, during October last, were in the habit of putting in the stop logs every evening into their dam at Lakefield, thus backing the water up Katchewanook Lake, and so preventing it flowing in the usual natural course or flow of the stream to the Plaintiff's mill during the night, whereby the working of his mill was impeded. The action was brought to recover damages sustained by Plaintiff by reason of the acts of Defendants complained of. Verdict for Plaintiff—$150.

Toole vs. Dickson.—Smith for Plaintiff—Weller for Defendant: referred by consent.

Hamilton vs. Court et al—Fairbairn, assisted by C. Patterson, for Plaintiff—Hon. S. Smith, assisted by Hon. J. Hillyard Cameron, for Defendants. This was an action brought by Mr. James Hamilton against Messrs. Covert Fowler & Cayley, as the Lessees of the Railway, for damages alleged to have been sustained by the construction of a switch on Bethune Street, in front of Plaintiff's property, preventing his ingress and egress. It appearing that Mr. Cayley was not a Lessee, his name was struck out, and a new suit was ordered as to the other defendants, with leave to the Plaintiff, if he sees fit, to move to leave the question of damage referred to arbitration under the claims of the Railway Act.

Dickson vs. Craigie & Stephenson.—Scott for Plaintiff, assisted by C. Patterson—Hon. S. Smith for Defendant, assisted by Hon. J. H. Cameron. This was an action brought by Mr. S. Dickson against the Defendants, to receive six months rent for saw mill, and the value of certain damage done by the Defendants to the property rented. Verdict for defendant.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

The Municipal Council of the Village of Ashburnham met on Monday the 1st inst.

Present—The Reeve, Messrs. Strickland Bennett, Ludgate, and McGregor.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

On motion of Mr. McGreggor, W. Ainslie was appointed Pound keeper for the current year.

On motion of Mr. Bennett, John Craig was appointed overseer of High ways.

The time for collecting a small trifle on arrears of taxes was extended for a few days.

On motion of Mr. Ludgate it was agreed to present to the Peterboro Fire Company the sum of Twenty Dollars, in consideration of their services at the late fires in the village.

Messrs. Rogers and Strickland were appointed to make arrangements concerning the old Cricket Ground, for certain purposes. Messrs. Rogers Bennett and Ludgate were appointed a committee on Streets and Bridges.

The Council adjourned to meet again on the first Monday of June next at 7 o'clock, p. m.

The First Cries.—Already the hardy lumberman is at work bringing down timber. Messrs. Strickland & Sons are bringing down their timber, the first coming down on Saturday. The men do not appear to be making the best runs of it, perhaps the high water renders it more difficult to keep the channel. On Monday two men had a very narrow escape of getting drowned, while crossing Roger's Dam. They got into the water either at or just [illegible] of the logs slipped back, killing one man [illegible]

TOWN COUNCIL.

Monday, May 1st, 1865.

Present: Messrs. Burnham, Chairman, Leonard, Lawson, Whyte, Stevenson, Toole, McNaughton, Ormond Williams, Helm and Chamberlen.

The Mayor not being present, the Clerk requested the members present to elect a Chairman. On motion of Mr. Williams, seconded by Mr. Ormond, Mr. Helm was elected Chairman.

A petition from Mr. John Wilson, asking the Council to remit a fine recently imposed upon him in the Police Court for selling liquor without License, and asking leave to continue his business, was read and received.

A petition from John Gamble, complaining of the difficulty he had of ingress and egress with teams into his yard, and praying for redress; was referred to the Committee on Streets and Bridges.

The following accounts were referred to the Finance Committee:

Chief Constable, $11 50.
Examiner Printing Office, $33 14.
Thomas Fry, $1 25.
A. Williams, $2 40.
Fire Company Lamps, $12 00

A Report from the Special Committee appointed for the selection of a site for a House for the Indigent, was read and received.

A Report from the Charity Committee, was read by the Chairman, received and adopted.

A Report from the Committee on Finance and Assessment, recommending payment of the accounts of R. Smith, $1 92: Henry New, $3, was received and adopted; the other portion of the report recommending the disposition of the Railroad payments was received.

Mr. Stevenson introduced a By-law which was read a first and second time, relating to the receiving and disposition of the moneys received from the lessees of the Railway.

A communication was read from Mr. Wm. Weir, asking the Council to grant him a License. It was agreed that if the Inspector reported the necessary accommodations, he was to have the License.

Moved by Mr. Williams and seconded by Mr. Ormond,—That Messrs. Eastland and Pearse, do receive an allowance of ten dollars each as an extra compensation for their services as Auditors for the present year.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Williams and seconded by Mr. Toole,—That the Fire Committee be authorised to expend fifty dollars to procure the necessary apparatus now required for a Hook and Ladder Company, and that the Chief Constable do collect the Hooks and Ladders now belonging to the Town, and deposit them at the Engine House, and all other implements belonging to the Fire Department.

Mr. Burnham introduced a By-law to raise $1,500 to aid [illegible] Township of Harvey, which was read and passed, and ordered to be signed and the corporate seal attached thereto.

Mr. Arnott was instructed, if occasion required, to hire assistance at night to suppress rowdyism in Town.

Moved by Mr. McNaughton and seconded by Mr. Williams,—That the Chief Constable is hereby instructed that immediately on getting the alarm of fire, he shall immediately proceed to the alarm bell, and ring the same at least for fifteen or twenty minutes.—Carried

Moved by Mr. McNaughton and seconded by Mr. Williams,—That the Finance Committee are hereby authorised to purchase one dozen chairs for the use of the Council, hors, also to get some seats for the use of the public, and two lamps for the table,—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Lawson and seconded by Mr. Whyte,—That the annual sum of fifty dollars be granted to the Fire Company for the celebration of the 24th day of May.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Burnham and seconded by Mr. Williams,—That three dollars be paid to Mrs. Michael Daley, as charities towards the support of the infant children of the late Edward Powers.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Burnham and seconded by Mr. Williams,—The Taxes of Mrs. Reynolds, amounting to $1 68 were ordered to be remitted.

The Council then adjourned for one week.

THE MAYORALTY.

To the Editor of the Examiner

Sir,—Last week's Review has somewhat unsettled people's minds by the question "have we a Mayor?" Without referring to the motives which are attributed to your contemporary for his attack upon Mr. Perry I think a word or two on the question itself may not be inopportune

There is no doubt that, having applied for relief under the Insolvency Act, Mr. Perry is disqualified from being a member of the Council, and therefore from being Mayor. But it is equally true that he has been as much disqualified ever since his first election, as a Bankrupt, and might at any time have been unseated by a writ of quo warranto. Notwithstanding this, the Ratepayers have year after year marked their confidence in him, and their appreciation of his fitness for the position he occupies, by returning him, frequently by acclamation, and no one has ventured to question his right to the seat.

The mere fact of disqualification does not of itself vacate an office, and this is the point to which I would draw your attention; nor does the fact of disqualification render illegal any act committed during the occupancy of the official position. Gentlemen are every year in many parts of the country declared by the Courts to be disqualified as Municipal Councillors, yet no one ever heard of the acts of the Council in which they had taken part previous to their ejection, being declared null and void.

The case may be more fully illustrated by reference to the Independence of Parliament Act. That Act declares that any person holding office under the Crown shall be disqualified from sitting in Parliament, and that the acceptance of office by a member of Parliament shall vacate his seat. But it provides that in the event of a member sitting and voting after having thus become disqualified, he shall incur a penalty of £500 for every day he so sits. The very statement of the penalty implies that he may sit and vote, but at his own peril. A few years ago an action was brought against certain ministers of the Crown to recover the penalty upon the ground that they had accepted office without vacating their seats. The judgment was in their favor; but suppose it had been otherwise, is any one foolish enough to say that the acts of the Legislature in which they had taken part, even the votes they had themselves recorded, would have been null and void?

And so it is here. Mr. Perry is unquestionably disqualified under the statute; but he is not a whit more so than he has been since his first election. The only difference is that the evidence of disqualification has been rendered more plain. But until some of those who seem anxious to have him removed apply by petition for a writ of quo warranto, he can remain in his office and execute the duties of it, and his acts will have quite as much authority as any he has heretofore committed.

WAR NEWS.

New York, April 29.—Southern advices state that Johnston attempted to haggle with Grant for terms which would provide for the pardon of Jeff. Davis and the other leading insurrectionary conspirators, but the Lieutenant-General would listen to nothing of the kind, and Johnston was compelled to be satisfied with the conditions granted to Lee.

The Herald's Washington special says:—Information has reached Washington that the rebel steam ram Stonewall alias Stonewall arrived at Teneriffe, in the Canary Islands, on the 31st of March in three days from Lisbon. She was allowed to coal and provision. She was ordered to leave the port in 24 hours. She left on the 1st inst., steaming rapidly southward, but her destination was not made public.

The navy department, in anticipation of the appearance of the Stonewall in some of our harbours, is making a proper distribution of suitable vessels along the Atlantic seaboard.

Intelligence of the arrival of Jeff. Davis and his accompanying fugitives as far south as South Carolina, has been received in Washington.

It is thought he will be intercepted before reaching the Mississippi river.

Cairo, April 29.—The news of the assassination of the President reached Little Rock, Arkansas, on the morning of the 17th inst.

A flag of truce, in charge of an officer of General Kerby Smith's command, has been for several days at Little Rock.

A flag of truce was sent by General Reynolds to General Fagan with the same terms as granted by General Grant to General Lee. The result was not known—the return of the flag having been delayed by high water.

New York April 30.—The "Herald's" Northern correspondence says the lamentations of Sherman's army over the assassination of President Lincoln were suddenly changed to rejoicing at the appearance of Gen. Grant. His old army of the Tennessee were hailed with joy.

The terms granted to Johnston embrace in the surrender four armies of the military division of the West, but excluding the 5th, that of Dick Taylor, lying west of the Chattanoochie river.

Among the Generals surrendered is Beauregard. Principal among the Lieutenant Generals is Hardee. Bragg, lately relieved from command, was not surrendered. Wade Hampton refused to be surrendered, and is reported to have been shot by Johnston in an altercation, but a more trustworthy report is that he fled in company with Davis.

The number actually surrendered is twenty-seven thousand four hundred, although more names are given. All the militia from South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia and the Gulf States are included.

Gen. Grant returned to Washington on Saturday.

The "Herald's" Washington special correspondent says our Consul General in Canada has given notice to the authorities that all the criminals connected with the assassination of President Lincoln must be surrendered to the United States authorities.

The "Herald's" mobile correspondent says our forces captured three hundred and fifteen heavy guns, ten thousand stand of arms, and thirty thousand bales of cotton, besides immense quantities of corn and other grain. It is also estimated that one hundred thousand bales of cotton and seventy-five thousand barrels rosin are hidden in the swamps along the Alabama, most of which is within reach of our forces.

Over ten thousand stragglers from the rebel army have given themselves up. Guerilla bands [illegible] our lines; and a party of them went to the Battle House, on the night of the 14th intending to assassinate Gen. Gregor, who fortunately was not there.

The Herald's Newbern correspondent says:—The last positive account of Jeff Davis' movements was that he had passed through Charlotte on his way southward, escorted by a brigade of cavalry, probably Wade Hampton's, on the 23rd inst. As Gen Wilson was at Macon on the 20th, and virtually held all Southern Georgia, the chances are that Davis cannot escape.

New York, April 30.—Intelligence from the Shenandoah, states that Lee's paroled soldiers going home in that direction are required to take the oath of allegiance.

Washington, April 30.—The work on the Treasury Department extension is now being pushed forward with great rapidity, and the State Department building will shortly be demolished.

Several prominent Northern steamboat officers are here endeavouring to make arrangements to establish a regular line of passage steamers between this city and Richmond.

Mrs. Lincoln has not yet rallied from the prostration occasioned by the public expression of the President's death. She is constantly attended by numerous warm friends, and, of course, has not yet decided when she will leave this city for home.

New York, May 1.—The Post's special says that Gen. Halleck has offered to give citizens of Virginia transportation to their homes in that State, and to supply them with condemned horses for agricultural purposes.

The Commercial's special says that the news of Gen. Halleck adopting stringent measures against disloyalists in Virginia has produced a great sensation.

Raleigh, N. C., April 28.—The army of the Tennessee and the army of the Georgia take their departure from here in a day or two for Richmond, Virginia.

The army of the Ohio, Gen. Schofield commanding, consisting of the 23rd and 10th corps remains, and will be distributed as a garrison force throughout the State.

Mr Holden, the editor of the Raleigh Standard, who is soggy sted as the Governor of the State, takes decided ground against the restoration to power of Gov. Vance and the existing Legislature. He favours a new deal, the adoption of the constitutional amendment abolishing slavery, and recognizing the constitution of the United States as paramount to any State constitution.

Gen. Johnston's army are to deliver up their effects to the United States authorities to-morrow at Greensboro, 75 miles west of here.

The following order has been issued by Gen. Howard:—

Headquarters Army of Tennessee,
Raleigh, N. C., April 27, 1865.

To the citizens along the routes of march:

It is requested that you remain at your homes as much as possible while the columns are passing by. Hostilities having ceased, promiscuous foraging is prohibited. The necessary supplies, in addition to what the army transports, will be procured from the country by purchase. Quartermasters and commissaries will be instructed to pay the cash or furnish proper vouchers.

Citizens will do well to aid the officers commanding guards, patrols, &c., in every possible way to apprehend and bring to punishment any thief or marauder who may seperate himself from the column. Every sort of precaution will be taken by our officers to render the march orderly, and it is hoped that the great terror that prevailed during active operations will now cease.

It being difficult to transport sufficient rations for an extended march, our officers have been requested to discourage refugee from following the army. The duty to travel freely in any direction now exists, and precludes the former necessity of refugees accompanying or following us.

Respectfully,
O. O. HOWARD
Major-General.

New York, May 1.—General Halleck has issued an order at Richmond to the effect that no person be allowed to transact business without taking the oath of allegiance.

Washington, May 1st.—Acting Assistant Surgeon John A. Hall, of the Lincoln general hospital of this city, was to-day ejected from the hospital in disgrace. An intercepted letter to a person in Canada from him, referring in [illegible] manner to the death of the late President, was the cause.

New York, May 1.—Gold is quite active this morning, and considerable of that taken in payment at the Treasury office is finding its way into the market. The opening price was 145¾ against 146¾ Saturday evening, and after an advance to 145¾ the price before noon settled down to 144¾.

The Cobourg Sun chronicles the death of Mr. J. Hickey of Hablimand, which took place near Sarnia, while in the act of coupling the cars, his foot caught on the frog when he fell and the cars passed over his body.

The Hamilton Press assert that from reliable and trustworthy source, they learn that General R. E. Lee will pay a visit this week to [illegible] Hamilton city to see some relatives there.

Particulars of Booth's Death.

New York, April 28.—It appears by Harold's account that Col Baker sent Lieutenant-Colonel Conger and his teamsters Baker, of his detectives, with Lieut Doherty and his cavalry after them. On reaching Garret's farm they were told by a son of Mr. Garret that there were two men in the barn. This was at 2 o'clock on Wednesday. Proceeding to the barn, Lieut. Baker was sent forward, and called upon Booth to come out, give up his arms and surrender, and that young Garret would go into the barn to receive the arms. Upon his entering the barn Booth exclaimed "Get out of here; you have betrayed me." A colloquy then ensued of which the following is the substance:—

Lieut. Baker—"You must give up your arms and surrender. We have come to take you a prisoner and will treat you as a prisoner. We will give you five minutes to surrender or will burn the barn."

Booth—"Who are you and what do you want?"

Instructions had been given to Lieut Baker not to disclose the character of those who were in pursuit.

Lieut. Baker—"We want you—we intend to take you prisoner."

Booth—"This is a hard case; it may be that I am to be taken by my friends."

After some further colloquy of this sort, Booth, seemingly convinced that he was in the hands of the Federal soldiers, said:—"Give me a chance for my life. I am a cripple with one leg. Withdraw your men 100 yards from the barn and I will come out and fight you."

Lieut. Baker—"We did not come here to fight but to take you prisoner; you must give up your arms and surrender."

Booth—"Let me have time to consider."

A conversation in the barn between Booth and Harrold then took place which was not overheard by the party outside. In about 15 or 20 minutes Booth called out, "Who are you? I could have picked off half a dozen of your men while we were talking. I could have shot you two or three times, but I don't want to kill anybody."

Lieut. Baker—"Then give up your arms and surrender, we have come here to take you."

Booth—"I will never surrender. I will never be taken alive."

Lieut. Baker—"If you don't do so immediately we will set fire to the barn."

Booth—"Well, my brave boys prepare a stretcher for me."

After this conversation took place between Booth and Harrold, during which Booth was heard to say, "You damned coward, will you not leave me now; but go, go—I don't want you to stay with me." He then addressed the party outside, and said, "There is a man here who wants to come out." Lieut. Baker said, "Then let him hand out his arms and come out." Another talk here occurred between Booth and Harrold in which it appeared that the latter was begging to be allowed to take out some arms with him, and Booth was heard to say, "Go away from me—I don't want anything more to do with you." Harold then came to the door and asked to be let out. Lieut. Baker said,—"No; hand out your arms." Harrold replied, "I have none."

Lieut. Baker—"Yes, you have; you carried a carbine when you came here—you must hand it out."

Booth—"He has no arms; they are all mine. Upon my word as a gentleman he has no arms. All that are here belong to me."

Lieut. Baker approached the door. Harrold thrust out his hands and was pulled from the door, and made a prisoner in charge of a guard.

Col. Conger was then satisfied that further parley with Booth was vain, and proceeding to the door set fire to the barn by poking out a wisp of hay and lighting it. Within a few minutes the burning hay lighted up the inside of the barn. Both was discovered leaning on a crutch which he was using, and with a carbine in his hands came towards the side where the door had been kicked in, paused, looked at the fire for a moment and then started towards the door. When about the middle of the barn he was shot. Colonel Conger and Lieut. Baker at once entered the barn and brought out Booth.

After identification, by order of the War Department, the body was hastily interred in the clothes which were upon it.

The Herald's correspondent says it is learned that Harrold joined Booth just after the assassination, and it is believed brought the horse into the alley.

The following is the statement of Sergeant Boston Corbett:—

"On Tuesday afternoon my superior officer, Lieut Edward P. Doherty, received information that two persons answering to the description of Booth and his accomplice were concealed in a barn on the place of Henry Garrett, about three miles from Port Royal, in the direction of Bowling Green. There we captured a man named Holt, who formed Booth and his companions across the Potomac. At first he denied knowing about the matter, but when threatened with death if he did not reveal the spot where they could be found, he pointed us to the place. Booth and Harrold reached the barn about dusk on the evening of Tuesday. The barn was at once surrounded by our cavalry, and some of our party engaged in conversation with Booth from the outside. He was commanded to surrender several times, but made no reply to the demand save that 'if you want me you must take me.' When first asked to surrender he asked 'who do you take me for?' A short time after, in response to the question as to whether there was anybody else with him in the barn, he stated that he was the only person in the building, that his companion Harrold had taken another direction, and was beyond the reach of capture. At three o'clock, or a little after this, the barn was fired. Before the flames were kindled Booth had the advantage of me in respect to light. He could see us, but we could not see him; but after that the tables were turned against him. We could see him plainly, but could not be seen by him. The flames appeared to confuse him, and he made a spring toward the door, as if to attempt to force his way out. As he passed by one of the crevices in the door I fired at him. I aimed at his body. I did not want to kill him. I took deliberate aim at his shoulder, but my aim was too high. The ball struck him in the head right below the right ear and passing through came out about an inch above the left ear. I think he stooped to pick up something just as I fired, and that may probably account for his receiving the ball in the head. I was not over 8 or 10 yards distant from him when I fired. I was afraid that if I did not wound him he would kill some of our men. After he was wounded I went into the barn. Booth was lying in a reclining position on the floor. I asked him "where are you wounded?" He replied in a feeble voice, his eyeballs glaring with a peculiar brilliancy, "In the head. You have finished me." He was then carried out of the burning building into the open air, where he died about two hours and a half afterwards. About one hour before he breathed his last he prayed for me to shoot him through the heart and thus end his misery. His sufferings appeared to be intense. Booth, although he could have killed several of our party, seemed to be afraid to fire. Mine was the only shot fired on either side. When he fell he had in his hand a six-barrelled revolver, and at his feet was lying a seven-shooter, which he dropped after he was wounded. Two other revolvers were also near him. He declared that the arms belonged to him, and that Harrold had nothing to do with the murder. We gave him brandy, and our men went in search of a doctor whom we found about 4 miles from the scene of the occurrence, but when the doctor arrived Booth was dying. He did not talk much after his wound. When asked if he had anything to say, he replied 'I die for my country, and asked those standing by to tell his mother so. He did not deny his crime."

CANADA.

A Correspondent to the London Times.

Sir,—In this economic age people like to receive value for their money. Millions will probably be expended in Canada during the next few years in the construction of works of defence and some people think that the money so spent will be entirely thrown away because the object sought will not be achieved by the means of defence proposed by the Government.

Canadian newspapers are apparently not much read in this country, and therefore a subject at present attracting considerable attention in the colony does not seem to have reached the knowledge of any of the speakers in the late debates in the House of Commons. The report of these debates and your comments thereon, as a Canadian, I have read with the deepest interest, and, in so far as the loyalty of the Canadians is recognized, with very great satisfaction; but I own to a feeling of disappointment that at a time when England and Canada are to have heavy burdens imposed upon them, the debates should not have taken a wider range, and that we should not have heard of other plans for the defence of the colony besides those of the Deputy Director of Fortifications.

The project now being discussed by the press and people of Canada is known as "The Ottawa and French River Navigation Projects." It is a somewhat costly undertaking, but so are its fortifications, while in its practicability and utility are not matters of opinion. We have surveys and estimates of cost, prepared by order of the Government of Canada, which place its entire feasibility beyond doubt. The British Government are also in possession of reports highly favourable to the undertaking from a military point of view; but as all these reports are now some years old, they are apparently forgotten, and in the apprehension of that very remote probability—an American invasion of Canada—nothing but the erection of stone walls round our chief cities seems to have entered into the calculation of either Cabinet.

"The Ottawa project" would give a navigable line of communication far removed from the frontier, between Montreal and Lake Huron, by way of the Ottawa and Matawan Rivers, Lake Nipissing and French River, and by this route alone could gunboats, in time of war, safely reach the upper lakes, and without a present attracting considerable attention in the colony does not seem to have reached the knowledge of any of the speakers in the late debates in the House of Commons. The report of these debates and your comments thereon, as a Canadian, I have read with the deepest interest, and, in so far as the loyalty of the Canadians is recognized, with very great satisfaction; but I own to a feeling of disappointment that at a time when England and Canada are to have heavy burdens imposed upon them, the debates should not have taken a wider range, and that we should not have heard of other plans for the defence of the colony besides those of the Deputy Director of Fortifications.

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY IN CANADA.

The following testimony from a well known and highly respected Merchant of Prescott, is corroborative of the general approval given to Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY:

Prescott, C. W., Dec. 8th, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Co., Boston.

Gentlemen:—

Being solicited by your Travelling Agent, for an expression of opinion of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, I with pleasure assert that it is, in my belief, the best remedy before the public for coughs and pulmonary complaints.

Having tested the article with myself and family, in case of severe coughs and colds, for years, with uniform and unexceptionable success, I unhesitatingly recommend it with full confidence in its merits.

Yours truly,
ALFRED HOOKER.

MELODEON AND COTTAGE ORGAN EMPORIUM,

PETERBORO, C. W.

Estey's Perfect Melodeon AND COTTAGE ORGAN.

ESTABLISHED 1864.

FORMERLY ESTEY & GREEN

The only Manufactory in this Country of the Perfect Melodeon and Cottage Organ with Patent Bass Dampers, Patent Harmonic Attachment, and Patent Manual Sub-Bass.

These intimitable Instruments have won their way to public confidence purely on their merits, and not by force of extensive advertising and purchased recommendations. With our increased facilities for manufacture, we are still unable to meet the extraordinary demand made upon us; but we hope soon to be able to fill all orders promptly.

Some of the points of superiority claimed for our Instruments, are the se:—

1st.—Smooth, steady and pipe-like quality of tone.

2nd.—Great delicacy of touch and promptness of action; producing, when desired, a low, sweet, flute-like tone, unequalled by any other instrument of the class.

3d.—The Patent Bass Damper, which enables the performer to swell the treble without increasing the volume of the bass; or, by drawing the Stop, to swell the notes by the action of the foot.

4th.—The Patent Harmonic Attachment. An ingenious octave coupler, which doubles the power of the instrument without increasing its size or the number of reeds.

5th.—The Patent Manual Sub-Base, which are played with the ordinary keys and controlled by a stop. This new and valuable invention requires no extensions and serves as a substitute for the Pedal Base, and can be used by an ordinary performer.

6th.—The Knee Stop, in the Cottage Organ, which swells or diminishes the tone by a single movement of the left knee, without interfering with the action of the feet,—having this advantage over the Automatic swell that the volume of tone may be readily increased without extraordinary effort, and diminished without waiting for the change in the actions of the bellows.

Our recently constructed Cottage Organ, without the attachments, is unsurpassed by any Reed Organ or Harmonium of the size built, with the Harmonic Attachment and Manual sub-base, it is pronounced by competent judges to be far superior to any Church instrument of the class in the world. Its power, sweetness, and variety of tone, simplicity of construction and ease of management, recommend it to every one as being all that is claimed for it, both for the parlor and the church.

The Harmonic Organ, for Churches and Public Halls, has a fine, powerful Pedal Bass with independent reeds; and, with the Harmonic Attachment, is believed to be a most powerful Reed Organ made, being nearly equal to a pipe organ of three times its cost

All our Instruments are made in the most thorough manner, and warranted in every respect

JOS. R. WALTON,
Agent.

Peterborough, Jan. 1865. 4

Rev. A. C. Rose, of Troy, N.Y. says.—These give the value of five Melodeons in one. The ease of touch and promptness of action are unrivalled. It can be played with all the sweetness of the Lute or Æolian harp, and changed in an instant to its full power, nearly equal to a twelve stop organ.

All orders addressed to the undersigned will receive prompt attention.

JOSEPH R. WALTON, Peterboro.

TESTIMONIALS.

JAMES BROWN, Esq., M. D.

Peterboro, October 20th, 1864.

I am happy to inform you that after the most severe testing and testing trial for some weeks of the Cottage and Parlor Organ, we find it better every day. It is remarkable for variety of tone and power, and several of the best judges here say it is unequalled by any instrument of the kind (with double reed) they have ever heard. You can so control and command all its parts, as to pleasingly and rapidly from the softest tones of the Harp, Lute or Piano, to the rich full swell of a large Organ. It is easily played by child or adult, and is already a very great favorite with me. Its compact structure, ingenious combination of power with the new and beautiful Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-base are greatly admired and are highly creditable to the maker, Estey, of Vermont. I think it is peculiarly adapted for Church Music.

EDW. F. CROWTH, A. M. &c.

Sheridan Villa Seminary, Peterboro, Dec. 1864.

We are delighted with the Cottage Organ with Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-base. We prefer it to any instrument of the kind we have ever seen; its tone is sweet and harmonious in the parlor, possessing sufficient power for a church.

REV J. C. SLATER,
Wesleyan Parsonage, Hillbrook, Jan. 1865.

I have much pleasure in testifying my entire satisfaction of the Cabinet Organ, purchased from you, as an instrument possessing superior qualities in sweetness, variety and strength, to anything of the kind I have ever seen. Two experienced musicians who have examined it, concur with me in recommending it as a perfect instrument adapted to Church or Parlor.

GEO. A. NORRIS, M. D., Recording Steward of the Wesleyan Church, Omemee.

Omemee, July, 1864.

In reply to your inquiries as to the Harmonic Organ, purchased from you for our church, we have to express our highest satisfaction in purity and sweetness of tone as well as volume of sound, it is all that can be reasonably expected of it.

Peterborough, Dec 20th, 1864.

MR J. R. WALTON.—Having examined and played upon the Parlor Organs sold by you, and Manufactured by Mr. Estey, I have great pleasure in pronouncing them a first class instrument. The Harmonic attachment and manual Sub-base being a very great improvement and well worthy the patronage of the Musical public. Yours truly,

A. T. HEATHFIELD,
Organist of St. John's Church,

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of one thousand dollars for the purpose therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $1000 in constructing, making and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County

And whereas to carry into effect the said resolution it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $1000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $80.00 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said County according to the last revised assessment roll of the said Municipality, being for the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five was $2,130,000.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of $1000 and interest, as hereinafter mentioned, it will be necessary to assess a special rate of fifty cents on the pounds of the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to lend the same, upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $1000, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes and with the rights hereinafter mentioned.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money, any one not exceeding the sum of $100, and not less than $50 each, and that the said debentures shall be signed by the said Warden and Municipal Council, and be issued by the said Warden and countersigned by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable on the 1st day of the month of June in any year of the twelve years next after the same shall be issued, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per cent per annum from the date thereof, and that the interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first day of April and the first day of October in each year, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate of six per cent per annum for the same, as aforesaid, the sum of thirty-one pounds ten shillings, making in the aggregate sixty pounds, in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the ratable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the 24th day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough at a Council Chamber in the Court House in the said County, on Thursday, the 22nd day of June, 1865, at the hour of 11 of the clock, noon, at which time and place the consent of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

Poetry.

JUST AFTER THE BATTLE.

Sick upon the field of battle,
I am lying, mother dear,
With my wounded comrades waiting
For the morning to appear.
Many sleep to waken never,
In this world of strife and death;
And many more are faintly calling,
With their feeble, dying breath.

CHORUS.

Mother dear, your boy is wounded,
And the night is drear with pain;
But still I feel that I shall see you
And the dear old home again.

Oh, the first great charge was fearful!
And a thousand brave men fell;
Still amid the dreadful carnage,
I was safe from shot and shell.
Safe amid the fatal shower,
I had nearly passed the day,
When a fragment of the dreaded minnie struck me,
And I sank amid the fray.
Mother dear, &c.

Oh, the glorious cheer of triumph,
When the foeman turned and fled.
Leaving us the field of battle,
Strewn with dying and with dead.
Oh, the torture and the anguish,
That I could not follow on;
But here amid my fallen comrades,
I must wait till morning dawn.
Mother dear &c.

THE FINAL TEST.—A worthy old Irishman was told one evening that his wife was very sick and likely to die. Profoundly grieved at the information, he hastened to her bedside to ascertain the progress of the disease, and in his own way to make a diagnosis. He first wiped the tobacco from his lips and gave her an affectionate smack. "Och! be the powers," said he, "and sure her mouth is as cold as the kay-hole of a jail doore!"

Filling his cob pipe he sat down by the fire and cogitated. A thought struck him, and he rose and offered his pipe to the sick woman, begging her to take a whiff or two. She moaned a refusal, and the sorrowing man again sat down. The pipe was soon finished, and the canteen of old Irish whiskey was brought down; after a generous draught, he sweetened a little for his companion. As before she shook her head, and seemed utterly incapable of appreciating her usual luxuries.

The good man's heart failed him and, as he drained the toddy which she refused, he exclaimed—

"Och, Bridget, dear, and yees goin' to lave me entirely! Ye'll nither smoke nor shrink, and sure thin ye ar'nt long for this world, at all, at all!"

And, sure enough, she did die.

HOW CAPTAINS LOVE THEIR SHIPS. I remember once there were four ships of us lying windbound in a little basin of a harbour at the western extremity of Bass's Strait and all bound into Hobart Town, in Vandieman's Land. Among the number was a Glasgow ship called the Caledonia—a regular mallet, commanded by Captain Archie Macgrigger, who thought her at out one of the fanciest crafts that ever floated.

We were all anxious to get into Hobart Town before the Queen's birthday, which was to be an extra big holiday. So out we all went one morning, and after bandying away at a S. E. gale a couple of days, we got a stout, but there of us ran into port two days ahead of the Queen's time.

Ten days afterward in came the old Glasgow tub, staggering under every inch of canvas. Captain Macgrigger ran her slap up into the mud till she brought up, and then leaping upon the wharf, he slapped and patted her affectionately, singing out, "Weel doon, me noble Caledonia!"

The Man who wrote the following, should be—well, really we do'nt know what punishment would be severe enough for him.

"How long Eve, the first woman, lived, we do not know. It is a curious fact that, in sacred history, the age, death, and burial of only one woman—Sarah, the wife of Abraham—is distinctly noted. Woman's age, ever since, appears not to have been a subject of history or discussion."

Women never prevaricate about their age but adhere religiously to one story. A lady (and a real good one she is) is now leaning over our chair, who has to our knowledge been "just 25, on the 1st of April, next," for the last 20 years.—Eh! What? Moses, how my head rings!

AN AMUSING INCIDENT occurred recently, during the progress of one of those "Sabbath School Concerts" so interesting to adults as well as children. The subject was the history of Samson, and the question, What foolish thing did Samson once do? Expectation was on tiptoe to ascertain his peculiar weakness, when from a front seat came the reply, given with solemn preciseness and irresistibly ludicrous accent, "He went down among the Philistines and got a wife!"

A LIMA CUSTOM.—The custom are rather peculiar here, any lady that particularly interests you, can, when she leaves the church, be followed and addressed without offence; should the interest be mutual, she will give you a view of her face, and then, if you choose, you can accompany her home; this establishes you as a calling acquaintance, which can be followed up at leisure.

You should adapt your language to your hearer. A lady who was handling a pair of artificial plates in a dental office asked: "Can a body eat with these things?" "My dear madam, mastification can be performed with a facility scarcely excelled by nature herself," responded the dentist. "Yes, I know, but can a body eat with 'em?"

Affected young lady (seated in a rocking chair, reading the Bible, exclaims)—"Mother here is a grammatical error in the Bible." (Mother lowering her specs and approaching the reader in a very scrutinizing attitude, says)—"Kill it! It's the very thing that has been eating the book-marks."

A little boy some six years old, was using his slate and pencil on the sabbath, when his father, who was a clergyman entered and said: "My son, I perfer that you should not use your slate on the Lord's day." "I'm making meeting-houses, father," was the prompt reply.

A preacher stopped short in a pulpit; it was in vain that he scratched his head—nothing would come out. "My friends," said he, as he walked quietly down the pulpit stairs, "my friends I pity you, for you have lost a fine discourse."

A correspondent, in allusion to the rapid increase of population among the Mormons, says more of their people are in arms than can be found among the same amount of population anywhere else in the country.

Give a man brains and riches, and he is a king. Give a man brains without riches, and he is a slave. Give a man riches without brains and he is a monkey.

A Word to Young Men.

THE man who would prefer one dollar to two, would by common consent be voted a lunatic and void of good sense. Yet there are hundreds of young men working for a salary of Two Hundred Dollars, and even less, when they might by devoting a few months to obtaining a Business Education, at a small expense, fit themselves for situations where their services would command twice or thrice that amount. The place where such an education can be obtained at a Cheaper rate than anywhere else in this Province, is

SEWING MACHINES!

FINKLE & LYON'S

NEW PATENT ROTARY FEED Sewing Machines.

The following facts demonstrate that these Machines comprise the highest improvements in the Sewing Machine Art, viz:

1. Each Machine is guaranteed to give better satisfaction than any other Sewing Machine in Market, or money refunded.
2. They have taken many of the highest premiums at the most important Exhibitions and fairs ever held in the United States.
3. They make the lock stitch alike on both sides—thus saving more than half the thread and silk used in the raveling-ridge-seams of the loop stitch and single-thread Sewing Machines.
4. They are adapted to the widest range of heavy and light sewing.
5. They have no rattling wires, or delicate attachments to keep in repair.
6. They require no taking apart to clean or oil, and no "Lessons" to set needle, regulate tension, or operate Machine.

Please call and examine, and demonstrate for yourself, or send for Circular, with samples of sewing.

DEEDS OF KINDNESS.

Suppose the little cowslip
Should hang its golden cup,
And say, "I'm such a tiny flower
I'd better not grow up,"
How many a weary traveller
Would miss its fragrant smell;
How many a little child would grieve
To lose it from the dell.

Suppose the glistening dew-drop
Upon the grass should say,
"What can a little dew drop do?
I'd better roll away"
The blade on which it rested
Before the day was done,
Without a drop to moisten it
Would lay withered in the sun.

Suppose the little breezes
Upon the summer's day,
Should think themselves too small to cool
The traveller on his way.
Who would not miss the smallest
And the softest ones that blow
And think they made a great mistake
If they were talking so.

How many deeds of kindness
A little child may do,
Although it has so little strength
And little wisdom too;
It wants a loving spirit
Much more than strength to prove
How many things a child may do
For others by his love.

Uses of White of Eggs.

The white of eggs beaten up so as to destroy their structure, forms the glaire of the bookbinder, with which he gives the staining appearance to the newly bound books.

If any of my readers are desirous of renovating the appearance of some of their old library favourites, they may rub off the dirt and fly marks with a slightly damp cloth, and then rub the covers over with a small piece of rag dipped in glaire, and they will be surprised and pleased at the improvement in their appearance. There is another employment of glaire which is even more useful in the household. When the fruit-preserving season comes on the difficulty of procuring skin or bladder for tying down the pots of jam is often experienced. If, however, a sheet of rough fibrous paper taken, glaired on both sides and tied over the pot, it shrinks and tightens as it dries, and forms a layer quite as impervious as, and fully equal to, bladder, provided the preserves are kept, as they always should be, in a dry situation. Another use of glaire is worth remembering. It is the best antidote to the poisonous preparations of copper, lead, silver, or mercury, as it forms insoluble compounds with these metals. On one occasion a well known chemist was lecturing to his class on the preparations of mercury when he accidentally took a draught of a solution of corrosive sublimate in mistake for water, fortunately a solution of white of egg was on the table, he instantly drank copiously of it, and thus prevented its deleterious action and saved his life.

The use of white of egg in clarifying is well known. A small quantity of glaire mixed with any turbid or black solution coagulates when it is heated, and, entangling all the small particles that cause the turbidity, leave the liquid bright and clear as it boils up to the surface in the form of scum.

Whisked white of egg is often added to wines to clarify them. In this case the coagulation is caused by the spirit of the wine, and heat is not required. In all cases where eggs are employed for clarifying, the white only should be used, as the oil of the yolk interferes materially with the clearness of the liquid to be fined.

CONFECTIONERS' ICING.—To every egg beaten stiff, allow four ounces of fine powdered loaf sugar, powder as much gum-arabac as will lie on a shilling in a tea-spoonful of rose water, or any other light colored extract, or lemon juice. We prefer the latter, as it makes the icing more adhesive. Strain the eggs to remove the stringy substance in them, beat until they will remain on an inverted plate, and then stir in gradually the sugar, gum-arabic, and lemon juice; ice is already described. When the cake is to be ornamented with the icing in wreaths, dissolve gumtragacanth, and stir a little in the frosting. Pick the gum clean, and wash it; allow a quarter of an ounce to a gill of boiling water, if wanted for immediate use; it takes some time to dissolve. The icing can be made into forms by moulding, or can be put on with a small syringe. The ornamental icing is not put on until the covering of the cake is nearly dry.

CULTIVATION OF FLOWERS.—Interest your family in this diversion, permit your children to assist you in planting the seeds, and when the young tendrils leave their mother earth seeking assistance like the newly born babe, let them participate with you in training and guiding them for future admiration. Their affections will soon be as lively as your own; their interest will prompt them to a daily performance of the slight labour necessary to revive the flower drooping forms after a day's exposure to a burning sun. Your daughters will beautify and adorn your rooms with the lovely blossoms, whose rich fragrance shall impart to you new life after a day of toil.—Home will be more pleasant; your love for the old homestead will grow stronger; and you and your children will look with fear and dread to an estrangement from the place, beautified and ornamented through your instrumentality.—Country Gentleman.

TO PREPARE CAKE FOR FROSTING.—Turn it up side down, if very large, on a whitewood board; dredge it all over with flour, let it remain on fifteen minutes, then wipe it off. This removes the grease, and makes the frosting adhere better; commence by pouring a quantity on the centre of the cake, dip a knife in cold water,

PLANTING IN THE MOON.—Potatoes planted in the new moon will go chiefly to tops, but if planted in the full of the moon, will bring large potatoes. Peas and cucumbers may be planted in the new of the moon, for their products are above ground. [Sensible people, however, plant their crops in the ground, rather than in the moon.]

VIRGINIA CORN DODGERS.—Take three pints of unsifted yellow cornmeal, one tablespoonful of lard, and one pint of milk; work all well together, and bake in cakes the size of the hand, and an inch thick. To be eaten hot, with butter, molasses, or both, as preferred.

CHOCOLATE CAKES.—Beat the whites of two eggs with a quarter of a pound of pounded sugar into a frothy cream, add the juice of half a lemon, and six ounces of chocolate. Drop this mixture in spoonfuls on a flat tin, and bake them slowly.

HOW TO KEEP SYRUP FROM RUNNING OVER WHEN BOILING.—Take sweet cream and drop in one drop at a time when it rises; this is sufficient, if the syrup is sweet, and much easier than dipping.

GRINDING TEA.—It has been discovered that by grinding tea in the same manner as coffee, before infusion, the quantity of exhilarating fluid obtained is nearly double.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!

CAN BE FOUND IN

Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF

Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER SHAPE internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the ARMIX on ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs UPON THE BLOOD ITSELF, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable curative. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 88 cents, and $1 40 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33

See what the most popular and widely circulated periodicals say of our Establishment:

From the "Dispatch" of February 25, 1865.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the announcement of Messrs. Devaugh & Co.'s Great Sale of Jewelry, Silver Ware, and Fancy Goods, in our advertising columns. We are personally acquainted with the members of this firm and know them to be gentlemen of sterling worth and integrity. Their stock of goods, for variety and extent, we have scarcely seen paralleled.

From the "Mirror of Fashion," March 1, 1865.

Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, etc., opened on the 15th ult., and we venture to say that no finer display of goods was ever exhibited by any establishment in this city. The ladies thronged their bazaar almost to suffocation, although the streets were rendered nearly impassable by the melted snow and slush. We predict for them a wonderful success.

From the "Ledger," February 28, 1863.

Our lady friends should visit the extensive establishment of Messrs. Devaugh & Co., No. 15 Maiden Lane, if they wish to indulge themselves with a sight which they will long remember. Such a profusion of elegant Watches, Chains, Rings, Earrings, and, in short, of Jewelry of every name, kind and description, we never before witnessed. Their silver and plated ware is superb and almost casts into the shade the other splendid establishments which have long been the boast of our city. It is estimated that their stock is worth not less than one million of dollars.

How You Can Get a Prize.

Send Twenty-Five Cents to us, and as soon as we receive it we will mail you a Certificate, showing what you are entitled to. If the article or articles please you, send back the Certificate and One Dollar and we will forward you the article, no matter how costly it may be. If the article is not what you wish, state, when you send the Certificate and dollar, what other article of the same value you prefer and we will send it. If you wish more than one Certificate send us $1 and we will send five; for $2, eleven; for $5, thirty; for $10, sixty; for $15, one hundred.

Agents are wanted in the Army and in every place. We have an immense stock of goods to dispose of, and need a large number of Agents. Our terms to Agents are very liberal and some even of our Lady Agents are making from $5 to $20 a day. We give Agents 50 per cent. on all Certificates they sell provided they remit not less than $1 for eight.

☞ Write your name and address distinctly and say only what is necessary.

Poetry.

LOVE THE GIVER.

Once I had a little jewel,
And of such value rare,
That I often, often wondered
'Twas entrusted to my care;
But a friend who loved me dearly,
Said 'twould cheer me day and night,
When the skies were dark about me,
To behold its beauteous light.

So I gazed upon it often,
Found a magic in its touch,
Till the friend of kindness whispered
"Prize the gift—not overmuch.
'Twas a proof of my affection,
But the Giver e'er must be
Dearer than the treasure given;
Hand the jewel back to me."

Then I shut it in the casket,
Quickly gave it back again,
Not a moment dared to murmur,
Though it filled my heart with pain
Pain, yes, agony and anguish
Such as mothers only know
When they lay their first-born darling
In the cold, cold grave so low

Literature.

THE SUBMERGED MINE.

It was a singular place for a family meeting, at least it would seem such to one unfamiliar with life in the English coal-mining districts. Huldah Ray with their two little girls, had come to visit her husband in the subterranean work-room where he had spent years, only ascending to the light of day on Saturday came round to enjoy the Sabbath with his household.

Stephen greeted them fondly, kissed his children, hugging them one in either arm all unheeding that their mother was dubiously at their pretty scarlet frocks, being anxious as to the style in which they would come from so intimate a contact with his mining garb. Papa kissed them and they kissed papa; then he passed among his fellow workers exhibiting his darlings; and truly any father in the kingdom would have been proud of such children.

Stephen Ray so far had been able to support his wife and children in comfort and respectability, so that before his cottage door were not seen the squalid looks of children, who swarm in the gutters of the humble quarters of every great English city. Huldah had a set of magic fingers, capable of turning old things into new; and her little ones were always kept clean and tidy, even tasteful to look at. On the present occasion, to which she and three year old Jessie had looked forward to as happy anticipation as ever did any mother and child to a holiday in green field basking in the sunshine she had almost outdone herself, and they appeared fresh as two early tulips.

Stephen had obtained permission from the overseer to make a partial holiday for himself, so having washed his hands and donned a cleaner frock, he set off, carrying a candle, and the babe of eighteen months to show his wife the wonders of the almost inextricable chamber, hundreds of feet below the surface of the earth, which all the generation of miners had wrought in utilizing one of England's great sources of independence and wealth.

They walked on for some time occasionally making a curve or descending steps, and still the solitary space seemed to lengthen and widen beyond. This portion of the mine had been discussed since Stephen was a boy; and he had often thought he would like to explore it as the place most familiarly associated with his strange childhood—one in general aspects and surroundings with his present manhood—It was under the sea, whose roar could be heard above their heads.

The young collier grew quite elated on reaching the old haunts and recognized them one after another. It was no fair landscape, diversified with mountain and valley, wood and stream; no spreading tree invited him to lie in the green shade as he used to lie, listening to the song of the robin's in the branches over head; no sparkling brook reminded him of the time he had baited his hooks for the speckled trout that darted in and out among the smooth stones at its bed; but black, dreary and chaotic as the place looked, it yet had the power to bring back the tender recollections to his mind.

'There—there it is. The berth I have slept in many and many a night,' said Stephen holding the candle beside a little excavation in the Rocky wall of the mine. —See!' he added, pointing higher—'my initials, S. R.—I chissel'ed them out of the stone."

A little further on he paused again, with a subdued air. 'This is the very spot where my poor father did his last work It was in the month of August, I remember; for I went up to attend his funeral, and before that I had not been out of the mine for more than a year. He was seized with a fit and lived only an hour.—Ah Huldah, you never knew him. He was a father to be a pattern to a son; and he knew something about books. To think that my great grandfather was a clergyman.

'I could never bear to stay here,' said Huldah. 'The noise of the sea over us is too awful. Shan't we go now?'

Stephen smiled, raised his ear to listen, for the sound was one he loved and had longed to hear again. But even he thought the reverberation had never been so grand and tremendous. It was like the heartiest thunder, or the successive reports of cannon, and made the sluggish air shake and tremble like a thing afraid. Louder and more stunning; then a terrible concussion as if the heavens were rending and the judgment day had come to the earth.

'O, let us fly!' cried Huldah, in wild terror though she scarce heard the sound of her own voice, so fearful was the tumult. 'Stephen! Stephen!"

He heeded her not but stood with his cradle lifted, looking up in a kind of fascination. The young mother caught the infant from his arm and ran away, still calling him by name.'

At this moment a portion of the flinty vaulted roof directly over his head gave way and fell in a shattered mass about him. —He was overthrown and the light extinguished. This much the panic-stricken wife beheld, and the darkness of the pit surrounded them.

Seating the youngest of the two children upon the ground, she confined it to the spot by a stone placed upon its clothing, afterwards securely pinning the sister's frock to hers. It occupied but a moment; she tore the two pairs of little arms from her neck where they clung with wild weeping, and tried to grope her way back to her husband. She called his name, and could just hear him answering.—Drip drip, came the cold water drops on her head; then she stumbled as her foot struck the fallen heap.

'Stephen, where are you?'

'Where are you, my wife?'

'Here. You are not killed then, thank God!'

'Not harmed, except my foot—and that is fast here among the stones, crushed I am sure.'

'If I could find the candle.'

'Here it is and matches. I have a candle besides.'

He struck a light. In his agony he had forgotten to do it sooner. An agonized cry escaped his wife at the sight it revealed. His right foot was fast imprisoned by a stone of a quarter of a ton in weight. The poor man sat upright, bracing himself by his hands, and groaning bitterly, though scarce audibly for the din of water which was filtering faster and faster down through the open seam in the roof.

'I must fly for help! Give me the other candle.'

'No, make your escape with the children if possible, and give the hands warning. There is no time to be lost.

'And leave you to a fate so dreadful! I can not obey you, my husband. Nay, I will trust to God to keep us all until I can go and come again with help.'

'Can you find the way?'

'I will try—I don't know.'

He strove to direct her. 'Follow yonder wall till it brings you to an angle—then away to the right, and up a flight of stairs—then straight forward.'

'Keep up your courage, God will lead me right.'

These were her parting words to her husband. One moment she paused by the two children—stuck the longest piece of candle in a cleft in the wall, and bade them look at it, then fled away, and the watcher saw her flickering light swallowed up in the gloom and distance. Would she re-appear with assistance in time to save them? He tried to hope but was ready to despair.

Meantime he could distinctly hear the grating of the rocks overhead, as the entire mass each moment threatened to fall, and let in the hungry flood. And now the descending drops mingled in a continuous stream, and the stream increased in force and volume until it became almost a torrent. Five minutes that seemed an age had elapsed, and already the floor of the mine was submerged.

Stephen looked at his children. They could not see him in the darkness where he lay nor could he make his voice heard. Both were quiet now, hushed by the very awfulness of the place. The eldest was watching with eyes of wonder the glittering scales of the watery serpents that coiled and writhed, creeping up to the pairs of tiny feet. Where he lay the water was deeping every instant. Must he see the darlings drown!

Higher rose the water, and swept in a still sheet around the little helpless forms. Alternately they clasped their arms about one another, and struggled with the merciless element. The father could endure the sight no longer. Tearing his half-severed limb from the foot, he crawled forward and took them in his arms. With the beautiful faith of childhood they felt they were safe now, and all their sorrow ended, they clung to him with delight, only asking for mamma, and now and then looking out into the darkness where she had disappeared.

Close at hand was a boulder of rock; and Stephen managed to climb upon it with the children and sat there. Steadily climbed the water after him. Then he stood up on his remaining foot, supporting himself against the wall, his little one clasped to his breast. Rapidly swelled the water; he could feel it washing his knees; and now it touched the children's feet. He raised and placed one on either shoulder. And still the deluge deepened around, as little Jessie lisped: 'I can climb on your head papa, but what will Nellie do?'

To render yet more awful the scene where they must meet their fate, the rising flood washed over the feeble light and all was under darkness.

At this crisis the despairing eyes brightened to meet the flashes of swiftly advancing torches; and Stephen Ray, submerged to the arm pits, distinguished the forms of his wife and the friends she had brought to his relief. At the head of the stairs within a dozen yards of him they suddenly halted; he heard Huldah shriek in despair, standing on the brink of the pit, and seeing below and beyond only darkness left to him, but they seemed not to hear. He shouted, and the insatiate flood was gurgling at his throat.

He bethought him to clinch Jessie's small fingers in his hair, and making the fit le one cling to him, with the hand thus released he wrenched away piece after piece of the bituminous wall, flinging it on the water in the direction of the excited group at the top of the stairs. The resort was successful; he saw that his situation was at last understood. But even now would they be able to reach him? A board with a coil of rope, and a light upon it was floated out to him. Stephen succeeded in securing the children to it, and watched while it was being drawn in and safely landed them, completely exhausted by suffering, fell forward and went down helplessly into the creeping tide.

The light of the torches brought to bear upon him, revealed his final peril; a swimmer plunged in and rescued his friend; and the maimed collier, and wife and babes, were hurried out of reach of the threatened inundation.

The water, however, rose no higher; the breach had closed of itself; and being subsequently repaired by men inured to danger the labor of the mine went on as before. It was said that a great ship foundered over the spot, and that it was the concussion and the action of her keel upon the rocks, which caused its disintegration. In the course of an hour she drifted clear, thus doubtless preventing more calamitous consequences to the mining interests.

The loss of Stephen's foot, in the end, brought him as great recompence as the circumstances admitted. During the confinement of weeks, consequent upon the accident his wages were paid him; and when he recovered, the agent, having visited him in his affliction, he was received back into the employ of the corporation as a book-keeper. Thus relieved of hard toil, in the enjoyment of a comfortable salary, with his devoted wife and beautiful children, he lived many years, a useful and happy man.

INDOLENCE.

How long wilt thou sleep, O sluggard? When wilt thou arise out of sleep?

Not until you have had another nap, you reply; not till there has been a little more folding of the hands!

Various philosophers and naturalists have attempted to define man. I never was satisfied with their labors; absurd to pronounce him a two-legged, unfeathered animal, when it is obvious he is a sleepy one. In his world there is business enough for every individual; a sparkling sky over his head to admire, a soil under his feet to till, and innumerable objects, useful and pleasant, to choose. But such in general is the provoking indolence of our species, that the lives of many, impartially journalized, might be truly said to have consisted of a series of slumbers. Some men are infested with day dreams, as well as by visions of the night, they travel a certain insipid round, like the blind horse of the mill, and, as Bolingbroke observes, perhaps beget others to do the like after them. They may sometimes open their eyes a little, but they are soon dimmed by some lazy fog; they may sometimes stretch a little, but its efforts are soon palsied by procrastination. Yawning, amid tobacco fumes, they seem to have no hopes, except that their slumbers will be broken by business clamouring at the door.

How tender and affectionate is the reproachful question of Solomon, in the text, "When wilt thou arise out of sleep?" The Jewish prince, whom we know to be an active one, from the temple which he erected and the books which he composed, saw, when he cast his eyes around the city, half his subjects asleep. Though in many a wise proverb he had warned them of the baneful effects of indolence, they were deaf to his charming voice, and blind to his noble example. The men servants and the maid servants, whom he had hired, nodded over their domestic duties in the royal kitchen, and when, in the vineyards he had planted, he looked for grapes, lo, they brought forth wild grapes, for the vintager was drowsy.

At the present time, few Solomons exist to preach against pillows, and never was there more occasion for a sermon. Our country being at peace, not a drum is heard to rouse the slothful. But, though we are exempted from the tumults and vicissitudes of war, we should remember that there are many posts of duty, if not of danger, and at these we should vigilantly stand. If we will stretch the hand of exertion, means to acquire competent wealth, and honest fame, abound, and when such ends are in view, how shameful to close our eyes! He who surveys the paths of active life, will find them so numerous and long, that he will feel the necessity of early rising, and late taking rest, to accomplish so much travel. He who pants for the shade of speculation will find that literature cannot flourish in the bowers of indolence and monkish gloom. Much midnight oil must be consumed, and innumerable pages examined, by him whose object is to be really wise. Few hours has that man to sleep, and not one to loiter, who has many coffers of wealth to fill, or many cells in his memory to store.

Among the various men, whom I see in the course of my pilgrimage through this world, I cannot frequently find those who are broad awake. Sloth, a powerful magician, mutters a witching spell, and deluded mortals tamely suffer this drowsy being to bind a fillet over their eyes. All their activity is employed in turning themselves like the door on a rusty hinge, and all the noise they make in the world is a snore. When I see one, designed by nature for noble purposes, indolently declining the privilege, and heedless like Esau, bartering the birthright, for what is of less worth than his red pottage of lentiles,—for liberty to sit still and be quietly,—I think I see, not a man, but an oyster. The drone in society, like that fish on our shores, might as well be sunken in the mud, and enclosed in a shell, as stretched on a couch, or seated in a chimney-corner.

The season is now approaching fast, when some of the most plausible excuses for a little more sleep must fail. Enervated by indulgence, the slothful are of all men most impatient of cold, and they deem it never more intense than in the morning. But the last bitter mouth has rolled away, and now, could I persuade the experiment, the sluggard may discover that he may toss off the bed-quilt, and try the air of early day, without being congealed! He may be assured that sleep is a very stupid employment, and differs very little from death, except in duration. He may receive it implicitly, upon the faith both of the physician and the preacher, that morning is friendly to the health and the heart; and if the idler is so manacled by the chains of habit, that he can, at first, do no more, he will do wisely and well to inhale pure air, to watch the rising sun and mark the magnificence of nature.

Why should more marriages take place in winter than in summer? Because in winter the gentlemen require comforters, and the ladies muffs.

THE EXODUS OF THE POPE.

The Rome correspondent of the London Times, writing on the 4th ult., states that the College of Cardinals there is divided into three parties—the men of extreme opinions who support the present policy of the Pope; the liberals whose opinions, it must be confessed, are less definite; and those easy persons who if they can be called a party, do not occupy themselves with the State matters and are ever ready to ride with the majority. As regards the departure of the Pope—a question which is freely agitated—the extreme section of the college opposes the step, fearing a reconciliation with the Italian Government; while the Liberals on the contrary oppose it. It is only last week that one of this party whose name I abstain, of course from giving, said "Even over the Pied montese in the Courts of the Vatican his holiness ought not to leave." That the Pope is himself disposed so to do there can, I think be little doubt. That he has long contemplated such a step is evident from an observation of his Holiness which I quoted in the beginning of the winter, and on the authenticity of which you may rely:—"If I am obliged to leave, I will not do so as formerly, in a carriage, but on foot, with my breviary under my arm." Nor" say those who know him well, "would the Pope's departure be the result of fear; he is ready to meet martyrdom; but he is highly imaginative, and has an idea that by moving from place to place he would serve the interests of the Church, and win many members to the fold. As to the place which his Holiness may chose for a refuge," says the same informant, "the Pope is indisposed to accept the hospitality of any Catholic country where his independence would be crippled and his presence would create strife and jealousy; nor would he make any fixed residence, always, recognizing Rome as the seat of the chair of St. Peter. England or even Turkey would be preferable. The bare mention of the last country may excite a smile, but not many weeks have passed since one of the most exaggerated councillors of the Pope observed, 'Why where could he go? He would be better received and treated by the Turks than by his own people.' 'The outburst may have been suggested by the fact which occurred shortly before the receipt of letters by his Holiness from the Sultan and by Cardinal Antonelli from the Grand Vizier, "full," said Cardinal ——, "of the most profound devotion and respect." I relate the anecdote, not, of course under the impression that his Holiness is at all disposed to act up his text in the land of the Prophet, but simply to show the animus which prevails here. The exodus of the Papal party would be preceded by that of Francis II, and, though the King spoke of Austrian intervention, he assured those arrangements are already made for departure at any moment; that he would be accompanied only by General Dei Re; and that his destination would be Spain, on which country as an Infanta he would have claims. For the present it is said in the Palazzo Farnese that Count Pacheco, the Minister of Spain at the Pontifical Court, will be accredited to the Neapolitan Court. His ex-Majesty is negotiating very secretly a loan of 100,000£., which, it is thought, is to serve for a probable contingency. A Mexican commission is expected here in a few days to arrange the difficulties between the Papal and Mexican Governments, and an autograph letter from the Emperor to the Pope announcing the fact was forwarded to the Commissioners from Paris shortly before the delivery of the Allocution. To this circumstance is attributed the modification of the Papal address, which originally was much more decided.

POPULAR SUPERSTITIONS.

SALT.—If you spill salt, it is a sign there will be a quarrel in the family. [This sign is supposed to date back to the time of the "last supper," when one of the Apostles—was it Judas?—turned over the salt-cellar which was a premonition of what was to follow.] But if a small portion of the salt thus spilled be cast into a fire, it is said to counteract the influence. [Be very careful not to spill the salt, nor anything else.]

THE DISH CLOTH.—If a dish-cloth be dropped when in use, it is a sign you will have company to dinner. [This is said to "never fail," which we presume is true, inasmuch as two persons make a company, and there are seldom less than two at a dinner table at the same time.]

CROSSING HANDS.—If four persons accidentally cross hands when shaking, some one of the company will soon be married. [Provided they be lovers and already engaged. But, ladies, remember it must be accidental in order to have it prove true.]

OF ONE MIND.—If two persons accidentally make the same remark at the same time, you must join little fingers and wish. Such a wish will come to pass and be realized. [That is, if the wish be sensible and such as would necessarily take place.]

ANOTHER.—If the nails be cut on Monday Morning before eating, a present may be expected; but if while cutting you think of a white calf's tail, it will spoil the charm. [The white calf will be sure to intrude his ugly white tail!]

THE BROOM.—If the broom is moved with the remainder of the household furniture, you will not be successful; but the broom must be burned while standing in the corner, being watched, to prevent the house taking fire.

AN ITCHING EAR.—If the left ear itch and burn, it is an indication that some one is speaking ill of you. If the right ear, that they are speaking well of you. [Undoubtedly, itch or no itch.]

A SPOTTED HORSE.—When you see a spotted horse you may make a wish, which will also be realized. [As above. For example that you may get your dinner.]

BAD LUCK.—If you meet, when walking, a cross-eyed person, it indicates bad luck. [To whom? The cross-eyed or the other?]

THURSDAY, MAY 11, 1865.

TOWN COUNCIL.

There was no sitting of the Council on Monday night—not from want of numbers, but from want of harmony. Those present were not of one mind. The Mayor was ready to tender his resignation, but there being no regular meeting he deferred it till there shall be a regular meeting. There were considerable street consultations, and some corner debates. Our Conscript Fathers are not in the most amiable way of settling the difficulties they have got up for themselves. We hope, however, that they will soon come to their right mind again. They are now in a dilemma, we fear, as to holding a meeting at all.

Councillors present on Monday evening:—Messrs. Lawson, Chambers, Toole, Leonard, Williams, Chamberlain and Ormond.

Messrs. Chamberlain and Ormond left before a meeting could be organized, thus leaving but six behind, which would not form a quorum.

We gave it as our opinion last week that the Council could hold its meetings and appoint a Chairman—our opinions are not altered by all the balderdash of our contemporary—nor shall we change our mind until it is decided by the highest legal advice. The Consolidated Statutes, U. C., Cap. 54, Sec. 146, says:—"If the person who ought to preside at any meeting does not attend within a reasonable time after the hour appointed, the members present may appoint a Chairman from amongst themselves, and such Chairman shall have the same authority in presiding at the meeting as the absent person would have had, if present." And this we consider is intended to remedy the vacation of the presiding officer from any cause whatever, else what meeting can be held or who shall take the lead in filling the supposed vacant office.

The Members of Council are coopers unless when there is a Reeve or Deputy Reeve in which he would have the pre-eminence. But as it now stands if there can be no presiding officer appointed until an election can be held, who will issue a warrant for an election? It requires to be issued by the Head, Clerk, or one of the Members. There can be no head if none can be appointed. The Clerk should obey the will of the Council, expressed by a majority of its Members, and this the more, when a Member can issue the warrant. Let the members bear the consequences, not the Clerk. In the light of all this is it not the wiser way to have a meeting of the Members, by Sec 116, appoint a Chairman, and thus have the expressed mind of the Council, then if there be doubts, have legal advice, the only safe way to proceed. Had the Council done this on Monday night, they might have been now in a fair way to a solution of the whole affair. We, however, would warn the Clerk of the danger of meddling with the matter while there are responsible parties who ought to take the lead. At any rate how can any man issue a warrant to himself to hold an election. If the Clerk will follow the dictum of the Review, he will find, when perhaps he is too late, that he has had an Ahithophel for an adviser. The Review imagines he has read in the news of the day, that "Lex's" theory had no parallel in the case given. But we have yet to learn that the case given by our contemporary has anything to do with the matter. If the Speaker's seat becomes vacant, who will then issue a warrant for a new election, provided there be no Governor General or regal head? Or would the speaker issue a writ to himself. We wonder (but we should not) that one so skilled in law and politics would so exhibit such a lack of knowledge as to draw the comparison. He supposes a member—not a vacant head.

We sincerely trust that our City Fathers will exhibit such a degree of meekness and forbearance, one towards another, as will enable them to work together. It is not a pleasing spectacle to see the Town without both a Mayor, and Council in office, for the trifling affair of the vacancy of the Mayor's office. A meeting not legally convened will be as open to objection as a meeting without a head; and now the difficulty is, who shall convene a meeting? Whereas if the members at the last meeting had appointed a Chairman, and discussed the vacant office, and come to terms as to what course to pursue, we have no doubt but that there is good sense enough in the members of that august body to work for the interest of the Town. This one thing is certain, it is the interest of the Town that should be consulted, and not the whims of some designing aspirant. The most legal meeting that can now be attained is one of the whole Council, and that to discuss nothing but the vacant office, and how to supply it. Such a course every Court of Justice in the land would sustain. In reference to the legality of the late By-Law, we direct our readers to a clause relating to authenticating By-Laws:

"Every By-Law shall be under the seal of the Corporation, and shall be signed by the Head of the Corporation, or the person presiding at the meeting at which the By-Law has been passed, and the Clerk of the Corporation; Vic. 22, Cap. 54, sec. 189; see also 190 and 188, from which it will be seen that the By-Law is legal.

"OUR IDEAS OF THE DUTIES OF A JOURNALIST."

The sapient Editor of the Review is very much agitated by the remarks in the Examiner of last week in reference to the Mayoralty. Now our ideas of a Journalist's duty forbids us to drag into public debate the private concerns of any man—Mayor or any one else. We could find enough to censure in the private concerns of perhaps the Editor of the Review, or any other man. Therefore we think that any reference to the "inextricable confusion of the affairs of its recent head" out of place, and every man should consider as out of place—unwarrantable. As a public character, the public acts of the Mayor have a right to be criticised, and either praised or censured as they deserve, but men's private concerns should be exempt from the touch of any rude hireling whose very words and paragraphs may perchance begin and end for lucre. The Editor of the Review does not or will not understand the meaning of words. We are very unfortunate that we cannot speak, and think and act as does our worthy contemporary. What a pity it we did? The Review would stave off what he styles milk and water motives of which we accuse him in his attacks on the Mayor. We did not excuse the Mayor or any other party, we are persuaded that that gentleman can see after his own business, but we did accuse the Editor of the Review of sinister motives in his attacks. We would like to ask the Review did any one connected with that paper ever declare "that Mr. Perry would suffer the first opportunity?" And if the real cause be as we said last week—a little profit, "only a two-pence half-penny affair," as was expressed at the time, with what assurance then can any claim be laid as to having the interest of the Town in view. We assert it without fear of successful contradiction, and a majority of the parties concerned in the transaction will bear us out in it, that the cause of the Review's attack upon the Mayor is nothing more or less than "a paltry two-pence half penny affair." We use the words of a dignitary of the Review. In regard to the groundless and ungentlemanly insinuation, that the Editor of the Examiner was him self his own correspondent, Lex, we can assure our contemporary that such has been the practice of the Review, and we suppose he measures us by himself. We however have a far different idea of truthfulness than to practice deception in that way. We were never so much afraid or ashamed of what we wrote that we dare not assume it. But what would our readers think if we told them that Lex was the Editor of the Review. If he should deny it, what matter? Denial is often nine points of law. This one thing is certain, there would be more truth in the statement than in the insinuation of the Review. The Editor of the Examiner makes no pretensions to legal knowledge beyond what justice and reason teache with an occasional glance at our statutes.

In reference to the desire to know who will pay for the legal advice offered by "Lex" we would inform our contemporary that it is sufficient reward to know that we have done our duty in the matter: "two pence half penny" will not induce us to advise what we believe to be wrong. But we could refer our contempory to facts and times when the guardian of the Exchequer, the Review endeavored to put the Town into costs to bring about events that he declares would be unjust to the people, to the town, to all; and yet urged the expenditure. Which would be most for public interest—to gain legal advice on our present affairs, to know what to do, or to put money into the Review's coffers for a transaction that the Review says now, and said then would be unjust to the Town, to the people, to the country? So much for the saving propensities of the Review.

It is well known that we never advocated the election of Mr. Perry,—for any purpose; —not so with the Review however. But even so, we shall not now per-ecute him by devoting two columns of the Examiner to calumniate or injure him without more than personal cause for it. This is the way the Review always used his friends. If the dead could only speak the voice would say: Even thus!

HORSE SHAVING.

The Review can see no difference between horse-shaving and shaving horses' tails. Yet most people (those who suffer at least) know names and tails may be included in the first, and cannot be included in the last. So much, however, for his way of reading. When the understanding is darkened the eyes of the mind do not see clearly. Now if our contemporary had not been wilfully blind he would have seen that we did not class the decent opposers of the Dunkin Bill with the outlaws and the vile. We said—"what a pity that some decent people should have allied themselves with any party who would thus disgrace," &c.; and we say now that the Editor of the Review knew when he penned his remarks that he was falsifying our statements by garbling an extract.

If the Review's sense of the duties of a Journalist are no crude as to permit him, without remorse of conscience, to completely change the meaning of a writer, we fear that his conscience has become a little seared. We further assert that no man possessed of even a knowledge of a. b. c.'s would torse the remarks we made to mean what our contemporary perverts them to do. We think we can appreciate a decent man whether an opponent or a supporter of any Bill, but we despise an opponent who lacks the courage and honesty to read a paragraph and instead therefore contents himself with garbling sentences. No wonder error prevails in our earth.

PETERBOROUGH LITERARY CLUB.—The subject for debate this evening is:—Has the Press exercised a better influence on society than the Platform."

HOT AND COLD.

"And laugh at this fantastic mummery."

Just read the last Review:

"From this it is evident that an important duty devolves upon the Clerk in the present case, and which not only the law but the security and well-being of the body politic require to have performed."

"It is probably too much to expect that the little comedy will be abandoned to carry out even an obvious duty."

"We are indebted to Mr. Edwards for his uniform courtesy in regard to transcribing the minutes of Council and the other business of his office."

If this is not hot and cold in one breath! Tell a man that he is so far lost to a sense of duty as not to be ready "to carry out even an obvious duty," and in the next puff praise him "for uniform courtesy." Blandness to that Editor then makes up for any derelictions even of an obvious duty. Does this shew the cloven foot or not? The Clerk had better beware, for assuredly there is some collusion about to be practised after all this flattery.

BOOK NOTICES.

We have been favored by the enterprising publisher, Mr. J. Lovell, with a copy of a new publication entitled "A History of Canada and of the other British North American Provinces." The work is in the usual neat and finished style of Mr. Lovell's other publications. It is printed on good paper, in a very neat and distinct type, and dispersed with numerous engravings of persons and scenery connected with the Provinces. It also contains much useful matter on Canada not before given in school histories of the Province. Another new feature is the sketches of the other Provinces, hitherto almost unknown in elementary schools. There is also a portion of the work referring to the Political Constitution, Law Courts, and other matter not generally found in elementary works; besides a great deal of information on the products, manufactures, revenue, educational progress and commerce of the British North American Provinces. The work deserves to be extensively used, both because of the amount of information it contains, and because it is a Canadian work, from the most reliable sources, and by one of our most earnest friends of common schools. We can therefore recommend it to the notice of Trustees and Teachers: and also to all those desirous of obtaining information concerning our own country.

"The Trade Review" a very respectable Weekly, published in Montreal, and which contains a large amount of information especially for merchants, has a long article this week on Canadian Defences. It appears to be well conducted, generally, and this article at the present juncture, deserves to be read, as everything relative to our future protection and safety should attract our attention.

QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

We understand that a new kind of amusement is being got up in Peterborough, to assist in celebrating the coming 24th of May; we have reference to a Company of "Physigs." It is intended that they shall be something similar to such organizations in Kingston and several other places in Canada. A preliminary meeting was held in the Firemen's Hall, on Tuesday evening last, when the principal officers were elected, and other important arrangements made.

Another meeting will be held in the Firemen's Hall on Tuesday evening next, the 16th inst., at 8 o'clock; all persons having any disposition to assist and take a part in the procession will please attend.

From the appearance of things at present the next Queen's Birthday bids fair to eclipse anything of the kind in Peterboro heretofore.

In another column will be found an advertisement containing an account of the Races that are to take place in the vicinity of the Town. The Firemen are also making extensive preparations for celebrating the day in a proper manner. We will give full particulars next week.

WAR NEWS.

There are no more battles to chronicle. The different confederate leaders are surrendering. There are some few outrages being committed as they return home, but this is to be expected. Jeff. Davis has not yet been heard of, directly, so as to lead to his apprehension,—he may get away. American papers now ask, how could the President of the late confederacy be hanged, while Lee the life of the Confederate cause is forgiven. The army is to be reduced to 150,000 men, and these are to be principally negroes. There is already a scheme on foot for colonizing part of Mexico by Federal soldiers who are not required at home.

VOLUNTEER INSPECTION.

We are informed that Circulars have been received by Capts. Poole and Kennedy, stating that Col. Mountain will be in Peterborough, on Friday, the 2nd day of June, for the purpose of inspecting the Companies. It is hoped there will be a good attendance, as the pay lists will be forwarded immediately after the Inspection, and those members of the Companies who may be absent will not receive their pay.

FIRE.—On Sabbath morning about half-past one o'clock. The alarm of fire was given and quickly the firemen and others were on the spot. It turned out to be an old wooden building on Simcoe Street, partly occupied and partly not. The building was owned by a Mr. Stinson or Stinson in the West. The loss however is not much, about $200. We did not learn whether it was insured or not. The fire was evidently the work of an incendiary and from what we hear, strong evidence against parties who were seen tearing off the clap-boards just about or after dark, the evening before could be adduced.

TROOPS FOR CANADA.—We take the following from the Malta correspondence of the London Times of the 22nd:—"Her Majesty's screw troopship Himalaya, Capt. B. Lacy, arrived on the morning of the 12th instant, with the 84th Regiment from Kingstown, and a few draughts from Portsmouth and Dover, for this garrison and Canada. The regiment, composed of 28 officers and 670 non-commissioned officers and men, under the command of Col. Lightfoot, C. B., were, with horses and baggage, landed here in four hours. She had a fine passage out of under nine days, including a stay of four hours at Gibraltar, where she disembarked draughts. The 7th Royal Fusileers will embark on board this fine ship in about ten days for Canada, the delay being due to the ice in the River St. Lawrence rendering the navigation dangerous before the 11th of May, or thereabouts. She will touch at Gibraltar for coal, and will convey the Bishop of Gibraltar to that place. It is intended that she should arrive in England by the 31st of next month."

NEWS ITEMS.

The Post publishes a letter from B. Mc Blatchford to C. A. Seward, in which the writer says, after referring to the improved condition of Sec. Seward and his son: "Paine the assassin has fully confessed his crime, and all the details respecting it and the difficulties he encountered. He says that all the plans of that Friday night not being carried out, was the greatest failure that ever was."

Sanders for whom a large reward is offered by President Johnson, is still in Montreal. The New York World does not consider that they can be demanded under the treaty for extradition. The Montreal Telegraph considers the crown can, if reasonable proof of guilt is made in a proper manner. Three or four of the parties declare they are innocent of the whole affair.

DESTRUCTION OF THE PRESIDENT.—It is currently reported to-day that, the President and Cabinet have decided to open all the Southern States to general trade, and suspend all trade regulations in force by order of the Treasury Department. If this be confirmed by the President, it will be the most important step yet taken toward a restoration of peace.

The force to be kept in service is not to exceed 150,000, and these will be mostly colour.d troops. The reorganized army will consist of four corps of 40,000 each—one of regulars, one of white volunteers, and two of coloured volunteers. Each will have its cavalry, artillery and infantry in proper proportions.

NORTHERN CITIES TO BE BURNED.—Facts are within the knowledge of the authorities which go to show that there are some eight hundred conspirators banded together for the purpose of firing Philadelphia and other Northern cities. The affair is under going thorough investigation.

Capt. Semmes, of the Alabama," has been surrendered among the officers of Johnston's army. The Washington Government treat him as a belligerent, and yet they would have had the British authorities hang him as a pirate.

The Navy yard has already commenced to reduce the expences. All sailors of vessels whose terms of enlistments expire before the 13th of July next were discharged on the 2nd instant.

Gen. Grant arrived in Philadelphia on the 2nd instant, on the third he takes possession of a splendid mansion, presented to him by the Philadelphians.

It appears that letters addressed to civilians in Richmond are detained in Washington and a large number have accumulated there.

General Johnston surrendered about 30,000 men, but a large number left for home before the surrender, taking their arms with them.

An association has been formed at Washington for the purpose of erecting a monument, to the memory of the late President.

The Ocean Coast service of the United States has been reduced already $35,000 per day, or above $1,000,000 per month.

Arrangements are being made to pay all the troops which rendezvous about Washington, prior to mustering out.

The 2nd and 5th corps were reviewed in Richmond on Saturday, preparatory to marching to Washington.

The Grand Duke Nicholas, heir apparent to the Russian Throne has just died at Nice, aged nearly 25. The marriage between him and the daughter of the King of Denmark was arranged for some time past, and she was with him when he died. Her brilliant prospects are cut off by the unerring hand of death.

A duel was fought on Monday last in Montreal by two apprentices, mere youths, nobody was hurt however. The cause of the disagreement was "Love," the Globe's correspondent says—The true cause was the want of common sense.

ABSCONDED.—Mr. McKee, Sec. Treas. of the "Toronto Permanent Building Society," has left for Europe; when heard from last he was proceeding towards Ireland. He has left the accounts of the Society in a mess. The loss is not yet known.

Mr. Gladstone, has a surplus of £1,000,000 sterling, and in consequence is enabled to propose some reductions on certain taxes one of which is sixpence off tea.

1,993 miles of the Atlantic cable are completed, and 400 already on board the "Great Eastern."

Messrs. Galt, and Cartier arrived in Liverpool on the 22nd ult. and proceeded at to London.

MONAGHAN COUNCIL.

Monaghan, May 1st, 1865.

The Council met at 11 o'clock as a Court of Revision. The Reeve in the chair.

Appeals were received from Joseph Armstrong, Henry Collins and John H. Campbell, to have their Assessments lowered. They were slightly reduced.

Joseph Sproule had his name placed on the Assessment Roll for 97 acres in the 8th of Lot No. 7, in the 12th Concession, the remaining three acres and mill being assessed to Dr. Bell.

Robert Huston, John Endicotte, Robert Dunlop, J Francis Burney, John and Andrew Young, were also placed on the Roll.

The Assessment of T. Ludgate was added to that of James Howden; R. Maloney to E. Stinson's; Alex. Donnelly's to George Howden; and Joseph Shaw's to E. Burnham's.

The Roll as then revised was finally passed.

The Council then met for Township matters.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

The following petitions were read and ordered to remain over to the next meeting of the Council:

That of Charles and Wm. Spilsbury, praying that the sum of $20 be expended on the gravel line between the 6th and 7th lots in the 11th Concession.

That signed by Charles Bracly and thirty others praying that the Council would purchase a few acres of land from James Wallace, Esq., on the South end of lots 9 and 10 in the 13th Concession, as Petitioners consider it would be impossible to make a road over the hill in said concession.

The Council finally audited the Treasurer's Accounts, when the Clerk was directed to have fifty copies printed for distribution.

The Council then adjourned to Saturday the 13th inst., at 10 o'clock, A. M.—Co.

Teacher's Certificates.

The Senior Board of Instruction for this County met at 10 o'clock, a. m. Present, Rev. Mr. Roger, Chairman; Rev. Mr. Rebergs; Sheriff Hall; James Edmonds, Esq., Secretary, and Dr. T. W. Poole.

Less than the usual number of candidates were present. The following certificates were granted:—John Finlay, 3rd class for six months; R bert McCanus, 3rd class; F. C. Taylor, 1st class; John Spencely, 3rd class; W. J. Ferril, 2nd class; Samuel Wason 3rd class for six months; James Dewart, 2nd class for one year; Thomas Keefe, 2nd class; Patrick Smyth, 1st class till recalled. —Review.

We wonder where the Review obtained their report of the meeting of the Board of Trustees last week; it was quite erroneous.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner

SIR,—The education of the rising generation has ever been a subject of interest to me, and as a good class of teachers is one of the most efficient means of ensuring this important end, I may be pardoned for making a few remarks on the manner of examining candidates. I find, in intercourse with the better class of teachers a growing dissatisfaction with the Educational board of this County; and while we would not for a moment hint anything disparagingly of the very excellent gentlemen who constitute its number; we think an improved method of examination might be adopted. We would suggest that the same plan be taken as in some of our neighbouring counties, viz: that each candidate be supplied with printed questions to which he shall be required to write the answers; this would preclude all possibility of a charge of partiality, ensure a more thorough examination in a shorter time, and give at once specimens of writing, spelling, and punctuation of the candidate. I would also suggest that we should not be required to work by the old system of thirty years ago, but according to the new method as prescribed by Sangster in his Arithmetic, and that the Grammar should be as much as possible in accordance with Robertson's plan as taught in the Normal School.

Yours, &c.,
ALPHA.

Peterboro, May 6, 1865.

An Appalling Picture of Southern Destitution.

A late prominent Southern leader, not many days ago, said to a company of North ern gentlemen at Richmond:—"We are defeated; yes, if you please, we acknowledge it. Look at our condition. Our rich have become poor, and our poor, beggars. Our soil has been desolated by contending armies, till there are no crops in the ground, few houses fit to live in, no fences, and no timber to make any; no cattle, no horses, no railroads, no locomotives or rolling stock, no steamboats, no flour mills, no cotton, no tobacco, and no food that is available, save as we get it from your commissariat. In a single night our currency perished in our hands, losing even its pitiful price of five cents on a dollar. I know families—yes families heretofore comfortable, and even rich—who would thank you for a supper of corn-meal." Another account from a Union soldier says:—"Let free passes be given to all in the North who doubt the prevalence of the direst poverty and distress among the people of the South, and there will be a new field open for your Sanitary Commission." A record like this needs no filling in or filling up. If it does not satisfy even the most greedy for revenge and punishment, then human nature, even in its worst phases is a shade worse than we believe it to be. A people thus humbled and who thus suffer, we think it may be taken for granted, are no longer hostile to the Union, or to any terms which the Government may prescribe. It is for those in power to say, just how much weight shall be added to such burdens of shame, sorrow, and distress.

TROOPS FOR MEXICO.

The following advertisement appears in the Washington "Chronicle" (a Government organ) of Friday:—

Mexico!—To all officers and soldiers. Now that our war is over, all who wish to emigrate to Mexico, in accordance with the Mexican decree, will call at 258 Pennsylvania avenue, and register their names and address; or address by note, Col. A. J. M., 340 E. street, Washington, D. C.

Offices will be opened in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities.

Office hours at 258 Pennsylvania avenue, between 9 and 4.

The "Mexican Decree" to which this alludes, was put forth some time ago, under the authority of the fugitive President Juarez. It invites emigration, and the invitation is couched in such terms, as to warrant the belief that armed emigrants will be most welcome. In plain English, Juarez wants a hundred thousand Yankee emigrants, to help him to expel the French and re-organize the Republic. And, if half of what we hear be true, they want will be supplied before many months. The "emigration" is said to be going on even now.

WRIT AGAINST STRATFORD.—We understand that on Saturday last, the Sheriff received a writ to collect the amount due by the town of Stratford for 1864 to the Municipal Loan Fund, under the five cents in the dollar arrangement. The sum thus in default, as it is termed, is $2,948 15, and was due on the 1st December. The writ bears date April 20th. Our readers are probably acquainted with the manner of proceeding in such a case, as we unfortunately had occasion to describe it once before. On receipt of the writ by the Sheriff, a copy of it is served on the treasurer, with a demand for payment, and if this demand is not acceded to within 30 days, it becomes the duty of the sheriff to strike a rate on the assessment roll to cover the amount, and set the the collector to work to collect it in the usual way.—Stratford Beacon.

Mr. Geo. Saward, the Secretary and General Superintendent of the Atlantic Telegraph Cable Company, states that Capt. Anderson will take charge of the "Great Eastern" on the 2nd of May. 2,360 miles of cable will be taken to sea. Already 1,500 miles is completed. It is expected that by the end of May the whole will be completed and on board, so that by the third week in June the machinery and every appliance for the use of the engineers may be in its place and ready for sailing; and in a month from that time I trust you may learn that our two great nations are permanently united by the electric wire.

The Washington Republican says:—Neither of the statements detailing the mysterious manner of finally disposing of the body of Booth is true. Colonel Baker and his Lieutenant Baker are the only two persons living who know what disposition was made of it, and they are under oath to reveal the fact to no human being. Any statement professing to detail how or where the remains were deposited is not only guess work, but a serious reflection upon the faithfulness of Colonel Baker and his brother.

BOOTH AND BEALL.—In reference to the statement that Capt. Beall, lately executed as a spy, was connected with the Booth family, Edwin Booth authorizes the Philadelphia Ledger to say that Beall was no connection of his family, and that not only was there no relationship in any degree, but there has never been the remotest acquaintance with him on the part of any member of his family.

DR. TUMBLETY.—Many of our readers will remember Dr. Tumblety, who figured in this city some years ago. From Toronto he went to New York, and at the breaking out of the civil war he was appointed surgeon in a Federal regiment. The New York paper say that Harrold, Booth's accomplice, turns out to have been the agent and confidant of the notorious quack, and that Tumblety lately disappeared from Brooklyn in a mysterious manner.—Leader.

DUNKIN'S BILL.—The people of Kingston voted upon the question whether Dunkin's prohibitory bill should become law in that city or not. They decided against it by a vote of 243 to 78.

There is very little grain or flour at Montreal for shipment just now.

There was a rumour that the Rebel ram "Stonewall" was off the Florida Coast.

AMERICAN NEWS.

Federal Cavalry in Alabama and Georgia.

TRIALS FOR THE ASSASSINATION IMMEDIATELY.

FROM 21 TO 24 EXECUTIONS EXPECTED.

PRESIDENT DAVIS TO BE INDICTED.

ABOLITION OF TRADE RESTRICTIONS EXPECTED.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Herald's Savannah correspondence of the 29th ult. says:—

"Gen. Wilson's famous riding expedition arrived here yesterday from Macon. The following is a condensed history of the trip: Gen. Wilson left Chickasaw, Ala., on the 22nd of March. It is not proper to give any statement of the number of his force. Ebenezer Church, near Plantersville, Ala., was taken after a short engagement with Forrest's cavalry; 300 prisoners were captured and 3 guns. Forrest's forces were driven to the west of the Cahawba river, and separated. A column was sent to Tuscaloosa, which captured and destroyed much government property. Selma, 240 miles from the base, was captured on the 2nd of April with 2,700 prisoners, 32 guns in position and 75 in arsenal. We destroyed three rolling mills with fixtures, a very large naval foundry, an arsenal, the second in importance in the Confederacy, powder works, nagazines and a large number of cars. We remained at Selma eight days. The Alabama river was bridged 850 feet, the operation occupying five days, from the 5th to the 10th. The next place attacked was Montgomery, 50 miles distant, destroying all the bridges on the Alabama and Tennessee rivers. The railroad to Columbus was destroyed. The enemy destroyed 23,000 bales of cotton. Montgomery surrendered without assault. Five guns fell into our hands. We destroyed two rolling-mills and foundries, two magazines, one locomotive, sixty-three cars, five steamboats captured on the river near Metumpka, and nitre works. The Confederates burned 85,000 bales of cotton before evacuating. Columbus, Ga., 85 miles distant, was taken by assault by Gen. Upton, after dark on the 16th; 1,200 prisoners were captured and 53 guns; and 7 cotton factories, 100,000 bales of cotton and immense quantities of ordnance, quart rmaster and commissary stores, a large arsenal, a pistol factory, an ammunition factory, a naval foundry, a rolling-mill and foundry, an arsenal foundry, 13 locomotives, over 100 cars, depots, machine shops, &c., were captured and destroyed. A gunboat mounting six 7-inch rifled guns, now called the Jackson, but the name of which has been recently changed, was captured here. A detour to West Point was made by Lagrange's brigade, which attacked the works and carried them by storm, capturing the garrison, 350 in number, and 4 guns and killing the Confederate General Tyler in command; 18 locomotives were destroyed, 400 cars, 2 bridges and 2 large factories in the vicinity. We destroyed large quantities of quartermaster and commissary stores at Griffin and the railroad bridges on the Selma and Montgomery railroad. We captured along the road five guns. Bacon was taken without opposition. It has not been necessary as yet to destroy any property. We captured Gens. Howell, Cobb, Gus ayus W. Smith, formerly street inspector of New York city, Robertson, Mercer and McCall. The captures are 133 guns in position on the field and by assault, and 200 in arsenals and in store, with immense amounts of ordnance, quartermaster and commissary, and cotton and manufactured cotton stock, &c."

The Herald's Jacksonville, Fla., correspondent says:—

"About 150 of the Union soldiers, formerly imprisoned at Andersonville, Ga., were, on the morning of the 28th ult., transported by the Confederate down the Florida Central railroad to within ten miles of Jacksonville, where they were unconditionally released and left to make their way into the Union lines, which several hundred of them reached before night. All presented a pitiful appearance, and many were barely able to walk, but their joy was great on finding themselves once again under the protection of the old flag."

The Herald's Hilton Head correspondent says of the arrest of ex-Governor Aiken:—

"Gov. Aiken claims to be 'an Union man,' an opponent of nullification in Calhoun's time, and a friend of the Union and the constitution ever since. But there are reports contradictory of this, and among others he is accused of furnishing a portion of the brain which enabled the Confederates to hold out four years, and of having held several advisory interviews with Jeff. Davis. These are only reports, but of course the war department must have had some foundation for its action against him.

"G. B. Lamar, a prominent citizen of Savannah, has also been arrested. He is an avowed enemy of the Union. He was a nullification man and has been one of the most industrious and influential aiders and abettors of the Confederate cause in Georgia. He makes no secret even now of his bitter hostility to the Union. Courteous, affable, and sociable in all other respects he hates Yankees most thoroughly, and boasts of it. It is understood that the prisoners are charged with treason and will be regularly tried therefor."

The Tribune's Washington special has the following: The court-room for the trial of the Presidential assassins has been fitted up at the arsenal building and the trials will proceed without delay. The number likely to be put on trial is about 40 and others now in custody will probably be discharged, as the case progresses and their testimony is given in.

Col. Clarke of the Confederate army, who was captured by one of our scouting parties while endeavoring to escape from Richmond on one of the last trains from the doomed city, gave it that he was in charge of all the specie which was removed from Richmond, and that when his train broke down and he found it impossible to get it on the track and off again, and seeing our forces approaching, he ordered it to be set on fire, and that all his efforts to save the specie were unavailing; that the soldiers broke open the specie and sized the excitement and the tumult, the soldiers and citizens appropriated all there was. He asserts that he knows that no other amounts of specie, not in the pockets of its owners, were taken from Richmond and that this lot was all stolen. He states farther, that the amount has been vastly overestimated, and confirms the statement before made by Gen. Grant, that it amounted only to about $200,000.

The World's Washington special says:—It is currently reported to-day that we are about to open all of the Southern States to general trade, and suspend all trade regulations in force by order of the Treasury Department. If this be confirmed by proclamation of the President, it will be a most important step towards the restoration of peace.

The steamer City of Cork takes out to-day $25,000 in treasury and 99 passengers for Europe.

WASHINGTON, MAY 4.—The court martial in the case of Benjamin Harris, met this afternoon, and in the absence of witnesses adjourned until to-morrow.

Gen. Sherman was at Point Lookout yesterday on route to Washington.

The principal portion of the army of the Potomac is already on the march here.

NEW YORK, MAY 4.—The Herald's Washington correspondent says:—

A second expedition was sent to Garrett's plantation, where Booth was found, on Saturday, and returned yesterday, bringing in the paroled Confederate prisoner Jett, who took Booth and Harrold to Garrett's, and a number of others.

It appears Jett intr duced Booth to Garrett as a Confederate soldier named Boyd, and wanted him taken care of by Garrett for a few days, when he would be taken away.

These facts Garrett has in vain endeavored to prevail on Jett to certify to.

The Herald's Washington correspondent says there are 21, and perhaps 25 persons concerned in the assassination who will certainly suffer the death penalty.

The Commercial's special says, Jeff. Davis and several leading Confederates will be included in the bill of indictment before the court for the trial of the murderers now in custody, and yet to be captured.

President Johnson is understood to be in favor of abolishing the trade regulations of the Treasury Department. The subject will be discussed and decided at a cabinet meeting on Tuesday next.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL, May 7.—The already large number of visitors who have been called to view the remains of the late President was increased last night and this morning by numerous arrivals from all quarters.

The remains will be accompanied to the vault by a military and civic procession.

The ground selected for the burial is exceedingly beautiful.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Post's special says that eight Marylanders, charged with harboring Booth and aiding his escape, have been arrested and lodged in prison at Washington.

The mails received by the Navy Department the morning were loaded with resignations of volunteer officers in the naval service, in obedience to the new orders of the Government for the reduction of the service.

The charges against ex-governor Aiken are preferred by the military authorities in Charleston.

The Post says that a number of prominent citizens of that city are about the present President with carriages and teams to march.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—By order of the Secretary of War, the War Department and all its bureaus were closed at 11 o'clock, and will continue so throughout this day in respect to the memory of President Lincoln. Minute guns are to be fired every half hour at the arsenal, closing at sundown with a national salute.

NEW YORK, May, 4.—Gold more active and firmer. Yesterday's export was larger than anticipated, and this morning purchases have been made for remittance abroad in preference to giving the present rates of exchange. The price opened at 143¾ and advanced to 144.

BALTIMORE, May 3.—There were brought here to-day in charge of an armed guard of soldiers under Lieut. O'Brien, two citizens of Calvert County, named Jas. N. F. Browne and William Cochrane, and three other men under charge of being concerned in the recent assassination of Union soldiers stationed there.

Cochrane acknowledged that for months he had been in a starving condition, which being known to Browne and others he was offered large sums of money to take the lives of certain soldiers. He accepted the terrible bribe and deliberately assassinated two soldiers whilst they were doing picket duty.

Cochrane received $175 for killing the first soldier, and was to have $500 for the murder of the other, but was apprehended before the money was paid. The parties charged with the terrible crime were taken to Washington this afternoon under a guard, and are now in the Old Capitol prison. An examination will soon be held.

CONFEDERATE TROOPS IN WEST VA., DISBANDED,

GEN. EARLY ILL AT LYNCHBURG.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Richmond Whig of the 3rd has authentic information from South West Virginia. No portion of General Thomas' forces came east of Bristol. The only United States force that penetrated into Virginia, was a portion of Stoneman's command as before stated.

Gen. Echols, commanding all the Confederate forces in South West Virginia, 3,000 or 4,000 in number, has disbanded his troops. Those living contiguously returned to their homes.

Col. Giltner's cavalry surrendered to the United States authorities on the terms accorded to Lee.

A report at Richmond said that all the silver plate taken from the people at Richmond, in the last hours of the Confederacy, has been captured by our forces beyond Farm Valley. A rumor also said that Major Thomas P. Turner the scoundrel who commanded Libby prison, under the Confederate regime, has been captured following in Jeff Davis' track and is on his way to Fort Monroe for confinement.

The Confederate Gen. Rosser was captured on the 2nd in Hanover court-house, Virginia where his wife resides.

WASHINGTON, May 3, 1865.

"PROCLAMATION,—Whereas it appears from evidence in the bureau of military justice that the atrocious murder of the late President Abraham Lincoln, and the attempted assassination of Hon. W. H. Seward, Secretary of State, were incited, encouraged and procured by and between Jefferson Davis, late of Richmond, Va., and Jacob Thompson, Clement C. Clay, Beverly Tucker, Geo. N. Sanders, W. C. Cleary, and other rebels and traitors against the government of the United States, harbored in Canada, now therefore, to the end that justice may be done, I, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, do offer and promise for the arrest of said persons or either of them within the limits of the United States, so that they can be brought to trial, the following rewards:—$100,000 for the arrest of Jefferson Davis, $25,000 for the arrest of Clement C. Clay, $25,000 for the arrest of Jacob Thompson, late of Mississippi, $25,000 for the arrest of Geo. N. Sanders, $25,000 for the arrest of Beverly Tucker, and $10,000 for the arrest of W. C. Cleary, late clerk of Clement C. Clay.

"The provost-marshal general of the United States is directed to cause a descript on of said persons, with notice of the above rewards, to be published.

"In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington, the second day of May, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and sixty five, and of the independence of the United States of America, eighty-nin h.

Arrival of the President's Remains in Springfield.

CHICAGO, May 3.

The streets for several miles are densely filled with people to witness the passage of the funeral procession to the Chicago and Alton railroad station, from which the remains are to be conveyed to Springfield. The crowds seem to be as large, if not larger, than those assembled yesterday morning, when the funeral party arrived at the Lake-shore. The coffin is solemnly transferred from the hearse to the car recently

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY IN CANADA.

The following testimony from a well known and highly respected Merchant of Prescott, is corroborative of the general approval given to Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY:

Passcott, C. W., Dec. 8th, 1850.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Co., Boston.

Gentlemen:—

Being solicited by your Travelling Agent, for an expression of opinion of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. I with pleasure assert that it is, in my belief, the best remedy before the public for coughs and pulmonary complaints.

Having tested the article with myself and family, in case of severe coughs and colds, for years, with uniform and unexceptionable success, I unhesitatingly recommend it with full confidence in its merits.

Yours truly,

MELODEON AND COTTAGE ORGAN EMPORIUM,

PETERBORO, C.W.

Estey's Perfect Melodeon

AND

COTTAGE ORGAN.

ESTABLISHED 1864.

FORMERLY ESTEY & GREEN.

The only Manufactory in this Country of the Perfect Melodeon and Cottage Organ with Patent Base Damper, Patent Harmonic Attachment, and Patent Manual Sub Base.

These admirable Instruments have won their way to public confidence purely on their merits, and not by force of extensive advertising and purchased recommendations. With our increased facilities for manufacture, we are still unable to meet the extraordinary demand made upon us; but we hope soon to be able to fill all orders promptly.

Some of the points of superiority claimed for our Instruments, are these:—

1st.—Smooth, steady and pipe-like quality of tone.

2nd.—Great delicacy of touch and promptness of action; producing, when desired, a low, sweet, bird-like tone, unequalled by any other instrument of the class.

3d.—The Patent Base Damper, which enables the performer to swell the treble without increasing the volume of the bass; or, by drawing the stop, to swell the notes by the action of the foot.

4th.—The Patent Harmonic Attachment. An ingenious octave occupier, which doubles the power of the instrument without increasing its size or the number of reeds.

5th.—The Patent Manual Sub-Bass, which are played with the ordinary keys and controlled by a stop. This new and valuable invention requires no extra room and serves as a substitute for the Pedal Bass, and can be used by an ordinary performer.

6th.—The Knee-Stop, in the Cottage Organ, which swells or diminishes the tone by a slight movement of the left knee, without interfering with the action of the feet,—having this advantage over the Automatic Swell that the volume of tone may be readily increased without extraordinary effort, and diminished without waiting for the change in the actions of the bellows.

Our recently constructed Cottage Organ, without the attachments, is unsurpassed by any Reed Organ or Harmonium of the size; but, with the Harmonic Attachment and Manual sub-base, it is pronounced by competent judges to be far superior to any other instrument of the class in the world. Its power, sweetness, and variety of tone, simplicity of construction and ease of management, recommend it to every one seeking all that is claimed for it, both for the parlor and the church.

The Harmonic Organ, for Churches and Public Halls, has a fine, powerful Pedal Base, with independent reeds; and, with the Harmonic Attachment, is believed to be the most powerful Reed Organ made, being nearly equal to a pipe organ of three times its cost

All our Instruments are made in the most thorough manner, and warranted in every respect

JOS. R. WALTON,
Agent.

Peterborough, Jan. 1865. 4

Rev. A. C. Rose, of Troy, N.Y. says:—These give the value of five Melodeons in one. The ease of touch and promptness of action are unrivalled. It can be played with all the sweetness of the lute or Æolian harp, and changed in an instant to its full power, nearly equal to a twelve stop Organ.

All orders addressed to the undersigned will receive prompt attention.

JOSEPH R. WALTON, Peterboro.

TESTIMONIALS.

JAMES BROWN, Esq., M. D.

Peterboro, October 20th, 1864.

I am happy to inform you that after the most persevering and testing trial for some weeks of the Cottage and Parlor Organ, we like it better every day. It is remarkable for variety of tone and power, and several of the best judges here say it is unequalled by any instrument of the kind (with double reed) they have ever heard. You can so control and command all its parts, as to pass easily and rapidly from the softest tones of the Harp, Lute or Piano, to the rich full swell of a large Organ. It is easily played by child or adult, and is already a very great favorite with us. Its compact structure, ingenious combination of power with the new and beautiful Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-base are greatly admired and are highly creditable to the maker, Estey, of Vermont. I think it is peculiarly adapted for Church Music.

EDW. F. CROWLY, A. M. &c.

Sheridan Villa Seminary, Peterboro, Dec. 1864.

We are delighted with the Cottage Organ with Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-base. We prefer it to any instrument of the kind we have ever seen; its tone, sweet and harmonious in the parlor, possesses sufficient power for a church.

REV. J. C. SLATER.

Wesleyan Parsonage, Millbrook, Jan. 1865.

I have much pleasure in testifying my entire satisfaction of the Cabinet Organ, purchased from you, as an instrument possessing superior qualities in sweetness, variety and strength, to anything of the kind I have ever seen. Two experienced musicians who have examined it, concur with me in recommending it as a perfect instrument adapted to Church or Parlor.

GEO. A. NORRIS, M. D., Recording Steward of the Wesleyan Church, Omemee.

Omemee, July, 1864.

In reply to your inquiries as to the Harmonic Organ, purchased from you for our church, we have to express our highest satisfaction; in purity and sweetness of tone as well as volume of sound, it is all that can be reasonably expected.

Peterborough, Dec. 20th, 1864.

MR J. R. WALTON.—Having examined and played upon the Parlor Organs sold by you and Manufactured by Mr. Estey. I have great pleasure in pronouncing them a first class instrument. The Harmonic attachment and manual Sub-base being a very great improvement and well worthy the patronage of the Musical public. Yours truly,

A. T. HEATHFIELD.
Organist of St. John's Church, Peterborough.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of six thousand dollars for the purpose therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $6000 in constructing, making and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County.

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $6000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $300 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole ratable property of the said Municipality, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised assessment roll of the said Municipality, being for the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three was $2,195,583.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of $6000 and interest, as hereinafter mentioned, it will require an equal annual special rate of thirty-one nineteenths of a mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Wardens of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same, upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $6000, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Wardens to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than $100 each; and that the said debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden and counter-signed by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable in 10 years at the furthest from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first day of April and the first day of October in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon, an equal special rate of thirty-one nineteenths of a mill in the dollar shall, in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the ratable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the 24th day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at its Council Chamber in the Court House, in the said County, on Thursday, the 22nd day of June, 1865, at the hour of 12 of the clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

Poetry.

GOOD NIGHT.

Good night, good night; our song is said,
Good night, the lyre is sleeping;
May spirits bright around your bed
A radiant watch be keeping,
And may you wake with bosom light,
Undimmed by a sorrow,
To join dreams of all true love to-night
To-night's sweet hours to-morrow,
And like a dream may merry theme
From hope her rainbow borrow.

Good night, good night; we humbly pray
To Heaven, one heart addressing,
Of sweet thought and act to-day
May meet his holy blessing
When on the dew-proven seconds
Of morning's sunny hours,
Pure as the spotless lilly bends
To Heaven her vestal flower,
Our set your prayer so purely there
Raise to the same good power.
Good night, a fond good night.

OLLERTON.—A QUAKER AND HIS WATCH.—A friend of mine, a clock and watch maker, residing not twenty miles from Ollerton, received the following letter from a Quaker of the same place:—"Sir,—I send thee once more my erroneous watch, which wants thy speedy care and correction. Since the last time he was at thy school I find by experience he is not benefited by thy instructions. Thou demandest for thy labour the 40th part of a pound sterling, which thou shalt have; but let thy honest endeavour first earn it. I will board him with thee a little longer, and pay for his teaching if thou requirest it. Let thy whole endeavours and observations be upon him for he has mightily deviated from the principals of truth. I am afraid he is foul in the inward man; I mean his springs. Prove and try him well with the adjusting tools of truth, that if possible he may be drawn from the error of his way. By the index of his tongue he is a liar, and the motion of his body is ever variable and uncertain. I presume his body is foul, as I before observed, therefore brush him well with thy cleaning instruments from all pollution, that he may vibrate with regularity and truth, admonish him friendly with patience, and be not too hasty and rash in thy correction but by endeavouring to reduce him from one error thou shouldst fling him headlong into another; for as he is young and of a malleable temper, he may with due correction be brought into the path of truth. In fine, let him visit often the motion of the sun, and regulate him by his table of equation, and when thou findst them agree send him with thy bill of moderation to thy friend M. T."—Newark

MERIT VERSUS MONEY.—If man were a savage the principle of valuing only merit might be true; but in civilized society, we all depend upon each other, and our happiness is very much owing to the good opinion of mankind. Now in civilized society, external advantage makes us more respected. A man with a good coat on his back meets with a better reception than he who has a bad one. You may analyze this and say what is there in it? But that will avail you nothing, for it is part of a general system. In civilized society personal merit will not serve you so much as money will.

A CLEAR CASE.—Newspaper people are proverbially temperate as well as virtuous. One of the craft in a western city did get slightly tight a few days ago, and the following is a sample of a part of his editorial the next day:—

Yesterday morning, about 4 o'clock p.m., a small man, named Jones or Smith, with a keel in the hole of his trowsers committed arsenic by swallowing a dose of suicide. He left a child and six small wires to lament the end of his unfortunate loss. In life we are in the midst of death.

Ada Clare, who says a good many sensible things, remarks that "as long as men prefer a small foot in a woman to a kind heart, and an hour glass waist to a tender soul, women will continue to torture their feet and squeeze their ribs out of place, and their hearts and souls will remain what they too often are, shallow pools, withered and dried up or filled with stagnant and bitter Waters.

A Dutchman, the other day, reading an account of a meeting, came to the words, 'the meeting then dissolved.' He could not define the meaning of the latter, so he referred to his dictionary and felt satisfied. In a few minutes a friend came in, who he said—'Dey must have very hot weddier in New York. I ret an agount of a meeting where all the peoples melted away.

'Dennis my boy,' said an Irish School master to his Hiberian pupil. 'I fear I shall make nothing of you; you have no application.' 'An' sure enough, sir,' said the quick-witted lad, 'isn't it myself that is always being told there's no occasion for it? Don't I see every day in the newspapers that there's no Irish need apply, at all, at all!'

An elderly maiden lady, meeting a lately married man, who had once been one of her servants, carrying home a cradle, exclaimed, "Ah, John, these are the fruits of matrimony. "No madam," replied John, "this is only the fruit basket."

A Western editor vents his rage as follows:—"We would say that the rascal who stole our shirt off the pole while we lay in bed waiting for it to dry, that we sincerely hope that the collar may cut his throat."

A minister who had received a number of calls, and could hardly decide which was best, asked the advice of his faithful African servant, who replied—'Massa, go where de most debbil.'

The surest way to prevail on a young couple to get married is to oppose them. Tell them you would rather see them in their graves, and twelve months after, their baby will pass twice a day in a willow waggon.

A Hibernian sergeant was drilling an awkward squad of volunteers, and in spite of his efforts failed to bring them into a straight line. And at last, out of all patience, he cried out. Oh what a bent row! Just come and look at yourselves.

A notice of a recent steamboat explosion in an American paper ends as follows:—

The captain swam ashore. So did the chambermaid; she was insured for $15,000 and loaded with iron.

What is that dog looking at, asked a dandy whose boots were more polished than his ideas. Why, replied a by-stander, because he sees another puppy in your boots.

David Fender poping the question in a letter, concluded thus:—"And should you say yes, dear Mary, I will truly be your D. Fender.

Planting Large and Small Potatoes.

The writer has planted small potatoes, from half an inch to an inch in diameter, which yielded apparently as well as large ones for only one season. He also planted small tubers of the size mentioned, for five successive years, selecting the smallest each year; and the fifth crop was not worth digging, as the greater proportion consisted of tubers no larger than those planted; many were no larger than marrowfat peas. The conclusion was that small potatoes may be used for seed a single season, with good results; but, if planted for several years in succession, they will degenerate even with good cultivation. On the contrary, he has practiced cutting tubers of the most desirable form and size into small pieces, with one eye on each piece, with two or three pieces in each hill, or if in drills, one piece in a place, about six or eight inches apart; and the result has been invariably a good yield of large tubers, with no signs of degeneracy. When seed was scarce, the tubers were always cut, beginning at the root end, and cutting off a chip with one eye, then turning the tuber, others were cut off until about half of it was used—These were kept by themselves, and also those of the seed end, and each kind planted separately. The sets near the seed end will produce new potatoes at least six or eight days, some say a fortnight, earlier than the sets from the root end. If the eyes are very close together, it will be better to leave two on a piece as large as the first joint of a man's finger, than to cut the pieces too small.

This is the most economical mode of cutting seed tubers; and the writer has never been able to discover any difference in the size of the new crop, when the seed was cut in this way, or when cut into quarters, or when planted whole. More good potatoes can be raised from a bushel of tubers by cutting them as above and planting in drills about 30 inches apart, and eight inches apart in the drills, than in any other manner. When planted in this way, a little more labor will be required to hoe them, unless the ground is free from weeds. This manner of cutting seed potatoes is not recommended as the best way of preparing tubers for planting. The design is simply to show how they may be cut economically, with good results. Any one can try the experiment of planting a few whole potatoes, a few others cut in to four equal parts directly through the tubers from one end to the other, and an equal number chopped off, without any apprehensions that the new potatoes will not be as good as if the sets were larger. The only good objection to cutting seed so small is, the plants do not grow as luxuriantly when small, especially when the weather is cold and wet, as if the sets were larger. The substance in a small piece is soon exhausted, after which the young plant must draw its nourishment from the soil and atmosphere; whereas, if the sets be larger, the substance in them furnishes the best kind of nourishment for promoting the growth of the young plants. Probably the best and safest way is, to plant uncut those tubers as large as hen's eggs of an ordinary size; and to cut larger ones into pieces about the size of eggs.

Culture of Cabbage.

Eleven thousand heads of cabbage may be raised from an acre. Thus, sold at five cents, will bring five hundred dollars. It is said by those who have raised cabbage extensively, that it is one of the best crops to feed stock—young stock and cows particular. There is no doubt of it. Cows are fond of it, and give largely of milk. Some object to its acrid taste and pungent flavour, as this is perceptible in the milk. But the objection is obviated in the case of young stock, and cows out of milk.

To raise cabbage, the richest of ground is necessary. We have known cabbage raised for a dozen years in succession on the same spot, and each crop a good one, varying, of course, with the season. But the soil was of the best kind, so that but little manure was needed. But the soil if still better, would have raised better cabbage. Planted in a hog-yard, or where manure has long lain, gives the best of crops—better than any we have ever seen. It is almost impossible to get your ground too rich for cabbage; and it wants depth, as its long roots penetrate.

Cabbage, like berries, and all water-loving plants, dris the soil rapidly, and hence gives it a harsh, sterile appearance, unless very rich and mellow. Irrigation cannot be too largely indulged in with cabbage. A thorough cultivation of the soil, deep tillage, will aid in this respect.—Valley Farmer.

How the Chinese Make Dwarf Trees.

We have all known from childhood how the Chinese cramp their women's feet, and so mannage to make them "keepers at home;" but how they contrive to grow miniature pines and oaks in flower pots for half a century has always been much of a secret. They lim first and last at the seat of vigorous growth, endeavouring to weaken it as far as may consist with the preservation of life. They began at the beginning. Taking a young plant—say a seedling or cutting of a cedar—when only two inches high, they cut off its tap-root as soon as it has other rootlets enough to live upon, and replant it in a shallow earthen pot or pan. The end of the tap-root is generally made to rest on the bottom of the pan, or on a flat stone within it. Alluvial clay is then put into the pot, much of it in bits the size of beans, and just enough in kind and quantity to furnish a scanty nourishment to the plant. Water enough is given to keep it in growth, but not enough to excite a vigorous habit. So, likewise, in the application of light and heat.

As the Chinese pride themselves on the shape of their miniature trees, they use string wire and pegs, and various other mechanical contrivances to promote symmetry of habit, or to fashion their pets into odd fancy figures. Thus, by the use of very shallow pots, the growth of the tap-roots is out of the question: by the use of poor soil and little of it, and little water, any strong growth is prevented. Then, too, the top and side roots being within easy reach of the gardener, are shortened by his pruning knife or seared with his hot iron. So the little tree, finding itself heated on every side, gives up the idea of strong growth, asking only for life, and just growth enough to live and look well. In some kinds of trees this end is reached in three or four years; in others ten or fifteen years are necessary. Such is fancy horticulture among the Celestials.—The Technologist.

FAMILY JARS.—"Jars of jelly, jars of jam, jars of potted beef and ham, jars of early gooseberry, nice jars of mince-meat, jars of spice, jars of orange marmalade, jars of pickles, all home-made, jars of cordial, home-made wine, jars of honey superfine—would the only jars were these, that were found in families.'

Why is true wit like a diamond? It cuts as well as sparkles.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!

CAN BE FOUND IN

Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer: The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF

Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHERever, and in whatever shape internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE: they attack the RADIX OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs UPON THE BLOOD itself, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable curative. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weaknees,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Vernal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

. Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 88 cents, and $1 40 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33

See what the most popular and widely circulated periodicals say of our Establishment:

From the "Dispatch" of February 25, 1865.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the announcement of Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, Silver Ware, and Fancy Goods, in our advertising columns. We are personally acquainted with the members of this firm and know them to be gentlemen of sterling worth and integrity. Their stock of goods, for variety and extent, we have scarcely seen paralleled.

From the "Mirror of Fashion," March 1, 1865.

Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, etc., opened on the 15th ult., and we venture to say that no finer display of goods was ever exhibited by any establishment in this city. The ladies thronged their bazaar almost to suffocation, although the streets were rendered nearly impassable by the melted snow and slush. We predict for them a wonderful success.

From the "Lodger," February 28, 1865.

Our lady friends should visit the extensive establishment of Messrs. Devaugh & Co., No. 15 Malden Lane, if they wish to indulge themselves with a sight which they will long remember. Such a profusion of elegant Watches, Chains, Rings, Earrings, and, in short, of Jewelry of every name, kind and description, we never before witnessed. Their silver and plated ware is superb and almost casts into the shade the other splendid establishments which have long been the boast of our city. It is estimated that their stock is worth not less than one million of dollars.

How You Can Get a Prize.

Send Twenty-Five Cents to us, and as soon as we receive it we will mail you a Certificate showing what you are entitled to. If the article or articles please you, send back the Certificate and One Dollar and we will forward you the article, no matter how costly it may be. If the article is not what you wish, state, when you send the Certificate and dollar, what other article of the same value you prefer and we will send it. If you wish more than one Certificate send us $1 and we will send five; for $2, eleven; for $5, thirty; for $10, sixty; for $18, one hundred.

Agents are wanted in the Army and in every place. We have an immense stock of goods to dispose of, and need a large number of Agents. Our terms to Agents are very liberal and some even of our Lady Agents are making from $5 to $20 a day. We give Agents 50 per cent. on all Certificates they sell provided they remit not less than $1 for eight.

☞ Write your name and address distinctly and say only what is necessary.

Poetry.

A LOVING HEART.

Sunny eyes may loose their brightness;
Nimble feet forget their lightness;
Pearly teeth may now decay;
Raven tresses turn to grey;
Cheeks be pale and eyes be dim;
Faint the voice, and weak the limb;
But though youth and strength depart,
Fadeless is the loving heart.

Like the little mountain flower,
Peering forth in wintry hour,
When the summer's breath is fled,
And the gaudier flowerets dead;
So when outward charms are gone,
Brighter still doth blossom on,
Despite time's destroying dart,
The gentle, kindly, loving heart.

Wealth and talents will avail
When on life's rough sea we sail;
Yet the wealth may melt like snow,
And the wit no longer glow;
But more smooth we'll find the sea,
And our course the fairer be,
If our pilot, when we start,
Be a kindly, loving heart.

Ye in worldly wisdom old,
Ye who bow the knee to gold,
Both this earth as lovely seem
As it did in life's young dream
Ere the world had crusted o'er
Feelings good and pure before—
Ere ye sold at Mammon's mart
The best yearnings of the heart.

Grant me, Heaven, my earnest prayer—
Whether life to ease or care
Be the one to me assigned,
That each commencing year may find
Loving thoughts and gentle words
Twined within my bosom chords,
And that age may but impart
Riper freshness to the heart.

THE RED HAT.

A LEGEND OF THE MALMAISON.

BY GEORGE AGUSTUS SALE.

On the evening of a dark and rainy day in the month of December, 16—, a solitary horseman, wrapped in a large cloak, might have been seen spurring his jaded steel along the high road leading from Ruel to the gloomy antiquated chateau then the residence of the formidable chateau minister of Louis the Thirteenth, Armand du Plessis, Cardinal, and Duke of Richelieu. Remember, there was but one Cardinal. Add another, and you might think I was borrowing from the late lamented G. P. R. James.

This horseman drew bridle and dismounted at the door of a humble little village inn, bearing on it's signboard the effigy of St. Nicholas, and which stood at the entrance of a gloomy avenue of poplars, at the opposite extremity of which was the chateau, and to which it served as a kind of lodge.

The horseman wore a hat without plume band or buckle; and his doublet of brown dugget, destitute of either ribbons, lace, or embroidery, was sufficient to indicate, in an age when costume so closely denoted the gradations of rank, that he did not belong to the patrician class; still, from his open and almost defiant countenance and cavalierly turned-up moustache, it was not difficult to pronounce him one of those sturdy and independent burgesses whose fathers had fought in the wars of the League; and who temporarily kept in subjection by the iron hand of Richelieu, reappeared during the troubles of the Fronde, but were destined to be completely absorbed by the glory of the Grand Monarque.

His horse appeared completely worn out, and the muddy state of his cloak testified to his having come a long distance by bad roads, in an age when all the roads were execrable.

'May the plague light on the rogues who are bound to kep the King's highway in repair!' grumbled the traveller, as tethering his steed to a post, he entered the inn, and proceeded to hammer with the butt end of his whip upon a long table of coarse deal, which stood in the midst of a low-ceiled, smoky common room.

A fat man of rotund abdomen and purple face, clad in the traditional white apron and night cap, and with a knife in his girdle, for he was cook as well as host, entered the room.

'What might your lordship be pleased to want?' he asked, pulling off his cap, and making a low reverence.

'I am no lord, master of mine,' replied the traveller, twisting his moustache without complacency; but a plain burgess, who owes nothing, and asks for nothing without he can pay for it. I am hungered and athirst. Give me some supper; make up a blazing fire; see to my horse; and I promise you that you shall have no reason to complain of me.'

And as he spoke the traveller struck his pocket, which gave forth a metallic clank pleasant to hear.

The purple face of the innkeeper became one grin.

'We have not a room unoccupied,' he said; 'but my own private bedroom is at your grandeur's service. My wife shall make up a bed directly. As for the rest you have to wait a few minutes, and all your wishes shall be attended to.'

Mine host was as good as his word. Ere long the traveller was comfortably stretched in a huge armchair, a-toasting his feet at a blazing fire, to which a couple of logs had been added. He could see through the casement that snow was beginning to fall thickly; he could hear the wintry wind dolefully howling; a soft, warm odor from the kitchen began to titilate his nostrils, and he felt as cozy and complacent as men in all ages and countries have felt under similar circumstances.

'Come, this is better,' he murmured, with a sigh of relief. 'A dog's life is that of a traveller in December May the black fever choke the cardinal——.'

He bounded in his chair with terror; he was nearly falling into a swoon as, looking upward, he saw the innkeeper, nightcap in hand, standing before him.

'Sdeath, man, what do you want?' he exclaimed, with ill-disguised trepidation.

'I am desirous,' returned the other, with apparent embarrassment, 'to ask a favor of your excellency.'

The imprudent burgess breathed a little more freely after this, for he had expected nothing less than to be at once arrested by an exempt of his eminence, the cardinal.

'Ask what you will, my friend,' he responded in a courteous tone.

'Only imagine, your bigness,' pursued the diplomatic innkeeper, twisting one of the corners of his apron, that no sooner had my wife made your room comfortable and tidy for you than another customer arrived. He is an old customer, and a good customer too, for he only asks me to pay what is to pay, and allows me to tot up the reckoning. Well, you see, your superiority, that I can't exactly turn him out on such a night as this; so I've just come to ask your grace if you will allow him to share your fire and your supper till bed-time, when I must find him a shake-down somewhere.'

'Is he an honest man, the customer of yours?' asked the traveller in a dignified tone.

If it were possible for the deep-tinted face of the innkeeper to assume an intenser hue, he may be said to have blushed.

'Yes your excellency,' he replied, 'he is honest—a very honest man, as honest man go, in his way of business.'

'Tell him, then, that I shall be well pleased with his company, and that he is welcome to half my supper—the best half, and hark ye, Mr. Landlord, see that it be good and that the wine is of the right sort.

The innkeeper was profuse in his professions of gratitude and in promises of a speedy appearance of excellent cheer; and then he left the room, somewhat precipitately, as the traveller thought, to inform his customer of the result of his mission.

In a minute or so the customer made his appearance. He was a strange customer—a curious customer—and to tell the truth somewhat of an ugly customer. He was very tall, very thin, had very harshly marked features, very small eyes whose lids drooped whenever he was looked full in the face, and a pointed beard and moustache, coarse and grizzled. His hands were knotted and bony, and of huge size. He was plainly dressed in a doublet, vest, and trunks of grey serge, bordered with black taffety, and terminated with long boots of untanned leather; but the most noticeable point in his apparel was his hat which, of the same material as that of the traveller, and like his, unadorned by feather or buckle, was of a dark crimson color.

'I don't like the look of that Robin Redbreast,' the traveller lethought himself. His eminence was a scarlet bat, but it has [illegible] and a hue of him. Whenever I saw a peaceable citizen in such a blood-stained looking courrechef as that!'

However, he was an open hearted burgess; and rising, held out his hand to the stranger, saying, "Welcome, sir and friend!"

To his surprise, the man with the Red Hat drew back, as though half-alarmed and half-astonished at this simple act of courtesy, and instead of reciprocating it, contented himself with making a low bow.

"A very ceremonious personage, upon my word," mused the guest. "Perhaps he is a Huguenot, or just as likely a Catholic, and thinks I am a heretic. The spotted fever take all religious differences says I!" Then raising his voice, he said, 'Sir I am extremely happy to be able to offer you a share of my supper and—'

'A thousand thanks!' hastily interposed he of the Red Hat. Then diving his hand into the recesses of a pouch at his belt, he produced a handful of silver, and continued, 'take I entreat you, what I have to pay as my share of the reckoning.'

'Sir, sir,' protested the traveller, drawing himself up, 'do you take me for a niggard curmudgeon, who expects a stranger to pay for the meat to which he invited him?'

'Invited! Do you mean to say that you invited me,' faltered the Red Hat.

'Of course I do. I told the landlord so,' replied the other.

'Then,' replied the Red Hat, with a not very pleasant smile, 'I accept your invitation as heartily as it is given. This is the first time in my life that such a thing happened to me, but the sky has fallen and we may expect to catch roast larks.' And he drew his stool up to the fire and began to bask and hug himself in the genial warmth.

Roast larks failed to come down, but a splendid roast goose just then came up, flanked by a hotch-potch of savory ingredients, and two portly pitchers of wine. The two strangely acquainted friends sat down, and did the amplest justice to the edibles and potables; and so delighted did mine host appear with the appetites of his guests that he insisted on standing treat in more than one flask of his choicest vintage.

'No doubt sir,' the Red Hat remarked, when the landlord had removed the fragments of the repast, and they were alone 'that you are as well known as I am in this place. Goodman Aubry waited on you as though you were a prince.'

'Not in the least,' replied the burgess smiling. 'But I just sounded my pocket and he was content with the ring of the little livres tournois.'

His interlocutor smiled grimly in return. 'Yes,' he pursued, 'gold has an immense power in every country; still it is far from prudent to show the contents of one's pocket to everybody, especially in such a place as this.'

The burgess looked at him uneasily.

'Do you mean that there are any pickpockets hereabouts, brother?' he asked.

'Do you mean to say that you are not acquainted with the neighborhood?' returned the other, answering one question by asking another.

'Faith, not I. This is my first visit and I come from a long distance, too. I am from La Rochelle.'

'From La Rochelle!' and the Red Hat in his turn regarded his new-found friend with perturbed looks; 'what on earth brings you from thence?'

'The force of circumstances, my unlucky star, and his eminence the cardinal. 'Tis a very long story. I have been specially sent for to wait upon his eminence.'

'Unfortunate man!' exclaimed the Red Hat; 'what have you to do with him? Have you offended his eminence?'

'Never to my knowledge,' responded the burgess. 'As fate would have it, however, I have been accused of doing so, but my complete justification can be neither long nor difficult. You must know that the Rochellois are very troublesome folks, and that evil-speaking, lying and slandering are far too common here. Some scurvy wag among our citizens have written an anonymous satire against the administration in general, and Monseigneur the Cardinal in particular. Then there has been a talk of Urbain Grandier, about tragedies and verses written by his eminence, and about a sarabband said to have been danced by him before the Queen, a pack of nonsense. Some secret enemy of mine has been good enough to denounce me as the author of these roughish pasquinades—I who never rhymed two lines in my life. It is a most perverse and treacherous time. To exculpate myself I referred to a certain monk, Father Joseph, who is said to be honored with the friendship and confidence of his eminence. He was convinced of my innocence, and subsequently informed me that Monseigneur would deign to grant me an interview; and here I was deeply flattered by his eminence's condescension although I should greatly prefer being sung at home in my own house at Rochelle'

'Humph!' quoth the Red Hat; 'for my part I think you would have done much better to have staid at home, and left this fool's errand to take care of itself. Eminences are dangerous personages to have interviews with. But I must be going,' he resumed, hastily rising. 'Farewell master of mine! Thanks for your generous hospitality and pray Heaven and St. Nicholas that we may never meet again.' And so saying the red hat abruptly left the room.

'A fool's errand! What can he mean by that I mused the burgess. 'Poor man he must be cracked. Who but a madman would wear a red hat! However my little affair will soon be settled; nine o'clock was the hour at which I was to wait on his eminence. 'Tis not five minutes walk to the chateau, and then I shall come comfortably home to bed.

Paying his reckoning at the polite request of his host, who hinted that cavaliers who went up to the castern sometimes found their arrangements for returning at a fixed hour interfered with—a hint which the traveller wholly failed to comprehend—he went out into the night, wrapping his cloak around him to shelter him from the still falling snow.

He had not proceeded many paces along the [illegible] before he thought he heard the clinking of sword blades and some smothered, groans. He listened attentively, but a sudden gust of wind came howling about him, and drowned the sound of the swords.

'It must have been fancy,' reasoned he. 'That confounded fellow with the red hat has made me nervous. If I were a coward I should dream of him at night.'

'Help! Murder!' suddenly cried a lamentable voice close to him.

'Courage, we are here!' cried the brave burgess, drawing his sword and summing up all his presence of mind. 'Hold on, we are four of us, well armed! Ah! rascals would you! And he rushed forward in the direction in which the sound came from.

His ruse succeeded, for in the obscurity he could dimly descry at least three men making off in all haste, and anon he stumbled on a body lying on the ground. The moon came out for a moment through the murk, and he recognised pale, bleeding and groaning, the Red Hat. He seemed to be severely wounded. The burgess helped him to rise, and finding him too weak to rise, valourously hoisted him on his shoulders, and not without difficulty, for the Red Hat weighed heavily, bore him back to the inn of the St. Nicholas.

'This pestilent fellow with the red hat,' he murmured, as, with the assistance of the innkeeper, he bore him up the stairs and laid him on the bed that had been prepared for quite another purpose, 'seems fated to be mixed up with my life. And I shall have to sleep in the arm chair forsooth, because he chances to be waylaid and stabbed.'

'Where am I?' whispered the wounded man, when his wounds had been bound up and he had recovered consciousness.

'Among friends, brother,' replied the honest burgess consolingly, as he bathed the temples of the sufferer with vinegar.

'Friends,' repeated the Red Hat bitterly; 'I have no friends' Who was at the trouble of saving the life of such a miserable wretch as I am?'

'Well for that matter it was I who picked you out of the mud, and set the rascals to flight who were besetting you. Three to one the cowardly knaves! How they scampered! But then you see I brought you here, pick aback; for walk a step you could not.'

And you—you then are my preserver? the Red Hat exclaimed in a voice of agony as he pressed the burgess's hand.

'Yes, if you like to call it so. Would not you have done the same for me?'

The inkeeper was down stairs. The wounded man made signs to the burgess to shut the door securely and come close to the bedside. Then he put his lips close to the burgess's ear and whispered:

'Had you not an appointment this evening at nine o'clock with his eminence;

'Of course I had and I shall get a pretty scolding for being late. But perhaps the existence of a poor devil like me has escaped his eminence's memory.'

'Then,' quoth the Red Hat solemnly, 'I can give life for life. You have saved mine. I too was bound to wait upon the cardinal at 9 this night; and I have little doubt that it would have been my dreadful duty to strike your head from your body.'

At this spalling intimation the Rochellois, with horror in his countenance, made for the door, thinking the Red Hat to be in a state of delirium; but the other called him back.

'I'm not I, unfortunate, but thou must fly,' he said. 'Escape rather from the horrible neighborhood. Listen to what I say. The merciless cardinal has doubtless condemned you without a hearing; and it would have been my task to execute the sentence, for I—you I, whose head you have pressed—I, whose life you have saved—I, who have eaten and drank with you—I am the most miserable, the most abandoned, the most accursed of mankind. I am the executioner of Chartres.'

He paused for a moment, keenly eyeing his companion, brave and boozy as he was, could not banish from his countenance the expression of repugnance he felt at being on familiar terms with the abhorred headsman.

'You may well abuse me,' continued the red hat gloomily. 'But fate has decreed we must yet have some further communication before we part forever. Every time that his eminence has a deed of secret vengeance to consummate I am summoned to the chateau. At this ian I always alight. The villagers know me by my red hat well and shudderingly avoid me. They call this inn the House of the Headsman, and sometimes the Devil's Inn.

'I don't wonder at it,' murmured the poor Rochellois.

'But fear nothing,' continued the Red Hat; although everything conspires to point out that you were the person I was sent for to execute, it may be some other victim who awaits my axe. Come have your horse led forth. I must convey you to a place of safety.

'But you are wounded,' urged the Rochellois.

'A mere scratch! With a draught of cordial I shall be strong and valid again. Strong enough' he continued with his ugly smile, 'for my work to-night, if work there be. Come dispatch!'

As, with many groans and murmurs, the lately wounded man arose, and the two left the chamber, they found the innkeeper on the stair-case. He sought to give them the slip, and had evidently been listening to their conversation.

The Red Hat was accustomed to act promptly. He seized the inn-keeper by the throat, pinned him up in the angle of the stairs and whispered him:

'Son of a dog, and nephew of a sow! dare to speak one word concerning our conversation, and I denounce you to the cardinal for harboring traitors, and thy neck is not worth an hour's purchase! Swear issue of a mangy swine!'

The innkeeper, half-terrified out of his wits, swore as he was commanded; but the Red Hat kept his eyes sharply upon him till they were clear of the Devil's Inn. There was need of every precaution, for the lower room was by this time full of a company of arquebusiers, the body guard of [illegible]. The Red Hat marshalled its commandant of the band drew the host on one side, and apparently interrogate him; but his answers seemed perfectly satisfactory, and the two travellers were permitted to depart.

They started at a gallop, and were soon immersed in the Forest of Butard, leading to the Chateau of Ruel.

Suddenly the Red Hat reined in his horse, and, pointing out to his preserver the gloomy dwelling of the cardinal, said:—

'Mark well that little arched window with grated bars before it. It can only be seen from the place where we now are. In that turret the dreadful decrees of Richelieu—the sentences from which there is no appeal—are executed. When my bloody task is accomplished, a trap door opens, and the headless corpse falls over a hundred feet into a vault filled with quick lime. Every trace thus disappears. Remain here for an hour. Keep yourself concealed behind the trunk of this withered elm. If during that hour, you see a light glimmering from that arched window, you may assure yourself that I have not been summoned on your account, but on that of some other unhappy victim. In that case you may present yourself without fear before his eminence, for it never happens that I am sent for to ply my hellish trade twice in the same night. But if during that hour the light does not appear, you are the destined victim, you are the victim waited for. Clap spurs to your horse and make the best of your way to the frontier, or you will be captured; and the Lord have mercy on you!'

And so saying, and just interchanging one hearty grip with his friend, the Red Hat rode away.

The burgess of La Rochelle never saw him again.

He waited for an hour—a year it seemed to him—behind the trunk of the withered elm; but no light appeared in the little arched window. He, then, was the wretch condemned to death! With a cold sweat bedewing him, and picturing to himself the arquebusiers of the terrible cardinal scouring the country in every direction to bind him and lead him to the slaughter, he urged his horse into a gallop, and sped as though the fiend who was said to be the matron of the inn of St. Nicholas were behind him, in the direction of the Northern frontier. He could not quite convince himself that his head was safe upon his shoulders till he found himself two days afterwards at Huy, in Flanders.

'Ned, who is that girl I saw you walking with?' 'Miss Hogg' 'Hog, Hogg; well she's to be pitied for having such a name.' 'So I thought,' rejoined Ned; 'and I pitied her so much that I offered her mine—and she's going to take it.'

Sir Walter Scott in lending a book to his friend, one day, cautioned him to be punctual in returning it. 'This is really necessary,' said the poet, in apology, 'for if many of my friends are bad arithmeticians, I have found all of them book-keepers.

A youngster while perusing a chapter of Genesis, turning to his mother, inquired whether the people in those days used to sow's on the ground. He accounted for his question by reading the passage, 'And the sons of men multiplied upon the face of the earth.'

THURSDAY, MAY 18, 1865.

THE MEXICAN COLONIZATION SCHEME.

Now that the great Rebellion is almost settled, and that the grand army of the Potomac, and of the whole North, with the exception of 100,000 men, has to be disbanded, the question arose in the minds of many, will those who have been beating the pruning hooks into spears for the last four years, return to their homes and quietly resume their former occupation of agriculture and trade, cultivate the arts of peace and learn war no more. Scarcely has the thought been entertained than a partial solution of the difficulty is offered, and some of the doubt concerning the matter removed from our minds,

Already a project is on foot of settling 100,000 soldiers in a portion of the fertile sunny soil of Mexico. The Patriot General, Juarez, is said to be favourable to the whole scheme, and this no doubt, from the fact that every man is to take his arms with him, under military leaders who are now advertising for recruits, so to speak, and thus they may become an important party in the affairs of Mexico hereafter. Perhaps a new Texas delight is about to be enacted in the case of Mexico. This may be the commencement of the practical assertion of the famous Monroe doctrine, and may end in trying the Napoleonic ideas concerning the establishment of Maximillian on the throne of the Montezumas. But this may be considered in a broader sense than that of mere acres of the soil of Mexico and who shall possess these acres.

When all the rest of North America was comparatively unpeopled, except by a few tribes here and there, that fine country was rolling in wealth, having cities and towns, and every sign of comparative civilization. It was thickly peopled, possessed a regularly established government, and enjoyed all the privileges that are calculated to make a people happy and powerful, with the exception, perhaps, of Education. In 1519 the Spaniards, by treachery, obtained possession of their city and king, overthrew the power of Montezuma, and established a colony under Spanish rule, this most favored spot, so rich in gold and silver, and having a rich soil, prospered very little, while the English and French settlement grew prosperous and powerful. Nor is it likely that Mexico will ever become free and enlightened under the bigoted and intolerant dominion of an Austrian who is, and must ever be, the mere instrument of the Emperor of the French. For the interest of true liberty, both of thought and action, for the advancement of civilization and commerce, for the overthrow of bigotry and superstition, in fact—for the elevation of Mexicans politically; and the opening up of means for their moral elevation: the colonization of Mexico by 100,000 Anglo Saxons, or even 300,000; would be something to be lesired rather than deplored, even though it should be the inauguration of Republicanism over the New World. Emigration, on a large scale, might, in a short time, peaceably and gradually work all the desired change. We hope that the overthrow of misrule may be through the influence of light and truth; the benign principles of the Gospel, rather than by civil and devastating war. This Mexican scheme, however, may be viewed in a more selfish light; it will remove from us, for a season, at least, those continued threats of invasion which are ever being hurled at us by the uneasy rabble, and give a season for solar reflection during which both parties may learn that peace would be best for the interests of both. Few, however, could regret the overthrow of a power that has hitherto been an obstacle to advancement, social and morally; although it might even endanger their own peace and prosperity.

PETITIONS and complaints have been lodged with the Council concerning certain respectables who take possession of the side walk opposite the market block, and other places, and give vent to words and oaths not harmonious in the ears of decent passers by, who, of necessity, have to pass that way. They must be an annoyance also to those who occupy premises near by. It would also appear that they have become so well acquainted with Chief Constable Arnott, that they can espy his gait in the distance, and quiet down at his approach. The Council, however, have directed that gentleman to take care of the party and find them a nights lodging if they are found there any more. We trust he will be successful, and that our magistrates will lay them by for 30 days, at least, with the hope of their becoming wiser, quieter and better. Perhaps he will find time to take a walk up Water Street, past the Post Office, now and then; this is one of their favorite resorts, especially when the zephyrus renders shelter necessary.

AMERICAN.

The great news of the week is the capture of Jeff Davis, the President of the fallen Confederacy.

He was captured at Irwinsville, Georgia, by Col. E. Pritchard, of the 4th Michigan Cavalry. At the same time also were capture Ihis family, his wife's sister and mother; his Post-Master General Regan; his private Secretary, Col. Morris Lubbeck and Lieut Col. Hathaway. They are all expected in Washington this week. It is also expected that Davis will be tried for treason, as also for complicity with the murder of President Lincoln. It would have been as well for the cause of the North if the Rebel President had got away. They would then have had one less to dispose, which would also have relieved them of any necessity for harsh measures towards a fallen foe. The trial of those accused of the murder of the President is now proceeding. Reporters for the Press have been admitted, but the reports are more or less at the will of the tribunal, which we are sorry to have to record is a military one. It is a dangerous precedent to establish—the trial of civilians for a breach of civil law by a military tribunal, is assuredly the wedge for the overthrow of those principles of liberty which we are sorry to say the American people are so easily and wittingly allowing themselves to be deprived of. The remainder of the leaders of the South are one by one seeking to surrender. Kerby Smith alone holds out and professes a determination to do so, necessity however will soon force him to give up too.

The Washington correspondent of the Post says:—"The next great trial will be that of Jefferson Davis, who will soon arrive here. It is rumored here that he will have to stand trial as an accomplice in the murder of Mr. Lincoln. If that charge against him should be abandoned he will be tried for treason. It is difficult to see how he is to escape with his life; and his sympathizers here abandon all hopes of a pardon, as the President has repeatedly announced his intention to execute the laws upon the leaders. Of course if Davis get a pardon no one else will be executed.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Town Council met on Monday, according to a standing resolution which provides that if at any regularly appointed meeting there be not a quorum, then the next night of meeting shall be the Monday evening immediately after. The fact of this regulation prevented the necessity for a full meeting.

Mr. McNaughton was chosen Chairman pro tem, and considerable business transacted, a report of which will be found in another column. Advice from the legal adviser of the Council was read which was to the effect that the Mayor's seat was vacant from the time he became an insolvent, and also stating that the Mayor was not at present eligible to be re-elected. This, of course, was understood by every one without asking legal advice. The second part referred to the legality of appointing a Chairman during the vacancy. This the Attorney to the Council considered perfectly legal for business of necessity, but advised that papers of great importance had better not be signed by such Chairman. This was merely precautionary to avoid litigation, for if one part is legal everything relating to presiding over the Council and such duties connected with a Chairman must, by parity of reason, be also legal, as the law expressly provides for the Chairman's "Having the same authority in presiding at the meeting as the absent person would have had if present."

The 3d portion of the advice considered that the Clerk ought to have issued a warrant immediately after the Mayor had declared himself insolvent to supply his place, but the document left the Council as ignorant of the mode of procedure as before the advice was obtained. Hence the Clerk was directed to obtain more advice as to how to proceed in the sequence. The Clerk, however, stated to the Council that he had received advice though not pro forma to wait and let the Council, whose duty it was, move in the matter. This is what the Council should have done at first,—direct the Clerk to issue a notice calling the people together to nominate a Candidate, and if more than one were to be nominated, then to direct the Returning Officers to hold an election. But should the Clerk issue a warrant for a public meeting upon whom will he serve it? We will leave him to find out such an official as a Returning Officer for the whole Town. As will be seen in another column, the council has power to "make such regulations" not provided for, and not contrary to the Statutes, "as the good of the inhabitants may require."

And as the statutes do not provide for issuing a notice in such cases as this, the Council has the right to make regulations for so doing, and there can be no doubt but any other course will be illegal.

Nowhere has the Clerk power given him to call public meetings of the people unless for annual elections, until the Council so empower him by By-law or resolution. As the matter now stands there is no one inclined to offer any obstacles as all are willing to allow the present state of affairs to come to a settlement.

We have been borne out by the action of the Council, and by the legal advices obtained, in the position we assumed from the first. The Council has held meetings and transacted business, a Chairman presiding, and not the least doubts are entertained by them of the legality of such acts. But as for the theory that there could not be a Chairman appointed, it has fallen through.

The piece of advice that the Clerk should have issued a warrant has turned out in issuing a public notice. The legal wit of issuing a warrant to call a public meeting gives us an example of legal acumen rarely exhibited except by some wiseacre.

PROPHETIC.

We presumed, somewhat diffidently, to predict that the Town Clerk might look out for No. One. For once, we have been true prophets. Judas, betrayest thou the Son of Man with a kiss? The whole Council have arranged and are combined to carry out a great "farce"! All astray!! The Clerk won't do what the Review wants 'im!!! although it would be evidently contrary to common sense and Law. He won't issue a warrant to himself; what will we do with him? He has perjured himself!!! Oh! he will not do what he believes would be wrong, and what the whole Town would believe wrong. The Town, verily, is going down the Otonabee on a raft!! The Town Council has passed a By-law in good faith. The most upright men of the Council bringing it forward, and all favoring it, it is therefore bogus—the Review says so.

What, dear friend, what is the matter? Hast thou been studying Law? Leave it to Weller, Smith, Burnham, &c., apply thyself to something within thy power of attainment. If thou lose thyself in the labyrinths of thine own folly thou mayest never return to the right path again. There is an old saying that whom the Gods design todestroy, they first make mad. Is the saying verified in Town? Forbid it! What the end may be, we dare not presume again to predict. For the acts of the Clerk and Council, we really have no valid cause for fear. There is no great a desire on the part of our officials to do right as any body we know. If any one has hurt the Town or our interests we assert it is the rabid Editor of the Review, who publishes to the world with the most unblushing effrontary, a base calumny against the Council, the Clerk, and all the officials. For all the evil he should be held accountable.

WHO IS RETURNING OFFICER FOR THE TOWN?

THERE IS NO SUCH OFFICIAL.

In case of the erection of a new Township, of territory, not part of an incorporated County, the Governor, by Proclamation shall appoint the Returning Officer: 22 Vic. Cap. 58, sec. 27.

In case of the separation of a Junior Township from a Senior one. A By-law of the County Council shall name the Returning Officer,—Ibid. Sec. 29.

The Council of every Municipality divided into wards shall from time to time by Bylaw appoint Returning Officers,—Ibid Sec. 90.

In case of a Municipality not divided into wards. The Clerk shall be Returning Officer.—Ibid sec 91.

In every By-Law establishing a Police or Incorporated Village, a Returning Officer shall be named in such By-Law, &c.,—Ibid sec, 92.

In every Police Village after the first election. The Trustees shall from time to time by writing under their hands appoint a Returning Officer,—Ibid 93.

In case the Returning Officer appointed as above dies or does not come within one hour after the time for commencing the election, the Electors present may choose from among themselves a Returning Officer.

MAYORS.

Mayors for Cities and Towns shall be chosen by the Electors of such City or Town, at the annual election to be held on the first Monday in January. A meeting shall take place for nominating candidates on the last Monday but one in the month of December, at which meeting the Clerk of the City or Town, shall preside of in case of his absence the Council shall appoint a person to preside in his place; If neither of these attend, the electors present may choose a Chairman from among themselves, and such Clerk or Chairman shall have the powers of a Returning Officers (see the same sec. 103, 104, 105). Yet the Clerk is not Returning officer, only has the powers of such officer,—and evidently only during the time of the meeting. So with the Chairman chosen or appointed. Section 107 calls the presiding officer the Clerk or Chairman, not the Returning Officer. Then if a Poll is necessary the Returning Officers for the wards hold the election, but these are appointed by By-law of the Council. The Town Clerk is not a Returning Officer ex-officio. But if appointed by the Council he may be one.

In Villages and Municipalities not divided into wards, or in elections not by wards, the Clerk is Returning Officer, ex-officio, if he attends, and will act.

These instances all refer to annual meetings or first elections in Towns, Villages or Townships.

ELECTIONS WHEN SEATS VACATED, &c.

In case a vacancy occurs in the Council from any cause. The Head of the Council the Clerk or a Member of the Council shall by warrant require the Returning Officer appointed to hold the last election, to hold a new election to fill the vacancy. But we have shown that the Clerk is not a Returning officer, unless by direct appointment, and common sense tells us he could not be appointed to hold an election for the whole Town. It requires four Returning officers for that purpose. Hence on the very face of this provision an Election for a Councillor is contemplated, and that for a Ward, for which a Returning officer has been appointed, and in which another can be provided, if he fail to attend.

In proof of this we know that a meeting for nomination of candidates for the Mayoralty must take place before an election is held. For every Returning Officer cannot hold a nomination of Candidates else we might have four Mayors, something too good to be contemplated or desired.

Before a Mayor can be elected a meeting must be convened to nominate Candidates. Meetings are called by Notice, not by writs or warrants, and hence the absurdity of the crude ideas of the obvious duty of the Clerk to issue a writ or warrant. When we will know if he had any power to move in the matter, it must be to issue a notice for a meeting to nominate Candidates. We trust this is plain enough for our wisecures The 116th sec., of the Municipal Act provides for regular meetings of the Council without a Mayor. Although one or more wards may not be represented or no return made from them and that before the Mayor has been sworn into office; but only until the vacancy can be supplied, sec. 122 provides for the supplying the seat of a Councillor, not a Mayor. And in proof of this we can adduce a Bill that was introduced in Parliament last session to supply the apparent (if not real) deficiency in our Statutes on this matter. The Bill is No. 28, introduced by Mr. Powell and read a first time January 27th, 1865. The 3d Sec., is as follows:—"In case a vacancy occurs in the office of Mayor for any City or Town by death, Judicial decision or otherwise, the Clerk of the Council for the time being shall issue a notice naming a day for a meeting of the Electors to take place for the nomination of Candidates at the City or Town Hall, and shall also in such notice name a day for the holding of different Polls within the different Wards, in case a Poll shall be demanded; and the Returning Officers appointed to hold the last election in the different wards, or any other person or persons duly appointed to those offices or any of them shall hold such new Elections, and in all other respects the Election shall proceed as other annual elections of Mayors, and the person so elected shall hold office for the residue of the term of his predecessor."

Now here is a case right to the point: true it has not become law; but its very introduction is evidence that Mr. Powell felt the necessity for its enactment. Will this satisfy those harpers, who are so fond of organ-grinding even at a penny a tune if perchance they can obtain it.

Again, Section 188 enables "Every Council to make Regulations not specifically provided for by Statute for governing its proceedings; the conduct of its members; the appointing or calling of special meetings of the Council; and generally such other Regulations as the good of the inhabitants of the Municipality requires."

Now where is the theory of the Editor of the Review. But perhaps he will garble again, and make us say that there can be no meeting, as he endeavored to do last issue. What we never said or supposed. Our opinion is and was that a full meeting of Councillors is a legal meeting no matter how informal the mode of convening it. The only obstacle we ever saw was that there might not be any regulations appointing a time and place of meeting, which if not done, might be an obstacle, owing to the difficulty of getting a full meeting, but as there is a regulation providing for a meeting without a direct motion or resolution that is now enacted, and a quorum can hold a meeting, and appoint a Chairman. Then, the wise course would be to discuss the case of the Mayoralty. We have thus brought the subject before the people in every phase. We have advocated no party, nor blamed any; we saw no cause for blame yet, and if our contemporary will rid himself of a biassed judgment, and learn the first elements of ethics, honesty and candor, he will not be so ready to wrest our meaning to suit the meanest of purposes, to gratify a vitiated selfishness.

WORDS.

We received a due share of attention in the last issue of our contemporary, the greater share of which referred to certain expressions of ours concerning the Mayor and Council, in part of which he (the Editor) thinks we don't express ourselves as he would. Considerable bandying of words is exhibited over the Mayor resigning a vacant seat. Now as our friend has evidently been at the Statutes, we beg him to reason a little better over their meaning than he has done over ours. Surely the Review must know that a man may have forfeited his right to a position, in consequence of which it is virtually vacant, yet not actually so. But the folly of discussing anything with one who will not allow himself to "discuss precise terms and nice points" because he imagines his opponent does not express himself as desired, ought to have been evident to us, before we commenced to point out to our contemporary that his strictures concerning the Council and Mayor were erroneous. Now we all know that differences of meaning often arise from the nice use of words; and if the right use of words is not to be taken into account, how shall men understand each other. Our friendly contemporary considers our way of writing convenient for a variety of construction. We feel sorry that we cannot express ourselves to please him, but would feel it a great deal more if we were as dogmatical as he, and as unwilling to give up a bad case as he is. It is admitted that anything can be proven from the writings of an author, if but the liberty to select is admitted, and yet the selection may consist of sentences in their entirety. This is just what the Editor of the Review is much addicted to. That, with a bold manner of asserting whatever he would wish his readers to receive, right or wrong, makes up with him for any lack of reason, sense or justice he may exhibit. Our contemporary also disregards the true meaning of words; for example, he says,—"We quoted no garbled sentence but one in its entirety," as if the word garble meant a part of a sentence. If, however, he will refer to standard works he will find that the word means—"to give a false impression of an author's meaning;" and this we say he did and continues to do. No wonder our contemporary will not discuss nice points; it is better to have reason, but we cannot yet receive him as authority on words. To bring him to a right mind, would be too much to expect. In last week's Review a number of garbled or culled sentences are brought forth to show that the Editor of the Examiner corroborated the dictum of the Review, and in his strictures he represents us as considering everything going on nicely; whereas, if he had represented us fairly he would have found that we argued, that everything could go on for a while, and that the council could hold its meetings without a Mayor, by appointing a Chairman, of this we are still convinced. In the next place he makes us say that whatever difficulties (real difficulties, he would make us say) have arisen, they have arisen because the Mayor's seat is considered vacant. Whereas, we said that the Councillors had got them up for themselves, whatever they may be, and this arose, not because they could not hold a meeting, but because they did not hold one, and regularly adjourn. We are glad to learn since that there is a regulation which provides for what gave rise to our expressed fears on the matter. But our contemporary will not understand the difference between de jure and conditionality. Yet there is a difference, and because we choose to use the latter method of expression—we "write loosely." We express a fear; the fear is removed. We now feel certain of what we once doubted. There can be legal meetings of the Council. Will our contemporary see the force and wisdom of having conditions for fear of ignorance of concomitant circumstances.

The Council were doing right and folding their meetings when we penned the first article; when we wrote the second they were astray—hence our desire for their return to the right way. Surely we shall speak of things as they are not as they were. The Editor of the Review does not write now as he did last December: then he passed high encomiums on the Mayor.

We are represented as saying that the "Town was without both a Mayor and Council" — which we neither said nor thought. What we did say was:—"It is not a pleasing spectacle to see the Town without both a Mayor, and Council in effect. But the Editor of the Review pays as little attention to pauses as to words when their existence would destroy his fancied theories or evil machinations; yet it is evident that the adjunct (in effect) refers to Council only because of the nice use of the pause, thus admitting, as we did from the first, that the Mayor could not preside; but implying that the Council could sit and discharge their duties if they would, but inasmuch as they appeared unready to do so, we were without a Council as far as acting was concerned, not as regards their powers to act. We really felt astonished when we read the article in last week's Review—astonished at the miraculous feats of transposition, transmutation and perversion our neighbour was capable of performing, but were not inclined to hope for much good from his gyrations, for there was no remorse. Perhaps our amiable neighbor is so—"Lost in error his vain heart prefers"—that all sense of right, or of judging right is effaced, for from first to last of the article we refer to, there is nought but one continued series of misrepresentation, which we find really arose out of a determined desire on his part to persecute the Mayor and blacken every one who should oppose his darling scheme of revenge for he did not deny the threats of which we accused him, and which fully account for all the present outbursts. And as we have fully shown that in no case could the construction forced upon our words be naturally drawn from them, and further have shown our contemporary that nice distinctions of meaning are made by a nice use of words. We only claim that the true meaning of the passages shall be set forth, which cannot (once in a thousand cases) be done by extracting one sentence, we care not who the writer may be.

THE MAYOR.

From Bills issued by the Town Clerk, our citizens will, by this, have learned that a meeting for nominating a candidate for the office of Mayor will be held on Saturday, at ten o'clock in the forenoon. While the course now pursued is the right one, if legally provided for; it is much to be regretted that it becomes our duty to let the people know that the Clerk has no legal power to call such a meeting, and as a consequence the whole proceedings will be illegal. The Council had the power to make regulations for doing so, but inasmuch as they have not done so, the Clerk could not have the power and has not the power.

The famous Sec., No. 122, provides for issuing a warrant—not a notice. Yet in the face of the very plainest Statute, and without the Council providing regulations for such meeting a public meeting is called. If the Clerk has power to call one now, can he not do so at any other time, such a precedent is dangerous in the extreme and ought not to be tolerated. The individual chosen at such meeting will be as ineligible to occupy the Mayor's seat as Mr. Perry, and more so—for Mr. Perry was regularly elected—he will not be so.

QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

We are informed that the Firemen are making extensive preparations for celebrating the Queen's Birthday; a public promenade in the afternoon and a torch-light procession in the evening, accompanied by Fireworks, will be their programme.

COLLISION ON THE GRAND TRUNK.—On Saturday evening the 6th instant, while a mixed train from Toronto was standing at Trenton, an auxiliary engine which had been propelling trains up the inclines, came down the track at the rate of 40 miles an hour, and ran into the rear of the train. The last car was a baggage car; next to it a passenger car, in which there were three men, Mr. Patterson (one of them) escaped with a bruise and a severe cut on the head, another of them, Mr. Burns, escaped without his left hand, which grasped the rail at the time and was cut off at the wrist. But the third man was severely injured, the scalp was torn from the head, and the skull badly fractured. The fireman is badly hurt; the driver got off and is absconded. The cars were smashed and the engine that did the damage lost its smoke pipe.

The Belleville Chronicle says:—This is another instance of the bad effects of placing drunken men in situations of trust, in which the lives of the public are at their mercy.

COBOURG AND PETERBORO, via OTONABEE.—From the Cobourg Sentinel we learn that very soon we may expect to have communication opened with that long neglected place. The Steamer Otonabee will be engaged in towing lumber from the lock to Harwood this season, and it will be conveyed from that place, by rail, to Cobourg. We are informed that already arrangements are made for sending several million feet by that route this season. We learn from reliable source that the vessel will make her first trip early next week, perhaps by Monday, if arrangements can be completed. Capt. Sutherland is agent for business connected with this new route.

THE Sentinel intimates a desire for a grand Review of Volunteers, &c., at Cobourg, on the Queen's birth day; and thinks it would be a very suitable day for renewing the long interrupted communication between Peterboro and our elder sister. We wish them every possible success in their enterprise of opening up communication again and will be very glad to shake hands with them once more. But as all arrangements have been perfected for a gala day at our own doors; we hope the Sentinel will forgive us for advocating a trip to Peterboro, on that day, by all lovers of fun and frolic.

THE Canadian Delegates have arrived in England, and have been heard on the subject of their mission. Already a change is visible, and in another week we may be able to chronicle their complete success in obtaining all they desired. The people of England are not yet come to that pass as to throw away the colonies. This would be a degree of humiliation not yet to be borne. The tone of the English Statesmen is such as to alienate the minds of the colonists, and if persisted in, will eventually force them to a new state of things.

R. BENSON, every person knows, keeps a small huckster shop on Hunter street where he disposes of his commodities, especially Temperance Ale alias Strong Beer, which he has no right to do as he has no license for that purpose; at his trial on Tuesday last, before A. S. Fraser, J. P., he (R.) thought the Justice might as well fine him for selling bread, as it was fermented the same as beer. The case was adjourned until half-past ten this morning, when Mr. Benson will get his reward, viz: be fined $50, or go up thirty days to Norton Palace.

A WARNING VOICE.—On Friday evening some boys got on one of the cribs some place up the river. Just above Benson's dam the men found that they could not manage it safely over, and were forced to leave. The boys, however, were not able to get off quick enough and had to remain on a little further. Fortunately they managed to get off on a pier just above the dam, and were forced to remain there all night. The boys names were Nesbit and Haslehurst. We trust this will be a warning to them in future, as well as to others.

THE GREAT MUSICAL CONVENTION AT BOWMANVILLE ON THE QUEEN'S BIRTH DAY.—Extensive preparations are being made for a Musical Convention on a grand scale at Bowmanville on the 24th. About 1000 singers are expected to join in the rehearsal The Grand Trunk will charge only one fare —or half price—on the occasion. A great treat may be expected by the lovers of music; and, no doubt, an immense attendance will be present.

A MAN DROWNED.—We are informed that, on Saturday morning last, a man was washed off at Strickland's dam, and drowned. We did not hear his name. He was from the neighborhood of Quebec, according to our informant.

A large number of officers and soldiers retiring from the American army, the Globe says, are about to establish a settlement at the head waters of the yellow stone River, not far from the North-west boundry.

PERSONAL.—In last Gazette, we find that our gallant townsman, Captain Kennedy, has received a certificate from the Board of Military Officers assembled at Toronto.

TOWN COUNCIL.

MONDAY, May 15th, 1865.

Present:—Messrs. Burnham, Chamberlin, Leonard, Chambers, McNaughton, Ormond, Helm, Stevenson, Whyte, Lawson and Tools.

The Minutes of the last meeting were read over and confirmed.

On motion of Mr. Ormond, seconded by Mr. Whyte, Mr. McVaughton was called to the chair.

A petition from R. O. Helm; asking a grant from the Council of $25 for the Juvenile Fire Company, was read and referred to the Fire Committee.

A petition from Thos. Poole and others, complaining of a nuisance of abandoned men and women, collecting on the sidewalk at the corner of Charlotte street, and asking the Council to take steps to abate it, was read and the Chief Constable ordered to attend to the matter.

A petition was read from Mrs. Lowry, asking for assistance and received.

A petition from Charles Rubidge and others, was read, asking the Council to drain off some water lying near Aylmer street, between King and Sherbrook street. The petition was referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

An opinion from Charles A. Weller, Esq., as to the vacancy of the Mayor's Office, and the duty of the Clerk and the Council in relation thereto, was read and received.

Several accounts were referred to the Finance Committee.

Moved by Mr. Stevenson and seconded by Mr. Lawson,—That Mr. Arnot be directed to purchase a keg of suitable nails at the cheapest place and nail down and repair the sidewalks where necessary, and if needed to get a person to assist him, and procure what plank and scantling are necessary, not to exceed 2,000 feet,—Carried.

The Council, on motion of Mr. Burnham, seconded by Mr. Stevenson, adjourned for one week, at 7½ p. m.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

Ashburnham, May 15.

The Council met as a Court of Revision at 12 o'clock noon. Present the Reeve and Messrs. Bennett and Lutgate.

John McAuliff appealed as being assessed too high, and for too much land. Assessment was not altered.

Timothy Sullivan appealed as assessed too high, compared with those near him he was considered low, assessment not altered.

Cornelius McAuliffe, appealed,—Assessed too high; but he did not appear.

John Cranley appealed to have one lot taken off his assessment, it not being his nor occupied by him,—Granted.

George Story appealed against being taxed for a dog, saying he now had none,—Not entertained.

This was all that was before the Court, being the fewest number of appeals that has been against the Village assessment for several years, at least.

ROWDYISM IN WARSAW.

Last night (i. e., Sunday night) the main Street was, in many places, blockaded, with logs, lumber, and debris; some of the upper windows of T. Choat's store, over the Post Office smashed in with stones, and sundry other damages done.

On removing the debris from the street this morning, among it was picked up by Stephen Pawny, near his house a leather pocket book containing a letter addressed Daniel Collins, Campbellford, a note of $15 in favor of William Gardonier; an envelope stamped Peterboro, March 27, and Warsaw, March 29, addressed W. H. Gardonier; all of which is in Mr. Payne's hands awaiting identification by its owner. It is thought a good remedy for such outrages would be to pay due respect to the Sabbath, and the Prohibitory Liquor Law.

WARSAW.

Warsaw, Monday 15th May, 1865.

COURT OF CHANCERY.—Vice Chancellor Mowat will hold the first sitting of a Court of Chancery in this County, on the 26th instant, in this Town. Several cases, we understand, will be heard.

The Review says that Councillors Ormond and Chamberlen had "evidently arranged before hand that a quorum should not be present" last Monday night—as these two "hastily retired" at the approach of the appointed hour."

MASQUERADE,—The adjourned meeting for the purpose of making the final arrangements for celebrating the Queen's Birthday with a Masquerade Procession, will be held in the Fireman's Hall, to-morrow evening at half-past eight o'clock.

A NEW WAY OF SHIPPING LUMBER.—Some of our manufacturers have shipped a considerable quantity of lumber on square timber cribs that were going down the river; to be left at the head of Rice Lake and taken thence by Rail to Cobourg.

Covert & Fowler at their Dirty work again!

These worthies, not content with having plundered our Railway of everything moveable, and by the tacit lying lulled our people asleep whilst they were doing it, seem determined to prevent our obtaining a particle of the Peterboro' trade, for all time to come.

Mr. Dainty had, as he thought, made arrangements for obtaining both the Butts on Rice Lake, for the purpose of bringing such lumber as offered, to Cobourg, by way of Harwood. But the above pair of Railway sharpers went to Mr. Clinton, the Assignee of Powell's estate, and chartered his boat for the season, so that Mr. Dainty should not have it. Consequently, we are left with only one boat to do the work. That, however, by running day and night, will answer the purpose, and Covert & Co., will be baulked of their prey.

Our road to Harwood is being rapidly put in running order, under the able superintendence of our popular friend Mr. Barber, and will probably commence bringing in the lumber by the middle of next week.

The artful dodgers, C. & F., have, by their attempt at monopolizing the Peterboro' trade exasperated that whole town against them.—Cobourg Sentinel.

A SAD CATASTROPHE.—A man named Fitzmaurice was accidentally killed on the Railroad near Grafton Station, in attempting to cross the track while the night Express was passing down. The unfortunate man presented a frightful appearance, his head having been completely severed from his body. News of the accident was immediately conveyed to his father-in-law, who lived but a short distance from the scene of the horrid affair, and when the father-in-law arrived and saw the mangled body of his son-in-law, he dropped dead on the spot. It is said that the old man was suffering from heart disease, but of this nothing certain is known. Both Fitzmaurice and Sheehy were married, and each leaves a wife and family to mourn their awful fate. Fitzmaurice had worked on the "section" in that locality for many years, and was a sober industrious man.—Cobourg Sentinel.

A post-mortem examination of Booth's body showed that one leg had been broken, the bone protruding and the leg mortifying, facts hostile to the supposition that he intended or could have made any resistance. The body of the murderer is now reported to have been loaded with irons and cast into the Potomac during the night.

AMERICAN NEWS.

SUCCESS CLAIMED FOR THE MEXICAN REPUBLICANS.

NORTH CAROLINA AS REBELLIOUS AS EVER.

DISTURBANCES WITH THE BLACKS AT LYNCHBURGH.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The Herald's City of Mexico correspondent furnishes some important intelligence. The news of the national triumph in this country has afforded vast encouragement to the adherents of President Juarez; and his cause a short time ago was thought to be almost hopeless is now rapidly recovering ground. A number of victories over the Imperialists have recently been gained—a new spirit appears to be infused into the republican armies. The report of the capture of Durango at Saltillo and Monterey is confirmed, and there were rumours that they had also taken Matamoras. These events restore nearly the whole of Northern Mexico to be authority of Juarez. Several other republican successes had been achieved.

The United States ex-senator, G. Wm. Ind returned to Mexico from France with important instructions it was reported relative to Louis Napoleon's schemes in Sonora and Saltillo.

The Herald's Richmond correspondence dated the 11th says, that although it was expected that there would be a grand review of Sherman's army on its passage through Richmond, none took place owing to the bad feelings between Gens Sherman and Halleck, generated it is understood, by the proceedings of the latter in countermanding the orders of the former to his subordinates, during the truce with Joe Johnston.

The Herald's Nassau correspondent details a visit to the Confederate ram Stonewall When the officers heard of the surrender of Lee and Johnston they admitted that their vessel had been brought out too late.

A special dispatch to the New York Times dated Washington, May 12th, says the Mexican emigration business here attracts little or no attention.

President Johnson and several members of the cabinet, visited Secretary Seward to-day. The Secretary boasts to be at his office next week.

Government to-day paid to the Central Pacific railway company, four and a half million dollars, being the first instalment due on the completion of the first section of thirty miles. Another section will soon be completed

The navy department has made arrangements to give the Stonewall a warm reception, if she attempts operations on our coast. It is believed here that her commander will abandon the enterprize, now that the rebellion has collapsed.

The Tribune's Raleigh correspondent says that the people of North Carolina are as rebellious as ever, indeed are more haughty, reacting, unsubdued, and if possible more devilish than they ever were.

A special despatch to the New York Tribune, dated Washington, May 12th, says that Gen. Sherman refused to see Gen. Halleck, when he called on him, though the latter called to apologise for the language he had used in his despatches to Mr. Stanton. Gen Sherman has heretofore been about the oldest friend and defender Halleck had among the officers of the army.

Gen. Sherman telegraphs that he will remain with his troops and march with them to Alexandria.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The Chronicle speaking of the court engaged in the trial of the assassination conspirators says:—

Yesterday the evidence was of no much importance as to establish convincingly the propriety of withholding part of the evidence. The lives of some of the witnesses depend upon this regulation, and we feel free to say that none were more conscious of its necessity than the witnesses themselves, most of whom are honorable, intelligent and patriotic citizens.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The steamer Liberty brings Havanah dates of the 8th instant, and Vera Cruz of the 2nd, which confirm the reported capture of Alvillo and Monterey by the liberals. It is re orted that Juarez would establish his capital at Monterey.

Maximilian, on reaching Orizaba, heard of the fall of Richmond and of the capitulation of Lee, who en op he hastened back to Mexico and despatched his chief of the Cabinet, Mr. Eloin, to the United States, who arrived at Havanah id time to take the Cornica. There are various reports as to the character of his mission

ALBANY, May 13.—A break is reported in the Erie canal at Amity Springs, about midway between the Cohoes and Schenectady. A portion of the canal bank has slid into the Mohawk river. No boats have reached the Hudson from the canal since yesterday afternoon.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—A special despatch to the Tribune says that most of Crook's cavalry have gone to Lynchburgh, where it is said disturbances have occurred among the black and white people. There are various rumors concerning the origin of the trouble, some says the whites are the aggressors and others that the blacks commenced hostilities with arms picked up by them on the late battle-field.

CAPTURE OF JEFF. DAVIS IN GEORGIA.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, May 14.

To Major-Gen. Dix:—

The following details of the capture of Jeff Davis while attempting to make his escape in his wife's clothes have been received from Major-Gen. Wilson.

To Hon. E. M. Stanton:—

The following dispatch announcing the capture of Jeff. Davis has just been handed me by Col. Mentz, commanding the 2nd division:—

HEADQUARTERS OF THE 4TH MICHIGAN CAVALRY,
CUMBERLANDSVILLE, GA., May 11th.—To Captain T. W. Scott, A. G. 2nd Division:—Sir,—I have the honour to report that at daylight yesterday, at Irwinsville, I surprised and captured Jeff. Davis and family, together with his wife's sister and mother; his Postmaster, General Regan; his private secretary, Col. Harrison; Col. Johnson, aide de camp on Davis, staff; Col. Morris Lubbeck and Lieut Hathaway, and also several important names, and a train of five waggons and three ambulances, making a most perfect success. Had not a most painful mistake occurred, by which the 4th Michigan and 1st Wisconsin came in conflict we could have done better. This mistake cost us two killed, and Lieut. Bawle wounded through the arm, in the 4th Michigan; and four men wounded in the 1st Wisconsin. This occurred just at daylight, after we had captured the camp. By the advance of the 1st Wisconsin they were mistaken for the enemy.

I have the honour, etc.,
(Signed) B. D. PRITCHARD,
Lt. Col. 4th Mich. Cavalry.

MACON, Ga., 9:50 a. m., May 13.

To Hon. E. M. Stanton:

Lieut. Colonel Hardee, commanding the 1st Wisconsin, has just arrived from Irwinsville. He struck the trail of Davis at Dublin, Laurens county, on the evening of the 7th, and followed him closely night and day through the pine wilderness of Alligator Creek and Green swamp via Cumberlandsville to Irwinsville.

At Cumberlandsville, Col. Hardee met Col. Pritchard, with 150 picked men and horses of the 4th Michigan. Hardee followed the trail directly south, while Pritchard, having fresher horses, pushed down the Ocmulgee towards Hopewell, and thence by Hause Creek to Irwinsville, arriving there at midnight on the 9th.

The most certain and speedy remedy ever discovered for all diseases of the Chest and Lungs, Coughs, Cold's, Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult Breathing, Sore Throat &c., &c.

THESE Wafers give the most instantaneous and perfect relief, when perseverd with according to directions never fail to effect a rapid and lasting cure. Thousands have been restored to perfect health, who have tried other means in vain. To all classes and all constitutions they are a blessing and cure—none need despair, no matter how long the disease may have existed, or how severe it may be, provided the organic structure of the vital organs is not hopelessly decayed. Every one afflicted should give them an impartial trial.

TO VOCALISTS AND PUBLIC SPEAKERS.

these Wafers are peculiarly valuable, they will in one day remove the most severe occasional hoarseness and their regular use for a few days, will, at all times, increase the power and inflexibility of the voice, greatly improving its tone, compass, and clearness, of which purpose they are regularly used by many Professional Vocalists.

The Great English Remedy!

SIR JAMES CLARKE'S

CELEBRATED FEMALE PILLS,

Prepared from a Prescription of Sir James Clarke, M. D., Physician Extraordinary to the Queen.

This well-known Medicine is no imposition, but a sure and safe remedy, for Female Difficulties and Obstruction from any cause whatever; and although a powerful remedy, it contains nothing hurtful to the constitution. To married ladies it is peculiarly suited. It will in a short time bring on the monthly period with regularity.

In all cases of nervous and spinal affections, pain in the back and limbs, heaviness, fatigue on slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, lowness of spirits, hysterics, sick headache, whites, and all the painful diseases occasioned by a disordered system, these Pills will effect a cure when all other means have failed.

☞ These Pills have never been known to fail, where the directions on the second page of the Pamphlet are well observed.

For full particulars, get a pamphlet, free, of the Agent.

N. B. $1 and six postage stamps enclosed to any authorised Agent will ensure a bottle, containing Pills, by return mail.

PIANO-FORTES

DRIGGS' NEW PATENT.

ARE THE ONLY INSTRUMENTS constructed on a truly scientific principle. That have greater strength, and will remain longer in tune than any other Piano. The construction is simple and natural, all the extraneous matter in the body of the instrument is dispensed with; the sound boards are merely two arched planks of thin wood, like the front and back of a violin; the strings are attached to a strong iron frame, which is separate and entirely independent of the case, thereby dispensing with the old heavy form of stringing by substituting straight bridges, preserving at the same time The Over Strung Bass, of which Mr Driggs is the inventor. By these improvements we gain much more vibratory power, at the same time preserving all its purity and richness of tone.

They have received the highest testimonials from the Press, and all the principal artists in the country, among which are:

Harry Sanderson,	L. M. Gottschalk,
Max Maretzek.	S. Thalberg.
Theodore Eisfield,	Wm. Mason,
Herman Wolfenhaupt,	A. Barili
Francis H. Brown,	M. Strackosch,
Wm. Henry Fry.	Charles Fradel

Mr. SIGESMUND THALBERG, the great pianist, says:—I have examined your new Piano-fortes and I cordially approve of its system of construction. Its principle, by which great increase of vibratory power is obtained, being very simple and perfectly philosophical. The tone is grand and noble; it has great capacity for sustaining the sound or singing, and its volume of tone or power I have never heard excelled in depth, purity and sympathetic sweetness.

Wm. HENRY FRY, late musical critic of the N. Y. Tribune says:—I have examined your newly invented Piano-Fortes. They merit all the praise given to them by Messrs. Thalberg, Gottschalk, Strackosch, Mason and others. As regards the structure, they are original and philosophical; in purity, volume, and continuity of tone; in vocal verisimilitude, that crowning excellence which ensures the pianists to "sing" on the instrument. Your Pianos deserve the highest rank. Your invention, in my opinion, is destined to work radical changes in the manufacture of Pianos throughout the world.

From the N. Y. Herald, Sept. 5.—Upon a careful examination of Driggs Piano-Forte, we find the results obtained are a very fine singing tone, great purity and brilliancy throughout the entire instrument, not often found in Pianos constructed upon the old plan.

The N. Y. Times, July 12, says:—We have now an instrument without an equal. It can sing with a smoothe delicacy, perfectly unattainable on any other instrument; an ordinary player obtains with no exertion, the fullness of a Grand Piano Forte and they must speedily supercede the old styles.

GENTLEMEN:—Having thoroughly examined and tested the Piano Fortes invented and patented by Mr. S. P. Driggs, I am of the opinion that the tone resulting from his improvements, as exhibited in the instruments under examination, in point of richness, depth and brilliancy, equals that of the best Grand Piano-Fortes, and excells them in pure, musical and actual tone, power thus approximating closer to what I consider perfection in the instrument than has yet been achieved by any other system of manufacture.

Yours respectfully,
L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

MELODEON

AND

COTTAGE ORGAN EMPORIUM,

PETERBORO, C.W.

Estey's Perfect Melodeon

AND

COTTAGE ORGAN.

ESTABLISHED 1854.

FORMERLY ESTEY & GREEN.

The only Manufactory in this Country of the Perfect Melodeon and Cottage Organ with Patent Base Damper, Patent Harmonic Attachment, and Patent Manual Sub-Base.

These Admirable Instruments have won their way to public confidence purely on their merits, and not by force of extensive advertising and puffs based recommendations. With our increased facilities for manufacture, we are still unable to meet the extraordinary demand made upon us; but we hope soon to be able to fill all orders promptly.

Some of the points of superiority claimed for our Instruments, are these:—

1st.—Smooth, steady and pipe-like quality of tone.

2nd.—Great delicacy of touch and promptness of action; producing, when desired, a low, sweet, flute-like tone, unequalled by any other instrument of the class.

3d.—The Patent Base Damper, which enables the performer to swell the treble without increasing the volume of the bass; or, by drawing the stop, to swell the notes by the action of the foot.

4th.—The Patent Harmonic Attachment. An ingenious octave coupler, which doubles the power of the instrument without increasing its size or the number of reeds.

5th.—The Patent Manual Sub-Base, which are played with the ordinary keys and controlled by a stop. This new and valuable invention requires no extra room and serves as a substitute for the Pedal Base, and can be used by an ordinary performer.

6th.—The Knee-Stop, in the Cottage Organ, which swells or diminishes the tone by a slight movement of the left knee, without interfering with the action of the feet,—having this advantage over the Automatic Swell that the volume of tone may be readily increased without extraordinary effort, and diminished without waiting for the change in the actions of the bellows.

Our recently constructed Cottage Organ, without the attachments, is unsurpassed by any Reed Organ or Harmonium of the size; but, with the Harmonic Attachment and Manual sub-base, it is pronounced by competent judges to be far superior to any other instrument of the class in the world. Its power, sweetness, and variety of tone, simplicity of construction and ease of management, recommend it to every one as being all that is claimed for it, both for the parlor and the church.

The Harmonic Organ, for Churches and Public Halls, has a fine, powerful Pedal Base, with Independent reeds; and, with the Harmonic Attachment, is believed to be the most powerful Reed Organ made, being nearly equal to a pipe organ of three times its cost.

All our Instruments are made in the most thorough manner, and warranted in every respect

JOS. R. WALTON,
Agent.

Peterborough, Jan. 1865. 4

Rev. A. C. Rose, of Troy, N.Y. says:—These give the value of five Melodeons in one. The tone of touch and promptness of action are unrivalled. It can be placed with all the sweetness of the lute or Æolian harp, and changed in an instant to its full power, nearly equal to a twelve stop organ.

All orders addressed to the undersigned will receive prompt attention.

JOSEPH R. WALTON, Peterboro.

TESTIMONIALS.

JAMES BROWN, Esq., M. D.

Peterboro, October 20th, 1864.

I am happy to inform you that after the most perseverting and testing trial for some weeks of the Cottage and Parlor Organ, we like it better every day. It is remarkable for variety of tone and power, and several of the best judges here say it is unequalled by any instrument of the kind (with double reed) they have ever heard. You can so control and command all its parts, as to pass easily and rapidly from the softest tones of the Harp, Lute or Piano, to the rich full swell of a large Organ. It is easily played by child or adult, and is already a very great favorite with us. Its compact structure, ingenious combination of power with the new and beautiful Harmonic Attachment and Manual Sub-base are greatly admired and are highly creditable to the maker, Estey, of Vermont. I think it is peculiarly adapted for Church Music.

Rev. F. CROWLE, A. M. &c.

Sheridan Villa Seminary, Peterboro, Dec. 1864.

We are delighted with the Cottage Organ with Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-bass. We prefer it to any instrument of the kind we have ever seen; its tone, sweet and harmonious in the parlor, possesses sufficient power for a church.

Rev. J. C. SLATER

Wesleyan Parsonage, Millbrook, Jan. 1865.

I have much pleasure in testifying my entire satisfaction of the Cabinet Organ, purchased from you, as an instrument possessing superior qualities in sweetness, variety and strength, to anything of the kind I have ever seen. Two experienced musicians who have examined it, concur with me in recommending it as a perfect first-class instrument adapted to Church or Parlor.

Geo. A. Notman, M. D., Recording Steward of the Wesleyan Church, Omemee.

Omemee, July, 1864.

In reply to your inquiries as to the Harmonic Organ, purchased from you for our church, we have to express our highest satisfaction: in purity and sweetness of tone as well as volume of sound, it is all that can be reasonably expected.

Peterborough, Dec. 20th, 1864.

Mr. J. R. WALTON.—During examined and played upon the Parlor Organs sold by you, and Manufactured by Mr. Estey. I have great pleasure in pronouncing them a first class instrument. The Harmonic attachment and manual Sub-base being a very great improvement and well worthy the patronage of the Musical public. Yours truly,

A. T. HEATHFIELD,
Organist of St. John's Church,
Peterborough.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of six thousand dollars for the purpose therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $6000 in constructing, making and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County

And whereas to carry into effect the said resolved object it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $6000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned

And whereas it will require the sum of $600 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the Gross and Investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, as any part thereof, according to the last revised assessment roll of the said Municipality, being for the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, is the sum of $2,796,283.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of $6000 and interest, as aforesaid after mentioned, it will require a special rate of thirty-one mills and [illegible] in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $6000, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes aforesaid and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than $100 each; and the said debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden and counter-signed by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable in 10 years at the farthest from the day hereinafter mentioned for this by-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first days of April and the first day of October in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon, an equal special rate of thirty-one mills in the dollar all in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the 24th day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at the Council Chamber in the Court House, in the said County, on Thursday, the 22nd day of June, 1865, at the hour of 11 of the clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

DRIVING HOME THE COWS.

Out of the clover and blue-eyed grass
He turned them into the river lane;
One after another he let them pass,
Then fastened the meadow bars again.

Under the willows and over the hill,
He patiently followed their sober pace;
The merry whistle for once was still,
And something shadowed the sunny face.

Only a boy! and his father had said
He never could let his youngest go;
Two already were lying dead
Under the feet of the trampling foe.

But after the evening work was done,
And frogs were loud in the meadow-swamp
Over his shoulder he slung his gun
And stealthily followed the footpath damp.

Across the clover and through the wheat,
With resolute heart and purpose grim,
Though cold was the dew on his hurrying feet,
And the blind bat's flitting startled him.

Thrice since then had the lanes been white,
And the orchards sweet with apple bloom;
And now when the cows came back at night,
The feeble father drove them home.

For news had come to the lonely farm
That there were lying where two had lain;
And the old man's trembling, palsied arm
Could never lean on a son's again.

The summer day grew cool and late,
He went for the cows when the work was done;
But down the lane, as he opened the gate,
He saw them coming one by one—

Brindle, Ebony, Speckle, and Bess,
Shaking their horns in the evening wind;
Cropping the buttercups out of the grass—
But who was it following closely behind?

Loosely swung in the idle air
The empty sleeve of army blue;
And worn and pale, from the crisping hair
Looked out a face that the father knew.

For Southern prisons will sometimes yawn,
And yield their dead unto life again;
And the day that comes with a cloudy dawn
In golden glory at last may wane.

The great tears sprang to their meeting eyes,
For the heart must speak when the lips are dumb;
And under the silent evening skies,
Together they followed the cattle home.

Work in the Orchard and Nursery.

Trees at planting time excite our liveliest sympathies, for between the hard usage they get in being taken up in the nursery and the neglect they receive at the hands of many planters, they often have a hard struggle for existence. At the ordinary prices for trees, we can hardly expect of the nurserymen more than ordinary care, and under the best circumstances a tree comes out of the ground with much fewer roots than it had while it stood in the nursery row. This root pruning would not be of so much consequence if the majority of the people did not set it out just as it is received and leave it to survive or perish. When it is considered that in the growing tree the absorbing surface of the roots is in exact relation to the evaporating surface of leaves, it will be seen that, when in taking trees up we cut a part of the roots, this balance is destroyed. When such trees are planted out, the roots are unable to supply the demand of the leaves produced from the numerous buds upon the branches. The consequence is, each bud puts out a few leaves, and though the tree may retain its vitality through the season, no vigorous growth is made, and it is often some years before the tree recovers from the shock of removal. While we do not mean to say that nurserymen never send out worthless stock, we believe that much of the poor growth of young orchards is due to want of care and knowledge on the part of the planter. Those who buy trees are apt to look more to that which is above ground than to that which goes below the surface, and are more taken with quantity of branches than quantity and quality of roots. It is difficult to convince such persons that the tree will be all the better at the end of the season if it is made to show less of branches at planting time. Get all the roots possible from the nurserymen, cut off all the bruised ones and smoothly cut the ends of those severed in taking up. Then after removing any useless branches, cut back all of last year's growth, leaving only one-half to one-third. It will come hard to do this, but it is necessary to get a good growth. In cutting, have reference to the future shape of the tree, and cut to a bud pointing in the direction where a branch will be most desirable. Don't buy cheap trees; it is poor economy to save a few dollars on an orchard by getting poorly grown trees to start with. Don't believe the large stories told of new varieties by glib-tongued tree peddlers who show a collection of highly colored plates and talk fruits wisely, though they may have never planted a tree in their lives.

Cherry Trees.—Plant early if the soil is open, and attend to any grafting the last of the month (April) or early in next month. The cions should be freshly cut.

Cuttings from currants and shrubs, started thus, must be made before the buds start. Plant out those made last autumn as early as a place can be prepared.

Girdled Trees.—These may often be saved by the use of a plaster of cow dung and clay or loam bound on with a cloth. Put on a plenty to retain moisture.

Grafting.—Root grafting should be got out of the way as soon as possible, and preparations made for grafting trees in the ground. Cut cions.

Insects.—If any of the twigs appear as if they had a swollen place upon them, an examination will probably show that the apparent swelling is a cluster of the eggs of the tent caterpillar. This insect glues its eggs to the twigs, in a broad ring. If these are found, remove at any cost of time and trouble.

Manure.—Surface manuring is now practised by our best orchardists. The manure may be carted out and applied while the ground is frozen.

Orchards.—Wash the trees, if the weather is suitable. If pruning must be done before summer, do it now. The weight of authority is in favor of summer pruning.

Planting.—The trees should have been ordered by this time, but if postponed until now, do it at once. In ordering apple trees it is well to recollect the value of sweet varieties as food for stock. Draining will always pay in the orchard, and the drains should be made before planting. The land may be staked out and the holes made at any time when the weather is mild enough Seeds.—Order tree seeds for planting this spring. Those kept over winter in boxes of earth should not be sown until the soil is warm.

Stocks.—Those budded last year may be cut back to within three inches of the bud where the bud remains bright and appears to have united or "taken."

Transplanting of all hardy shrubs and trees may be done as soon as the soil is in working order.

FRUIT GARDEN.

The advantages of having the fruit garden seperate from the kitchen garden have been often insisted upon. Wherever there is sufficient space, the trees and shrubs should have a place to themselves, and not be subject to have their roots disturbed by the frequent spading necessary to prepare the ground for vegetables. Under this head we notice shrubs and dwarf trees; standard trees are included in the directions for the orchard.

Planting may be commenced as soon as frost is well out. The soil of the fruit garden should be well drained, enriched and deeply spaded or plowed.

Blackberries.—Set the improved kind 6 feet apart each way cutting back the canes to 6 inches.

Currants.—Prune, and make cutting's of last year's wood. Transplant already rooted plants.

Dwarf Trees.—The remarks upon cutting back at the time of planting, apply with even more force to dwarfs. Now is a good time to commence to form dwarf pyramids.

Gooseberries.—Treat as currants. The Houghton and American seedling are the only reliable sorts.

Grapes.—If the vines were left unpruned last autumn, attend to them early. Those which at the pruning had extra buds left on the canes may now be cut back to the bud intended to grow. Plant new vines. There is scarcely a yard or garden that has not room for from one to a dozen vines which will fill up spaces now unoccupied. Recollect that a vine may be grown to a single stake, or may be made to spread over a large space.

Raspberries.—Do not uncover too soon. Plant new vines, especially the Black Caps, which are prolific and hardy, and good for home use or market.

Strawberries.—Prepare good ground for new beds in time for planting. Use old manure; spade deeply.

Sally Lunn.—Six cups of light dough one half cup milk, one half cup butter, two eggs, and two spoonfuls of white sugar; add flour enough to make it the consistency of thick batter, mix well, and pour in greased cake pans; set them set in a warm place one-half hour, and bake by a slow fire.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!

CAN BE FOUND IN

Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF

Holloway's Ointment.

The history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHENEVER, and in WHATEVER shape internal disease exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; Holloway's Invigorating Pills have become the acknowledged remedy of all nations. Their ascribing is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the KING OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and re-tone the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs FROM THE BLOOD ITSELF, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistible curative. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and acitivity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, paroxysmal precussion, nervous tremors, hot flushes, qualms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venral Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious

. Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 63 cents, and $1 40 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33

See what the most popular and widely circulated periodicals say of our Establishment:

From the "Dispatch" of February 25, 1865.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the announcement of Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, Silver Ware, and Fancy Goods, in our advertising columns. We are personally acquainted with the members of this firm and know them to be gentlemen of sterling worthand integrity. Their stock of goods, for variety and extent, we have scarcely seen paralleled.

From the "Mirror of Fashion," March 1, 1865.

Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, etc., opened on the 15th ult., and we venture to say that no finer display of goods was ever exhibited by any establishment in this city. The ladies thronged their bazaar almost to suffocation, although the streets were rendered nearly impassable by the melted snow and slush. We predict for them a wonderful success.

From the "Ledger," February 28, 1865.

Our lady friends should visit the extensive establishment of Messrs. Devaugh & Co., No. 15 Maiden Lane, if they wish to indulge themselves with a sight which they will long remember. Such a profusion of elegant Watches, Chains, Rings, Earrings, and, in short, of Jewelry of every name, kind and description, we never before witnessed. Their silver and plated ware is superb and almost casts into the shade the other splendid establishments which have long been the boast of our city. It is estimated that their stock is worth not less than one million of dollars.

How You Can Get a Prize.

Send Twenty-Five Cents to us, and as soon as we receive it we will mail you a Certificate, showing what you are entitled to. If the article or articles please you, send back the Certificate and One Dollar and we will forward you the article, no matter how costly it may be. If the article is not what you wish, state, when you send the Certificate and dollar, what other article of the same value you prefer and we will send it. If you wish more than one Certificate send us $1 and we will send five; for $2, eleven; for $3, thirty; for $10, sixty; for $15, one hundred.

Agents are wanted in the Army and in every place. We have an immense stock of goods to dispose of, and need a large number of Agents. Our terms to Agents are very liberal and some even of our Lady Agents are making from $5 to $20 a day. We give Agents 30 per cent. on all Certificates they sell provided they remit not less than $1 for eight.

Write your name and address distinctly and say only what is necessary.

THE LIGHTHOUSE.

Three months at sea and one on shore;
Three months at sea—yet not afloat;
Around our home the breakers roar,
Yet own we neither ship nor boat.
Rock-based, amid the swirl of foam,
The lighthouse stands—it is our home.

Three months at sea—a dreary time—
The ship goes gaily on its way;
Now and again a mellow chime
Comes to us through the dash of spray.
The ship will reach the nether zone
While we still pace the lighthouse lone.

While we still pace and hear the sound
That comes from yon far village spire,
Where wife and children gather round,
The cheery board the crackling fire;
Or seaward gaze, at dead of night,
To watch our slow, revolving light.

The skipper, through the midnight haze,
Marks well its gleam, and feels its worth.
"God's blessing on the light!" he says,
But gives it a still wider berth.
And so it shines from sun to sun,
A thing to bless, and yet to shun.

And when the tempests howl and rave,
And driving clouds shut out the day,
And o'er the lantern top the wave
Flies skyward into feathered spray,
We laugh, my comrades twain and I,
To feel ourselves so warm and dry.

The lighthouse quivers to its base,
Yet snug within we know no fears;
We know its stones could fearless face
Still stouter gales in by-gone years.
Thank God, our lot is not amiss,
There's many a life far worse than this.

Literature.

A LIFE'S HATRED.

'I have promised to aid you Munson, in all your matters, because you have done me good service. Still I would like to know the reason of your deadly enmity towards Meredith. As this is a matter which may lead us to the scaffold, I have no desire to enter into the business blindfold.'

The speaker and the person whom he addressed were seated opposite to each other at a table in a saloon on the east side of New York. They had bottles and glasses before them, and the remains of a supper was on the table. He was a man of about thirty years of age. He was tall and elegantly proportioned, and his person gave tokens of great strength. He was dark complexioned, had black eyes, and had the earliest and glossiest of black hair, and wore a heavy mou tache. His apparel, as regards style and quality, were neatness itself. He would be called a very handsome man, were it not for the sinister expression of his eyes, which were constantly in motion never resting for any length of time upon any single object, as if their owner distrusted every one.

His companion was about five years younger, and slightly built. He was very pale, and the dark blue circles round his eyes told of late hours and constant dissipation. He was dressed well but carelessly.

'Your request was unnecessary, Hooker,' replied Munson, 'for I intend to tell you everything before we made the slightest move towards accomplishing our object. Listen, Harry Meredith and myself were school fellows; he was the teacher's pet, while I, who was of a quick, fiery temperament, and ready to take offence at every slight, was visited with continual tokens of the masters displeasure. This created the germ of hatred within my breast, and it has been steadily increasing ever since. I used to quarrel with Meredith frequently, but he put on an appearance of magnanimity and refused to pay any attention to me.

'People who noticed his conduct towards me advised him to abstain him his attempts to conciliate my favour, but he paid no regard to their admonitions and persisted in his attempts to ingratiate himself with me; but I treated all his advances with contempt and at last he desisted. While we were at school Meredith's parents died and he was left a princely fortune, which he is now enjoying.

'After I was placed as a clerk in a bank, the president of which was Mr. Thornton I made rapid progress, and was looked upon with favour by the president. One night he gave a grand party, and as a mark of his esteem he extended me an invitation. I went, and the events of that night proved to be the cause of my downfall from the path of honor. At the party I saw Grace Thornton, the daughter of the president. She was the belle of the evening. The beauty of the other ladies present waned at her approach as the light of the rising sun.

'Mr. Thornton presented me to her, and I led her out to waltz O! how my heart leaped within me as I pressed her beautiful form to my throbbing breast. I was giddy with pleasure. The dance was finished and I led her to a sofa. We engaged in conversation, and I became so engrossed that I paid no heed to the passage of time. I was aroused from my dream of happiness by her father presenting a new arrival, who led her away to join in the dance, and I was alone. I found that I was deeply, madly in love with Grace Thornton, the heiress of millions—I, a poor bank clerk, entirely dependent upon my salary for my support.

At the close of the evening, I received an invitation from Grace to call again, which was seconded by her father. With a heart almost bursting with joy I went home and sought my couch. I called again and was received with pleasure. I called again and again, and soon I began to think I was not indifferent to Grace. I was never happy unless I was with Grace.—Suddenly a change came over her I loved. She who had been so kind towards me, received me with coldness. What could it mean? I determined to strike all upon a single cast. I proposed and was refused. I staggered forth from the house like a drunken man. I entered a tavern and sought forgetfulness in the wine cup. This was my first false step.—Though she had refused my offer, I loved Grace still.

Night after night I walked in front of Mr. Thornton's house, trying to catch a glimpse of her I loved. And when I saw her graceful form flit before the windows I was happy. On one of my nocturnal visits I learnt why I had been refused. The lights in the parlor were kept up longer than usual, and I lingered to learn the cause. Time passed on, but still I waited. At length the door opened, and a man and a lady appeared. I recognized them instantly. The man was Meredith, the lady was Grace Thornton. I heard their words at parting, and saw him press his lips upon her brow. Then I understood all. Meredith, whom I had never before seen at the house, had usurped the place which rightfully belonged to me. When I saw his lips touch her forehead my brain seemed to be on fire. I clutched an iron railing to keep myself from falling, then with a furious oath I rushed from the spot.

On—on—I went until I reached the river. Its calm ripples, glittering in the silvery moonlight seemed to invite me to their embrace. I sprang on the string piece of the dock and was about to fling myself into the flood, when I was grasped in a strong embrace and hurled violently to the ground. I struggled violently for a moment, but my puny efforts were of no avail against the powerful arms that clasped me.

Gradually I returned to my senses and became calmer. A sailor, in one of the vessels at the dock, being on deck had noticed my frenzied actions and reached me just in time to prevent my suicide. Sick at heart, I returned home. From that night forth I was an altered man. I, who had been one of the most industrious of clerks now became one of the most careless. I plunged into every species of dissipation. Down, down into the abyss I plunged. My salary as a clerk soon proved to be insufficient to meet my expences, and I embezzled the funds of the bank. My changed appearance and unsteady attention to my business began to attract notice; enquiries were instituted, and large discrepancies were discovered in my account.

Then the crash came. I was arrested and thrown into prison. Mr. Thornton, who had been my warmest friend, now changed to my bitterest enemy. I sent letter after letter to him, begging him to save me from disgrace.—After the first my letters were returned to me unopened. I learned that Meredith was exciting Mr. Thornton to show me no mercy.

My trial came on, and there in the crowded court-room, I beheld Meredith, his face expressing the deepest sorrow. He kept up this mockery during the whole trial. I was convicted and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment. As I was leaving the court-room in charge of the officers, Meredith came up to me with the old expression on his face, and grasping my hand said,—

'Ralph, I am sorry for you."

Maddened by the scoundrel's cool hypocrisy, I shouted 'Liar' and struck him in the face. I could see his eyes flash fire and his whole frame gyrate with rage; and if it had not been for the officers, I believe he would have struck me to his feet.

'I reached my prison and for two long years! I worked like a very slave. I was oftimes tempted to dash out my brains against the walls of my cell. Through an influence that is still unknown to me, a pardon was obtained, and once more I was a free man. Free, but a felon. Can you wonder that I hate Meredith? When I met you a few days ago, I was starving. You wished me to assist you in a robbery and I did so. Now I claim your aid in attaining revenge on Meredith.

'I am what you have said heretofore, said Hooker, I believe that nothing but his life will satisfy you."

'No. I would kill him like a dog.'

'He is rich, you say.'

'Yes, he is rich. We will break into the house, then kill Meredith, and secure a heavy booty. We must be cautious. He keeps six or seven servants, and if they are aroused we may be over powered and secured.'

'He married this Grace Thornton you have spoken of, did he not?

'Yes, but she died a year since in childbirth.'

'Indeed! Well, when shall we call upod Mr. Meredith?'

'As soon as possible, to-night if you will.'

'To-night be it, then. It is now nearly 12 o'clock. I will go home and get my tools and meet you in front of Meredith's house at one. I hardly think anyone will be stirring at that time.'

'Agreed' said Munson, and the two left the saloon.

It is one o'clock, and Harry Meredith is seated in his room writing a letter. He is a tall, powerfully built, fair-haired man, with a shade of sadness over his handsome features. His pen flies over the paper with all the ease peculiar to an accomplished penman. Suddenly his attention is arrested by a slight noise, seemingly on the floor below, and he listens for a moment. Then as if satisfied that it was fancy, he resumes his writing. Again the noise is heard, but now it is just outside the door. There is no doubt now. Some one is in the house and coming stealthily through the hall. Meredith sprang from his chair, overturning it by the movement, and it fell to the floor with a loud crash. He seized a revolver, which was laying on the mantlepiece, and the next moment the door was thrown open and two men rushed in. Two shots were fired as quick as thought. One strikes the wall over Meredith's head, and one of the two intruders falls. The other drawing a long knife springs forward before Meredith has time to fire a second shot, and striking the pistol from his hand, closes with him. A terrible struggle ensues for the possession of the knife, for Meredith has grasped the robber's wrist, so that it was impossible for him to use it. Both are powerful men, and the combat is terrible. At last they fall to the floor and roll over and over in their desperate fight. The servants aroused by the noise of the pistol shots, rush in and secure the robber.

'Curse you! cried Hooker, for he it was, you would no' have foiled me if it had not been for that fool who is lying there. He would not be content to wait till you slept.'

'Some one of you, said Meredith, go and bring an officer to take this villain into custody; and two of you remove this wounded man.'

Two of the servants raised the fallen robber and as they did so, the light struck full upon his face.

'Munson! cried Meredith, what brings you on this deadly errand? I never injured you.'

'It is false! said Munson with a great effort. You have been my bitterest foe through life. You stole the affections of the woman I loved. You are the means of placing a felon's brand upon my brow.'

'Ralph, this is not so, you wrong me. I never knew that you had seen Grace Thornton till after she was mine. I entreated, aye, begged her father to save you from your prison cell But he was inflexible. It was I who obtained your pardon. I would have been your firmest friend through life, if you had not spurned my advances. I liked you, Ralph, as a boy, and despite all that has passed between us, I will allow you and your companion to go free from this house to-night if——'

'I will not accept a favor at your hands. I have hated you as we have known each other, said Munson in a firm tone. I would have killed you like a dog to-night but for your pistol shot; but I will have my revenge yet. Curse you! Curse you!'

The effort was too much. Ralph Munson straightened himself for a moment, and glared at Meredith with eyes like coals of fire, then, with a loud cry, he fell forward on his face, a corpse. The officers now entered and led Hooker away to prison. He was tried and convicted, and is now serving out his term.

Harry Meredith caused Munson to be buried from his own house. Meredith is yet living, idolized by his friends and the poor for his many acts of kindness.

POPULAR SUPERSTITIONS.

THE CHAIR.—Whirling an empty chair indicates that a whipping is in store for the transgressor. [Serves him right. Let him ride the broomstick or the tongs, if he will, but he must not whirl the chair.]

THE CRADLE.—To rock an empty cradle will give baby the belly-ache [We "don't see it," but can imagine a hungry little one sucking an empty glass bottle would soon feel "an aching void."]

SHOPPING.—Ladies, beware! When going out shopping, having closed the door after you, you discover that you have forgotten something you must not turn back or open that door on any account—it would bring you bad luck. Let some one hand you the missing article through the window or bring it at another door. [First, "be sure you're right" before you start, "then go ahead."]

THE CAT.—If you are moving from one house to another, never take a cat with you, or she will surely bring bad luck to your new home, whereas she will add luck to the old house and those who move into it. [Puss supposes that puss knows all the rat and mice holes in the house, but not in the new. Besides, you will probably find a cat already on the premises.]

SHOES AND DISH WATER.—Save the old shoes to throw after the carriage, when any of the family start on a journey; it will insure a safe return. [We should save our old shoes, these hard times, and put them to other use. Leather is leather these days.] Never let your dish-water come to a boil as every buble brings bad luck to the family. [If too hot, it might burn your fingers. Do you see?]

THE LAST LOOK.—Never look after a friend who is leaving you until he is quite out of sight, or you may never see him or her again; but turn your eyes away while he is still visible, in order that he or she may return. [Unless it be one of whom you would say "good riddance," in which case watch him to the last, or, like a bad penny, he will turn up again.]

CHANGING ROOMS.—It is a bad sign if a sick person desires to be removed from one room to another; they are sure to die sometime, if allowed to do so. [Think of the Libby prisoners. Would it endanger their lives, think you?]

OFFICIAL SNUBBED.—A Post Office clerk tells the following.—"A man called at our general delivery one day, when I happened for a moment to be engaged elsewhere in the office. He whistled loudly. I stooped to the window and savagely inquired: "Whose dog are you whistling for?" "One of Uncle Sam's pups," he said, quite composedly. I had nothing farther to say. He evidently curtailed his answer.

A STRIKING CONTRAST.—With all the energy that Romanists have shown in Missionary operations in 300 years, they have not translated the scriptures into any language for the use of the heathen: So you see that at both home and abroad Rome prefers darkness to light.—Scottish Banner.

Our little friend Bobby religiously believes that babies come straight from heaven, by a sort of celestial express. The other day he was called in to see a newly born babe, which lay very still among the flannels. "Poor little thing," said Bobby, 'tired coming so far ma'n be I'

An Albany paper gives the following receipe to kill flies: 'Take a boarding House pie, cut into thin slices and lay it where the insects may have full access to it. In less than fifteen minutes the whole caboodle of them will be dead with the cholic.

A Yankee editor says:—'We don't mind recording the deaths of people without being paid for our trouble, though that is not fair; but panegyrics on the dead must be paid for—we positively cannot send people to heaven for nothing.'

AYRSHIRE COUNTY COURT.

The Learned Tailor and a Case of Cabbage.

Peter Sillars, whose keen eye and intellectual contour might be taken as a living portrait of Scarron, the French satirist, was summoned for the value of a remnant of broad cloth, entrusted to his care. The amount claimed was three shillings; but as the defendant, a very solemn "Ichabod Crane," looking worthy, observed:—"He detested cabbage on principle." It was not so much the value of the thing, but cabbage to his mind was unbearable (laughter). The particulars of the case having been gone into.

Mr. Sillars humorously entered upon his defence. It was true, he admitted, that from time immemorial, tailoring and cabbage had been associated, and remnants of broadcloth the "droits of the opervtive." The intrinsic value of cabbage was little known, (Laughter). He meant real bona fide Cabbage; and no mistake, and—

"Pray Sir," said the learned Judge "confine yourself to the subject." "My Lord" continued Mr. Sillars, "I will cabbage as little time as possible." (Mr. Sillars was evidently "three sheets in the wind,") but permit me to Sir, permit to to—prove to you, Sir, that Cabbage is a great moral teacher (hiccup) a very great moral teacher (roars of laughter). You fellows may laugh, but (hic) I can tell you when I was at Glasgow College I found the benefit of Cabbage, (laughter). My Lord, the Egyptians, according to Atheneus? The learned Judge "Do you owe this money?" Mr. Sillars, "I'll come to that presently" (hic.) "It was an established rule with the Egyptians to eat hard boiled eggs and cabbage, before any other food, to prepare themselves for hard drinking; many (says Atheneus) for the same purpose swallowed the seeds of the cabbage (Laughter). "But did you ever hear My Lord, what the Greek poet Alexis says, but (hic) do you understand Greek My Lord, if you don't (hic) I do. "Yesterday, Dear Sir, I and you drank too much and what's the consequence? A heavy head to tailors and judges—this must be cured. By a strict fast; and I let some friend provide, of Ayrshire mutton, the best not forgetting oysters, and a store of well-boiled cabbage." And then Sir, what does (hic) Eubuius, another poet say? I here translate it:

"Wife bring the cabbage; that I think will cure,

"This heariness, which so affects my head, and yours. If the good proverb holds." Pindar too I (hic) think—

The Judge,—My good man, do stop this torrent and come to the point. (Laughter) You have already—

Defendant—"I will, my Lord. It's Cabbage altogether. The very celebrated Rodian poet, I (hic) forget his name; who flourished in the 2nd year of the 101 Olympiad, and who is cited by Aristotle in his Rhetoric and Ethics, &c., says: (Hic.)

"If," "If first you bathe, then make a hearty meal
Of Cabbage, you will ease the heavy weight
And dissipate the clouds that so obscure
Your aching brain."

Judge,—"To the point man."

Mr. Sillars,—"How impatient you are Sir, but I find this is always the case with your order. And now my lord, said the defendant, in a semi-comic tone, having proved the antiquity of Cabbage, I trust I have done a public good—

Here Mr. Sillars elbow upset a large plated inkstand, [the ebony contents of which were freely dispersed]. I think Sir, (hic)—

The Judge—And so do I think, Sir,—Pay the amount claimed in a month. You had the goods and you must take the consequence. Here Mr. Sillars left the Court somewhat staggered by the Judge's decision. On whom Mr. Sillars observed his quotations "from the illustrious dead had no better effect than water thrown on a dead mouse."—Ayrshire Radical.

A Word to Young Men.

Wishing and sighing, imagining and dreaming of greatness, will not make you great. But cannot a young man command his energies? Read 'Foster on Decision of Character.' That book will tell you what is in your power to accomplish. You must gird your loins and go to work with all the indomitable energy of Napoleon crossing the Alps. It is your duty to make the most of time, talents, and opportunities. Alfred, King of England, though he performed more business than any of his subjects, always found time to study. Franklin, in the midst of his labour, found time to dive into the depths of philosophy, and explore an untrodden path of science. Frederwick the Great, with an empire at his direction, in the midst of war, and on the eve of battle, found time to revel in the charms of philosophy, and feast on the luxuries of science. Napoleon, with Europe at his disposal, with Kings in his ante-chamber, and at the head of thousands of men whose destinies were suspended on his arbitrary pleasure, found time to converse with books. And young men who are confined to business even twelve hours a day, may take an hour and a half of what is left for study, which will amount to two months in the course of a year.—Wirt.

A REASONABLE PLEA.—A judge said to a toper on trial for drunkenness: "Prisoner, you have heard the prosecution for habitual drunkenness, what have you to say in your defence?" "Nothing your honor but habitual thirst."

AN IRISHMAN'S PITY.—When a poor countryman of mine was once bound over to keep the peace towards all Her Majesty's subjects, he left the office exclaiming, 'Well, then, God help the first furreaner I meet with."

FRIENDS.—Josh Billings says of friends, 'I've got mine and manage to keep them by not asking them for anything but advice; you can't ask a man for anything he loves to give more, and costs him less than advice.'

A WESTERN COURTSHIP.

'Heavens and airth, Jemima,' sed marm, 'if there don't cum Josh Summers; an' he's got on a brand new pair of trowsiloons; and smash on me, how slick his hair is; I guess he tuk a whole taller candle to grease it; I swaw to man, if a fly should be let on it he'd fall off an' break his legs.'

'Lize, marm, you never will talk perlite,' sed sester Sake while I tuk a peep out on the winder, and sure enuff there cum Josh up the road.

I seed him turn to our gate, and my heart went pit-a pat, for he'd been uncommon perlite to me of late.

'Sakes alive,' sed marm, 'el he aint cummin here, and our Jemima has gone to fixing her hair, and looks as red as a biled beet.—Miss Jemima Jenkins, I say, what on airth is Josh Summers a cummin her fur.'

Josh was rite in the door, and heard what she sed.

'Heow d'ye do Mrs. Jenkins,' sed he.

'Heow d'ye do, Josh,' sez marm, 'and how is all your folks to hum? Take a cheer, Josh.'

Don't care of I does,' sez Josh. 'Our folks are all kicking around, I bleve; and sick hoss of dad's in a bottle better.'

'Why on airth don't you take his hat,' ses sister Patience, giving me a push, and I started on a run; but as our door wasn't nailed down, and sum of the boards a good deal warped, I stubbed my toe and fell jest as Sake was cummin from the pantry with a bowl of applesass; I ketched at her dress and spilt the sass all over her new red calliker dress. I want's a gwine to give it up so though I was up in less than no time, and snatchin Josh's hat, I run and set it on bare. Sake was awful riled, soo she had to go and put on her indigo blue, and she vowed that she would pay me off.

Well, we got tea ready, and marm she set down rite side o' Josh. I felt awful queer, I kin tell, but I put my hands in my lap under the table and sed nothin, and Jose he dun the same. Dad he asked a blessin (he allus did on Sunday), and then he went to talkin to Josh about hiscraps.

I didn't say nothin, for my heart kept beating so, and my face burnt so, I wished I could got away, but I couldn't do it. Ef the gals hadn't kept a gigling so all the time I shou'd a felt better.

After tea Josh hitched up his cheer to mine and sez in a whisper, 'Kin I stay with you to-night?'

I bong down my head and stuck my finger in my mouth, and sez I, 'Yes.'

Bimeby dad and marm and the gals they went off to bed, and left Josh and me a settin alone.

Wal, we sot and sot, and sed nothin. Josh he whittled a stick, and I bit the corner of my apron.

Bimeby he ses, ses he, 'Jemima,' says he, where do you s'pose I got these trowsers?'

'I dunno,' ses I.

'Guess.'

'I can't ses I.

Wal, I swaped my red steer for storekeeper Bronson's black one, and got them in to bute.'

We didn't say nothin more for a long time (he kept whittlin, and I run a pin through the hem of my apron), when he sed—

'Marm she sot me speckle d hen on thirteen eggs, and how many do you suppose she hitched out?'

'I dunno,' ses I.

'Fourteen, and one was rotten.'

'One chicken rotten?' ses I.

'No I one egg'

'But how cum that to be fourteen chickens from thirteen eggs?'

'Why, she tuk two more arter she went to setting.'

We didn't say nothing again for an hour, and then he starts up all at once and ses he—

'Hang it all, Jemima, you know what I cum here fur, and why dont you say nothing?

'No, I do'

THURSDAY, MAY 25, 1865.

QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

This 46th anniversary of our beloved Queen was duly respected by all classes of our citizens. No Queen or King in the annals of English history had such a hold on the affections of the entire people as Victoria exercises over the minds of even her most distant subjects. All the people delight to honor her. Added to this, Canada has no national holiday of her own; as a consequence, common consent has pitched upon the anniversary of her birth as one for the present,—therefore work was entirely suspended. The hard working Mechanic, and the confined Merchant, and Clerks all forsook the r daily avocations and joined in the festivities of the occasion. At a very early hour in the day, almost at its first tick, the boom of cannon was heard, thundering the glad tidings to those who were snug and cosy in Dream Land, although, no doubt, many were closely in the embrace of morpheus, to hear the peal-tone of Victoria's birthday.

Through the early part of the day the illustrious army of the Prince of Timbuctoo yerhiscayrophilia drew the greatest attention. During the review and marches of this grand army all the other objects of amusement were lost sight of, and certainly this new feature in our holiday amusement was deservedly highly applauded by every one.

The salute and magnanimous Prince deserves credit for the degree of perfection he has exhibited in performing their evolutions. On future occasions this noble army will perhaps no mean part in the grand campaigns on festive occasions. One thing should not have been omitted—three cheers for the Queen, Sovereign, Lord Paramount, and his noble veterans.

The Riflemen and Volunteers were also out, and certainly they are worthy the town of Peterboro, fine looking men, considerably proficient in drill, and exhibiting a soldier-like appearance. It would be invidious to make any distinctions. The three companies are a credit to their Officers.

The Races in connection with the celebration of Her Majesty's Birthday, came off according to announcement, on the Race course on Mr. James Chalmer's grounds just outside the corporation. At about 2 o'clock the judges ascended the stand erected for the occasion.

For the Steeple Chase the following horses were entered:—Garry Owen, owned by Johnston Stewart, entered by Mr. John Simpson; Prince Edward, entered by Mr. Smith German, of Trenton, and Olonabee Maid, entered by Mr. Burns. At about half-past two the word "go" was given and the horses started in splendid style, but it was evident from the start that the race was between Garry Owen and Prince Edward. the Prince took the lead and kept it completely round the course to the winning post, both horses completely distancing the Maid. Owing to an error of judgement or a gross blunder on the part of the rider of the Prince, who, instead of riding up to the scale and getting weighed at once, took on himself to disregard the rules, and got off his horse a considerable distance from the stand, and even neglected to come forward to be weighed. The Judges had no option but to declare Garry Owen the winner of the purse, $50, on the first heat, as both horses had distanced the mare, and the Prince according to the rules had been distanced on account of the conduct of the rider. This was greatly regretted by the spectators as the horses were pretty evenly matched and good sport was anticipated, but every one considered the decision just.

For the Flat Race, "Prince Edward," H. Morgan's horse, "Billy;" George Lipsett's Mare, "Crazy Jane;" James Moffatt's Mare, "White Stockings;" were entered, after six heats which were very closely contested, was won by "Prince Edward." During this race "Billy," and "Crazy Jane" bolted twice, each throwing its rider. The only accident of the day occurred by "Billy" running over Mr. John Simpson, while trying to prevent him bolting.

For the Scurry there were entered Morgan's "Billy," and Burn's "Otonalee Maid." which was won by "Otonalee Maid" in two straight heats.

The Sack Race and Wheelbarrow Race came off immediately after the horse races which were keenly contested, and caused considerable sport.

In the evening the Firemen added their portion to the great performance of the day. Attended by the Lindsay Brass Band, they paraded the principal streets of the Town, and also visited Ashburnham. They then proceeded to the Court House Hill when a grand display of Fireworks completed the pleasures of the day. Three cheers were then proposed, by Captain McNaughton, for the Queen, and heartily re-pended; three for the gallant volunteers; and three cheers for the Lindsay Band. The number of the Band that visited us was small owing to very short notice and other untoward causes, but their efficiency made up for any lack in numbers, and it must cause a little sense of pride in our sister town, which is many years our junior, to be able to supply Peterborough with a willing and efficient Band, as assuredly these who played for the Firemen yesterday, were.

A little incident at the heels of all had well nigh spoiled the fun of the whole day. Captain McNaughton aided by the wisdom of his men, happily prevented it. It was a little disgraceful to see the action of one or two that were there. We forbear to give names, as we are convinced the parties, are this, regret what they both said and did.

About eleven o'clock, p. m. the men sat down to a dinner prepared for them by the worthy proprietor of the Hudman House, when, no doubt, the acted their part as well as at any time through the day. We are sorry want of space forbids us giving a full report.

THE NOMINATION.

We felt highly pleased with the evident good spirit of those present at the nomination for Mayor.

The principals who moved and seconded both candidates expressed themselves in calm and befitting language, not a word of abuse or faultfinding, which speaks much for the good sense of our public men, at least on that day. Mr. Scott's supporters said not one word against any person; and Mr. Nicholls' friends also confined themselves entirely to the qualification of their candidate and the state of the Town Financially. Mr. Clinton went so far as to recommend that Mr. Perry be paid a half-year's salary. We might hope for a very different state of things, in our country, if public men would thus advocate what they believed to be right independent of party or selfish purposes. Much of the bitter, factious feeling, that now exists would soon die out, and such a friendly one be inaugurated that men would divide only on matters of conscientious conviction, even in the choosing of Mayor or Councillors. As it is, bigotry, partizanship, self-interest, enmity, and the love of gain have too much to do with the management of all our affairs. A change of system would not produce all desired. A moral change assuredly would; when will it be effected?

THE DECLARATION.

Yesterday at 12 o'clock, noon, the Town Clerk and a few individuals met at the Council Chamber. The Clerk, after reading the state of the Poll in the different Wards and summing them up, declared the majority of votes to be in favor of Mr. Scott, and consequently, declared him duly elected for the remainder of this year.

The vote stood as follows:—

	NICHOLLS.	SCOTT.
North Ward	39	57
East Ward	30	46
South Ward	12	52
Centre Ward	16	41
Total	99	196

Majority for Scott 97

Mr. Scott expressed his thanks for the confidence reposed in him. He assured the people that their choice of him had been wholly without solicitation on his part, as he never courted or desired civic honors.—But inasmuch as he had been elected by the people he would serve them to the best of his ability, and would act quite independently; yet according to law, and the advice of the Council. He further said that his coming out was not in opposition to Mr. Nicholls, whom he (Mr. Scott) always respected; but he came out at the expressed wish of the people, although contrary to his inclination. Yet he hoped to be able to give due attention to the Town affairs. He also made some remarks in reference to Col. Haultain's voting, although a non-resident. (This depends upon the Poll Book, not where a man lives.

Mr. Perry was also present and embraced the opportunity to contradict the report that had been raised of a secret understanding being between him and Mr. Scott, in reference to Mr. Scott acting, but he (Mr. Perry) receiving the salary, such having no foundation whatever, except in the brain of the imaginative. No such thing existed or was ever spoken of, or intended. Mr. Scott also corroborated the statements of Mr. Perry.

As Mr. Nicholls was not present, being from home, we have not the pleasure of reporting his speech.

One thing we are still convinced of, that the whole affair is without precedent, and also without legality. The clerk excuses himself on the principle of expediency, and admits there is no statute to the point, and considers the an nalous affair as having escaped the promoters of the law, counsel may have advised him to proceed as he did, did, but how often do we find Counsel advising contrary to statute. This whole affair therefore has been done on the principle of expediency or necessity, and contrary to both precedent and law. The legal advice was to "issue a warrant. Mr. Clerk however issued in Public Notice. But we are told now that a name is of no consequence upon the principle, we suppose, of the Irish servant who when sent to beat some fish out it, because his master had frequently told him, he was of no use in a work. For the time to come we may understand when the council is mentioned that it means any twelve citizens, for the Council consists of twelve citizens, our assessors can manufacture definitions when required, for their own ends.

THE BOBCAYGEON ROAD.

THE BACK COUNTRY; AND THE CROPS IN THAT SECTION.

Mr. Snow, of Ottawa, who was deputed by the Government to view the Bobcaygeon Road and direct what should be done, did so last week. Mr. Joseph Graham, Crown Land Agent accompanied Mr. Snow. There are $6,000 to be expended this year in repairing and changing the location of some portions of the road, as far as to Petersons line, commencing at Bobcaygeon. Mr. Graham is appointed Overseer of the work to have the instructions of the Government carried out.

Mr. Graham assures us that he never saw crops looking better anywhere; and that both Mr. Snow and he were agreeably disappointed in regard to the appearance of the country. The fall wheat especially bids fair to produce an excellent crop. He also tells us that there is a large space under wheat, considering the youthful state of the settlement. We trust that this will prove a favorable year for perfecting and saving the crops. Last year was most unfavorable, and in consequence many of the new settlers, who went in with small means, suffered greatly. A full crop this season is much needed.

OIL IN ASHBURNHAM.

Some of our sharp ones have perceived indications of oil in the village, and are already exerting themselves to have it tested. Efforts are being made and with appearance of success, to form a company to have a test well bored, to satisfy curiosity and if possible prove or disprove its existence, we hope they will be successful. There is more light wanted in the world, what a priviledge it would be to the flourishing village of Ashburnham to afford and spread oil light, at least. There have been so many "ile" sells of late that every report of its appearance, or indication of it, is received with caution. And so it should be. The spirit of speculation that ruins thousands, and enriches only the few, has unfortunately done much to injure our own fair country. Yet all speculativeness should not be avoided or hooted at. The very principle of speculativeness has done much to enrich the world. Who knows but that our sister village is founded on a sea of "ile." A trial will tell yea or nay.

VOCAL AND MAGICAL ENTERTAINMENT.—Prof. Millar, assisted by Madame Millar, announces his intention of favouring the public with two evening's entertainments, of song, mirth and Magic, viz: this evening and to-morrow evening, in the Victoria Hall.

COW KILLED.—On Monday last the evening train from Port Hope, ran over a cow belonging to Mr. I. J. Christie, the cow was feeding along the track in the Corporation when the accident occurred.

BURGLARY.—Some parties have had the curiosity to know the contents of some of the cellars in Ashburnham. When in, sovereignes got the Mastery, and everything moveable, that was eatable, was removed. A complete forgetfulness of the eighth commandment.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.—The services of the Sabbath School in connection with the Bible Christian Church, will take place on Sunday the 11th day of June. On Monday following a tea will be provided for the children in the chapel yard, should the weather permit.

COBOURG AND PETERBORO'.—On and after Monday next, there will be regular communication between this town and Cobourg. The Steamer Otonabee will run between Harwood and the Locks South of this town; the railway will continue the communication to Cobourg. Captain Sutherland of Ashburnham is general agent here. See Advertisement.

The British Canadian, Port Hope, says that Thos. Turner, late Deputy Registrar of East Durham has absconded. As far back as 1862, he, it appears, has been issuing bogus mortgages to parties who entrusted him with money to invest, and several have suffered in that way. Others on the strength of seeming honesty loaned him large sums and have come out minus. His liabilities of this sort amount to $20,000 or $25,000.

THE Committee of the Protestant Home beg to acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt of the following articles, kindly sent to them during the past week for the use of the Home:—

From W. R. Hall, 1 towel; Mr. Innes, 1 do; Mr. W. H. Robinson, 2 knives and forks; David Roger, 6 spoons; Mr. Thos. Johnston, 1 towel; Isaac Robinson, 2 towels; Mr. Coulter, 1 gal. coal oil; Mr. Kempt, 1 hand lamp; Mr. Erskine, a lot of pack-sheet; Mr. Roche, 1 Towel; Mr. Meanie, 12 rolls of room paper; Mr. Alex. Stewart, 1 tea pot; Mr. McNaughton, 1 broom; Mr. Charles Cameron, 1 Scrubbing brush; Robert Walton, a large tin pan; Mr. Robert Kingan, one table lamp; Mr. J. J. Leahy, 1 roller towel; Mr. Green, 1 roller Towel; a Friend, 3 towels.

The Side Walks.

We would call the attention of Chief Constable Arnott to the state of the side walk on Hunter Street, opposite the property lately burned. It is completely impassable for ladies, and dangerous for any one, after night. There is scarcely another piece of side-walk in town that has so much traffic on it, and we are sure there is not another piece in Town in such bad repair. As provision has been made for repairing it, we trust there will be no delay in getting it done.

THE LADY'S FRIEND.

"Summer days"—a beautiful steel engraving—is the appropriate embellishment of the June number of The Lady's Friend. This engraving will remind many of > "The days they went gaily,ma'.

> A long time ago."

It is very finely engraved. The double Fashion Plate is also excellently engraved, and the ladies no doubt will pronounce it as charming as it must be expensive. More to our masculine taste, however, we confess, is the simple woodcut of "Lucy," with the expressive lines beneath. Ah, these Lucys!

> "There she stands, her morning dress and me the > Making space between her and the world,
> Shutting in her heart within its warmness,
> Like the sweets in matchless lilies buried."

Price $2.50 a year; 2 copies $4.00. To those desirous of making up clubs, specimen numbers will be sent for 15 cents. Wheeler & Wilson's celebrated Sewing Machines are furnished as Premiums. Address Deacon & Peterson, 319 Walnut street, Philadelphia.

Now is the time to send on subscriptions for 1865.

GODY'S LADIES BOOK for June is on our table. The contents of this number is equal to any previous number of the Lady's Book. The engraving and fashion plates are in good taste. The fashions in the Lady's Book bring down the modes to the very latest styles.

Embroidery Patterns; Sleeve trimmings; Flanders lace; Gentleman's Brace in Embroidery; Chemise Yoke Pattern; Initials letters for Pillow Cases; Butterfly ornaments, now so popular; A large assortment of Bonnet fashions; Capes; Caps; Boy's Dress; Scent Sachet; Crotchet Tidy and about fifty other Patterns, besides the usual amount of reading matter constitutes the contents of the June number. It is invaluable to ladies.

M. M. E. DEMOREST'S MIRROR OF FASHION.—This periodical is before us. This number contains an engraving of the late President Lincoln, and a dirge in memory of the Nation's Chief, styled "The Nation in Tears." The patterns are worth the price of the the number. The fashion plates are of the latest arrivals, no doubt, and are numerous. Ruth Dexter's Better Days; The Diamond Necklace; My Fortune and How I Found It; The Honey-moon and several useful receipts make up the chief reading matter of this number.

Jefferson Davis, with his family, arrived at Fortress Monroe, on the 18th instant, from Hilton Head, South Carolina. He came on the steamer Clyde, accompanied by Col. Pritchard, who captured him. The steamer dropped her anchor in the roads when it is supposed Jef. Davis was landed somewhere on the beach to escape the curious gaze of the people. No communication is allowed with the steamer however—significant. Fortress Monroe has been fitted up, of late, for the accommodation of State Prisoners. The Tuscarora accompanied the Clyde. Recent orders indicate the destination of the party to be Washington.

There are some negro troubles in Cuba. The Negroes are burning the abodes of their masters, and causing other troubles. The children of Ham are causing trouble everywhere; too often they suffer themselves also.

It is currently reported that Kirby Smith has formed an alliance with the Emperor of Mexico, Maximilian, promising some assistance. It is too late for such false hopes now.

Sonora, in Mexico, has been ceded to France by Maximilian. Thus France has now got her interests to be protected, which may afford food for comment for a few weeks.

Dr. Blackburn, who has been arrested on a charge of breach of our neutrality laws, and brought before the authorities at Toronto, has been admitted to bail.

An amnesty Proclamation is being prepared by President Johnson and will be issued immediately.

SMITH AND HARVEY.

The Court of Revision for the United Townships of Smith and Harvey held its sittings on the 10th instant. The Reeve in the chair.

A complaint was made by Andrew Fowler of an overcharge on his real and personal property. After some discussion Mr. Fowler consented to have his assessment confirmed.

Some alterations were made in the roll at the request of parties who have made different arrangements since the assessment was taken, after which it was moved by Mr. Dean and seconded by Mr. Galvin, that the Assessment Roll of this Municipality be now passed by the Court and then certified by the Clerk. Carried.

The members then went into council for the dispatch of Township matters and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. A communication from the Council of the Town of Peterborough was read, requesting the Council to appoint Wm. Toole and James Stephenson members of the committee on behalf of that Town in reference to the opening of the road through the Township of Harvey, in lieu of Wm. Lundy and Thomas Eastland.

A By-law was passed for the purpose.

Application was made by Matthew Waram for the amount paid by him for the repairing of the axletree of his buggy and conveying the same to Peterborough, stating that said axletree was broken in consequence of the bad state of the road in the 5th concession of Smith. Application not granted.

The Treasurer was directed to pay the following sums to the order of the Reeve to Wm. Adams an indigent person $5, to Andrew Young $2.50 and Thomas Gaffrey $2, for giving information against certain parties for selling liquors in contravention to a By-law passed under the provisions of the Temperance Act of 1864, to Constable fees $5.15, Magistrates for sitting on the said cases $3.60 and to Alex. Graham & Co. for printing, $2.50

A new Road Division was established in the Township of Harvey and James Tate appointed Overseer of the same.

The Council then adjourned till the first Monday in June next.

MONAGHAN COUNCIL.

May 13th, 1865.

The Council met at ten o'clock.

Present Messrs. Collins, Robson, Dundass and Lockie.

In the absence of the Reeve, Mr. Collins was appointed Chairman.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Communications from the Reeve stating that business matters of importance which he did not know of until yesterday, absolutely required his presence in town during the forenoon and hoped that under the circumstances he would be excused.

From Dr. Bell charging the Council with having altered his assessment on lot No 7, in the 12th Concession of North Monaghan without his knowledge or consent and demanding his name to be replaced on the Assessment Roll as notified to him by the Assessor, otherwise he would apply to the Court of Queen's Bench for a writ of Mandamus.

The Council were of opinion that it was now beyond their jurisdiction, but that a less expensive mode of effecting the object sought, would be to apply to the County Judge at the Quarter Sessions.

Councillors Collins, Dundas and Robson were appointed a Committee to wait on James Wallace, Esq., respecting the purchase of a road through his property as prayed for by Charles Brealy and thirty others as mentioned in the minutes of last meeting, and to report the same to the Council at its next meeting.

The prayer of Charles and William Spilsbury requiring the sum of $20 to be expended on the quarter line between lots 6 and 7 in the 11th Concession was not granted.

Messrs Wm. Laing and Wm Lockie were heard respecting School Section No 4. Their wishes were complied with by the Council reading a motion that the Local Superintendent would pay the Government grant for this year to the teacher engaged in their School Section.

Moved by Mr. Dundass second'd by Mr. Robson and resolved that the allowance granted to Patrick Keefe on the 4th February be discontinued from this date and that the Reeve be directed to discontinue all grants till further orders be given by motion of this Council.

A By-law substituting William Patterson Pathmaster for Beat No. 1, instead of Thomas Dunlop.

A By-law granting the statute labor of Wm S. Scott, John Fowler, William Huston and Wm. Roland to be expended on the boundary line between Cavan and Monaghan, North of Scott's under Wm. Fowle, Pathmaster for the year 1865, received two readings.

Orders were given on the Treasurer for $18, Asses ors salary; $8 32½ paid by the Reeve in charities, and $2 to each of the Auditors.

The Council adjourned to the first Monday in August at 10 o'clock, P. M.

MODERN CHRISTIANITY.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

In a late number of a Scottish periodical, I find the following quotation extracted from the proceedings of a religious body in England:—"Good incomes are designed to induce men to enter the church, with the hope that it would afford them a maintenance and eventually a competence." Unblushing effrontery!! The incomes are designed to make men enter the church, that, eventually they may enjoy a competence. What a sentiment—this from a descendant of the Apostles, and a follower of the Saviour. A church of Christ (what a misnomer)! which attracts its servants by the love of gain, and the hope of competence. In some countries in Europe, millions a year are expended in feeding the Clergy. Truly it may be said of some religious establishments, as Jugurtha said of ancient Rome, when returning from it, that "all things there were on sale."

What a contrast Mr. Editor, between ancient and modern christianity. It was not the purple and the fine linen, nor the flowing robes, nor the lawn-sleeved arm of the lordly Prelate, which converted the 3,000 on the day of Pentecost, which made Felix tremble and Agrippa almost persuaded. The pomps and vanities of this wicked world were not the motives which induced the inhabitants of the various countries through which Paul of Tarsus travelled, to desert the temples of idolatry and to take up their cross as disciples of the despised and crucified Nazarine. Scarlet and gold would not have won their homage, for they left the temple of Diana, and the interested and crafty shrine-maker. Far higher and nobler motives prompted their services.

Turning to this Continent, I find in a Western newspaper, an account of the sale of pews in a church in one of their cities. An Auctioneer? what a spectacle in a house of worship. Picture to yourself the scene here exhibited Mr. Editor. See on the countenances around the selfish passions, now strongly excited, depicting themselves.—Vanity, the love of the highest place, bids high. Those who have been rivals in business are now rivals in the house of God. O, the anxiety to catch the eye of the Auctioneer—the exultation of the successful bidder—the mortification, the envy, the jealousy of those less so. Is the spirit of God in such an assembly, Mr. Editor? Are these the emotions these the holy feelings to be cherished by those who desire to dwell in the house of God, and who buy themselves a possession there? Does such a scene as this tend directly and powerfully to the sanctification of the purchasers? What saith the infidel as he looks on such a scene? "If this be Christianity away with it?" But, hold; the result sanctifies the means; the sale has paid every dollar of the debt. Is this in accordance with the spirit of the bible, or is it not. The man with the gold ring and the fine apparel sits here, and the meanly dressed sits yonder in the gallery. An old allegory sets forth, that religion, in the days of Constantine, brought forth riches, and the daughter destroyed the mother. In fact Mr. Editor, affluence and religion are not the two most compatible things in the world, and if "competence" be held forth as an inducement to enter the "church" can it therefore appear strange that these self-styled ministers of Christ should appear to vulgar eyes ministers of Mammon.

DUNKIN'S BILL IN HALTON.

The following items with regard to the working of Dunkin's Bill in Halton, are taken from the Milton Champion:

APPEALS.—We hear that a fund amounting to four hundred dollars has been raised by the opponents of Dunkin's Bill, to test the legality of the County By-law, on the appeal of those convicted under its provisions. Mr Cameron, of Toronto, is to defend their cases, which rests upon technical objections to the By-Law. One objection is that By-Law No. 42 contains more than the law requires, as it contained a clause repealing By-Law No. 41. Again, By-law No. 41 had not passed, By-law No. 41 would have been unrepealed, and it was illegal as it went further than the law allowed. Again, the By-Law, although published four weeks in the Champion, did not give a month's notice, as the four insertions only include three weeks time. Such are a few of the objections to be urged against the By-law. The case will come up for argument in chambers next Monday or Tuesday.

ANTI-DUNKIN.—On Monday evening last, a crowd of young men roamed our streets, making the town vocal with groans for Dunkin. They went to the residence of John Reed, the informer, and erected a fire, burning him in effigy, and breaking two panes of glass. Summonses have been issued for a number of the parties supposed to have been implicated.

A DUNKIN CASE IN MILTON.—The first complaint for infringement of the Temperance Act of 1864, in this town, was laid on Friday last, against Mr. John C. Roper, by John Reid, the semi-official prosecutor. The trial was held at the Town Hall on Monday, before Mayor Lyon, who adjourned the case for want of evidence, until to-morrow at 10 a.m. The witnesses for the prosecutor, five or six in number, have all been called away on important business. This is a curious coincidence, and confirms a shrewd suspicion that they have all "skedaddled."

Mr. Cobden's Successor.

Mr. Potter, a Liberal, successor to the late Richard Cobden, member for Rochdale, at the declaration, addressing his constituents, gave utterance to certain views on the American War, which we commend to the notice of our super-loyal proslavery contemporaries in this Province. He said:—

Gentlemen:—I congratulate the men of Rochdale, the people of England, and the friends of human progress all over the world, on the glorious news from the other side of the Atlantic. I congratulate the friends of popular government on the success of the Federal cause. I congratulate the working men and working women of Rochdale and this great district on the prospect ere long of plenty of cotton, unstained by the blood of the slave. The proudest aristocracy in the world have had to bow down before the offended majesty of a great people. Let this warning not be lost to the proudest aristocracy in Europe, and let them remember that the maintenance of wrong to any is as unsafe as it is unjust.—[Cheers.] Men of Rochdale, I thank you for the honor you have done me in electing me your representative. But far more I thank you that you have set your seal on the opinions of that great man who was recently taken away from amongst us.

ARREST AND CONVERSION OF DR. BLACKBURN.—The Minerve of yesterday supplies the following piece of information:—

"Dr. Blackburn for more than a year past a guest at the St. Lawrence Hall, and accused of forwarding from Bermuda, bales of infected goods to spread the pest in northern cities, has been arrested through a warrant issued in Toronto.

"Dr. Blackburn has become a Catholic, and was baptised, the day before yesterday at the St. Lawrence Hall.

"When he left for Toronto, and while parting from his friends, he shed tears, and said to them: "I am entirely innocent; but I have a secret presentiment that I am about to be destroyed up to the North, because I am being taken to Upper Canada."

He started by special train, and in the custody of police officers from Toronto."

It is but a few days since the Rev. Mr. Cameron, the special messenger of the raiders to Richmond, joined the Roman Catholic Church in Quebec. Dr. Blackburn has just taken the same step; and other raiders, such as Mr. Young, have gone already so far as to announce that they had abandoned their Protestant prejudices. Thus it is that Southern secession finds a harbor of refuge in the bosom of Rome.—Montreal Witness.

RAIN AND HAIL STORM.—The Ontario Observer says that yesterday, 17th inst., that Town-ship was visited by one of the most severe and destructive wind and hail storms which we have ever witnessed. In many places the fences were carried away by the freshet and many farmers are lamenting the destruction of some of their choicest and most promising fields of grain. Messrs. Vernon, McGill, Taylor, Wales, Gilroy, and Robson, are the principal sufferers heard of. On the ridges the hail storm was most severe and many of the stones were as large, as pigeons' eggs. It is deplorable to have to record such things, as it must of a consequence militate against this township to a certain extent.

THE LATE INUNDATION IN LOWER CANADA.—According to the relief committee of Quebec, the losses occasioned by the late inundations amount to $160,000. Their distribution is thus stated:

Sorel, comprising de Chenal du Moine, Ile de Grace I'le Madame, I'lle aux Ours est I'le Ronde, $85,184; Berthier $22,000; Saint Eartheleme 6,000; Riviere du Loupe $20,000; Nicolet $12,400; Saint Gregoire $26,000.

The loss of life was probably not less than fifty persons of all ages.

The Duke of Northumberland, recently deceased was one of the richest men in England. His landed property alone amounted to 160,000 acres. He was benevolent and liberal as well as wealthy. He expended over a million of dollars in building cottages and schools for those whom he employed. He built the Tyne Sailors' Home at a cost of $33,000; built life boat stations on several points of the coast of his estates; and was earnestly engaged in his latter days on an extensive scheme for the education of seamen and fishermen among his tenantry. The endowment of four schools to them was contempleted before his death.

The Irish Times of a recent date says: "We believe that when peace ensues between belligerents (in America) the emigration which has hitherto taken place, compared with that which will certainly ensue, will be as the leakage of a weir to the opening of the sluice. There is not a city, town or hamlet in Ireland in which a large proportion of able bodied population is not determined to emigrate the moment peace is made."

THE ONTARIO COLLEGE.—The Belleville Intelligencer says that steps have been taken to establish a College in connection with the Diocese of Ontario in the town of Picton. The people of Picton at a public meeting resolved to raise $8,000. It is proposed to secure the Ryland property for this purpose, which is situated near the town.

The Hamilton Spectator charges the brewers of Western Canada with grossly defrauding the revenue, by making false returns of the quantity of beer they brew. We have not heard upon what evidence the charge is based.

The house presented to Gen. Grant by the citizens of Philadelphia, has been throughly furnished throughout, and placed in possession of his family. The entire cost of the mansion with its furniture, is about $80,000.

There is some commotion at Key West, for fear of the ram Stonewall, which is at Havanna, taking in ammunition, and expected to go to Key West.

It is reported that General Banks is removed from command in New Orleans, and superseded by Gen. Canby. This is again contradicted.

Governor Brown of Georgia has been ordered to be arrested; he had surrendered all the State troops before the order arrived.

Governor Vance, of North Carolina, is in the old Capitol Prison.

Sheridan has been sent in the direction of Texas.

The Great Trial at Washington.

The trial of the conspirators to assassinate President Lincoln, Secretary Seward, Vice-President Johnston, General Grant, Secretary Stanton and others, now going on at Washington is one of the most remarkable trials of history on account of the magnitude of the undertaking, the number of the accused and the standing of at least one of them, viz: Ex-President Davis, who is now in custody, and who will be tried for complicity in the assassination plot. It is not likely that Davis will have much mercy shown him. The part he has taken in the Rebellion, the influence he might have, if pardoned, and the dread of rivalry, may all combine to overthrow him. The following condensed account of the trial will give our readers some information on the subject. To give anything like a full report would occupy double our entire space. The greatest effort is being made to elicit the whole matter.—For a time the trial was expected to be conducted with closed doors, but the remonstrances of the Press effected the admittance of the reporters, and in consequence we are permitted to have a few extracts of the evidence.

The charge against the accused is as follows:—

"For maliciously, and traitorously, and in aid of the existing armed rebellion against the United States of America, on or before the 6th day of March, A. D. 18-5, and on divers other days between that day and the 15th day of April, 18-5 combining, confederating, and conspiring together with one John H. Surratt, John Wilks Booth, Jefferson Davis, George N. Sanders, Beverly Tucker, Jacob Thompson, William C. Cleary, Clement C. Clay, George Harper, George Young and others unknown, to kill and murder within the military department of Washington, and within the fortified and entrenched lines thereof, Abraham Lincoln, a the time of said combining, confederating, and conspiring President of the United States of America, and Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy thereof; Andrew Johnson then Vice-President of the United States aforesaid, and Ulysses S. Grant, Lieutenant-General of the armies of the United States, and in command of the armies of the United States; under the direction of the said Abraham Lincoln, and in pursuance of and in prosecuting said malicious, unlawful, and traitorous conspiracy aforesaid, in aid of said rebellion afterward, to wit: on the 14th day of April, 1865, within the military department of Washington aforesaid, and within the fortified and intrenched lines of said military department, together with said John Wilkes Booth and John Surratt, maliciously, unlawfully, and traitorously murdering the said Abraham Lincoln, then president of the United States, and Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy of the United States aforesaid, and maliciously unlawfully, and traitorously assaulting with intent to kill and murder the said William H. Seward, then Secretary of State of the United States aforesaid and lying in wait with intent maliciously, unlawfully, and traitorously to kill and murder the said Andrew Johnson, then Vice-President of the United States, and the said Ulysses S. Grant then being Lieutenant General and in command of the armies of the United States aforesaid."

The specifications detail, 1st, the assassination of President Lincoln by J. Wilkes Booth, one of the conspirators, aided by J. H. Surratt; 2nd, the attempted assassination of Secretary Seward by Payne; 3rd, the lying in wait with intent to kill Vice-President Johnson by Atzerot; 4th, the lying in wait of Michael O'Laughlin, with intent to kill General Grant; and 5th, the complicity with the whole of Samuel Arnold, Mary E. Surrat, and Dr. Mudd.

The following sketches are given by reporters of the personal appearance of the prisoners:—

Payne is a villainous looking man, tall, and of huge proportions, neck bare and like a bullock, face smoothly shaven, a shock of black hair over a low forehead, and fierce eyes with small cones, around which the white is always disagreeably visible. He leans his head straight back against the wall, and, when locked at, glares the looker out of countenance.

Harrold was just escaped boyhood, and has a small face, with a feeble, timid expression. He looks like a harmless though rather a mean fellow, easily led. He has a thin, inoffensive head, depressed in the regions of combativeness, and appears to be the tool which Booth made of him.

Atzerot is a vulgar-looking creature but not apparently ferocious, combativeness is large but in the region of firmness his head is lacking where Payne is immense. He has a protruding jaw, and moustache turned up at the end, and a short, insignificant-looking face.

O'Laughlin is charged with attending the assassination of Gen. Grant. He looks like Booth, with black hair, moustache, and imperial. His head would not naturally be selected for any brutal business, though bad habits have made their marks on his face.

Spangler has a long face and thin head, indicating a mild disposition easily controlled by others. He looks like an average carpenter of forty, as he is, and he must have been, like Harrold, John Surratt and Arnold, the mere tool of stronger and more vicious persons.

The first feeling which the visitor experiences on entering the room is one of amazement at the conspicuous meanness, coarseness, and vulgarity of the prisoners. There is not one of them, perhaps, excepting Mudd and Mrs. Surrat, who has sufficient character to enter into any such a conspiracy as this from any motive less base than money.

Mr. Surrat is permitted to sit down near the table once ruled by the court, at the side of her counsel, Severdy Johnson, and has manacles only up on her ankles. She is a stout widow of sixty, and is closely veiled all day. During the first days of her appearance she exhibited great stolidity and defiance, but to-day, for the first time, she shed tears and was quite agitated when her testimony regarding herself was being taken.

The testimony elicited by the Court during the week demonstrates beyond question that Vice-President Johnson was to have been slain by Atzerot. Mr. Johnson was in his room at the hotel on the fatal Friday morning in which he and Booth were in conversation. At 9 o'clock that night, after the President went to the theatre, a horse was at the door, but when Booth fired the cowardly shot Atzerot's courage was ended to have failed him, for he ran from his room without assaulting Johnston, leaving his pistol under the pillow and a bowie knife under the mattress, his coat upon the wall and fled on the horse. He was arrested in Charles county.

The accused are defended by counsel,—the celebrated Maryland senator Reverdy Johnson, appearing for Mrs. Surratt. Objection was, however, made to him on the ground that he had advised rebels to take as a matter of form, the oath of allegiance, that they might vote on the slavery question and defeat the views of the Government,—from which it was alleged that he ignored the obligation of an oath. After some debate, this objection was withdrawn. The evidence previously taken in these trials is what the Government wishes to keep secret for the present.

The first witness examined publicly was Detective Lee, who examined Atzerot's room in the Kirkwood House. This room, which was over that of Vice-President Johnson, had been engaged by Atzerot on the morning of the day of assassination, and was searched next day, the door having to be broken open. Under the pillow he found a loaded revolver. In the pockets of a coat he found a bank book with the inscription on the back, "Mr. J. Wilkes Booth, in account with the Bank of Ontario, $450;" also a handkerchief, marked "Mary E. Booth" three cartridges, and a pur. Under the mattresses he found a bowie-knife like that which Booth had flourished in the theatre after shooting the President.

The next witness examined was Lewis A. Weichman, a clerk in the Government department, who boarded with Mrs Surratt, and who seems to have been regarded as a member of the family. He proved the extraordinary intimacy that subsisted between the accused Mrs Surratt, her sons, J. Wilkes Booth, Dr. Mudd, Harrold, Atzerot, and Payne, several of whom had frequent meetings, conferences, and secret conversations for nearly a month previous to the assassination. He often accompanied some of the conspirators to taverns and restaurants, and drove Mrs. Surratt to Surrattsville, and frequently saw them go apart for secret conference, but was never in a position to hear what they said. Payne, who called himself Wood, had a false black moustache; and he and young Surratt were at one time playing with bowie-knives in a room in the third story; they had also revolvers and four sets of new spurs in the room. Young Surratt was a student of divinity, along with the witness, in a Roman Catholic college, where he was highly esteemed by the superior. Witness drove Mrs. Sagratt into the country on the afternoon of the 14th April, and did not return until about half-past nine o'clock, about half-an hour before the assassination. Immediately after, some one rang the bell, which was answered by Mrs. Surratt; the person then came into the parlor, and immediately went out again. Atzerot was given to drink occasionally, and Mrs. Surratt did not like him about the house. Young Surratt went to Richmond, and on his return had 9 or 11 twenty-dollar gold pieces, and other money. He said he had seen Davis and Benjamin, who told him that Richmond would not be evacuated. Surratt and witness went shortly before the assassination to the Herndon House and hired a room for Payne, then called Wood (the assassin of Seward.) A Miss Ward and Mrs. Murray shewed them in procuring a room for Payne, who was called a delicate gentleman. Witness had met Harrold at Surrat

THE FENIAN BROTHERHOOD.

The New York Herald of Friday has a long article upon the Fenian society in the United States, Ireland and Canada, in which it professes to give details of the strength, organization and purpose of that body. It says the main object of the Fenians is, of course, to liberate Ireland from "British yoke," to create it a republic and eventually make it one of the States of the Federal Union. It says there are over sixty-five thousand Fenians in Ireland, each bound, and well drilled to the use of arms, who are ready to "rise" at the order of their superiors. In the constitution of its article, which in its editorial column it commends to the attention of Lord Palmerston, the Herald says:—

"Upon the organization and objects of the Fenians in Canada and other British possessions it is not our present purpose to enter. That whatever they may be, they are no lovers or admirers of the "Red cross of St. George" is very certain. If the United states, for example, should desire to wipe the Canadas as a material guarrantee for England's making satisfaction in money for the injuries inflicted on our commerce by anglo rebel pirates, it is not immediately probable that the Fenians and the Blue Nose land would offer any decided resistance to annexation. Every blow against England is a balm to the true Irish nature. Every humbling of the "red flag" everywhere and anywhere is an act of retribution to our "immortal green." Let there be a war between the United States and England and not a dollar bounty would be required to enlist from seventy-five to one hundred thousand able-bodied and pugnacious Irishmen throughout the States in that holy war. With all veritably Milesian natures, hatred of the British government is a part of their religion. Against the foreign usurpation which crushes, depopulates and plunders their country, having long since disfranchised it, their hatred is as immortal as the mountains of their rock bound island, as deep and wild as are waves that lash the volcanic crags of Donegal and Antrim. How true friendship a red flag or a red coat, and you show him his native enemy and the symbol of that bloody rule which has either driven his race into unpitied exile or kept them slaves at home. There are massacres of six hundred years to be avenged; confiscation of James, Elizabeth and Cromwell to be reversed; a tyrant church, hostile and foreign to the people, though fattening on their substance, to be blotted out; rights of the honest laboring tenant against the libidinous and cruel foreign landlord to be established; massacres by starvation in recent years to be avenged; penal codes and treason-felony bills, and hundreds—yes, literally hundreds—of forse coercion acts to be erased from the books of Ireland's renovated courts. There are tombs to be built to the martyred dead, and many graves to be filled on both sides before this can be done. Of a truth our fellow citizens of Milesian birth or blood are not loyal in any sense that could give delight to the ex-Crown Solicitor Whiting, or any of his breed. They did not turn out in honor of that serenest youth, Baron Renfrew alias Prince of Wales; nor are we at all clear that they sing or recite with any cordial gust of unanimity, 'Cropping He down,' 'The Boyne water,' 'The Maiden City,' the health of our great and good King William,' on the approximate anniversaries of these 'Orange and Purple' pleans. They are indeed a stiff necked generation, and the sooner President Andrew Johnson goes to work and crushes them out, and kills them off, and utterly exterminates them, the better and happier it will be for our dear trans-Atlantic cousins, who equipped rebel corsairs against our commerce and armed rebel armies against our liberty, and also for those sweet pleasant neighbors—the Canadians—who have refused to surrender the St. Athan's cut-throats and burglars, and who have made their whole frontier for the past four years a Northern base of operations for our Southern foes. By all means let President Johnson take steps to crush out the sedition at once; and let all loyal British loving Americans take part with him in doing it in a hurry."

A Mysterious Murder in California.

The California papers are largely occupied with the details of an extraordinary murder which was committed in the vicinity of San Francisco some time since and which has only lately come to light.

It appears that a person living in the suburbs, while returning home by moon-light, noticed a place where the ground had been freshly turned up, as if dogs had been disturbing the earth in search of something underneath. An examination disclosed the body of a well dressed young man, whose skull had been broken, and whose face was bruised by blows and disfigured by the composition to an extent that made immediate recognition impossible.

Dr. Henry, a loyal physician, however, successfully resorted to the experiment, which was applied to in a similar case in London, a few years ago by the distinguished Dr. Richardson. The body was stripped and placed in a water-tight shell, water was then let in, with a pound of hydrochloric acid, and twenty pounds of common acid was added. After an immersion of three hours, the corpse was then taken out and sponged off with clean water. A bucket of water previously charged with chlorine gas, was next thrown over his head and face, after which a flow of pure chlorine gas was passed over the face, and the features became so bleached as to be recognizable as those of one Charles T. Hill. Deceased is described as a peculiarly fine looking man, a native of New York, and a graduate of Amherst College.

Two or three years since he killed an Italian in a saloon in New York, but under the extenuating circumstances that he was admitted to bail for the sum of $10,000. His mother being a lady of considerable means, paid the bond, and Hill entered the army of the Potomac, in which he served as butler or quartermaster for a while and then went to St. Louis. Here says an account before us, "he cut red the store of his uncle an extensive hide and tallow merchant as a clerk. Some months after he went into the restaurant business but sold out after a brief experience and went to California. His vanity in dress and his habit of sporting paste jewels, which were believed to be brilliants of considerable value, tempted one Thomas Byrnes to murder him. The latter accomplished the deed by pursuading his victim to take a buggy ride to the suburbs of San Francisco. Byrnes was suspected and arrested from the circumstance of his offering paste jewels and demanding a large price for them."

THE EARLY LAND REFORMERS OF THE UNITED STATES have presented an address to President Johnson, in which the claim him as one of the best friends of the free homestead movement. They say that when the principle of distributing the public lands of the country, not by sale to capitalists and speculators, but by an inalienable gift to every citizen who chose to claim and occupy a farm, was ridiculed, even at the North be (Mr Johnson) though a Southern man and a Slaveholder, and though probably satisfied that land reform must overthrow slavery and break up the oligarchical power of the South, yet brought in the first bill, to effect that measure. They add:—

"Now that the principle of our bill has gone into the history of American legislation, and the lands of the people have been opened to the occupancy of the landless under the liberal legislation of the Homestead Law, it must be most consoling to all the survivors of the old phalanx of Land Reformers, to which we are proud to have belonged, that so able and trustworthy an exponent and promoter of their principles as your Excellency is found at the Nation's head, to "see that the laws are faithfully executed" in this as in all other respects.

"The Land Reform movement has not only rewarded its friends with success, but it has found its best justification in the beneficent workings of the Homestead law, whereby thousands of the children of the Republic, whether by birthright or adoption, who would, without its benefactions, have remained among the landless poor, are now happy and prosperous tillers of the soil and influential citizens."

The Prince Albert Observer regrets to learn that the grub, which destroyed so much wheat three years ago, has made its appearance in the 11th concession of Reach township. They are found on the high land, and the ground appears to be literally alive with them. The Observer thinks that to roll the grain at night is a sure remedy.

The Bowmanville "Statesman" states that the store of Mr. Aaron Buckler, watchmaker and jeweller, of that town, was entered on the night of the 12th inst., and property to the amount of $300 stolen therefrom. No clue has been found to the burglar.

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY IN CANADA.

The following testimony from a well known and highly respected Merchant of Prescott, is corroborative of the general approval given to Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY:

PRESCOTT, C. W., Dec. 8th, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Co., Boston.

Gentlemen:—

Being solicited by your Travelling Agent, for an expression of opinion of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, I with pleasure assert that it is, in my belief, the best remedy before the public for coughs and pulmonary complaints.

Having tested the article with myself and family, in case of severe coughs and colds, for years, with uniform and unexceptionable success, I unhesitatingly recommend it with full confidence in its merits.

Yours truly,
ALFRED HOOKER.

PIANO-FORTES

DRIGGS' NEW PATENT.

ARE THE ONLY INSTRUMENTS constructed on a truly scientific principle. That have greater strength, and will remain longer in tune than any other Piano. The construction is simple and natural, all the extraneous lumber in the body of the instrument is dispensed with; the sound boards are merely two arched planks of thin wood, like the front and back of a violin; the strings are attached to a strong iron frame, which is separate and entirely independent of the case, thereby dispensing with the old heavy form of stringing by substituting straight bridges, preserving at the same time The Over Strung Bass, of which Mr Driggs is the inventor. By these improvements we gain much more vibratory power, at the same time preserving all its purity and richness of tone.

They have received the highest testimonials from the Press, and all the principal artists in the country, among which are:

Harry Sanderson, L. M. Gottschalk,
Max Maretzek, S. Thalberg,
Theodore Eisfeld, Wm Mason,
Herman Wollenhaupt, A. Barili
Francis H. Brown, M. Strackosch,
Wm. Henry Fry. Charles Fradel

Mr. SEGESMUND THALBERG, the great pianist, says:—I have examined your new Piano-fortes and I cordially approve of its system of construction. Its principle, by which great increase of vibratory power is obtained, being very simple and perfectly philosophical. The tone is grand and noble; it has great capacity for sustaining the sound or singing, and its volume of tone or power I have never heard excelled in depth, purity and sympathetic sweetness.

Wm. HENRY FRY, late musical critic of the N. Y. Tribune says:—I have examined your newly invented Piano-Fortes. They merit all the praise given to them by Messrs. Thalberg, Gottschalk, Strackosch, Mason and others. As regards the structure, they are original and philosophical; in purity, volume, and continuity of tone; in vocal versimilitude, that crowning excellence which enables the pianists to "sing" on the instrument. Your Pianos deserve the highest rank. Your invention, in my opinion, is destined to work radical changes in the manufacture of Pianos throughout the world.

From the N. Y. Herald, Sept. 5—Upon a careful examination of Driggs Piano-Forte, we find the results obtained are a very fine singing tone, great purity and brilliancy throughout the entire instrument, not often found in Pianos constructed upon the old plan.

The N. Y. Times, July 12, says:—We have now an instrument without an equal. It can sing with a smoothe delicacy, perfectly unattainable on any other instrument; an ordinary player obtains with no exertion, the fullness of a Grand Piano Forte and they must speedily supercede the old styles.

GENTLEMEN:—Having thoroughly examined and tested the Piano-Fortes invented and patented by Mr S. P. Driggs, I am of the opinion that the tone resulting from his improvements, as exhibited in the instruments under examination, in point of richness, depth and brilliancy, equals that of the best Grand Piano-Fortes, and excells them in pure, musical and actual tone, power thus approximating closer to what I consider perfection in the instrument thus has not been achieved by any other system of manufacture.

Yours respectfully,
L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of six thousand dollars for the purpose therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $6000 in constructing, making and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County.

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $6000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $[illegible] to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality, according to the last Assessment for the same, is $[illegible] irrespective of any future increase of the same, which said sum of $[illegible] is the amount upon which the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised assessment roll of the said Municipality, being for the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-[illegible] was $[illegible].

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for payment of the said sum of $6000 and interest, as aforesaid, it will require an equal annual special rate of thirty-one sixtieths of a mill in the dollar on the amount of the said assessment, which said rate is sufficient for the purposes aforesaid.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any persons or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same, upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $6000, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than $100 each; and that the said debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden and counter-signed by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable in 10 years at the farthest from the time hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first day of April and the first day of October in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon, an equal special rate of thirty-one sixtieths of a mill in the dollar shall, in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the 24th day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at its Council Chamber in the Court House, in the said County, on Thursday, the 22nd day of June, 1865, at the hour of 10 of the clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

Variéties.

A DIFFICULT CASE.—A correspondent of the Dawson is involved in domestic perplexities. He writes:

I got acquainted with a young widow, who lived with her step-daughter in the same house. I married the widow; my father fell, shortly after it, in love with the step-daughter of my wife and married her. My wife became the mother-in-law and also the daughter-in-law of my own father; my wife's step-daughter is my step-mother, and I am the step father of my mother-in-law. My step-mother, who is the step-daughter of my wife, has a boy; he is naturally my step-brother, because, he is the son of my father and of my step-mother; but because he is the son of my wife's step-daughter so is my wife the grand-mother of the little boy, and I am the grandfather of my step-brother. My wife has also a boy; my step-mother is consequently the step-sister of my boy, and is also his grandmother, because he is the child of her stepson; and my father is the brother-in-law of my son, because he has got his step-sister for a wife. I am the brother of my own son, who is the son of my step-mother; I am the brother-in-law of my mother, my wife is the aunt of her own son, my son is the grandson of my father, and I am my own grandfather.—Harper's Magazine.

BLARNEY.—"A bright mornin' to your fair face Mistress Murphy." "Well, a good mornin' John." "Mistress Murphy whenever I see a real shiny Irish mornin' like this, it puts me in mind of the ould county, and of the time I lived with your father, rest his soul, a docenter man never drew breath, and sorra a crather never passed your door without a bit or a sup."—"Truth an John." "Mistress Murphy," pulling a flask out of his pocket, "would you trust me for a half pint until I go down to the wharf, and stay the——fly away with the roof of my jacket but I'll pay you before the sun goes to bed."

"Burn the dhrap, John till ye pay for it—I'll print ye got yesterday." "Mistress Murphy," sympathically "I know your mother, and she was an ould hod carrier, and your father was a dirty washerwoman, and I used him hauled with six roarin' big bulls to the gallos, you old thief of the would." John sloped double quick time, as the pewter mug rattled wratifully across the pavement.

THE TELEGRAPH SPEAKING SCOTCH.—The Guelph Herald says:—The Fergus Constitution, of Friday, in giving the details of the celebration of St. Andrew's Day, in the capital of the North Riding, on the previous Wednesday, states the fact of telegrams having been exchanged by the sister Societies of Guelph and Fergus, making enquiry after the health of the "Sons" in their respective localities; the message being expressed in tolerable Doric. A neighbour reading the account to an old Scotchwoman, gave the telegram, as printed, in Scottish vernacular, at which the old lady, holding up her hands, in astonishment, exclaimed; Preserve's, sirs, can the telegraph speak Scotch? I never kent that before! It maun be unco smart!"

☞ How do you do? That's English and American. The top of the mornin'to ye! Shat's Irish. This is a braw day Sanny? That's Scotch. How do you carry yourself? That's French.—How do you stand? That's German.—How do you fare? That's Dutch. How can you? That's Swedish. How do you prospire? That's Egyptian. How is your stomach? Have you eaten your rice? That's Chinese. How do you have yourself? That's Polish. How do you live on? That's Russian. May thy shadow never grow less. That's Persian.

At a station on the overland route the keeper got rather short of provisions—in fact he had nothing left but a bottle of mustard and some bacon. As the stage stopped there one day to change horses the passengers seated themselves at the table, and the host said: "Shall I help you to a piece of bacon?" "No thank you, I never eat bacon," said one traveller, "Well then," help yourself to the mustard, said the station keeper.

A Down Easter advertises for a wife after the following fashion; "Any gal what's got a cow, a good feather bed with comfortable fixins, $500 in hard pewter—one that's had the measles, and understands 'em in children—can find a customer for life by writing a small billy-doo, addressed to Q. Z. and stickin it in a crack in Uncle Ebenezer's barn, backside, jinin the hog pen."

Dr. Franklin, when in England, used pleasantly to repeat an observation of his negro servant, when the Doctor was making the tour of Derbyshire, Lancashire, &c. Every thing, mauss, work in this country, water work, fire work, wind work smoke work, dog work, bullock work, man work; everything work here but the hog; he eat, he drink, he sleep, he do nothing all day—he walk about like a Gentleman.

An old deacon in Yankeedom was standing beside a frog-pond, and saw a garter snake attack an enormous bull-frog. The snake seized one of the bull-frog's hind legs; and the frog, to be on a par with his assailant, caught him by the tail; when both commenced swallowing each other, and continued this operation until nothing was left of them.

In Salem, Massachusetts, after a heavy snowfall, a man was discovered pushing a cake into a large "winter head" of snow. On being asked why he amused himself in—"Amuse!" said he with a voice which betrayed the deepest anxiety of mind, "fine amusement! I have lost my shop—it used to stand somewhere near this spot."

At an evening party a very elderly lady was dancing with a young partner. A stranger approached Jerrold, who was looking on, and said: "Pray, sir, can you tell me who is the young gentleman dancing with that very elderly lady?" "One of the Humane Society, I should think," replied Jerrold.

The old adage that "you should not count you chickens before they are hatched," has thus been rendered by a professor of etiquette:—The producer of poultry should postpone the census of their juvenile fowl, till the period of incubation is fully accomplished.

On his return from India, Brown was asked how he liked tiger-hunting. "It is very good sport as long as you hunt the tiger," he replied; "but if hard pressed, he sometimes takes it into his head to hurt you then it has its drawbacks."

"Mamma says it is not polite to ask for cake," said a little boy. "No," was the reply; "it does not look well in little boys to do so." "But," said the urchin, "she didn't say I must not eat a piece if you gave it to me."

"I suppose," said a quack, while feeling the pulse of a patient, "that you think me a humbug?" "Sir," replied the sick man, "I perceive you can discover a man's thoughts by his pulse."

MELODEON
AND
COTTAGE ORGAN EMPORIUM,
PETERBORO, C.W.

Estey's Perfect Melodeon
AND
COTTAGE ORGAN.
ESTABLISHED 1864.
FORMERLY ESTEY & GREEN.

The only Manufactory in this Country of the Perfect Melodeon and Cottage Organ with Patent Base Damper, Patent Harmonic Attachment, and Patent Manual Sub-Base.

These inimitable instruments have won their way to public confidence purely on their merits, and not by force of extensive advertising and purchased recommendations. With our increased facilities for manufacture, we are still unable to meet the extraordinary demand made upon us; but we hope soon to be able to fill all orders promptly.

Some of the points of superiority claimed for our instruments, are these:—

1st.—Smooth, steady and pipe-like quality of tone.

2nd.—Great delicacy of touch and promptness of action; producing, when desired, a low, sweet, lute-like tone, unequalled by any other instrument of the class.

3d.—The Patent Base Damper, which enables the performer to swell the treble without increasing the volume of the base; or, by drawing the Stop, to swell the notes by the action of the foot.

4th.—The Patent Harmonic Attachment. An ingenious octave coupler, which doubles the power of the instrument without increasing its size or the number of reeds.

5th.—The Patent Manual Sub-Base, which are played with the ordinary keys and controlled by a stop. This new and valuable invention requires no extra room and serves as a substitute for the Pedal Base, and can be used by an ordinary performer.

6th.—The Knee-Stop, in the Cottage Organ, which swells or diminishes the tone by a slight movement of the left knee, without interfering with the action of the feet,—having this advantage over the Automatic Swell that the volume of tone may be readily increased without extraordinary effort, and diminished without waiting for the change in the actions of the bellows.

Our recently constructed Cottage Organ, without the attachments, is unsurpassed by any Reed Organ or Harmonium of the size: but, with the Harmonic Attachment and Manual subbase, it is pronounced by competent judges to be far superior to any other instrument of the class in the world. Its power, sweetness, and variety of tone, simplicity of construction and ease of management, recommend it to every one as being all that is claimed for it, both for the parlor and the church.

The Harmonic Organ, for Churches and Public Halls, has a fine, powerful Pedal Base, with independent reeds: and, with the Harmonic Attachment, is believed to be the most powerful Reed Organ made, being nearly equal to a pipe organ of three times its cost.

All our Instruments are made in the most thorough manner, and warranted in every respect

JOS. R. WALTON,
Agent.
Peterborough, Jan. 1865. 4

Rev. A. C. Rose, of Troy, N.Y. says:—These give the value of five Melodeons in one. The ease of touch and promptness of action are unrivalled. It can be played with all the sweetness of the lute or Æolian harp, and changed in an instant to its full power, nearly equal to a twelve stop organ.

All orders addressed to the undersigned will receive prompt attention.

TESTIMONIALS.

JAMES BROWN, Esq., M. D.

Peterboro, October 20th, 1864.

I am happy to inform you that after the most persevering and testing trial for some weeks of the Cottage and Parlor Organ, we like it better every day. It is remarkable for variety of tone and power, and several of the best judges here say it is unequalled by any instrument of the kind (with double reed) they have ever heard. You can so control and command all its parts, as to passe easily and rapidly from the softest tones of the Harp, Lute or Piano, to the rich full swell of a large Organ. It is easily played by child or adult, and is already a very great favorite with us. Its compact structure, ingenious combination of power with the new and beautiful Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-base are greatly admired and are highly creditable to the maker, Estey, of Vermont. I think it is peculiarly adapted for Church Music.

EDW. F. CROWLE, A. M. &c.

Sheridan Villa Seminary, Peterboro, Dec. 1864.

We are delighted with the Cottage Organ with Harmonic attachment and Manual Subbass. We prefer it to any instrument of the kind we have ever seen; its tone, sweet and harmonious in the parlor, possesses sufficient power for a church.

REV. J. C. SLATER.

Wesleyan Parsonage, Millbrook, Jan. 1865.

I have much pleasure in testifying my entire satisfaction of the Cabinet Organ, purchased from you, as an instrument possessing superior qualities in sweetness, variety and strength, to anything of the kind I have ever seen. Two experienced musicians who have examined it, concur with me in recommending it as a perfect instrument adapted to Church or Parlor.

GEO. A. NORRIS, M. D., Recording Steward of the Wesleyan Church, Omemee.

Omemee, July, 1864.

In reply to your inquiries as to the Harmonic Organ, purchased from you for our church, we have to express our highest satisfaction; in purity and sweetness of tone as well as volume of sound, it is all that can be reasonably expected.

Peterborough, Dec. 20th, 1864.

MR. J. R. WALTON,—Having examined and played upon the Parlor Organs sold by you, and Manufactured by Mr. Estey, I have great pleasure in pronouncing them a first class instrument. The Harmonic attachment and manual Sub-base being a very great improvement and well worthy the patronage of the Musical public. Yours truly,

A. T. HEATHFIELD,
Organist of St. John's Church,
Peterborough.

THE OLD GRIST MILL.

The gaunt mill stands beside the stream,
With bending roof and leaning wall,
So old that when the winds are wild
The miller trembles lest it should fall;
But moss and ivy never cease,
Dadeck it o'er from year to year.

The dam is deep, and wedded green;
The gates are rasped the waters pour,
And tread the old wheel's steeps,
The lowest round for evermore;
Methinks they have a sound of ire,
Because they cannot climb it higher.

From morn till night in Autumn time,
When heavy harvest load the plain,
Up drives the farmer to the mill,
And back anon with loaded wains;
They bring a heap of golden grain,
And take it home in meal again.

The mill inside is dim and dark,
But, peeping in the open door,
You see the miller flitting round,
And dusty bags along the floor;
And by the shaft and down the spout
The yellow meal comes pouring out.

And all day long the winnowed chaff
Floats round it on the sultry breeze,
And shineth like a setting swarm
Of golden-winged and belted bees;
Or sparks around a blacksmith's door,
When bellows blows and forges roar.

I love my pleasant, quaint old mill;
It minds me of my early prime;
'Tis changed since then, but not so much
As I am by decay and time;
Its wrecks are mossed from year to year,
But mine all dark and bare appear.

I stand by the stream of life;
The mighty current sweeps along,
Lifting the flood-gates of my heart;
It turns the magic wheel of song,
And grinds the ripening harvest brought
From out the golden field of thought.

Boot and Shoe Grease.

The Shoe and Leather Reporter says hog's lard is admirably adapted to secure to leather both pliability and impermeability to water; train oil after it dries up, renders the leather brittle. Hog's lard renders the leather perfectly pliant, and no water can penetrate it. It is especially suitable for greasing boots and shoes; but in the summer seasons an eighth part of tallow should be melted with it. It should be laid on when in a melted state; but no warmer than one's finger dipped in the mass can bear. When it is first applied to a boot or shoe, the leather should be previously soaked in water, that it may swell up, so that the pores can open well and thoroughly absorb the lard. The liquid lard should be smeared over (to be water proof) at least three or four times, and solid leather often enough. Afterward the lard remaining visible on the outside should be wiped of with a rag. By this means you have a waterproof boot or shoe, without the annoyance caused by most stuffs of penetrating the leather and greasing the stockings. An occasional coating of hog's lard is also to be recommended for patent-leather boots or shoes, as it prevents the leather from cracking, and if it be not rubbed in too strongly the leather will shine just as well after the grease has been applied.

TOMATO SAUCE.—Mrs. G. Dowdeswell, seeing a wish expressed in the last number for a recipe for making tomato sauce, begs to mention a very simple mode adopted by herself for some few years past, by which she can have the same prepared by the cook as required, fresh at any time. The tomatoes are gathered perfectly ripe, free from cracks or bruises, and are gently wiped with a soft cloth, and placed in a widemouthed jar. Some vinegar, having been boiled and allowed to stand until cold, is then poured over them, sufficient being used to entirely cover them. The jar is then covered with wetted bladder, and the tomatoes keep perfectly fresh and good until those of the following season come in. The peasantry in the south of France keep the tomatoes in this simple manner. Their mode of making sauce Mrs. Dowdeswell, unfortunately, has not perfectly; but the tomatoes in the manner described, can be made as required into sauce by any cook.—The Down House, Worcestershire.

WHEAT AND INDIAN CAKE.—Scald one part Indian meal, add one part wheat meal (Graham flour) with water sufficient to make a thick batter. Drop by the spoonful on a large pan, or into muffin rings, and bake in a quick oven. When taken out, cover close for 20 or 30 minutes. This makes a most wholesome and palatable bread, much lighter than the Johnny cake and much better when cold. It is also very nice when rye is substituted for wheat meal.

WINTER HASH.—A Savoury Dish.—Any kind of cold meat a few cold potatoes, and onion, pepper and salt, a little dried parsley, sage and summer savory. Chop all together. Put in a sauce pan with a little gravey, or hot water, and a small piece of butter. Let it simmer gently for fifteen minutes. Turn out over thin slices of toast. It is palatable to persons who do not usually like hash.

NICE BREAKFAST DISH.—Slice a few cold biscuits, or some dry light bread, fry them slightly, in a little butter, or nice gravy. Beat 3 or 4 eggs, with half a teacupful of new milk, and a pinch of salt. When the bread is hot, pour the eggs over it, and cover for a few minutes, stir slightly, so that all the eggs may be cooked. This is a nice dish, besides saving the dry bread.

POTATO SALAD.—When materials for a salad are scarce, this is a good way of disposing of cold potatoes. Slice them, and dress them with oil, vinegar, salt and pepper, precisely like any other salad, adding a little chives, or an onion and parsley, chopped fine. If oil is not agreeable, use cream or a little melted butter.

HARD SOAP.—Several contributors write that having tried recipe (No. 1) for making hard soap published in the March Agriculturist, they found it to produce a good article, but in as large quantity as there represented. Instead of 40 lbs., only from 9 to 15 pounds are reported.

CORN STARCH.—For most cakes and puddings, for which eggs are used, a tablespoonful of corn starch or maizena will be found an excellent substitute for one egg.

BOILED HAM.—After boiling it three hours remove the skin, sprinkle sugar over it, and bake one hour it will be delicious.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES.—One quarter Graham flour, one quarter Indian meal, and half buckwheat, makes the best and most healthy griddle cakes.

YELLOW BUTTER.—The yolk of eggs will give butter a beautiful yellow tint in the winter and early Spring, before the grass comes.

STEAM PUDDING.—Two cups flour, one of milk, one-half cup each of molasses, chopped raisins and suet, one egg, one teaspoonful saleratus, one-half teaspoonful soda. Steam one hour.

MOCK SPONGE CAKE.—Two cups flour, one of sugar, one of milk, one egg, one teaspoonful saleratus, two teaspoonfuls cream of tartar.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?
A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!
CAN BE FOUND IN
Holloway's Pills.
Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!
BY THE USE OF
Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER guise internal disease exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experience of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world: HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the RADIX OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs upon THE BLOOD itself, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and agreeable curative. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful antibilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Vernal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 63 cents, and $1 40 each.

THE THREE STAGES.

I saw a youth, a noble boy,
Endowed with talents rare;
His eyes were dazzling beaming joy,
His brow was smooth and fair,
His countenance was lit with truth—
I never saw a nobler youth;
He stood beside a den of sin—
Some thoughtless comrades coaxed him in.

The village youth all loved him well,
He was so gay and kind,
His good old teacher loved to tell
About his gaunt mark;
His parents oftentimes would say
They never knew him go astray:
But he knew not where he entered when
They lured him in that poison den.

I saw him ten years hence—a man—
In that same poison den;
In revelling he led the van,
A prince of wicked men.
I mark'd the wild and ghastly glare
From eyes that once so brilliant were
His brow so smooth and fair before
Was prematurely wrinkled o'er.

Beside him stood a soft fair form,
Meek as the angels are,
Ill fitted for to bear the storm
Of life 'mid such a jar:
Her pale wan cheeks, her drooping head
Too plainly told the life she led;
She pleaded long—he would not go.
Each answer added to her woe,

Ten years pass'd by,—I saw one more,
Near that same poison den,
A corpse which from the street was borne
By village boys and men;
I hastened to the spot to see
Who the unfortunate might be,
His locks with grey were sprinkled o'er,
Which mingled with the moonlight hoar.

His visage blasted, torn and marred:
The scars which o'er it ran,
Told but too plainly how he'd warred
With Heaven and with man;
But 'mid the wreck I yet could trace
Faint outlines of that lovley face
I saw but twenty years before
To enter at the tavern door.

SLEEING BARNUM.

Among the visitors to Barnum's Museum one day was a melancholly looking countryman, age about fifty, who did not seem particularly ravished with wonder or admiration by any of the extraordinary curiosities which surrounded him. He stood in the gaping crowd 'among them, but not of them,' in a several-year-old suit of black, which, like his elderly stove-pipe hat, show a long familiarity with the brush and that seed time and no harvest, had come upon it. The owner from the skinny and weary visage, anxious eye, tightly nipped lips, and thin though stiff erect figure, appeared as if he had been in every engagement throughout the war of life, and had not just graduated from the hospital of adversity. Where all around were gay, its solitary sorrow was the more conspicuous; and a party of young men, attracted by his unattractive exterior, asked to

What appeared to be the matter? and at their request he of any secret to him?

'Well yew kin, if yew'll just show me which of these folks is Barnum,' replied the countryman, with a strong nasal twang. 'I've cum an awful way to get interdewced to him.'

'That's Barnum,' was the response; and a portly looking individual was pointed out.

'Pshu! Is that Barnum? I've seen him around here lookin on and dewing nuthin, this half-hour. I hain't afeared tew butt right up to him and interdewce myself to him if that's Barnum. He dont look as if he'd bite anyone. I say, Mister Barnum is this yew? How do yew feel yourself—if your name is Barnum—is it?'

'Yes Sir,' said the person addressed, regarding the other with a peculiar smile; 'my name is Phineas T. Barnum, at your service.'

'Well I'm proper glad to see yew, any how, that's fact. My name is Ezra Aspect, and I've cum all the way from aour taown, in the furdermost end of Varmont, to see ye. The fact is I'm a farmer but I'm failed; and I want you to get me inter some kind of bizness, as they say ye her so many ideas, much money and very enterprisin, and like tew appreciate people who try tew git along and help themselves. Nsow as I'm failed up, I've no objection to bein a showman; and what dew yew think yew ken dew fur me; hey?'

'What do you think you can do for me? Step aside here Mr. Aspect, out of the crowd, and we can bargain without interruption.'

'Up tew trade rite off I see chuckled Aspect. 'No mor'n what I cal'lated on. Well naow I know a great many curious people up aour way, I ken get tew add tew your show of oddities; and ef yew don't want 'em, I'm willin to hire rite aout, at a liberal price, tew yew see anything in this world. For I'm failed, clean aout—all but almaout a leetle over a matter of five hundred dollars I fetched along with me, it wust should cum to wust. I hope yew won't think hard on me, because I failed. I've been a hard worker all my life, raised a family of seventeen children, and put all on em under the sod myself—and tew wives, tew—Betsy, she bed nine of the lot, and Jemima, she bed—'

'Never mind about your family Sir; I'm sorry for your loss; and as you say you've only five hundred dollars left—'

'All I could rake together—five hundred, and about forty-tew dollars, I guess it is naow over in my tahce at the Astore Hewse.'

'I can sympathize with a man who has failed for I failed once myself.'

'Well, so yew did, did'nt yew? Yer kerried on the clock bizness.. I recollect suppin about it.'

'Yes Sir I had too much time on my hands; no man can prosper that can say he has more time on his hands than he knows what to do with.'

'But they dew say that yew kerry on your bizness like clockwork and I recon yew lost nothing by it in the end. I swanny, yew must be richer'n sweetened gravy by this time. Why! about haow much do yew s'pose you're made, in the course of your hull life? O, I've heerd of ye, all long. Last summer a music-singer gin me a piece of paper, with the names of sum of your principal big guns, as far as he had any idee, and I've kept it ever since—here it is. Just name of yew please, haow much yew guess yew made, aout of each one, as I call 'em off—and in return I'll give yew a list of the curiosities, that I expeck will be the next tew set the world on fire.'

'Very well, Mr. Aspect, I will do so. Call.'

'There was Jice Heth, nuss of Geoege Washington I'

'Two million dollars, perhaps.'

'Marinaid!'

'One million, about.'

'Whew! what a fish. Tom Thumb I'

'Twenty millions, easy.'

'Solomon's glory! Woolly Hoss!'

'One million.'

'No-haired Hoss!'

'One million.'

'Jenny Lind.'

'Five million.'

'Baby Shows!'

'Three million'

'Fat Girl and Fat Boy!'

'Half a million apiece.'

'Hervis Nano, the man fly, O?'

'Half a million.'

'Bibu, German Giant; Freeman American Giant; Canot English Giant!'

'One million altogether.'

'French Giant!'

'One million all alone.'

'Tom Thumb with a view to matrimony.'

'Six millions.'

'Six million.'

'And the whole!'

'One million.'

'Well, yew! Naow I liggered 'em up and they make over fifty million dollars! Are yew worth that yet!'

'Not quite. You see it costs a good deal for printing and charities. I've given about one half to the press, and one-third to the poor. I've made much in other ways, besides having many other great cards you have not mentioned, and I, too; but though expences have been enormous I have built up a reputation, and, perhaps I could afford to live on the interest of that, if I never had another card.'

'Naow don't say that Mr. Barnum, for pity's sake! Yew hevn't heerd me tell of my novelties, yit.'

'I've got agents everywhere—they cost a great deal—ransacking the globe for one, from the Equator to both Poles—but I'm willing to trade with yo of worth while. What are your new novelties?'

'I don't want tew be vain, and stuck up, graound like; but I expeck ter make yer hair stand rite on the top of yer hade!'

'Go on, then, and startle me, as soon and as often as you please; I'm fond of excitement when it pays.'

'My last curiosity, I guess I kin get—yew may think we're queer people up there, and some on us are, but we ain't all so—it was such as I could dew to find 'em at aout—but they're there safe enough—I don't know whether its tue or nothings, or tum so nigh aff to Kennedy border, makes 'em so odd; or whether it happened so—but if we could be lucky enough tew git 'em all, we could jest take the rag off of all natur—she's a young gal, with a lame hand—I shan't mention names till we set horses—only eighteen years old.'

'What can she do?'

'Dew! Why she can't dew nauthin! that's the beauty of it. Nobody kin tell what's the matter with her hand! People and doctors her come from all parts, curious to find aout; and they can't. So they would here. Jest advertise her, and everybody'd want to see her lame hand. Put a suit of spangles on her, couldn't yer?'

'And what else?'

'Then there's a woman, older'n her, who remembers the very day she was born; every minute on't, and every particklar: know she felt, what she thought, what she wanted to say, and sich. She's a nuss. Naow nobody else kin do that!'

'Somebody told her, and she thinks she remembers.'

'No, she remembers, solemnly. Churchmember.'

'I don't think much of her. What else have you got?'

'My next is a woman in her ninetieth year, who owns a new way of making maple sugar. She kin make it in half the time and quarter the expense. She's sound, and lively, and skairt of nobody. Now, ef she sot on your stage, and told how she faound it aout, and gin receipts to the audience, she'd be valuable in my opinion.'

'Better engage her to some sugar-factory.'

'Think so? But she an't half I've got. I've got some performers.'

'Ah? Let's hear about them.'

'I've got a tall thin man, with supple legs, which will sit into a cheer, and fetch his heels and toes together, fair, behind the back on't—which that an't all he kin dew; for he has extry muscles, and kin fetch his nose and chin together of their ewn accord, stretchin 'em like Injy rubber, without fetchin 'em with his hand.'

'I want somebody who can do more than make both ends meet.'

'We're a boy of ten, who kin stan on his hede six haours and fifteen minutes—done it last Sunday—without inconvenience—cried, because his father came in and ketched him at it, and made him end up without finishin the last haour.'

'But an audience couldn't stop so long.'

'Well, then, here's one they could stop to; she's a famous hand at the needle, and understan's mewsic, and she's so nimble and correck, she kin keep time tew notes of mewsic with her needle, sewn a fine sewin right straight along, and not miss a note nor a stitch. We call her the Green Mountain Mewsic Stitcher, and have her at all the Fairs.'

'Don't think she'll do'

'We could git a young man from a grocery-shop, who could chew glass tumblers for ye, to little bits, without cuttin his mouth—but I spose that would be tew expensive, if he made a manies on't.'

'His teeth would give out in time; and if he don't swallow the inside of the tumbler, he had better stay where he is.'

'I don't think so much of him as I dew of aour large-mouth man. He's a double buster! kin git his hull fist intew his mouth at one time, and move his ears, like a hoss.'

'Of no consequence. Sir.'

'I swanny! He ought to draw—but even he wouldn't make so much fun as aour all-fours man.'

'What is his particular gift?'

'That feller kin more as fast, on all fours, as yew kin run—baounds like a grasshopper—thighs, loins, and arms all staunoospringy as a tiltin-board.'

'Anything else up your way?'

'O yes—ain't done yet! There's aour alphabet-man—kin say the letters in quick time, forrerd and back, a hundred times without stoppin', and not miss a letter—and the Lord's Prayer back tew, faster'n yew kin say it fore-tew; and kin whistle any toon perfeck after once hearin' of it—never misses sure fire.'

'Odd; but we couldn't make much of a handle of him.'

'Then, what dew you think of a water-swallower, who kin swaller a gallon at a time, without stoppin to breathe, as often as yer please, and throw it all up again, as clear as new?

'I should think he could never be troubled with a lou stomach.'

'But naow I think on't, I've got one that must beat. He's a curiosidity for ye! He trains thes so that they won't bite, by jest lookin' at 'em—says he kin, but won't till he can make a bizness on't. I told him ter hold on till I seen yew about it.'

'I should like to see him—though not to engage him—for he must be an almighty ugly looking man.'

'He'd be useful, I tell yew. I did mark daown another of the neighbors, who can go to sleep for a month and go without sleep for a month, without stoppin, and pleasant and healthy all the time; but he can't dew nothin.' Then, agin, what's your idee of a man ef wants to be called the Excelsior Cow-milker, and is sure to get one more quart after a cow is milked dry by anybody else?'

'It would be setting a bad example. People would try to imitate, and exhaust all their cows. He might do well in some hotel dairy, and be sure of an engagement, if he could make butter without churning.'

'Well, well you're hard to please.'

'Not I, it's the public.'

'Then how would this please 'em? I kin show yew a man, that we call the headache stammerer—kin warrant he'll give a headache in five minutes to anybody hears him speak. His own head never ached in his life—he's all nerve like a rock.'

'He'd better study for the ministry.'

'I'm most aout of curiosidities Mr. Barnum! Best not tew be too particklar. I can purpose one man more, who is a great mystery, on accoaut of a strong gallopin noise he's got, on the under side of his best shoe—it's leathery. Some say it's his heart.'

'Don't want him.'

'And one man more, for a performer, who has had a bad cough all his life—ketched it in a cave, up in the Green Mountains, when he was an infant, and his mother was aout huntin beers—and so used to coughin and singing psalms that he kin cough Old Hundred and Greenlan's Icy Mountains plain as day.'

'Wouldn't do. We should have the whole city coughing and bursting blood-vessels.'

'Then all I kin say is, I've onny got one more curiosidity fo yew; and if yew don't snap at her I'm done—and she's my cousin Marian Lapwing, and all her teeth are double.'

'Double rows?'

'No, double teeth; under and upper jaw, all double and sound as flints. Everybody ought to see them teeth.'

'But she'd have to keep her mouth on the stretch. Suppose we had an audience of three thousand people. Everybody would want to look in, and it would kill her to be opening her mouth three thousand times a day.'

'But couldn't yew jest set her onto the stage in a cheer, and have a tremenjus magnifying-glass afore her! and then she could open wide, and show them tuskers, and the hull audience could look through and see 'em all at one lick.'

'That might do. Happy thought! So they could; and I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll engage her—if she's all you say when you bring her down—at a thousand dollars a week, for one year, and a clear benefit on the 4th of July and Thanksgiving Day.'

'Jewackity! She'll agree to that.'

But I must have five hundred dollars down, to prove your sincerity and respectability, and warrant my advertising her, as a great double dental phenomenon forthwith.'

I kin dew that, easy, Mr. Barnum. Just step over to my room at the Astore House, and you shall have the cash, give me a receipt, and I'll start for Marian this day.'

This was accordingly done; and before the end of the week, Ezra Aspect, with the heroine of the double teeth presented himself at the American Museum, and enquired for Barnum, who at once made his appearance, happening to be within hearing.

'I am Mr. Barnum.'

'Yew Mr. Barnum?' exclaime! Ezra, aghast; for this was not the person with whom he had made such a promising bargain a few days before. 'Air yew shure?'

'Quite sure by this time,' was the reply.

'Then who was that feller I gin five hundred dollars tew to bind the bargain? I done it by thunder! And he said his name was Mr. Barnum, or my name's not Ezra Aspect.'

His story was now told, and much mourning was the consequence, when the great showman expressed his sympathy, proved his identity, and convinced him he had been swindled.

It was a heavy blow to the unlucky man, for he could but effect a trade for Marian, in spite of her teeth, and he was out of funds; but having assured himself that the countryman had told the truth, after paying a handsome compliment to Marians dental furniture, Mr. Barnum somewhat settled their disappointment, by adding:

'I'll pay your way home, Mr. Aspect, since my name has been taken in vain; and in the course of a year, if you should venture into the show-business, with some or all of your novelties, don't forget me—but write and let me know how you are getting along.'

'Yew shall certainly hear from me,' said the man grasping his hand with fervor; 'I shall never forgit I've seen Barnum, as long as I live: and in the mean time, if you should be in want of any help from me, don't be bashful about it, and dew write right off.

And having received assurance to that effect, he departed with his mess, leaving Barnum to muse anew upon rural ideas of what would make a fortune in the world of amusements; and on the advantages and inconveniences of being well-known!

EZRA OLIVER WENDELL.

WINDOW BLINDS.

It is well known by all physiologists and agriculturists, that neither animals nor vegetables grow and thrive without sunlight. Human beings physically are governed by the same natural laws, so far as the sources of life and health are concerned—such as pure air, water, sunlight, etc.—as the lower animals. Horses, cows, swine and other animals kept in dam stables, and low, wet pens, are a hundred-fold more liable to disease than those kept in apartments that are high and dry. Entire living in damp houses, or in low, wet, localities, are subject to colds, coughs, intermittent fevers, neuralgia, rheumatism, and numerous other forms of disease. Now it needs no particular demonstration to convince a person of common observation that darkness and dampness go together. During a rainstorm the earth's surface be comes wet; let the rain cease and it will still continue dark and cloudy, and the water will remain for a long time. But let the sun appear in all his brilliancy, and we can soon roam the field without damping our feet. During these storms, the inside as well as outside of dwellings accumulate dampness. If from the rooms of these dwellings we shut out the sunlight, and more especially the atmospheric air with it, they will remain damp almost indefinitely. Hence, these rooms, to be in the best condition for the health and comfort of those who occupy them, should receive plenty of light and plenty of fresh air. Then again, if dwelling-houses could be made perfectly dry with the exclusion of sun-light, although this would be a better condition of things than a damp room without light, yet the light of the sun would still be essential to the vigorous growth, and health and happiness of all the occupants of such houses.

Now, go with me from town to town throughout the country, during spring, summer, and autumn, and examine the dwellings in reference to this subject, and you will find that our people instead of acting on the found on natural law that sunlight is conducive to health, practice almost entirely on the opposite principle; and one would conclude from observation that Americans actually believe that coming in contact with the sun's rays, or freely admitting sunlight into our dwellings, is one of the most dangerous practices known. Blinds are kept shut almost constantly on the South, East, and West sides of houses; rooms are kept dark as Egypt, week after week, and month after month; and the two prominent reasons almost universally given for this nearly total exclusion of light from our dwellings, are: First, that it saves us the trouble of dust; second, it preserves our carpets from fading; and this is all true. Flies, from instinct, seek a light, healthy location; hence, when we darken our rooms, they withdraw their patronage. Carpets are so colored that bright sunlight will fade them, and by shutting them away from sunlight they retain their bright colors.

But the question is, shall we make our dwellings unhealthy for the sake of these advantages? Doing so, to my mind, is as inconsistent as it is for the farmer to plant corn on a sandbank to save the trouble of weeds, instead of planting on good soil, and then taking care of his weeds. The sandbank will not grow weeds, neither will it grow corn; but the rich soil that will give vigorous weeds, under proper cultivation will give a good crop of vegetables. A room so dark and unhealthy that flies will not inhabit it, is also unhealthy for human beings to dwell in; while a room in a condition to give vigorous and healthy flies, other things being equal, will give vigorous and healthy people. It may be unpleasant to look upon a faded carpet, but the true father and true mother should much prefer to look upon a faded carpet than upon a diseased and faded daughter.—Herald of Health.

A RAT DESTROYER.—A correspondent of the Country Gentleman gives the following method of destroying rats: "Having a grain distillery, with always a large quantity of rats, we cleared our place as follows—We bait fish hooks of a small size, with dried beef, not too large, but just the size for a rat to swallow; scatter them to secure places from dogs chickens, cats, &c., and in a few days you will hear a great commotion of the rats vacation; they get them in the mouth and stomach, and cannot get them out, and they convey the information to the rest."

ADVICE FOR BOYS.—"You are made to be kind, generous and magnanimous," says Horace Mann. "If there is a boy in school who has a club-foot, don't let him know you ever saw it. If there is a boy with ragged clothes, don't talk about rags in his hearing. If there is a lame boy assign him some part of the game which does not require much running. If there is a dull one, help him to get his lesson."

Does the quotation, "Encompassed in an angel frame," have any relation to hoopskirts?

THE FENIAN MOVEMENT.

There was a great Fenian meeting at Greenpoint near New York, on Wednesday evening last, but for the purpose of organizing a "circle" in that place. The orator of the evening was James Brennan, to whose name the New York papers append the (now) unmeaning distinction of "Esq." He made a violent harangue, against England, and threatened vengeance, dire and speedy for the wrongs she had heaped upon "suffering Ireland." Referring to the Fenian Brotherhood, he declared to say that it was not a secret society; as that was required of its members was to take the oath prescribed by the constitution, enjoining upon freshmen the extending of fraternal feelings among the natives of Ireland in this country, and discountenancing sentiments among them leading to the freedom of Ireland. To the freedom of that country the Fenian Brotherhood stand pledged. Where was the Irishman who would refuse to join an organization for such a noble object? It was said that the Irish people could not be united. He hurled such an idea from him with the contempt it deserved. The Irish people could be united, and would be when the liberation of Ireland, even at the point of the sword, was demanded of England. (Applause.) Every people had more or less dissension, and the Irish people it was true had theirs, but it was a falsehood to say that Irishmen cannot form as strong and united people as any other people. (Applause.) The contest with England was sure to come, and it would go on until Celt, and not the Saxon, was permitted to rule Ireland. Previous to the famine years there were 9,000,000 of people in Ireland. After that famine only 5,000,000 were found. Many had died, but the great majority had emigrated to America. In Ireland the Irish people can compare with any people under the sun. That country seemed to be in the background altogether, so far as self-government was concerned. Ireland must fight for herself, and if she will only do so her liberty is sure. There are many thousands of Irishmen who were ready to move against England as soon as marching orders were issued.—There were even Major-Generals who had fought in the war now closed who were Fenians, and the time was drawing nigh when the blow will be struck. (Applause) The Fenian Brotherhood was organized to collect funds and to organize Irishmen at home so that they could join the liberators as soon as they land on the soil to give the blow which will bring freedom to the land of O'Connell. It was said that England was a very strong nation. It was not in her navy, for that day had passed away. If it was her army that made her strength, that army was composed mostly of Irishmen, and it could not be supposed that they would fight against their fathers and brothers in the event of the Irish people rising against the English Government. During the Irish rebellion England did not send her Irish regiments to crush it. She sent her Scotch and English regiments. Nor would she send her Irish soldiers to Ireland if another rebellion should take place. She would not send them to India, for there were more rebels among the Ganges than there are in Ireland (Applause and laughter.) She might send some of them to Canada, but it would be rather an unsafe experiment to send them so near to the United States. England has recognized the power of the Fenians. Circles were organized all over the United States and the influence of the brotherhood was beginning to be felt most powerfully. England said that she was thoroughly prepared by 62,000 troops—but more—to suppress any uprising of the Irish people. But this was one of England's lies. It would be proved that Irishmen would not fight against their country. (Applause.) The Irish people could take possession of Ireland at any time in twenty-four hours and all the Fenians would have to do would be to hold it. England knew that the contest was coming, and she was unprepared on account of it. In Ireland was capable of supporting 20,000,000 of people. She could produce everything—she could export and sell as well as any country in the world. The speaker went on to show why every Irishman should join the Fenians. It was a duty they owed to their countrymen in Ireland, and now was the time to perform it. Some might think the Fenian movement was a boasting, while others knew that such was not the case. The object of the society was to organize the natives and friends of Ireland so that they may be ready to act in the time shall arrive, as shortly it must, for the Irishmen to arise in their might. The Fenians were strong; there are now in the State 100 circles. In Scotland, Ireland and Canada there are thousands in the ranks, showing that has already discussed the question, and that is a great point gained. They are alarmed about Canada. A while since England asked Secretary Seward why Colonel of the army of the Potomac was allowed to speak at a Fenian meeting, and why the Attorney-General of the State of Louisiana presided at the Fenian convention in Cincinnati. Seward is a shrewd man, and replied that Gleason organized a regiment because it was not left to him, and that the Attorney-General was responsible to his own State. (Laughter.) England has but 29,000 of her regular army in Ireland, she has 15,000 in Scotland, and in England 150,000. (And well you, I guess, every man, when these cowardly and sneaking keepers come all at you! (Applause and derisive laughter.) The police, of course, are around, stationed six or seven yards apart, in squads of a dozen. They can easily be mastered and their guns seized. The army is but one-half Irish and will not fight us at all. This is the land strength of England. In the Kaffir war, when she needed 20,000 men, she could not get them in her kingdom, as I was convinced of recruiting in several of our large cities, and her Minister was at home therefor by President Pierce. If, then, she could not at that time get 20,000 where are the required 100,000, to come from? The Fenians have resources and men. The army of the Potomac, its Irish privates and generals are ready and drilled. (Cheers.)—

THE NEW WORLD.

Even the general reader of passing events cannot fail to see the unsettled state of the political institutions of this continent. In the Southern portion there is not that stability that is calculated to ensure personal safety, liberty or national permanence. The first settlers of that portion of the new world never enjoyed that liberty of thought and action that could ensure the progress of civil and and religious liberty, and in consequence of these, the permanence of political institutions. The Spaniard and the Portuguese were too fast bound with the cords of superstit on and too long under a system of foolishness to be able at once to strike for freedom, or if granted to enjoy it. The territorial extent of the new world however afforded the means of escape from the misrule of those who would still exercise it. And in the retreats of the wilderness, so to speak, a complete revolution of mind was effected and immediately of government. One by one the colonists threw off the yoke of their European masters, and set up for themselves. At the present moment the new institutions appear to be merely on trial, and assuredly the most severe tests are being applied with the single exception of our own Province. Our institutions are no less on trial, however than are the institutions of the United States and Mexico, theirs are being tried by the most fiery ordeals, while ours are assayed by the no less effectual ordeal of experimentation. The Northern portion only of this continent can boast the glory of establishing their institutions on the principles of complete individual liberty. In consequence it is the portion that does and will continue to exercise the greatest influence in the affairs of the whole American continent. It is impossible to shut our eyes to the fact that America is too far from Europe to be kept under the iron hand of any power, and its inhabitants are too independent to be continually begging protection or assistance from the parent states. The sooner the nations of the old world learn this, and are influenced by it the better, for both themselves and the people of this continent. If, therefore, France or Spain wishes to establish or retain a power on this side the Atlantic, the only wise way to do so is to establish it on the freely expressed and sincerely desired will of the people, founded and retained solely on the most unrestrained and independent action of mind and conscience, and then they may expect to leave a monument of political greatness and durability that will remain the shock time and of popular commotion.

In the same manner, if Great Britain would retain her present possessions in North America, it will not be by chafing the people about their niggardliness and unwillingness to defend themselves; but by doing her part without grumbling or fault-finding, and then she will find that her faithful subjects in these Provinces will not be behind in doing all that defence, duty, and respect for Britain, requires of them. But British statesmen should by this time be aware that the descendants of Britons cannot always bear to be chided and lectured as paupers, and be forced to suppliantly sue for natural rights, the right of reasonable protection so long as they are held as minors, unable to manage their own business, and not permitted to regulate their own alliances and treaties. A moderate course of action towards us will serve as a more closely connecting bond of union and of respect for the institutions of our ancestors, an unsettled state of affairs will beget uneasiness, which may unsettle the connexion without benefiting either parties, in the meantime, and in the end may be an injury to both. While, perhaps, there is as much niggardliness and assuredly there is as much untowardness towards us, in so much talk about the few thousands required for Canadian defences, as Canadians exhibit in refusing to beggar themselves for no good purpose in building defences which, alone, Canadians do not imagine themselves able to defend. The continuance, also, of the present tone of British Statesmen, and of the British Press will only tend to completely alienate the people, and, although reluctantly, induce them to either set up for themselves, or to seek an alliance with those who possess closer political affinities, and as a consequence, a greater desire for connexion with us. The Canadian people wait, anxiously wait, the result of the present delegation to England. Prudence on the part of Britain now may calm the uneasiness, and set the the minds of the people; indifference, either real or apparent, may bring about a degree of humiliation which she neither expects nor desires.

Re-opening of Communication with Cobourg.

The Steamer Otonabee, running in connection with the Cobourg & Peterboro Railway, made her first trip on Monday, from Harwood to the "Locks" below the Town.

On Friday last, it was announced by large placards, posted all over Town, that the Steamer would commence her trips on Monday, and that she would arrive at about half-past twelve o'clock. Long before twelve, large numbers of people, Male and Female, began to arrive at the Locks, and were continually increased, until about one o'clock, when several hundreds were present, anxiously waiting the arrival of the Steamer. At this time several who had been waiting a considerable time, and were beginning to feel the want of their dinners, left the ground. At about half-past two, she was discovered rounding the point, below the Locks, and the "Peterboro Brass Band," which had been stationed on the pier, commenced to play, and cheer after cheer went up from the assembled multitude, until the vessel entered the Lock. She was crowded with passengers, or rather, pleasure seekers, amongst whom we noticed Honorables J. Cockburn, G. S. Boulton, A. A. Burnham, and H. Rutan, G. S. Dainty, Esq., Lessee of the Cobourg & Peterboro Railway, and Mayor of Cobourg; Dr. Beatty, late Mayor of Cobourg; Brigade Major Patterson; Captain Greenwood, of the Steamer Rochester; John Field, Jr., Esq., Wm. Hargraft, James Cameron, ———Stanton, A. B. Carpenter, Roger Bates, C. White, Wm. Gravely, Jr., D. H. Mineaker, John Dumble, Esqs., Mr. Davaney, Agent of the Grand Trunk Railway at Cobourg; and a great many others whom we did not know. On the Lock Piers several flags were hoisted, a large Banner, with the words in very large letters—Welcome Cobourg, was erected immediately in front of the landing place. As soon as the party landed, and after shaking hands with old and new friends, they entered carriages which were in waiting, and accompanied by the Peterboro and Cobourg Brass Bands, they proceeded to Town, and at Caisse's partook of lunch. After spending about an hour in Town, they again drove down to the Steamer, accompanied by the Bands, and several persons from Town. Charles Perry, Esq., ex-Mayor, stepped to the gangway, and said—"Mr. Dainty, and Gentlemen from Cobourg, I cannot allow the opportunity to go by without expressing the pleasure I feel in once more meeting my Cobourg friends, under such circumstances. I am not now the Head of the Town Council, and of course only speak in my capacity as a private individual. I hope your enterprise will turn out to your advantage, and be a solid benefit not only to the Town of Cobourg and Peterboro, but to the Gentlemen who have had the energy and ability to make the commencement, and in conclusion, state that the people of Peterboro will always rejoice in the well-doing of Cobourg.

W. A. Scott, Esq., Mayor, said, Mr. Mayor of Cobourg and Gentlemen. I am very happy to meet my friends from Cobourg here to-day, and especially as they are here to reopen the communication between this town and Cobourg. I am not authorized to speak in my capacity as Head of the Council; I only speak in the capacity of a private individual. I wish you all the success that your enterprise deserves. I have always experienced the greatest kindness from the Merchants and business men of Cobourg, and am always glad to meet them. If you are able to keep your line open, which I sincerely hope you will, it will have the good effect of making Cobourg and Peterboro better acquainted than they are to-day, and be a mutual benefit. Several cheers were then given for Cobourg and Peterboro, the Mayors of each town &c. After the cheering ceased, G.S. Daintry, Esq., the Lessee of the Cobourg and Peterboro Railway, stepped to the railing and said Mr. Mayor, and Gentlemen. I cannot express the gratitude which I feel to you to-day, for the manner in which we have been received. I feel it is an honor done to Cobourg, and as her Mayor, I thank you for your hearty welcome. I consider the interests of the Town of Cobourg are in a measure bound up in the enterprize, and as I have been three times unanimously elected her Mayor, I feel it my duty to do everything in my power to further her interests, and I will continue to do so as long as I have a cent left. I know that powerful opposition will be brought to bear against my enterprise, by Messrs. Covert & Fowler, but although I respect these gentlemen as neighbors and business men, still I will not allow them to crush the Town of Cobourg to benefit themselves. I put a boat on the Rochester route, and it is a paying route, although its failure was predicted. I have placed this Boat upon this route and will make it pay if possible. Pay or no pay, I will keep the line running. I am well backed, and have a pretty stiff back myself, and can stand opposition as long as Messrs. Covert and Fowler, with the Bank of Toronto at their back. I again thank you for your hearty welcome.

Several persons from Peterboro went on board and accompanied them as far as the Bridge, about nine miles down the River, where they were met by McGreggor's Buzz, and brought back to Town, arriving at about nine o'clock.

The Steamer brought up two large Scows, with a lot of iron and other goods for our Merchants. Large lots of Lumber are now at the Locks, and the scows will leave loaded with sawn lumber every day. We understand that this line will take lumber about 30 cents per thousand cheaper than the Port Hope and Peterboro Railway, and as the wharfage dues are about one-half less than at Port Hope, a considerable saving will be effected by our Lumber Dealers.

We have not the least doubt but that large numbers of our people will avail themselves of the Pleasure of a trip to Harwood, as the fare is to be low enough to be an inducement to travellers to prefer this Route to the Port Hope and Peterboro line.

The boat will arrive at the Locks every day (except Sundays) at half-past twelve o'clock.

Captain Sutherland, so long and favorably known in connection with the Cobourg and Peterboro Railway, is the Agent in Town.

PHOTOGRAPHY.—We have received from Mr. Ewing's Studio, a Photograph representing the arrival of the Steamer "Otonabee" at the Locks on Monday last, on the occasion of the opening of the communication between Peterborough and Cobourg, for which he will accept our thanks. The picture is a very good one.

WOOL was selling in the Market yesterday for 34 and 35 cents per pound.

The quarterly Fair takes place in this town on Tuesday next.

Rebel Leaders,—Yankee Vindictiveness.

Now that the great Rebellion is crushed, the Rebel armies almost all surrendered, and the complete superiority of the North over the South established. The great enquiry of the day is, "What will be done to the leaders of the Rebellion?" How will President Johnson make Rebellion infamous? Does he intend to execute the whole leaders, aiders and abettors of the South? Jeff. Davis has fallen into the hands of the Northern government, and to their eternal disgrace, is used more like a highway robber or murderer than a fallen chieftain. Every means is resorted to, to make him a scorn, a taunt and a by-word. The old plan of falsehood and misrepresentation is used to blacken his character, make him appear contemptible in the eyes of the world, and prepare the United States public to clamor for his execution, innocent or guilty, regardless of the wisdom or foolishness of such an act. Even the female part of his household has to endure a more than due share of Ex-President Davis's present ignominy, Every word spoken by any one of his household is minutely criticised and contorted to such an uncommon degree by unprincipled reporters and by venal newspaper writers, that one would be led to imagine that Mrs. Davis was a low, illbred plebian of the very dregs of society, and that Jeff. Davis was of the offscouring of American society, instead of that man whom twelve millions of people unanimously elected their President, at a time when they knew and felt that they required a President of courage, wisdom and determination, all of which qualities he has exhibited during the four years he held the position. As a scholar he compares favorably with any of the Northern leaders, as all his manifestoes during the strife abundantly testify. To what good, then, can the present persecution of a fallen foe tend? What advantage can the cause of the union or of abolition derive from the unprecedented course now pursued towards him, seeing that he is vanquished, that the union is restored, and his cause departed? We answer it can do no good, and will only shew a littleness of soul, a vindictiveness of disposition that will rather injure the cause of the North than benefit it, and will by no means elevate them in the world. Surely a noble generosity, that would forgive, but exile the Rebel leaders, would do more to render the institutions and government of the United States popular in the eyes of good men, and would at the same time inflict an adequate punishment on those who carried on the civil strive, and would prove that the Government of the United States is so strong that it can afford to be generous and forgiving without endangering its existence or shaking its institutions, than the hanging of all the rebels from the Potomac to the Gulf of Mexico. But if Davis be executed, what will then follow? All the leading Generals and Governors of States stand a very poor chance indeed. The bloodthirstiness that would murder Davis is not likely to be satiated, until such men as Lee, Johnston, Beauregard, Stephens, and a host of other popular and dreaded persons are also among the proscribed and executed. Are the people of the United States prepared to introduce the Guillotine, or to erect scaffolds all over the land? We trow not. Yet popular clamor may gain the mastery of unprincipled and unsettled officials, and bring about scenes of, what may hereafter be considered, martyrdom, which in reaction will do what the rebellion has not done—overthrow the great Republic. By consigning Davis to exile he will be rendered entirely unable to engender any more strife. By pardoning Lee, who all along fought only for his native State and State rights, he will be converted into a warm friend and staunch supporters of the union as it is. By prosecuting or hanging him civilization would shudder—thousands in the North would yet become his worshippers and the disregard of the Government to its treaty of parole with Lee and others, would become a burthen that would eventually crush the American Republic. Let the Roman Republic be a warning to the American Republic. The slaughter of Pompey only paved the way for the assassination of Cæsar. And as leader slew leader, the seeds of dissolution were being sown, until the great Republic sunk under the weight of its blood, envy and factions.

THE RECIPROCITY TREATY.

The unwise policy of the United States, induced by over-contracted views of self-interest, procured the intervention of the Washington authorities for the termination of the Treaty. Very many of the American people, but especially those in the West, look upon the matter as in every way injurious to them to have it terminated, and consequently strongly urge its continuance. It remains to be seen, what effect the remonstrances of the West may have at Washington. In the meantime it is wise to discuss the subject in all its bearings. To this end the Publishers of the Trade Review offer premiums for the best essays on the advantages of Reciprocity to the United States and Canada.

The following is the offer:—

PRIZE ESSAYS.

THE RECIPROCITY TREATY.

The Convention of the Boards of Trade from nearly all the cities of the United States and Canada, to be held in Detroit in July next, will afford an excellent opportunity for the dissemination of correct ideas regarding the Reciprocity Treaty. The great importance of the subject to Canada, and the necessity of having the question clearly apprehended by the public mind of the United States, render it essential that this opportunity should be improved.

The publishers of the Trade Review, desirous of contributing to the general fund of information upon the subject, offer the following prizes for Essays or Articles on the subject thus stated:—

RECIPROCITY:

Its advantages to the United States and Canada.

First Prize..... $50.00
Second Prize..... 25.00

The articles should not exceed two pages or six columns of the Trade Review, and to be published therein. The publishers undertake to circulate, gratuitously, a large number among the delegates to the Convention and their constituents. The Essays to be sent in so as to reach the undersigned by Friday, June 23rd.

The Judges will be announced next week.

There has been no rain in this neighbourhood for the last twelve days; the dust on the streets is suffocating in consequence.

BOOK NOTICES.

That interesting and instructive periodical, Good Words, for May, is now received. The contents of the present number appear to be equal to those of any of the previous numbers. The matter is of an elevating and moral tendency, as well as instructive in matters of Philosophy, and subjects of every day life. It is Edited by Norman MacLeod, D. D., one of Her Majesty's Chaplains, and published by Strahan, & Co., Ludgate Hill, London.

THE SUNDAY MAGAZINE:—This periodical is Edited by Dr. Guthrie, and also Published by Messrs. Strahan & Co., London, and sold by all the wholesale houses. The contents of the May number are numerous and various and well suited to gratify the reader. The name of its Editor is enough to ensure a large circulation in Canada. The tone of the work throughout is highly moral, being calculated to instruct and elevate as well as please.

Dawson, Bro's. of Montreal, have favored us with a copy of a Pamphlet entitled, 'An Analytical and Critical Synopsis of a Selection of Piano Forte Literature, &c.,' by Dr. James Peeh. The object of the work is to create and strengthen a taste for the higher principles of the art of Music. An extract from the work will perhaps convey the object of the author:—"All works of Art may be judged by the motions and ideas they excite in the cultivated mind. In the first place, they must be true, that is they must be the offspring of a natural feeling. The Artist must feel deeply before he can hope to strike the electric chain which connects the soul and sympathies of mankind." "Admitting, then, Music as an Art and Science to be a powerful element of civilization, does not its cultivation among us become a matter of public importance." Admitting that in Music, low class works tend to vitiate the taste, and excite in the mind a low train of ideas, is it not of paramount importance that a high taste should be cultivated." The present work is calculated to stir up the ambition of those who desire to excel and to make music, especially, more a work of art than pastime, or amusement for to gratify a bad taste or a chimerical idea of accomplishments without even the rudimentary knowledge of it. We hope the author may succeed. What is worth learning at all is worth learning well.

SKEDADDLED.—It becomes our duty to chronicle the departure of one our citizens, J. R. Walton, for parts unknown and under circumstances the most dishonest and dishonorable. Mr. Walton was what might be termed a General Insurance Agent, and represented some of the best companies in the Province. We are sorry to have to record however, that very many are likely to suffer more or less because of the regular system of fraud he has been carrying on for at least some months. The premiums that were paid him were often used by him for months, according to reports, before he forwarded the money to the head offices. Lately he has been applying to his own purposes, the money that had been sent to compensate those who had suffered by fire. Some have lost considerable in this way. We also hear of numerous cases of persons who entrusted him with money to lift their notes that were held by the Company. These have not received their notes, but they think they can look to the Companies for the amount. He has left a few to lament his untimely departure—parties who lent him money, and others who went his security. We cannot give a true account of the amount thus carried off, but we are informed that it amounts to several thousands of dollars.

The most aggravating incident in connexion with Mr. Walton's career, is that during his residence in Peterborough he occupied a very prominent position in one of our Protestant Churches. In fact was one of its leading members, and even to the last assumed the garb of sanctity. By this means he deceived many, as very few would ever dare to harbor an unkind thought of one who seemed so earnest in the prayer meeting, in the services and at revival meetings. Whether he squandered the unjust plunder in excessive living, or carried it away with him few can tell, but one thing we can tell, that he has acted the part of the greatest of hypocrites. As the sanctimonious whine was ever on his tongue. We find that this is not his first dishonest act. Three times has he thus defrauded his innocent creditors and friends, and now is gone to other quarters we have no doubt, to do likewise. We hope his antecedents will follow him this time, and be a warning to those with whom he may again try to ingratiate himself.

A NARROW ESCAPE OF BEING DROWNED.—On Sabbath last two boys named respectively Walsh and Savage, were so foolish as to attempt to run the dam at the Locks in an old punt. Their folly well nigh cost them their lives. Just as they got over the dam the force of current swept their tiny craft into the stronger current that is caused by a part of the dam being broken away, and partly by the shape of the dam; one part of it being across the river, the other portion being formed to suit the old locks, between the two currents their punt got swamped. One of the boys made for the shore, the other could not swim, and stuck to the boat: on seeing this, the boy who could swim returned to the boat also, Some persons who were on the shore immediately obtained an old boat or canoe at a crib and rescued them, but not till they were well nigh worn out, had no one been near they must have perished.

THE OTTAWA CITIZEN.—With pleasure we notice the progress of the Citizen. The enterprising Publisher now issues a daily paper. The Weekly Citizen was, and continues to be well conducted, and therefore we may predict the same for the daily issue. And as Ottawa is now the Capital of Canada, and very soon the Government will be established there, we may therefore expect the Citizen to act an important part in supplying the distant parts of the Province with the news of the day. Our contemporary has our best wishes for his success in this new enterprize.

THE CROPS. — Lately we had the pleasure of a short trip through Cavan, and in so doing we find that the Winter wheat looks exceedingly well, we were also informed that this is general over the Township. The Spring crops, also, that were got in early, are healthy and promising. Fruit trees are in beautiful bloom, being literally covered with blossoms, giving every indication of an abundant crop. Hay crops look well; thus affording every prospect of a full return to the husbandman.

SPRING CIRCUIT 1865.

The sittings of the Court of Chancery at Peterborough before the Hon. Vice Chancellor Mowat, commenced on Friday last and terminated on Tuesday. This is the first sittings of the Court of Chancery in this Town. There were seven cases on the docket.

The following causes were tried:—

In the matter of James Harvey an alledged Lunatic. This was a petition to be heard for the appointment of a committee to manage the affairs of Mr. James Harvey of this town, presented by Mr. James Chalmers. Hon Sidney Smith Q. C. for the petitioner. Petition opposed by Mr. Harvey in person.

A number of witnesses were called and the jury after retiring a few minutes, returned a verdict "That Mr James Harvey was of unsound mind and incapable of managing his affairs."

BURNHAM v SHORT.—Mr Blake for Plaintiff. Mr. Read Q. C. and Mr. Dennistoun for defendant. Judgment reserved.

CHALMERS v PIGGOT an infant.—Hon. S. Smith Q. C. and Mr. Read Q. C. for plaintiff and Mr. Blake, and D. Blain for defendant. Judgement reserved.

BROWNLEE v CUNNINGHAM.—Hon. S. Smith Q. C. for plaintiffs, Mr. D. Blain for defendants. Decree for Plaintiffs.

HUTCHINSON v EDMONSON.—Mr. Read Q. C. and Mr. Dumble for plaintiff, Mr. Blake Q. C. for defendant. Judgement reserved.

FOWLES v METHERALL.—This case occupied the Court 14 hours, and there were 31 witnesses examined. The case turned on the point whether the alleged agreement in July 1862 between the defendants Metheralls and the defendant Bradburn was actually made or not. Hon. Sidney Smith Q. C. and Mr. Blake Q. C. for the Plaintiffs. Mr. Fitzgerrald for the defendant Bradburn. Bill against defendants Metheralls dismissed. Decree for the plaintiffs with cost.

MCALLISTER v O'NEILL.—Hon. Sidney Smith Q. C. for the plaintiffs and Mr. Blake Q. C. for the defendants. Judgment reserved.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Tuesday May 30th 1865.

Present His Worship the Mayor, W. A. Scott, Esq., Messrs. Helm, Stevenson, Ormond, Chamberlen, Williams, Wylie, Lawson, Leonard, McNaughton and Toole.

The Clerk stated to the Council that owing to the vacancy of the seat of the late Mayor, an election was held and W. A. Scott, Esq., had been elected, that he had made and deposited in the office the necessary declarations of qualification of office.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

The Mayor stated that he had called the present meeting in consequence of not having a quorum last night at the instance of the members then present as business of importance he understood had to be attended to.

A report from the committee on Finance and Assessment was read by the Chairman as follows:—Your Committee on Finance and Assement beg to report as follows:—The following accounts have been examined and when requisite corrected, they would recommand to be paid.

Lewis Guest	$9.72
Examiner office	32.84
For labour certified by W. Arnot	11.50
Account for burial of a pauper	6.50

Your committee would suggest that in cases of this kind for the future, economy should be used.

An account from the Fire Company for lamp $12.—The lamp not required.

Your committee consider they are not justified in recommending the payment of $2.40 for pails used at a fire.

An account of Thomas Fry, your committee must retain till further information can be obtained, there being no date to the bill except when delivered.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

C. ORMOND, Chairman.

A communication from Mrs. Jane Hall, acquainting the Council, that the Home for the indigent was now ready for the reception of those soliciting aid from the Council, was read and received.

Accounts from Returning Officers for holding the recent Elections, were handed in and referred to the Committee on Finance and Assessment.

Moved by Mr. Stevenson, and seconded by Mr. Williams, that the By-law for fixing the payments of the money received from the Railway be now read and passed. Carried.

The By-law was read and passed.

Mr. Toole gave notice of a resolution in relation of repairs upon George Street.

The Council then adjourned to the second Monday in June at 7½ o'clock p. m.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.—The Anniversary Services in connection with the Bible Christian Church, at Northey's Smithtown, will be held on Sunday the 11th day of June next; we understand that the Rev. Mr. Colwell, late pastor of the Peterborough Church will be present. On Wednesday following a tea meeting will be held, on which occasion several addresses will be delivered.

ORANGE ASSOCIATION.—The Semi-Annual meeting of the County Orange Lodge of the County of Peterborough, will be held in the Orange Hall in the Town of Peterborough, on Tuesday the 6th instant. The Semi-Annual District meeting for the District of Peterborough will be held in the Orange Hall the same day.

The quantity of timber that has passed down the river during the week, has been immense, and it the same rate should continue, in a few days all the manufactured timber will be down. The whole quantity made this year, is small, however, compared with last year. We wish the manufacturers profitable returns.

NEW STORE.—L. Lemay, late of the firm of F. & L. Lemay, is now opening out a large stock of Dry Goods and Ready-made Clothing, which will be sold at moderate prices. His stand is on Hunter Street, next door to McKellar & Cameron's. See Advertisement.

PERSONAL.—We are pleased to notice in the east official Gazette, that our fellow townsman, Thos. M. Fairbairn, Esq., has been appointed a Notary Public in Upper Canada.

The Steamer "Otonabee" on Tuesday, took away 90,000 feet of lumber, it was her first trip.

The Communication of X. Y. Z., is received out this week.

ON A DISTINCTION OF CLASSES.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—In the Weekly Spectator of the 17th instant, I find the following in an article entitled "British Aristocracy." "They (the aristocracy,) are the best men of the State" a natural consequence indeed of their education and mode of bringing up." What nonsense! and in spite of all that the learned Editor of the Spectator has said to the contrary, I contend that true nobility does not consist in descent (as the Spectator insinuates) from a particular line of Ancestors.

The supporters of this nobility theory have a difficulty to encounter which I hold to be insurmountable, viz: the impossibility of proving that whatever the qualification, the possession of which may have led an individual to be thought worthy the honours and authority of a nobleman, such qualifications are necessarily hereditary. The question arises, can we secure to any particular class the possession of these qualifications? The Editor of the Spectator assumes that we can; while common sense aided by experience, declares that we cannot; and when the Spectator and common sense are found to be in opposition to each other, it requires, Mr. Editor, no extraordinary perception to see late successfully as to which will eventually triumph.

The inconsistency of this theory is as evident as its absurdity. If it be right to bestow honors upon a particular race, because one of its progenitors was thought to have shed some lustre upon the annals of his country, then it is equally right to brand with opprobium the descendants of individuals who have disgraced these annals. Looking at the man who have been nobles by inheritance, we see, in spite of all the advantages of their position, very few manifestations of these traits of character which render men worthy of public emulation. Nor need it surprise us? Let the pathway of an individual be strewn with all that homage attendant upon hereditary nobility, and it is not the fault of the system if he does not become indifferent to the true elements of greatness; for it is the very nature of an aristocracy to generate a placid confidence in an imaginative intuitive superiority, very likely to result in an unwillingness to tread the path to merited honour, and it is also evident that the recognition of this theory of nobility will be proportionate to the ignorance of a community. To imagine that it can exist in the high noon of intelligence is preposterous. The deference paid to it in our day is to a vast extent, a hollow hearted sham, for mankind are awakening to the fact, that such deference is incompatible with a genuine civilization. I quite agree with the Spectator in his estimate of "Codfish Aristocracy." To invest men of wealth with honour is to sap the very foundation of individual progression, for in holding out so paltry a prospect to the chief places in the social edifice men cannot but be rendered indifferent to that which ought to ensure their esteem, neither can the possession of physical prowess make a man a noble. This is the most ancient opinion of nobility; in the olden time we find its noblemen in the main devoted to the destruction of beasts of prey, or of human enemies. We cannot wonder then that in an age of comparative barbarism, such should be regarded as noblemen. Morality and intellect alone constitute a man noble. Morality and intellect alone exalts the man; not this cannot be said of any of the Shires to which we have alluded. You may Mr. Editor prefix a man's name with all the titles which the "Court Guide" contains, and yet not elevate him; for

"The rank is but the guinea's stamp,
The man's the gold for a' that"

and you can never, by the application of the stamp, impart value to the gold. Morality then Mr. Editor, I hold to be the only stepping stone to nobility. In fact without this true nobility is unattainable, and neither physical strength, riches nor title can do it. "It is a shame" says St. Chrysostom "for a man to desire honour because of his noble progenitors, and not to deserve it by his own virtue"

Finally, Mr. Editor, there is on the part of some individuals, however, a grovelling disposition to look upon the possessors of this accidental nobility as the great exemplars of their race; and the extent to which it is carried is not more disgusting than it is ludicrous. Oliver Goldsmith, after laughing at us for dressing up puppets in finery, and then standing with astonishment before the plastic wonders, tells us of a certain Rat catcher, who having been strolling for a long time without employment, suddenly took upon himself the title of "His Majesty's Rat-catcher-in-ordinary," which speedily brought him abundance of employment. The example of this worthy knight of the trap is extensively followed in our day, and while we smile at its absurdity, let us not lose sight of the moral it teaches, "that as men are prone to emulate that which they conceive to be nobility, it behoves us to see that they reverence a fact rather than do homage to a fiction!

I remain, Mr. Editor,
Yours truly,
D.

May 20th, 1865.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—I see by the papers that Messrs. Scott and Perry, severely commented upon my having recorded a vote in favor of Mr. Nicholls in the late contest for Mayor.

I need scarcely say that the provision of the law, requiring residence as a qualification for voting for municipal officers, had entirely escaped my recollection. I regret that I was led, inadvertently, to disregard it.

I cannot refrain from congratulating my fellow townsmen on the deep respect to the letter and spirit of the law, as regards personal qualification, thus manifested by our Mayor and his predecessor. How wisely discriminating have their supporters proved themselves.

With what satisfaction and conscious patriotism can they (the electors,) call upon their sons to imitate the virtues and tread in the steps of the men they elevate and delight to honor. Happy youths! thus stimulated to the paths of religion, virtue, sobriety, prudence and honor.

Distinguished Peterboro'!
Your Ob't Servant.

SCOTLAND AGAINST CANADA.

THROWING THE HAMMER FOR $1000 A SIDE.

The assemblage of persons was immense. From early morning until the day was far advanced the intelligent and respectable farmers of the United Counties with their smiling wives, their rugged manly sons, and charming daughters continued to flow into town while the railways, and steamboats brought their hundreds from all points between Montreal and Toronto. It was estimated that at least ten thousand were on the ground at one time.

The principal object of interest was the match at throwing the hammers, for $1,000 a side between "Jarmy," the reputed Champion of Scotland, and Mr. Roderick McLennan of Glengarry.

The day was so far advanced, it being one p. m when the throwing of the hammer commenced, that few other games could be contested. Indeed the former absorbed all the interest and the entire mass of people waited with the greatest patience and attention till the sponge was thrown up by Jarmy. The balls thrown weighed respectively 12, 14, and 16 lbs. A dispute having arisen at the start as to which weight should be thrown first it was decided by a toss up in favour of Jarmy's choice,—the light weight first. Who should throw first, was also decided by a toss up giving McLennan the last throw.

Jarmy at this stage of the match gave up, confessing his inability to exceed McLennan's best with the heavy weight. The best of feeling was maintained throughout on all hands The money at stake $1,000, was at once paid over. It is indeed astonishing that a man with one hand, Jarmy having lost his right hand many years ago, can command the physical power necessary to a successful athlete. But such is the case he being a splendid specimine of muscular development.

AMERICAN NEWS.

The trial of those accused of complicity in the assassination is still being continued. The prosecution is closed, and the defence is now proceeding. Notwithstanding the Proclamation offering $100,000 for the capture of Jeff. Davis, no accusation, as yet, has been brought against him officially, as having anything to do with the murder of President Lincoln. He is indicted for treason, of which he may be found guilty. But few consider him in any way connected with the foul crime of which he was indirectly accused by President Johnson's Proclamation. He is bound and manacled, closely watched by guards who are not permitted to even speak to him; he is also on prison rations. In this position he awaits the result of whatever trial he may have to endure. The treatment of ex-President Davis, reminds us more of the age of barbarism and cruelty of the dark ages, than of the light and civilization of the nineteenth century; and as a sequel to the past and present it would hardly be too much to expect that the fallen Chief may perish in prison by violence.

Lee is reported as placed in confinement also, notwithstanding the terms of his parole. General Lee and his officers were guaranteed freedom from arrest, so long as they continued to live in obedience to the laws. His arrest is a disgrace to the Washington Government.

The Memphis Bulletin's special despatch of the 23rd, says:—

"Generals Price, Buckner, Brent and nine staff officers arrived to-day as commissioners from Kirby Smith, to negotiate with General Canby for the terms of surrender. Generals Price, Buckner and Dick Taylor, on the part of the Confederates, and Generals Canby and Herron had a consultation, the result of which was reported to be the surrender of all the Confederates in the trans-Mississippi department on the same terms that were accorded to Generals Johnston and Lee."

WASHINGTON, May 26 The Attorney General has just made a most important decision. He affirms that the amnesty proclamation was a means only to secure a specific purpose, which was the suppression of the rebellion. The rebellion ended, the amnesty is void. It does not restore citizenship, property, or vested rights. The President has no power to pardon except for what is past. The executive clemency cannot stretch to the future; therefore the decrees of confiscation there must stand. The decision will be given to the public in a few days.

Washington, May 25—A special despatch to the Herald says:—

"The Grand Jury of this district has found a true bill for treason against Jefferson Davis, the chief of the late Confederation. He will be brought here and put upon his trial as soon as the witnesses for the prosecution can be procured."

New York, May 24.—The following is a synopsis of an important order just issued from the War Department relative to the mustering out and discharge of volunteers:—

The several divisions of the army corps will be kept intact, and the commanding Generals immediately on the receipt of orders directing any portion of said forces to be mustered out will order the same if not already there at one of the following rendezvous:—

1st. Troops of the middle military department and of other armies or departments acting therein will rendezvous in the defences of Washington, D. C., Harpers Ferry and Cumberland, Md.

2nd. Those of the military division of the James at Richmond and old Point Comfort, Va

3rd. Those of the department of North Carolina will assemble at Newburn and Wilmington

4th. The department of the South at Charleston, S. C. and Savannah Ga.

5th. The military division west of the Mississippi at Mobile New Orleans and Vicksburg

6th. The military division of Missouri at Little Rock, St Louis and Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

7th. The department of the Cumberland at Nashville, Knoxville and Memphis, Tenn.

8th. The department of Kentucky at Louisville.

9th. The middle department at Baltimore.

special orders will be given from the Adjutant General's office relative to troops serving in the departments of the east, Pennsylvania, North west, New mexico and the Pacific, as the time for the discharge of said troops approaches In case of one or more regiments of a division being mustered, the division remaining in the field, the said regiment or regiments will be mustered out at the place where found serving at the time and then sent to several States.

The Adjutant General of the army will designate the places and rendezvous in the States to which regiments after being mustered out will be forwarded for payment. Every regiment will be sent forward to its State and rendezvous, as soon as the rolls are complete, carrying with them their arms, colors and necessary equipage. On the arrival of the regiments in their respective States, payment supplies will be issued by the respective supply departments on requisition, and returns countersigned by the chief mustering officer or his assistant.

The Herald's Richmond correspondent says: "Seddon Ex-Confederate Secretary of War, has been arrested and imprisoned in a gunboat on the James, with Hunter and Campbell

"It was believed that General Lee would soon be in custody, and Governor Smith, now a fugitive, captured.

"Davis sits alone in his cell, save the two guards who are not allowed to address him on any subject, whatever, and it is understood he will be given no lights."

A special despatch to the Herald, dated Washington May 25th, says:—

"Information has been received here that Kirby Smith intends marching across the Rio Grande and tendering his services to Maximilian. This movement will be prevented.

Advices from Matamoras, Mexico, to the 4th, say that the Imperialists still hold that place, and it is believed the republicans under Negrete are withdraw Frightful Massacre.—105 Women and Children Slaughtered in Cold Blood.

The Committee on the conduct of the war now sitting in Washington, has just brought to light the particulars of the most horrible massacre of modern times, before which the story of the bloody tragedy of Glencoe grows pale, and the spirit of a darker age seems to live anew.

We allude to the massacre of Indians by a party of United States soldiers under the command of a wretch named Chivington, who was formerly a preacher at Denver City. The atrocious deed was committed on the river Chimarron near Big Sandy. We glean the particulars from the official reports, which cannot be charged with being hostile to the North.

It appears that the Indians (the Cheyennes and Arrapahoes) had been furnished with a safe conduct by United States officers, and consequently when they saw Chivington and his band approaching, several of them went forward to meet them, one of their chiefs "Antelope" among the number, who was immediately shot down. "Black Kettle," another chief, rushed forward with an United States flag which had been presented to him by the Indian agent in due hand and a white flag under it in token of submission. The women and children sought refuge under these flags, but were all shot down by the soldiers. Men, women, and children, without distinction of age or sex, were slaughtered in cold blood. From daylight until 11 o'clock the work of death went on.—About 133 were slaughtered, 21 of them were men and the balance women and children. Among the chiefs killed were White Antelope, War Bonnet, Standing Water, and One Eye. Left hand, the second Chief of the Arrapahoes was wounded, and subsequently died. He had always been the staunch friend of the whites, and had often assured Col. Learenworth that he would never go on the war path against the pale faces. When left hand saw the soldiers approaching he felt very confident that they were coming on a peaceful mission, and stood with his arms folded and said: "Soldiers my friends, not afraid of them."

It was not until many of their women and children had been shot down, while crouching under the folds of the American flag held up by Black Kettle, that the Indians, seeing it was the determination of Chivington to exterminate them, offered any resistance. They were of course overpowered and killed.

The above is no sensation story, but comes from a source the veracity of which cannot be doubted. The event happened some time since, but the facts are only just being brought to light.—Spectator.

Local Convenience.—The tidy little village of Belmont is happily situated, so far as the Judiciary is concerned, half of it is in Middlesex, the other half in Elgin county. It has recently happened that the judges of the two counties thought it judicious to hold the Division Courts then and there at the same time, but not in the same place. His Honor for Middlesex domiciled at a respectable hotel on the border of his own district, while his brother justice, on the same day, within a few yards, dispensed law to the people of Elgin, in an unfurnished frame shanty directly opposite. It is to be hoped the benches will not come into collision. At all events, the villagers seem to be well supplied with legal facilities.—London Free Press.

YOUR APPOINTMENT HAS BEEN CONFIRMED—Such missives are now all the fashion, over the telegraph wires, and they are good news for some, and bad news to others. For one box of Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers you pay 25 cents. They cure a cold, hoarseness, sore throat, croup etc., in a few hours. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—The beginning of the end. Old sores, bad legs, ulcers &c. Many people have the misfortune through life of finishing where they should have commenced—this is especially applicable to the treatment of disease. Numbers have expended a lifetime in the pursuit of health—while thousands have exhausted their means in the catalogue of cures—who ultimately found relief where they should have begun in Holloway's Pills and Ointment, the only sure remedy when all else have failed. For the speedy and effectual cure of ulcers, bad legs, old sores, boils, &c., the ointment is the best salve in use, and the pills are equally efficacious for purifying the blood, cleansing the secretions of the liver and giving tone and energy to the general constitution. This is the testimony of thousands.

TEARS OF SYMPATHY.

If there are a class of persons deserving the sympathy and pity of the sound in health, it is the poor disabled victim of Scrofulous Ulcers, Chronic Sores, whose bodies are so disfigured with eruptive diseases as to forbid their seeking the society of their friends. To all such a cure is provided in Dr. Radway's Cleansing Syrup, called Radway's Renovating Resolvent. One to six bottles of this Marvellous Remedy will cure the worst cases. Let those afflicted with Chronic Sores, Ulcers, Fever Sores, Sore Heads, Sore Legs, Scrofula, and all Skin Diseases, use this remedy. In a few weeks they will be enabled to mingle in society, cured. Price one dollar per bottle. Sold by Druggists.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health in a few weeks by a very simple remedy, after having suffered several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption—is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure.

To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription used, (free of charge,) with the directions for preparing and using the same, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, &c. The only object of the advertiser in sending the Prescription is to benefit the afflicted, and spread information which he conceives to be invaluable; and he hopes every sufferer will try his remedy, as it will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing.

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY IN CANADA.

The following testimony from a well known and highly respected Merchant of Prescott, is corroborative of the general approval given to Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY:

PRESCOTT, C. W., Dec. 8th, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Co., Boston.

Gentlemen:—

Being solicited by your Travelling Agent, for an expression of opinion of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. I with pleasure assert that it is, in my belief, the best remedy before the public for coughs and pulmonary complaints.

Having tested the article with myself and family, in cases of severe coughs and colds, for years, with uniform and unexceptionable success, I unhesitatingly recommend it with full confidence in its merits.

Yours truly,
ALFRED HOOKER.

HOMŒOPATHY.

HOMŒOPATHY AND LIFE ASSURANCE.—The directors of a London life assurance office—the "General Provident"—at its recent meeting have placed on record its opinion "that persons treated by the Homœopathic system enjoy more robust health, are less frequently attacked by disease, and when attacked recover more rapidly than those treated by any other system; that with respect to the more fatal classes of disease the mortality under Homœopathy is small in comparison with that of Allopathy; that there are diseases not curable at all under the latter system, which are perfectly curable under the former; finally, that the medicines prescribed by Homœopathists do not injure the constitution, whereas those employed by Allopaths not unfrequently entail the most serious, and in many instances fatal, consequences." The directors further propose to summon a meeting of the shareholders to lay before them the facts they have collected, and the decision at which they have arrived, namely, "to open a special section for persons treated by the Homœopathic system, at a lower rate of premium than that charged on other lives."—London (Eng.) Observer.—Toronto Globe.

DR. POOLE, (Water st., Peterborough,) is a Graduate and Licentiate of both the Allopathic and Homœopathic Schools, and confidently recommends the latter system of treatment, as by far the safest and most successful, in both Acute and Chronic diseases.

PIANO-FORTES
DRIGGS' NEW PATENT.

ARE THE ONLY INSTRUMENTS constructed on a truly scientific principle. Thus have greater strength, and will remain longer in tune than any other Piano. The construction is simple and natural, all the extraneous lumber in the body of the instrument is dispensed with; the sound boards are merely two arched planks of thin wood, like the front and back of a violin; the strings are attached to a strong iron frame, which is separate and entirely independent of the case, thereby dispensing with the old heap form of stringing by substituting straight bridges, preserving at the same time The Over String Bass, of which Mr Driggs is the inventor. By these improvements we gain much more vibratory power, at the same time preserving all its purity and richness of tone.

They have received the highest testimonials from the Press, and all the principal artists in the country, among which are:

Harry Sanderson,	L. M. Gottschalk,
Max Maretzek,	S. Thalberg,
Theodore Eisfield,	Wm. Mason,
Herman Wollenhaupt,	A. Barili
Francis H. Brown,	M. Strackosch,
Wm. Henry Fry.	Charles Fradel

MR. SEGESMUND THALBERG, the great pianist, says:—I have examined your new Piano-forte and I cordially approve of its system of construction. Its principle, by which great increase of vibratory power is obtained, being very simple and perfectly philosophical. The tone is grand and noble; it has great capacity for sustaining the sound or singing, and its volume of tone or power I have never heard excelled in depth, purity and sympathetic sweetness.

Wm. HENRY FRY, late musical critic of the N. Y. Tribune says:—I have examined your newly invented Piano-Fortes. They merit all the praise given to them by Messrs. Thalberg, Gottschalk, Strackosch, Mason and others. As regards the structure, they are original and philosophical; in purity, volume, and continuity of tone; in vocal verisimilitude, that crowning excellence which enables the pianists to "sing" on the instrument. Your Pianos deserve the highest rank. Your invention, in my opinion, is destined to work radical changes in the manufacture of Pianos throughout the world.

From the N. Y. Herald, Sept. 5.—Upon a careful examination of Driggs Piano-Forte, we find the results obtained are a very fine singing tone, great purity and brilancy throughout the entire instrument, not often found in Pianos constructed upon the old plan.

From the N. Y. Times, July 12, says:—We have now an instrument without an equal. It can sing with a smoothe delicasy, perfectly unattainable on any other instrument; an ordinary player obtains with no exertion, the fullness of a Grand Piano Forte and they must speedily supercede the old styles.

GENTLEMEN:—Having thoroughly examined and tested the Piano-Fortes invented and patented by Mr S. P. Driggs, I am of the opinion that the tone resulting from his improvements, as exhibited in the instruments under examination, in points of richness, depth and brilliancy, equals that of the best Grand Piano-Fortes, and excells them in pure, musical and actual tone, power thus approximating closer to what I consider perfection in the instrument than has yet been achieved by any other system of manufacture.

Yours respectfully,
L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

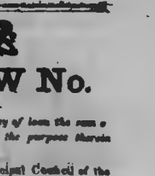
H. JONES BETTAN,
Cobourg, Canada, May 23rd, 1865.



BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of six thousand dollars for the purpose therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $6000 in constructing, making and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $6000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $600 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the tempo ary investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised assessment roll of the said Municipality, being for the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three was $1,796,683.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of $6000 and interest, as hereinafter mentioned, it will require an equal annual special rate of thirty-one ninetieths of a mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same, upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $6000, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than $100 each; and that the said debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden and counter-signed by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable in 10 years at the furthest from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum, per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first day of April and the first day of October in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon, an equal special rate of thirty-one ninetieths of a mill in the dollar shall, in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the ratable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the 24th day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at its Council Chamber in the Court House, in the said County, on Thursday, the 22nd day of June, 1865, at the hour of 12 of the clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

Poetry.

THE JEALOUS LOVER.

He says I am coquettish,
That I love to flirt and chat
With every beau that comes along,
And that he won't have that!
I was he'd mind his business,
And not be eyeing me—
Whene'er he sees a man approach,
As if I wasn't free!

What if I am coquettish?
Frank Heaven! I'm not his wife
As yet, and will not be, unless
He ceases all this strife
I know he must be jealous,
And all that sort of thing,
He's heard me say a dozen times
I wouldn't wed a king.

If he was one bit jealous,
SAY I—although his gold
Might strew a path, whose boundless wealth
Would ere remain untold!
I'd sooner have a beggar
With neither gold or land
Without a cent to bless himself,
Than wed a jealous man!

I know I am coquettish,
And flirt, too, now and then;
It wouldn't do to let a beau
Believe you love but him!
He doesn't understand me,
Else he'd in different be,
And then I'd whisper soft and slow,
How dear he was to me!

Varieties.

A DOWN EAST JURYMAN.—Ethan Spike contributes to the Portland Transcript a sketch of his experience as a juryman. The first cases he was called to try were capital ones—the criminals being a German and a "nigger," respectively. "Have you formed any opinion for or agin the prisoners?" said the judge. "Not particular agin the Jarman," says I, "but I hate niggers as a general principle, and shall go for hanging this here old white wooled cuss, whether he killed Mr. Cooper or not," says I. Do you know the nature of an oath?" the clerk axed me. "I or ter says I. "I've used enough of e'm. I begun to swear when I was only about —" "That'll do," says the clerk. "You kin go hum," says he, you wont be wanted in this ere case," says the clerk, says he. "What, says I, 'aint I to try this nigger at all?" "No," says the clerk. "But I'm jewryman," says I, "Pass on says the clerk, speaking rather cross. "But," says I, you, mister, you don't mean as you say; I'm a regular jewryman, you know — Drawed aout of the box by the neeluck now," says I. "I've ollers had a hankering to hang a nigger, and now when a chance of dispensatory seems to have provided one for me, you say I shan't sit on him! Ar this your free institutions? Is this the nineteenth century? And is this our toasted"—here somebody hollered "Silence in court." "This court be—!" I didn't finish the remark, for a couple of constables had holt of me, and in the twinking of a bed-post I was hustled down stairs into the street. "Naow, Mr. Editor, let me ask what are we comin' to when jewrymen—legal, lawful jewrymen like I used about in this way! Talk about Cancers, Mormons, Spiritualism free love and pinces—what are they in comparison? Here's a principle upset.—As an individual, perhaps, I'm of no great account; t'aint for me to say; but when a an enlightened jurxman, I was tuk and carried down stairs by profane hands, just for asserting my right to sit on a nigger —why it seem to me the pillows of society were shook; that in my sacred person the legal State itself was, figgeratively speakin, kicked down stairs! It thar's law in the land I'll have this case brought under a writ of habeas Corpulickey Dickait.

Tell me, ye winged winds, that round my pathway roar, do you know some quiet spot, where hoops are worn no more. Some lone and silent dell, some island or some cave, where women can walk three ab reast along the village pave? The loud winds hissed round my face, and answered "nary place."

A THRIFTY LANDLORD.—In a back township of Upper Canada, a magistrats who kept a tavern, sold liquor to the people till they got drunk and fought in his house. He then issued a warrant, apprehended the main drivers them on the spot and besides hang them, made them treat each other to make up the quarrel.

Indignant female (with energy)—"Yes Mr. Robinson, men are tyrants. Poor wives can't even make their will before they die." Husband (resignedly)—"Well my dear, they manage to have their will all their life"

The Boston Post perpetrates the following:—"It is said of Eugene Sue, that 'though a professed socialist he lived like a prince.' In this way some of our people though professed Christians, live like the devil.'

Doctor, (looking learned and speaking slow)—"Well, mariner, what tooth do you want extracted? Is it a molar or an incisor?" Jack (short and sharp)—"It's in the upper tier, on the larboard side—hear a hand, you swab, for it's nipping my jaw like a lobster.'

A TARTAR.—Nobody likes to meddle with a woman whose disposition contains the essence of lightning, vitrol, cream of tartar, and hart-horn; who manufactures words by the mile, and measures their meaning in a thimble.

ELEGANT LIVING.—An Irishman who lives with a vegetarian, writes to a friend that if he wants to know what thgant living is, he must come to his house, where the breakfast consists of nothing, and the supper of what was left at breakfast.

The editor of the San Francisco News Letter, in giving a parting salute to the Rev. Dr. Bellows of New York, said: 'May you blow, Bellows, until death rudely stops your wind, and may no curious doctor, after death, cut you open to see where it all came from.'

TONGUE.—Give not the tongue too great liberty lest it take thee prisoner. A word unspoken, is like the sword in the scabbard—thine; if vented, thy sword is in another's hand. If thou desire to be held wise, be so wise as to hold thy tongue. Quarles.

HOW TO GET RID OF YOUR CORNS.—Rub them over with toasted cheese and let your toes hang out of bed for a night or two, that the mice may nibble them. If the mice do their duty the remedy will be sufficient.

"Did you ever see a baby so small that it could creep into a quart measure?" "Pooh, pooh! I've seen a grown up fellow walk into two quarts.'

The last society spoken of in California is the "Pay Nothings." It is said to be alarmingly prosperous.

See what the most popular and widely circulated periodicals say of our Establishment:

From the "Dispatch" of February 25, 1865.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the announcement of Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, Silver Ware, and Fancy Goods, in our advertising columns. We are personally acquainted with the members of this firm and know them to be gentlemen of sterling worth and integrity. Their stock of goods, for variety and extent, we have scarcely seen paralleled.

From the "Mirror of Fashion," March 1, 1865.

Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, etc., opened on the 15th ult, and we venture to say that no finer display of goods was ever exhibited by any establishment in this city. The ladies thronged their bazaar almost to suffocation, although the streets were rendered nearly impassable by the melted snow and slush. We predict for them a wonderful success

From the "Ledger," February 28, 1865.

Our lady friends should visit the extensive establishment of Messrs. Devaugh & Co., No. 15 Maiden Lane, if they wish to indulge themselves with a sight which they will long remember. Such a profusion of elegant Watches, Chains, Rings, Sarstings, and, in short, of Jewelry of every name, kind and description, we never before witnessed. Their silver and plated ware is superb and almost casts into the shade the other splendid establishments which have long been the boast of our city. It is estimated that their stock is worth not less than one million of dollars.

How You Can Get a Prize.

Send Twenty-Five Cents to us, and as soon as we receive it we will mail you a Certificate, showing what you are entitled to. If the article or articles please you, send back the Certificate and One Dollar, and we will forward you the article, no matter how costly it may be. If the article is not what you wish, state, when you send the Certificate and dollar, what other article of the same value you prefer and we will send it. If you wish more than one Certificate send us $1 and we will send five for $2, eleven for $5, thirty for $10, sixty for $15, one hundred.

Agents are wanted in the Army and in every place. We have an immense stock of goods to dispose of, and need a large number of Agents. Our terms to Agents are liberal and some even of our Lady Agents are making from $5 to $20 a day. We give Agents 50 per cent. on all Certificates they sell provided they remit not less than $1 for eight.

Agricultural.

Flax and Flax Machines.

At the recent State Fair, at Rochester, were two machines, each of which was constantly surrounded by admiring crowds. One of these was a Cotton Gin, engaged in separating the fibre from the seed with marvellous rapidity. Here was a wonderful illustration of the linking together of the different branches of human industry and the mutual dependence of agriculture and the mechanical arts. The Yankee genius which devised the first cotton gin made possible the profitable culture of cotton. A cotton gin at a New York fair was very much like a growing pineapple, a curious exotic but without any practical bearing upon the agriculture of the Northern States. Thinking of the cotton as well as the good that had resulted from the invention of the cotton gin, we turned to the machinery department where the Flax Brake of Sanford & Mallory, of New York City, was in operation. This machine promises to be to the Northern farmer what the cotton gin has been to the Southern planter, enabling him to readily and rapidly prepare flax in a condition to be marketed. Impressed with the importance of this invention to the agriculture of the country, we have watched its improvements with much interest. One of the early forms of the machine was figured in the January Agriculturist, of 1863, but since then improvements have been made in the details of gearing, and such matters, which render the machine more efficient and durable.—The straw is placed on a feed table, and passes between a series of grooved rollers, having a peculiar vibratory or back and forth motion, which so completely breaks up the straw portion of the flax that very little is left to be removed by scutching. From what we saw of the machine in operation, from conversation with persons who have the Brake in use, and from the testimony of responsible parties, we are convinced it will do all that the proprietors have yet claimed for it. In the first place, the machine is portable and may be worked by any ordinary horse power. In neighborhoods where there are no flax mills, this is a great advantage. A machine which can be driven by one or two horses will dress from 2,500 to 3,000 pounds of straw per day of ten hours. A person who can run a fanning mill, or any other simple machine, can run this flax brake and do the work for a neighborhood, or the machine can be transported from place to place in the same manner as is now practised with threshing machines. Seventy: 60 to 70 per cent of the fibre (as the strawy matter is called) is removed, which is much more than by the old methods of breaking, there is none of the fibre injured, and from five to eight pounds more of dressed flax can be obtained from a hundred pounds of straw by using this brake, than by any previous methods of dressing. The fibre comes out in flattened ribbons, as at sight as it land in the straw, and scarcely a thread of it is broken. A Committee of the N. Y. State Agricultural Society, in a report dated Sept. 18th, 1863, say:—"We are of the opinion that the saving effected by dressing the flax crop of the present year by this machine, over all others with which we are acquainted, will equal, if it does not exceed one million of dollars." There is abundant testimony that flax broken on this machine loses three to five pounds less to the hundred, over the hackle, than when dressed in the ordinary way, and that the fibre is better and softer for spinning purposes. Thirdly: the machine is safe and may be operated by any one of ordinary intelligence. The serious accidents which have occurred from the use of ordinary brakes can not happen to the operator of this machine. All that he has to do is to spread the straw upon the feed table, and this can be done without any possible risk. Mr. M. F. Roberts, of Niagara County, has one of these brakes which affords his daughter employment during the winter. Two of these young ladies were present at the fair and operated the machine, showing in a striking manner that it can be worked by any intelligent person, male or female, with perfect safety.

Our remarks apply chiefly to the No. 1 machine, the size usually sold to farmers and small operators. There are smaller sizes for working by hand power and larger ones for factories. A new machine has been built for operating on a large scale, in which the number of rollers has been increased to six or eight. These are worked by a very ingenious screw motion, the last pairs of rollers being very fine.

There is also a set of three machines of twelve rollers each for the treatment of matted and tangle straw. Two of these machines roughdress the straw and much reduce it in bulk. The third machine takes the fibre from the first two, and so completely frees it from shive that without any scutching, it is ready for immediate use in paper making. The invention of this set of machinery renders available the great quantity of flax straw which has accumulated in the West wherever this crop is grown for the seed alone. If machinery were now in operation to throw this otherwise wasted material into the market, it would have the effect to bring down the price of Printing paper materially. Although the manufacture of flax is, like all others, of slow growth, there is a ready and remunerative sale for the dressed fibre. It is now used to mix with wool, to make twine, batting, bedticking, druggets, stockings, felt hats and carpeting, and for numerous purposes where other fibrous materials were formerly used. Mr. Roberts, above mentioned, states that from the sale of his flax, tow and seed, for which there is a home market, his flax crop brings in a profit per acre of seventy-five to eighty-five dollars.

TOMATOES, from being curiosities a few years ago, are now indispensable to every garden. For first early, sow in a hot-bed or procure plants to set out the first of May. Seed sown in any position, middle of April or first of May, covering half an inch, will furnish plants for a later crop. Set in a finely-worked soil along the borders, 3 feet apart, or in rows that distance from each other. They are among the easiest things to raise, a volunteer crop being sure to come up where they were grown the previous year. Some prefer tying to stakes or bushing them, but we let them take their own course. The large smooth red and Fejee are the best sorts—the latter for our use.

AGE OF SEEDS.—Paschall Morris, in The Rural Advertiser, says: "We prefer turnip seed one year old to raise a crop of turnips from, and instead of only 5 per cent germinating when four years old, it is more probable, if the seed has been properly kept, that there will not be 5 per cent which will not germinate. While there are some seeds of vegetables which it is unsafe to rely on over a year old, it is also well established that there are others actually improved by age, and which seem when a few years old to run less to vine or top, and more to fruit and crop. The melon family is of this class; and for our own planting we would prefer water melon or cantelope seed four years old."

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!

CAN BE FOUND IN

Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF

Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER SHAPE internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experience of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was introduced into the world. Holloway's Invaluable Pills have become the household remedy of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to cure; they attack the RADIX or root of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, reinvigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs upon the blood itself, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but efficacious preparation. At the two epochs of life, to which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a protective safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending though a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is met, pelted and exterminated by this searching, sainless and irresistible remedy. Bilious intermittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterize dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, tendency to spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids, piles, in fact, all internal complaints from whatever cause arising, give way with certainty to the influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and its concomitant evils, nothing so powerful, so safe, so sure. Prime ministers have declared no other remedy was to be relied on when the most skilful and mode of treatment had entirely failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Colics,	Influenza,
Consumption,	Inflammation,
Coughs,	Jaundice,
Debility,	Liver Complaints,
Dropsy,	Lumbago,
Dysentery,	Piles,
Erysipelas,	Rheumatism,
Fevers,	Retention of Urine,
Fevers of all kinds,	Scrofula or King's Evil,
Fever and Ague,	Secondary Symptoms,
Female Complaints,	Stone and Gravel,
	Ulcers,
	Venereal Affections,
	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the medicine you require cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the druggist near to its place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

Now, as genuine as the world is "Holloway, New York and London," are discernible as a water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting their medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 88 cents, and $1 40 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33

AT THE LAST.

[The following beautiful poem was written upon the passage "Man goeth forth unto his work, and to his labor until the evening."]

The stream is calmest when it nears the tide,
And flowers are sweetest at the eventide,
And birds more musical at close of day,
And saints divinest when they pass away.

Morning is lovely, but a holier charm
Lies folded close in Evening's robe of balm;
And weary man must ever love her best,
For Morning calls to toil, but Night to rest.

Hers comes from Heaven, and on her wings doth bear
A holy fragrance, like the breath of prayer;
Footsteps of angels follow in her track,
To shut the weary eyes of Day in peace.

All things are hushed before her as she throws
O'er earth and sky her mantle of repose;
There is a calm, a beauty, and a power
That Morning knows not in the Evening hour.

"Until the Evening" we must weep and toil,
Plow life's stern furrow, and dig the weedy soil,
Tread with sad feet our rough and thorny way,
And bear the heat and burden of the day.

O! when our sun is setting may we glide
Like Summer Evening down the golden tide;
And leave behind us as we pass away,
Sweet, starry twilight round our sleeping clay!

THE DOCTOR'S STORY.

We were all gathered in our clubroom on a rainy evening in May, and had gossiped later than usual over our wine and cigars, when one of the members suggested that "the Doctor" should favor us with a story befitting the time and occasion.

He accordingly related the following:

"I was something more than eighteen years of age, when, having exhausted, as it were, the educational resources of my native village. I was sent to a distant seminary to prepare for college. Up to that time, I had enjoyed the reputation among my friends and acquaintances of being a sentimental sort of a fellow, with but little ambition and no apparent object. I cannot describe to you the almost immediate changes that were wrought in my mind and disposition, on being cut loose from the associations of my native village. My heart became filled with the most lively ambitions; my character became more forcible and determined, and, from a weak womanly boy, boy, I sprang suddenly into a self-willed man like the armed Minerva from the brain of the heathen god.

"I had been at the seminary perhaps a fortnight, and had only formed some half a dozen acquaintances, when I received an invitation to a party, given by one of the most aristocratic families. I always had a great dislike to parties of every name and nature, and indeed, at that time, I was so foolishly bashful that I had never ventured to form any female acquaintances. But the entreaties of my 'chum,' who was a great lover of society, overruled my objections, and the evening of the party found me at the residence of Belle Wilson.

"It was here that I met Florence Irving one of the best known beauties of the village, whose sweet, yet thoughtful face is yet before me in all its original beauty. I will not venture on a description of her peculiar loveliness. It would be a complete failure if I should. An artist may paint the beauty of the human face; but no artist can paint the beauty of the human soul.

"I know not how it happened, but ere the evening was far advanced, I had managed to find a place for my hands and feet, which were always useless appendages, and found myself by the side of Miss Irving, conversing with as much ease as though she were a member of my own family. I cannot explain the cause of this suddenly acquired confidence on my part, but I knew it was neither magic nor 'moonshine' I only know that when our eyes first met, and before I had been introduced, our souls broke over every barrier which society imposes; but our souls belong to Heaven, and do not recognize any such restraints.

"When the party broke up, I had the pleasure of seeing Miss Irving home, as was the custom in that section, and as you may well imagine, an invitation to call upon her was not long neglected.

"During the following few weeks, I saw her frequently, and I must acknowledge the study of human nature soon became more interesting to me than that of Virgil or Anabasis. At every meeting, I saw, or fancied I saw some new beauty in her hitherto symmetrical character; and, before I was aware of it, I found myself the slave of that passion which metaphysicians call love. My heart and soul opened upon a higher and fairer field of existence; the whole world around me became vested with new beauties, and the very air I breathed seemed an atmosphere of passionate pleasure.

And thus a year passed away in the blissful consciousness of loving and being loved. As my memory goes back over the pathway of nearly twenty years, it dwells upon that time as the happiest portion of my life. It is well for us sometimes to recall those happy holidays of life. Their memory recalls those happy holidays of life. Their memory lightens their present weight of cares and sorrows, and keeps the heart like nature, continually renewing the spring time of its existence. The man who keeps fresh the memories of his early manhood may be sure that the years which write the records of time and toil upon his cheek and forhead have no power over the heart to render it rough or wrinkled.

"It was on a perfect evening in July, after the annual Exhibition that, I called to say 'good bye' to Florence Irving, before leaving the village on the following morning.

"There was nothing very peculiar about our parting. A review of the too blissful past; a forming of plans for the future; a hundred pledges of devotion and constancy; a long tender embrace; a few womanly tears; and we walked out upon the vine-clad portico.

"You will pardon me here, for this recurrence to a memory which I could not, and would not forget; and for this exhibition of sentiment, which, you know, with all my years, I have never been wholly able to overcome. It may have been owing to my peculiar state of feeling; but it really seemed for once that God had lifted from earth the curse that rested upon paradise.

"The evening breeze, which was burdened with fragrance, was playing with the leaves and flowers, half waking them from their slumbers; the crescent-moon was half hiding her face among the clouds—the sleeping dress of night—giving it a silver lining; and over the earth and sky rested that expression of peace which defies the descriptive power of either pen or pencil. And then, and there, with one of those kissealed vows, which we had so often uttered, I left her, with her young cheeks all wet and warm, well knowing that her eyes were fastened upon me, till my form was lost among the shifting shadows.

"For more than two years after entering college, we continued a weekly correspondence; and the tone of her letters were so kind and devotional, that my regard for her was rather increased than otherwise by our separation.

"I was continually striving to perfect myself in those things which she most admired; and every night, after the duties of the day were finished, I would sit alone watching the fixed star which we had promised to gaze upon, in memory of the loved and absent, and maturing plans for our future happiness. In this manner the time flew rapidly away, while my own existence was fast becoming merged in that of Florence Irving.

"But, a few months before my graduation, when I was already counting the days that kept us apart, the mails did not bring me the weekly missive which, for two years, I had never failed to receive. I waited till next morning, and then not receiving it, sat down and wrote her of its probable miscarriage.

"Day after day passed away, making me more and more impatient, but still I received no reply. I never heard from her again.

"The very week of our college commencement, I received a note from her aunt, with whom she was living, acknowledging the receipt of my last letter, and stating that, a few weeks before, Florence had mysteriously left the village for parts unknown. She also added that no one could assign a reason for this strange conduct; and though they made the most persistent efforts, no trace of her whereabouts had been discovered.

"However sad and unfavorable this information might have been, it did not for a moment discourage me.

"I had perfect confidence in my ability to unravel the mystery, and setting out as early as possible, I arrived at the village in the mid twilight of a summer evening.

"As we rolled through the quiet streets, I half forgot the important object of my visit. Every object on which my eye rested was a reminder of former hope and happiness; and the blessed by-gone hours came trooping back, all bright and beautiful, through the chambers of my memory.

"Immediately on my arrival at the hotel, I learned the particulars of the mysterious absence of Florence Irving, and, by the next morning I had half matured my plans of operation. Never, however, was a detective on the track of 'game,' more completely lost, than was I in pursuit of this unfortunate girl.

"No one had heard her speak of leaving the village; she had no friends or relatives living at a distance; and, as she took her leave at night, no one was able to discover the direction she had taken.

"The only circumstances that excited my curiosity and suspicion were, that several weeks before her departure, a travelling spiritualist, by the name of Simpson, had been giving lectures in the village; that she had become a most thorough convert; and, that during his stay they had frequently been seen together.

"After several hours of careful thought and study, I came to the conclusion that this sanctimonious Simpson was at the bottom of all the mystery.

"Several days were occupied in endeavoring to ascertain his whereabouts; but of no avail.

"He had been giving a series of lectures in a neighboring village; but, about the time of Miss Irving's disappearance, he had suddenly departed, no one knew whither.

"This circumstance only confirmed my suspicion, and returning to her aunt's house, I obtained possession to examine the room which the missing girl had last occupied.

"There was nothing particularly suggestive or peculiar in its appearance. The contents of her writing desk, which I examined with the utmost care, were in perfect order, with the exception of a few scattered fragments of paper, upon which were scrawled the names of Simpson and myself, in the greatest possible confusion.

"I was about to leave it with scarcely any hopes of obtaining a clue to her whereabouts, when I noticed the inverted word "Albany" upon a slip of blotting paper, which had evidently been but little used.

"I examined it carefully, and you may imagine my satisfaction, when, with the aid of a microscope, I managed to decipher the following inverted sentences which were written on Friday afternoon the very day on which she disappeared:

"My dear Mr. Simpson:

"Your entreaties, and my love or infatuation, have triumphed over all duty and principle. [Here was a sentence which I could not decipher]. I will be ready to leave with you for Albany at 12 o'clock to-night.

Yours,

FLORENCE."

She had evidently written her note in great haste; and, when using her blotter, had left upon it an inverted impression of nearly all she had written. I hastened to inform her aunt of my discovery, and immediately set off for Albany, in pursuit of the missing parties. On my arrival in the city, I secured the assistance of the authorities, and made the most thorough search and inquiries, which, however were wholly unsuccessful. After a fruitless search of three months, I returned home, completely worn out and discouraged.

In my anxious endeavors to discover some trace of the missing girl, I had overtasked my energies, and immediately after my arrival at home, I was taken with a fever, from which I did not fully recover till the next summer. But, though I had but little hope of discovering any trace of the woman I had once worshiped, my thought and desires were continually wandering away to the capital of the Empire State.

Accordingly, as soon as my health was sufficiently recovered, I returned to that city to fit myself for the medical profession which I had long before determined to pursue. I entered the medical colledge, obtained a home with one of the prominent members of the faculty, and becoming familiar with the students, my study and social intercourse partially dispelled the moody abstraction into which I had been thrown by the loss of Florence Irving—a loss from which, I presume, I shall never wholly recover. It has left a shadow upon my heart which often renders me melancholly, retired and unfamiliar.

If I remember rightly it was the latter part of September that the students were anxious to obtain a female 'subject' for dissection. We had made several efforts to purchase one from the authorities; but being unable to do so, we at last resolved to resort to the illegal process of getting from the cemetery.

"Accordingly, several students were selected for the purpose—myself among the number; and we then had only to wait for an opportunity, and a night to favour our operations.

"One or another of us were continually strolling through the cemetry we had resolved to enter, for the purpose of obtaining information; and late one afternoon, we received notice that a lady had been buried in the immediate vicinity of the keeper's lodge.

"We had already waited so long, that we thought proper to run the risk rather than suffer the inconvenience of further delay. The weather favoured our operations. The afternoon was dull and sultry; out the night set in with gusts of wind and occasional torrents of rain.

"Just after the bells of the city had hushed their midnight-summons in the face of the angry storm, we crept out of the old building, thoroughly disguised, and supplied with spades, ropes, and dark-lanterns and all other necessary implements.

The rain had ceased falling; but the wind was blowing furiously, struggling with the treetoops, and shaking the drenching drops upon us as we passed beneath them. A full moon was in the sky, but was bidden by the thick, heavy clouds, and with the deep darkness and the writhing and groaning trees, no object or sound could be distinguished.

"We soon reached the grave without interuption; and, posting two of the party to warn us in case of approaching danger we set vigorously to work. Never did men work with greater rapidity or cautious. The earth was loose and moist which enabled us to remove it rapidly and just as the bells tolled the hour of one, our spades struck with that dull dreadful sound, upon the head of the coffin.

"As if by common consent, we paused a moment in our efforts. That moment's pause, with me, produced no very pleasant emotions. It gave my excitement no opportunity to subside. The sobbing wail of the wind; the raindrops pattering like the footsteps of invisible beings; the spectras gravestones around us; the black clouds, with the moon now and then looking through; the solemn associations and the memories of spooks and spectres that had tortured my boyish fancy, produced a rather uncomfortable feeling. But the clouds were rapidly breaking away, and not a moment was to be lost.

"I sprang into the grave, and unscrewed the lid of the coffin. A murmer of satisfaction broke from the party as I thrust in my hand and informed them it was a woman. The rope was let down, and the hook fastened beneath her jaw, and the lifeless form was drawn to the surface. As I sprang from the grave and stooped over her, the moon emerged suddenly from behind a cloud, and shone full upon her face. For a moment, I was dumb with horror. It was the face of my long lost Florence Irving—not fresh and young and innocent, as when I last beheld it, but wan and wasted—and yet possessed of a beauty which death itself could never tear away.

"A few words were sufficient to explain the circumstances to the rest of the party; and quickly, yet tenderly we returned the shrowded form to its last resting-place. Arranging the grave as we had found it, we hurried away to the college. Through the medium of the sexton, I afterward discovered the place where she had been living, when I learned that, soon after her arrival in the city, she had been deserted by the perfidious Simpson, had suffered greatly from want and privation, and being too proud and broken-hearted to ask for assistance, she had died in a garret in an obscure section of the city.

"Nearly twenty years have now elapsed since these incidents occurred, and since she, whom one would have thought was the model of constancy, was induced to be faithless, I have never dared to fix my affections upon any other woman. The sad fate of Florence Irving, one of the purest types of womanhood that ever filled our hearts with the happiness of heaven, is a terrible warning to over-credulous young ladies."

If a servant will lie for his master, his master need not be astonished if the servant lies for himself.

He who has an inordinate admiration for antiquity must have more taste for wrinkles than dimples.

Editors often puff their friends to death, and smokers do the same kind service for themselves.

When is truth, falsehood? "Truth, they say, "lies in a well."

WIDOW SIMPSON'S SPOONS.

In the parish of Bathgate, Linlithgowshire, Scotland, lived a widow woman by the name of Simpson.

In her family resided, in the capacity of help, one Nancy Campbell, a girl about nineteen, who was suspected to have taken a fancy to Robin, the widow's son, who reciprocated the sentiment. Nothing however, would soften the heart of the widow as regards a match, till at last the following event occurred, and caused her to give away. About the hay-making time, a distant and comparatively rich relation was expected to call and take tea that evening on his way from Linlithgow. It was not often that the superior relative honored her house with a visit, and Mrs. Simpson, determined that nothing should be wanting to his entertainment, brought out the treasured spoons early in the forenoon with many injunctions to Nancy touching the care she should take in bringing them up. While this operation was being conducted in the kitchen, in the midst of those uncertain days which vary the northern June, a sudden darkening of the sky announced the approach of heavy rain. The hay was dry add ready for housing. Robin and two farm-men were busy gathering it in; but the great drops began to fall while a considerable portion yet remained in the field, with the instinct of crop preservation, forth went the widow, followed by Nancy, leaving the spoons half cleaned on the kitchen table. In her rapid exit the girl had forgotten to latch the door. The weasel and the kite depredators known about the moor and farm; but while they were all occupied in the hay-field, who should come that way but Geordy Wilson, one of the parish beggars.

Well, the kitchen door was open, and Geordy stepped in. He banged the settle with his staff, he coughed, he saulted the cat, which sat purring on the window sett, and at length discovered there was nobody within.—Neither meal nor penny was to be expected that day; the rain was growing heavier, some of the hay must be wet, and Mrs. Simpson would return in bad humor. But two objects powerfully arrested Geordy's attention; one was the broth pot boiling on the fire, and the other the silver spoons scattered on the table. Bending over the former, he took a considerable sniff, gave the ingredients a stir with a potstick, and muttered "very thin." His proceedings with the latter must remain unmentioned; but, half an hour after, when he was safely away in a farm-house, a mile off, the family were driven inn doors by the increasing storm; they found everything as it had been left—the broth on the fire, the cattou the window-seat, the whiting and flannel on the table; but not a spoon was there.

"Where's the spoons?" cried Mrs. Simpson of the entire family, who stood by the fire drying their wet garments. Nobody could tell. Nancy had left them on the table when she ran to the hay. Some one had been in the house they were certain, but nothing was disturbed. The drawer was pulled out and the empty stockings exhibited. Every shelf and every corner was searched, but to no purpose; the spoons had disappeared, and the state of the farm-house may be imagined, the widow ran through it like one distracted, questioning, scolding, and searching. Robin, Nancy and the farm-men were despatched in different directions, as soon as the rain abated, to advertise the neighbors, under the supposition that some strolling beggar or gipsy might have carried off the treasure and would attempt to dispose of it in the parish. Nobody thought of Geordy Wilson; he had not been espied from the hay-field. Lost, the spoons were, beyond a doubt, and widow bade fair to lose her spoons.

The rich relation came at the appointed time, and had such a tea that he avowed never again to trust himself in the house of his entertainer.

But the search went on; rabbits holes were looked into for the missing silver, and active boys were bribed to turn out magpies' nests. Wells and barns in the neighborhood were explored. The criers of three nearest parishes were employed to proclaim the loss; it was regularly advertised at kirk-gate and market-place; and Mrs. Simpson began to talk of getting a search warrant for the beggar's meal pouch.

Bathgate was alarmed through all its borders concerning the spoons; but when almost a month passed away and nothing could be heard of them, the widow's suspicions turned from beggars, barns, and magpies, to light on poor Nancy. She had been cleaning the spoons, and left the house last; silver could not leave the table without hands. It was true that Nancy had borne an unquestionable character; but such spoons were not to be met with every day, and Mrs. Simpson was determined to have them back in her stocking. After sundry hints of increasing breadth to Robin, who could not help thinking his mother was losing her judgment, she one day plumped the charge, to the utter astonishment and dismay of the poor girl, whose anxiety in the search had only been inferior to her own. Though poor and an orphan, Nancy had some honest pride. She immediately turned out the contents of her kist, (box) unstrung her pocket, in Mrs. Simpson's presence, and ran, with tears in her eyes to tell the minister.

As was then common to the country parishes of Scotland, difficulties and disputes which might have employed the writers and puzzled magistrates were refered to his arbitration, and thus lawsuits and scandal prevented. The minister had heard, as who in Bathgate had not? of Mrs. Simpson's loss. Like the rest of the parish he thought it rather strange; but Nancy Campbell was one of the most serious and examplary girls of his congregation—he could not believe that the charge preferred against her was true; yet the peculiarities of the case demanded investigation. With some difficulty the minister persuaded Nancy to return to her mistress, bearing a message to the effect that he and two of his elders, who happened to reside in the neighborhood, would come over the following evening, and hear what could be said on both sides, and if possible, clear up the mystery. The widow was well pleased at the minister and his elders coming to enquire about her spoons. She put on her best mutch, (that is cap) prepared her best speeches, and enlisted some of her best and most reliable neighbors to assist in the investigation.

Early in the evening of the following day—when the summer sun was wearing low and the field work over—they were all assembled in the clean old kitchen, the minister, elders, and neighbors soberly listening to Mrs. Simpson's testimony about her lost silver, Nancy, Robin and the farm men were sitting by till their turn came, when the door that had been left half open to admit the breeze—for the evening was sultry—was quietly pushed aside, and in slid Geordy Wilson, with his usual accompaniments of staff and wallet.

"There's nae room for ye here, Geordy" said the widow, "we're on weighty business.

"Weel, mem," said Geordy, turning to depart "its of nae consequence. I only came to speak about your spoons."

"Has ye heard o' them," cried Mrs. Simpson, bounding from her seat.

"I couldna miss hein' blessed with the power of hearing' and what's better, I saw them," said Geordy.

"Saw them, Geordy? Where are they? and hure's a whole shillin' for ye; and Mrs. Simpson's purse, or rather an old glove used for that purpose, was instantly produced.

"Weel," said Geordy, "I slipped in as day, and seein' the siller unguarded, I thought some ill-guided body might covit it, and jist laid it by, I may say, in the leaves o' the Bible, thinking you would be sure to see the spoons when you went to read."

Before Geordy had finished his revelation Nancy Campbell had brought down the proudly-displayed, but never opened Bible, and interspered between the leaves lay the dozen of long sought spoons.

The minister of Bathgate could scarcely command his gravity while admonishing Geordy on the trouble and vexation his trick had caused. The assembled neighbors laughed out right when the delt man pocketed the widows shilling, which he had clutched in the early part of the discourse, assured them that he had learned that Mrs. Simpson read her Bible so often that the spoons would be certain to turn up. Geordy got many a basin of broth and many a luncheon of bread and cheese on account of that transaction, with which he amused all the firesides of the parish. Mrs. Simpson was struck dumb even from scolding. The discovery put an end to her ostentatious profession, and it may be hoped, turned her attention more to practice.

CARROTS should have a large place in the garden, and if more are raised than the frequent demands of the kitchen require, the balance will furnish the best of cow and horse feed. Two kinds are enough for family use; the Early Horn, a sweet, tender early sort of small size, and the Long Orange for the main winter crop. The Early Horn will frequently give a good yield, sown in July after early peas or onions, but for early use, should be sown in the middle of April. Let the rows be one foot apart, scatter in plenty of seed, cover one half inch deep with fine soil, and thin to four inches at the second hoeing. The Long Orange does better in rows 15 inches apart, thinned to 5 inches. There is little danger of making the soil too rich, or working it too deep for this tape rooted crop. Keep well hoed and weeded, especially when small. The main crop may be sown from the middle of April to the 1st of June—better early in May.

MERIT AND CENSURE.—It is folly for an eminent man to think of escaping censure, and a weakness to be affected with it. All the illustrious persons of antiquity, and indeed, of every age in the world, have passed through its firery persecution. There is no defence against reproach but obscurity; it is a kind of concomitant to greatness as satires and invectives were the essential part of a Romen triumph.

PLEASANT THINGS.—It is pleasant to be virtuous and good, because that is to excel ourselves; it is pleasant to mortify and subdue our lusts, because that is victory it is pleasant to command our appetites and passions, to keep them in true order, within the bonds of reason, because that is empire.

At the end of the present fiscal year Great Britain, will have thirty-nine ironclads afloat and ready for service. They will nearly all be armed with 200 and 300 pounders, and be able to sail at an average rate of twelve knots. "Britannia" still "rules the wawe."

Refreshment, sleeping and smoking cars are about to be placed on the German railways. Bal'-alleys, bar-rooms, and barber's saloons are the next innovations expected.

Select Poetry.

AT THE LAST.

[The following beautiful poem was written upon the passage "Man goeth forth unto his work, and to his labor until the evening."]

The stream is calmest when it nears the tide,
And flowers are sweetest at the eventide,
And birds more musical at close of day,
And saints divinest when they pass away.

Morning is lovely, but a holier charm
Lies folded close in Evening's robe of balm;
And weary man most ever loves her best,
For Morning calls to toil, but Night to rest.

Unto the evening comes from Heaven, and on her wings doth bear
A holy fragrance, like the breath of prayer;
Footsteps of angels follow in her track,
To shut the weary eyes of Day in peace.

All things are hushed before her as she throws
O'er earth and sky her mantle of repose;
There is a calm, a beauty, and a power
That Morning knows not in the Evening hour.

"Until the Evening" we must weep and toil,
Plow life's stern furrow, and dig the weedy soil,
Tread with sad feet our rough and thorny way,
And bear the heat and burden of the day.

O! when our sun is setting may we glide
Like Summer Evening down the golden tide;
And leave behind us as we pass away,
Sweet, starry twilight round our sleeping clay!

THE DOCTOR'S STORY.

We were all gathered in our clubroom on a rainy evening in May, and had gossiped later than usual over our wine and cigars, when one of the members suggested that "the Doctor" should favor us with a story befitting the time and occasion.

He accordingly related the following:

"I was something more than eighteen years of age, when, having exhausted, as it were, the educational resources of my native village. I was sent to a distant seminary to prepare for college. Up to that time, I had enjoyed the reputation among my friends and acquaintances of being a sentimental sort of a fellow, with but little ambition and no appareut object. I cannot describe to you the almost immediate changes that were wrought in my mind and disposition, on being cut loose from the associations of my native village. My heart became filled with the most lively ambitions; my character became more forcible and determined, and, from a weak womanly boy, boy, I sprang suddenly into a self-willed man like the armed Minerva from the brain of the heathen god.

'I had been at the seminary perhaps a fortnight, and had only formed some half a dozen acquaintances, when I received an invitation to a party, given by one of the most aristocratic families. I always had a great dislike to parties of every name and nature, and indeed, at that time, I was so foolishly bashful that I had never ventured to form any female acquaintances. But the entreaties of my 'chum,' who was a great lover of society, overruled my objections, and the evening of the party found me at the residence of Belle Wilson.

'It was here that I met Florence Irving one of the best known beauties of the village, whose sweet, yet thoughtful face is yet before me in all its original beauty. I will not venture on a description of her peculiar loveliness. It would be a complete failure if I should. An artist may paint the beauty of the human face; but no artist can paint the beauty of the human soul.

'I know not how it happened, but ere the evening was far advanced, I had managed to find a place for my hands and feet, which were always useless appendages, and found myself by the side of Miss Irving, conversing with as much ease as though she were a member of my own family. I cannot explain the cause of this suddenly acquired confidence on my part, but I knew it was neither magic nor 'moonshine' I only know that when our eyes first met, and before I had been introduced, our souls broke over every barrier which society imposes; but our souls belong to Heaven, and do not recognize any such restraints.

'When the party broke up, I had the pleasure of seeing Miss Irving home, as was the custom in that section, and as you may well imagine, an invitation to call upon her was not long neglected.

'During the following few weeks, I saw her frequently, and I must acknowledge the study of human nature soon became more interesting to me than that of Virgil or Anabasis. At every meeting, I saw, or fancied I saw some new beauty in her hitherto symmetrical character; and, before I was aware of it, I found myself the slave of that passion which metaphysicians call love. My heart and soul opened upon a higher and fairer field of existence; the whole world around me became vested with new beauties, and the very air I breathed seemed an atmosphere of passionate pleasure.

And thus a year passed away in the blissful consciousness of loving and being loved. As my memory goes back over the pathway of nearly twenty years, it dwells upon that time as the happiest portion of my life. It is well for us sometimes to recall those happy holidays of life. Their memory recall those happy holidays of life. Their memory lightens their present weight of cares and sorrows, and keeps the heart like nature, continually renewing the spring time of its existence. The man who keeps fresh the memories of his early manhood may be sure that the years which write the records of time and toil upon his cheek and forhead have no power over the heart to render it rough or wrinkled.

'It was on a perfect evening in July, after the annual Exhibition that, I called to say 'good bye' to Florence Irving, before leaving the village on the following morning.

'There was nothing very peculiar about our parting. A review of the too blissful past; a forming of plans for the future; a hundred pledges of devotion and constancy; a long tender embrace; a few womanly tears; and we walked out upon the vine clad portico.

'You will pardon me here, for this recurrence to a memory which I could not, and would not forget; and for the exhibition of sentiment, which, you know, with all my years, I have never been wholly able to overcome. It may have been owing to my peculiar state of feeling; but it really seemed for once that God had lifted from earth the curse that rested upon paradise.

'The evening breeze, which was burdened with fragrance, was playing with the leaves and flowers, half waking them from their slumbers; the crescent-moon was half hiding her face among the clouds—the sleeping dress of night—giving it a silver lining; and over the earth and sky rested that expression of peace which defies the descriptive power of either pen or pencil. And then, and there, with one of those kiss-sealed vows, which we had so often uttered, I left her, with her young cheeks all wet and warm, well knowing that her eyes were fastened upon me, till my form was lost among the shifting shadows.

'For more than two years after entering college, we continued a weekly correspondence; and the tone of her letters were so kind and devotional, that my regard for her was rather increased than otherwise by our separation.

'I was continually striving to perfect myself in those things which she most admired; and every night, after the duties of the day were finished, I would sit alone watching the fixed star which we had promised to gaze upon, in memory of the loved and absent, and maturing plans for our future happiness. In this manner the time flew rapidly away, while my own existence was fast becoming merged in that of Florence Irving.

'But, a few months before my graduation, when I was already counting the days that kept us apart, the mails did not bring me the weekly missive which, for two years, I had never failed to receive. I waited till next morning, and then not receiving it, sat down and wrote her of its probable miscarriage.

'Day after day passed away, making me more and more impatient, but still I received no reply. I never heard from her again.

'The very week of our college commencement, I received a note from her aunt, with whom she was living, acknowledging the receipt of my last letter, and stating that, a few weeks before, Florence had mysteriously left the village for parts unknown. She also added that no one could assign a reason for this strange conduct; and though they made the most persistent efforts, no trace of her whereabouts had been discovered.

'However sad and unfavorable this information might have been, it did not for a moment discourage me.

'I had perfect confidence in my ability to unravel the mystery, and setting out as early as possible, I arrived at the village in the mild twilight of a summer evening.

'As we rolled through the quiet streets, I half forgot the important object of my visit. Every object on which my eye rested was a reminder of former hope and happiness; and the blessed by-gone hours came trooping back, all bright and beautiful, through the chambers of my memory.

'Immediately on my arrival at the hotel, I learned the particulars of the mysterious absence of Florence Irving, and, by the next morning I had half matured my plans of operation. Never, however, was a detective on the track of game more completely lost, than was I in pursuit of this unfortunate girl.

'No one had heard her speak of leaving the village; she had no friends or relatives living at a distance; and, as she took her leave at night, no one was able to discover the direction she had taken.

'The only circumstances that excited my curiosity and suspicion were, that several weeks before her departure, a travelling spiritualist, by the name of Simpson, had been giving lectures in the village; that she had become a most thorough convert; and, that during his stay they had frequently been seen together.

'After several hours of careful thought and study, I came to the conclusion that this sanctimonious Simpson was at the bottom of all the mystery.

'Several days were occupied in endeavoring to ascertain his whereabouts; but of no avail.

'He had been giving a series of lectures in a neighboring village; but, about the time of Miss Irving's disappearance, he had suddenly departed, no one knew whither.

'This circumstance only confirmed my suspicion, and returning to her aunt's house, I obtained possession to examine the room which the missing girl had last occupied.

'There was nothing particularly suggestive or peculiar in its appearance. The contents of her writing desk, which I examined with the utmost care, were in perfect order, with the exception of a few scattered fragments of paper, upon which were scrawled the names of Simpson and myself, in the greatest possible confusion.

'I was about to leave it with scarcely any hopes of obtaining a clue to her whereabouts, when I noticed the inverted word "Albany" upon a slip of blotting paper, which had evidently been but little used.

'I examined it carefully, and you may imagine my satisfaction, when, with the aid of a microscope, I managed to decipher the following inverted sentences which were written on Friday afternoon the very day on which she disappeared:

'My dear Mr. Simpson:

"Your entreaties, and my love or infatuation, have triumphed over all duty and principle. [Here was a sentence which I could not decipher]. I will be ready to leave with you for Albany at 12 o'clock to-night.

Yours,

FLORENCE."

She had evidently written her note in great haste; and, when using her blotter, had left upon it an inverted impression of nearly all she had written. I hastened to inform her aunt of my discovery, and immediately set off for Albany, in pursuit of the missing parties. On my arrival in the city, I secured the assistance of the authorities, and made the most thorough search and inquiries, which, however were wholly unsuccessful. After a fruitless search of three months, I returned home, completely worn out and discouraged.

In my anxious endeavors to discover some trace of the missing girl, I had overtasked my energies, and immediately after my arrival at home, I was taken with a fever, from which I did not fully recover till the next summer. But, though I had but little hope of discovering any trace of the woman I had once worshiped, my thought and desires were continually wandering away to the capital of the Empire State.

Accordingly, as soon as my health was sufficiently recovered, I returned to that city to fit myself for the medical profession which I had long before determined to pursue. I entered the medical colledge, obtained a home with one of the prominent members of the faculty, and becoming familiar with the students, my study and social intercourse partially dispelled the moody abstraction into which I had been thrown by the loss of Florence Irving—a loss from which, I presume, I shall never wholly recover. It has left a shadow upon my heart which often renders me melancholly, retired and unfamiliar.

If I remember rightly it was the latter part of September that the students were anxious to obtain a female 'subject' for dissection. We had made several efforts to purchase one from the authorities; but being unable to do so, we at last resolved to resort to the illegal process of getting from the cemetery.

'Accordingly, several students were selected for the purpose—myself among the number; and we then had only to wait for an opportunity, and a night to favour our operations.

'One or another of us were continually strolling through the cemetry we had resolved to enter, for the purpose of obtaining information; and late one afternoon, we received notice that a lady had been buried in the immediate vicinity of the keeper's lodge.

'We had already waited so long, that we thought proper to run the risk rather than suffer the inconvenience of further delay. The weather favoured our operations. The afternoon was dull and sultry; out the night set in with gusts of wind and occasional torrents of rain.

'Just after the bells of the city had husked their midnight-summons in the face of the angry storm, we crept out of the old building, thoroughly disguised, and supplied with spades, ropes, and dark-lanterns and all other necessary impliments.

The rain had ceased falling; but the wind was blowing furiously, struggling with the treetoops, and shaking the drenching drops upon us as we passed beneath them. A full moon was in the sky, but was hidden by the thick, heavy clouds, and with the deep darkness and the writhing and groaning trees, no object or sound could be distinguished.

'We soon reached the grave without interuption; and, posting two of the party to warn us in case of approaching danger we set vigorously to work. Never did men work with greater rapidity or caution. The earth was loose and moist which enabled us to remove it rapidly and just as the bells tolled the hour of one, our spades struck with that dull dreadful sound, upon the head of the coffin.

'As if by common consent, we paused a moment in our efforts. That moment's pause, with me, produced no very pleasant emotion. It gave my excitement no opportunity to subside. The sobbing wail of the wind; the raindrops pattering like the footsteps of invisible beings; the spectras gravestones around us; the black clouds, with the moon now and then looking through; the solemn associations and the memories of spooks and spectres that had tortured my boyish fancy, produced a rather uncomfortable feeling. But the clouds were rapidly breaking away, and not a moment was to be lost.

'I sprang into the grave, and unscrewed the lid of the coffin. A murmer of satisfaction broke from the party as I thrust in my hand and informed them it was a woman. The rope was let down, and the hook fastened beneath her jaw, and the lifeless form was drawn to the surface. As I sprang from the grave and stooped over her, the moon emerged suddenly from behind a cloud, and alone full upon her face. For a moment, I was dumb with horror. It was the face of my long lost Florence Irving—not fresh and young and innocent, as when I last beheld it, but wan and wasted—and yet possessed of a beauty which death itself could never tear away.

'A few words were sufficient to explain the circumstances to the rest of the party; and quickly, yet tenderly we returned the shrouded form to its last resting-place. Arranging the grave as we had found it, we hurried away to the college. Through the medium of the sexton, I afterward discovered the place where she had been living, when I learned that, soon after her arrival in the city, she had been deserted by the perfidious Simpson, had suffered greatly from want and privation, and being too proud and broken-hearted to ask for assistance, she had died in a garret in an obscure section of the city.

'I examined it carefully, and you may imagine my satisfaction, when, with the aid of a microscope, I managed to decipher the following inverted sentences which were written on Friday afternoon the very day on which she disappeared:

'My dear Mr. Simpson:

"Your entreaties, and my love or infatuation, have triumphed over all duty and principle. [Here was a sentence which I could not decipher]. I will be ready to leave with you for Albany at 12 o'clock to-night.

WIDOW SIMPSON'S SPOONS.

In the parish of Bathgate, Linlithgowshire, Scotland, lived a widow woman by the name of Simpson.

In her family resided, in the capacity of help, one Nancy Campbell, a girl about nineteen, who was suspected to have taken a fancy to Robin, the widow's son, who reciprocated the sentiment. Nothing however, would soften the heart of the widow as regards a match, till at last the following event occurred, and caused her to give away. About the hay-making time, a distant and comparatively rich relation was expected to call and take tea that evening on his way from Linlithgow. It was not often that the superior relative honored her house with a visit, and Mrs. Simpson, determined that nothing should be wanting to his entertainment, brought out the treasured spoons early in the forenoon with many injunctions to Nancy touching the care she should take in bringing them up. While this operation was being conducted in the kitchen, in the midst of those uncertain days which vary the northern June, a sudden darkening of the sky announced the approach of heavy rain. The hay was dry add ready for housing. Robin and two farm-men were busy gathering it in; but the great drops began to fall while a considerable portion yet remained in the field, with the instinct of crop preservation, forth went the widow, followed by Nancy, leaving the spoons half cleaned on the kitchen table. In her rapid exit the girl had forgotten to latch the door. The weasel and the kite depredators known about the moor and farm; but while they were all occupied in the hay-field, who should come that way but Geordy Wilson, one of the parish beggars.

Well, the kitchen door was open, and Geordy stepped in. He banged the settle with his staff, he coughed, he saulted the cat, which sat purring on the window sett, and at length discovered there was nobody within.—Neither meal nor penny was to be expected that day; the rain was growing heavier, some of the hay must be wet, and Mrs. Simpson would return in bad humor. But two objects powerfully arrested Geordy's attention; one was the broth pot boiling on the fire, and the other the silver spoons scattered on the table. Bending over the former, he took a considerable sniff, gave the ingredients a stir with a potstick, and muttered "very thin." His proceedings with the latter must remain unmentioned; but, half an hour after, when he was safely away in a farm-house, a mile off, the family were driven into doors by the increasing storm; they found everything as it had been left—the broth on the fire, the cattoo the window-seat, the whiting and flannel on the table; but not a spoon was there.

"Where's the spoons?" cried Mrs. Simpson of the entire family, who stood by the fire drying their wet garments. Nobody could tell. Nancy had left them on the table when she ran to the hay. Some one had been in the house they were certain, but nothing was disturbed. The drawer was pulled out and the empty stockings exhibited. Every shelf and every corner was searched, but to no purpose; the spoons had disappeared, and the state of the farm-house may be imagined, the widow ran through it like one distracted, questioning, scolding, and searching. Robin, Nancy and the farm-men were despatched in different directions, as soon as the rain abated, to advertise the neighbors, under the supposition that some strolling beggar or gipsy might have carried off the treasure and would attempt to dispose of it in the parish. Nobody thought of Geordy Wilson; he had not been espied from the hay-field. Lost, the spoons were, beyond a doubt, and widow bade fair to lose her spoons.

The rich relation came at the appointed time, and had such a tea that he avowed never again to trust himself in the house of his entertainer.

But the search went on; rabbits holes were looked into for the missing silver, and active boys were bribed to turn out magpies' nests. Wells and barns in the neighborhood were explored. The criers of the three nearest parishes were employed to proclaim the loss; it was regularly advertised at kirk-gate and market-place; and Mrs. Simpson began to talk of getting a search warrant for the beggar's meal pouch.

Bathgate was alarmed through all its borders concerning the spoons; but when almost a month passed away and nothing could be heard of them, the widow's suspicions turned from beggars, barns, and magpies, to light on poor Nancy. She had been cleaning the spoons, and left the house last; silver could not leave the table without hands. It was true what Nancy had borne an unquestionable character; but such spoons were not to be met with every day, and Mrs. Simpson was determined to have them back in her stocking. After sundry hints of increasing breadth to Robin, who could not help thinking his mother was losing her judgment, she one day plumped the charge, to the utter astonishment and dismay of the poor girl, whose anxiety in the search had only been inferior to her own. Though poor and an orphan, Nancy had some honest pride. She immediately turned out the contents of her kist, (box) unstrung her pocket in Mrs. Simpson's presence, and ran, with tears in her eyes to tell the minister.

As was then common to the country parishes of Scotland, difficulties and disputes which might have employed the writers and puzzled magistrates were refered to his arbitration, and thus lawsuits and scandal prevented. The minister had heard, as who in Bathgate had not? of Mrs. Simpson's loss. Like the rest of the parish he thought it rather strange; but Nancy Campbell was one of the most serious and exemplary girls of his congregation—he could not believe that the charge preferred against her was true; yet the peculiarities of the case demanded investigation. With some difficulty the minister persuaded Nancy to return to her mistress, bearing a message to the effect that he and two of his elders, who happened to reside in the neighborhood, would come over the following evening, and hear what could be said on both sides, and if possible, clear up the mystery. The widow was well pleased at the minister and his elders coming to enquire about her spoons. She put on her best mutch, (that is cap) prepared her best speeches, and enlisted some of her best and most reliable neighbors to assist in the investigation.

Early in the evening of the following day—when the summer sun was nearing low and the field work over—they were all assembled in the clean old kitchen, the minister, elders, and neighbors soberly listening to Mrs. Simpson's testimony about her lost silver, Nancy, Robin and the farm men were sitting by till their turn came, when the door that had been left half open to admit the breeze—for the evening was sultry—was quietly pushed aside, and in slid Geordy Wilson, with his usual accompaniments of staff and wallet.

"There's nae room for ye here, Geordy" said the widow, "we're on weighty business.

"Weel, mem," said Geordy, turning to depart "its of nae consequence. I only came to speak about your spoons."

"Hae ye heard o' them," cried Mrs. Simpson, bounding from her seat.

"I couldna miss bein' blessed with the power of hearing' and what's better, I saw them," said Geordy.

"Saw them, Geordy? Where are they? and here's a whole shillin' for ye; and Mrs. Simpson's purse, or rather an old glove used for that purpose, was instantly produced.

"Weel," said Geordy, "I slipped in ae day, and seein' the siller unguarded, I thought some ill-guided body might covit it, and jist laid it by, I may say, in the leaves o' the Bible, thinking you would be sure to see the spoons when you went to read."

Before Geordy had finished his revelation Nancy Campbell had brought down the proudly-displayed, but never opened Bible, and unespered between the leaves lay the dozen of long sought spoons.

The minister of Bathgate could scarcely command his gravity while admonishing Geordy on the trouble and vexation his trick had caused. The assembled neighbors laughed out right when the daft man pocketed the widows shilling, which he had clutched in the early part of the discourse, assured them that he had learned that Mrs. Simpson read her Bible so often that the spoons would be certain to turn up. Geordy got many a basin of broth and many a luncheon of bread and cheese on account of that transaction, with which he amused all the firesides of the parish. Mrs. Simpson was struck dumb even from scolding. The discovery put an end to her ostentatious profession, and it may be hoped, turned her attention more to practice.

Has the story no moral for you dear reader?—Leisure Hour.

CARROTS should have a large place in the garden, and if more are raised than the frequent demands of the kitchen require, the balance will furnish the best of cow and horse feed. Two kinds are enough for family use; the Early Horn, a sweet, tender early sort of small size, and the Long Orange for the main winter crop. The Early Horn will frequently give a good yield, sown in July after early peas or onions, but for early use, should be sown in the middle of April. Let the rows be one foot apart, scatter in plenty of seed, cover one half-inch deep with fine soil, and thin to four inches at the second hoeing. The Long Orange does better in rows 15 inches apart, thinned to 5 inches. There is little danger of making the soil too rich, or working it too deep for this tap rooted crop. Keep well hoed and weeded, especially when small. The main crop may be sown from the middle of April to the 1st of June—better early in May.

MERIT AND CENSURE.—It is folly for an eminent man to think of escaping censure, and a weakness to be affected with it. All the illustrious persons of antiquity, and indeed, of every age in the world, have passed through its firery persecution. There is no defence against reproach but obscurity; it is a kind of concomitant to greatness as satires and invectives were the essential part of a Romen triumph.

PLEASANT THINGS.—It is pleasant to be virtuous and good, because that is to excel ourselves; it is pleasant to mortify and subdue our lusts, because that is victory it is pleasant to command our appetites and passions, to keep them in true order, within the bonds of reason, because that is empire.

At the end of the present fiscal year Great Britain, will have thirty-nine ironclads afloat and ready for service. They will nearly all be armed with 200 and 300 pounders, and be able to sail at an average rate of twelve knots. "Britannia" still "rules the wawe."

Refreshment, sleeping and smoking cars are about to be placed on the German railways. Ball-alleys, bar-rooms, and barber's saloons are the next innovations expected.

BUSINESS MORALITY.

There is a degree of general complicity in the prevalence of general immorality which pervades the mass of society at the present time; for we would not restrict the word Commercial morality to the Mercantile business of our community, but rather would have it include all business transactions between man and man. The chief reason why the charge may be made so sweeping, arises from the fact that those who are not perhaps guilty of any direct act of immorality, their tacit allowance of the act by their silence concerning it and the manner in which the most immoral acts are glossed over, are so many proofs of implied abetment that few, very few can claim exemption from the charge of encouraging many of the evils, if not the whole, of which we have to complain. It won't almost appear as if confidence could not be placed in any one to any great degree; but more especially in those who are engaged in public business. This does not exist because none can be trusted, but because so many have proved recreant to principle that men are led to doubt every one for fear of being deceived by any. Such a state of things is, no doubt very injurious to the trade of the country, and while the cause for it remains, the injury must remain and be felt. But the great cause of public immorality is directly traceable to the vitiated state of Public Opinion, which seems to have become so misdirected that it appears, nay, verily, does strengthen and perpetuate corruption and abuse. This is one of the reasons why we have so many instances of the most glaring dishonesty, both in commercial and even more private circles. Public Opinion fails to brand dishonest actions as rogues neglect of business, when the means of others are at stake, as a species of robbery, or reckless living or dissipation, or even liberality when what is given is not your own, as nothing less than theft. True, what is so used may not be taken without the consent of the real owner, but this consent is often obtained by forgery, false promises, and deceit, which adds so much more vice to the crime already referred to. Thus instead of Public Opinion being what it ought to be, the rectifier of Public Opinion, by the soft names it applies, and the absence of attaching any great degree of obloquy to those really guilty of malpractice, it gives its sanction to the continuance of the many species of immorality daily perpetrated in the general business of the country. We may ask why is it that there are so many failures in business, and so many applications for the benefits of the Insolvent Act. And the answer must be "the cause, directly, in the vitiated state of Public Opinion. As many go into business on a limited capital, the consequent disadvantages we all know; and the consequent comparatively small net income must also be expected. Under such circumstances wisdom would dictate moderation in living, care in business, as small an outlay for labor as possible. So that after providing for at least the interest of borrowed capital, there may be enough to meet the absolutely necessary current expenses and country. Nay, it is incessantly at work to keep pace with Public Opinion. This same Public Opinion forbids honest men getting into business, for the general opinion is, only a sharper can get along well. Only one who can oppose fraud to cunning is able to fight his way successfully through the intricacies of business. This is one of the great and first causes of so much dishonesty in the general transaction of life. If a man has sons, one honest, benevolent and straightforward, he considers this one fit for the Church, and will direct his attention that way. If his second son exhibits signs of shrewdness, and a power to make the best side of a bargain, he considers this one should be a merchant. And if, perchance he might have a third who possessed the power of making right wrong, or wrong right, he must study Law, thus pandering to the big bear Public Opinion, and completely ignoring the principle that education should be such as to direct the bent of the mind, rather than foster those depravities of mind, which thus strengthened, end in ruin if not here, surely hereafter. Had the sharper been put under a course of teaching, so as to fit him for the Church, his depraved propensity might have been brought under, and rightly directed by the principles of the moral law, becomes a blessing to himself and others, instead of being completely vitiated by the chances offered in every day trade, and assuredly the one who possessed the good qualities of honesty and candor would have been better prepared to oppose the first dawn of taking advantage in business. But so long as the common mind is influenced as it now is, the common occurrences of the day may be looked for—and the principle of "like begetting like" must continue though our own sons and daughters should be swept away in the whirlwind of the corrupt and corrupting influences of Public opinion. There never existed a greater necessity for directing public opinion than at the present time. At no period in the world's history since the Reformation was there such a disregard to what is right and just, if but appearances can be maintained, than at the present. The question now is not what says wisdom, but what says jaundiced Public Opinion. Men are now found advocating wrong for expediency, they disregard honesty for advantage, they sell their own rights and the rights of their fellows for gain, and all because there is no tribunal to arraign them before. What is the extent of any contribution to the act is seldom asked by any one.

THE FAIR.

Our summer Fair was held on Tuesday last, there were a great number of people in Town, besides a considerable number of Cattle and Horses were on hand, there were not many cattle sold, and what were, were principally milch cows, in some cases they brought very fair prices, from $26 to $30 being paid.

The Horses were a miserable lot, and we do not know if any changed hands.

A considerable quantity of Wool was brought in, and the competition among the buyers was very keen, prices commenced at 37½ cents, and went rapidly up to 43, and in one or two instances we believe as high as 45 was paid, however the great bulk of the wool was bought at about 40 cents which is about the average price paid; about 4,000 lbs. were brought in by the farmers, so that somewhere in the neighborhood of $1600 was paid out for this one staple alone.

Oats were selling at 45 cents; Hay from $9 to $11; and butter 11 cents.

Mr. Bickell from Port Britain had a few revolving Hay Rakes, and Plows on the market; our farmers would do well to support home manufacture, as we understand that they can get a better article, and at a cheaper rate, than those were sold for.

A plantation swing was erected on the Market Square, which for workmanship and neatness was a curiosity to look at, considering the genius that erected it.

LITERARY NOTICES.

Hours at Home is the name of a new popular monthly, devoted to Religious and useful Literature. The second number contains a great deal of useful reading, the contents: German Painters; St. Elizabeth of Hungary, Theology of the Beautiful; Bishop Berkley in America; Rest: A Folded Leaf; How George Neamark Sung; Hours at Home: How to Treat our Wives; The Choice of Companions; Recollection of Sea Sights; Our Quarter-master; Gen. Sheridan; Abraham Lincoln; and several pieces of Original and Select Poetry. On the whole, Hours at Home offers fair to be a pleasant home companion. This Periodical and all the Magazines and Monthlies can be obtained at the Telegraph Book Store, Simcoe Street, opposite Messrs. Nicholls and Hall's.

Portraits of British Americans, by W. Notman, with Biographical sketches by Fennings Taylor, Clerk and Clerk Assistant of the Legislative Council, Quebec.

This is a new serial from the printing establishment of Mr. John Lovell. The material is of the best quality, and the Typography excellent. The work contains several well executed photographs of eminent British Americans. It is only furnished to yearly subscribers.

From a cursory review of the present number, we bespeak a very favorable reception for it. We certainly think that as a Canadian work, as also for the encouragement of fairly and impartially written sketches of our public men, this monthly deserves to be freely patronized. We understand that a gentleman is now in Town taking subscribers names. This is a rare opportunity of getting acquainted with the history and resemblance of Public men whose names are familiar to us.

Large Fleeces of Wool.—We observed yesterday, on the market in one load, 26 fleeces of Wool, clipped from the flock of Mr. H. Sutherland, of the 1st con. of Delaware, weighing collectively 147 lbs. The wool was taken from the Leicester sheep, owned by that gentleman. Beat it, who can?—London Free Press.

Beaten by Peterboro.

Wool.—Our old friend, Henry Collins, of Monaghan, sold to Messrs. I. Robinson & Co., 31 fleeces of wool, the whole weighing 402 pounds. Mr. Collins generally carries off a number of prizes at the Agricultural Fairs for having the best sheep, and no doubt would do the same as regards his Wool. Beat this, who can.

The Case of the Cashier Munroe.—The excitement in commercial circles concerning the affair of Mr. Munroe, manager of the Toronto Bank, is dying out. After his dismissal from his post Monroe took refuge in the United States, but what one authority calls a curious question remains to be answered, can a bank agent bind the bank he represents by a guarantee of a time bargain? If it is alledged that such a guarantee is not authorized by the charter of the bank, and could not be even by the President and directors. At any rate Monroe has made a judicious move and cannot be extradited.

The twin brothers, the Review and Hamilton Spectator, in their great desire to reduce others to their own level, so that they might not be considered alone them in their mundane peregrinations, have been lately at work to malign the religious character of the worthy representative of this County. The public, however, know too well the character of his maligners to pay any attention to their grins at moral dignity. Those who never proved themselves to be the greatest hypocrites might have spoken, but really a single remark from the Spectator comes with bad race.

Fire.—The Saw Mill, in Ashburnham, known as O. W. Boswell's, at the time occupied and owned by Mr. J. H. Austin, was consumed by fire on Monday night. The first appearance of the fire was seen about 12 o'clock, midnight. The building, machinery, and all in the Mill at the time, was totally consumed. The loss is about $5,000. Insured for $3,000 in the Liverpool & London. The fire was evidently the work of an incendiary, as nothing has been done in the mill since last fall. Mr. Austin is now getting down his logs.

A Nuisance.—We would call the attention of our Town authorities to a lot of men and boys, who regularly every Sunday make a practice of bathing in the river, opposite the residence of R. Dennistoun, Esq.; it is not an uncommon thing to see from four to a dozen in the water at one time, and to hear them using it in bulling and grossly obscene language to passers by; a few examples made would put a stop to Sunday bathing. We must say it is a disgrace to the Town to allow such a practice.

Narrow Escape.—On Sunday evening last, a little boy, while running on the boom at Mr. Dickson's Mill Pond, fell into the River and would have been drowned had his cries not been heard by a man passing by at the time; the little fellow was letting go his hold of the boom when he was rescued. It is a wonder more children are not drowned.

Sole Lumber.—A load of lumber was drawn through the town yesterday by five horses, there was 7,500 feet of lumber in the load, it was brought from Mr. Hughson's Mill, and drawn to the Railway Station, a distance of about three miles altogether, the waggon was made by Mr. John Dagherty, Waggon Maker of this town.

Sabbath School Anniversary.—The Anniversary of the Sabbath School, of the Bible Christian Church, in Peterborough, will be held on Sunday next. On Monday following a public tea will be provided for the children and others, in the Chapel yard. For particulars see advertisement in another column.

The Stonewall.—The Rebel ram Stonewall, was given up to the Cuban authorities to save her from falling into the hands of the Federals. It appears that on the arrival of the ram at Havana, Admiral Stribling, on the part of the United States, warned the Captain General of Cuba that as the Confederates had been thoroughly crushed the Stonewall could only be regarded as a pirate, and the Spanish authorities would be held responsible if they allowed her to leave port. The Captain General replied that in the absence of fresh instructions from his government; he could not ignore the belligerent rights conceded to the Confederacy. But he would order the cruiser to leave Port on the completion of some necessary repairs. Admiral Stribling then caused a strong force of war vessels to concentrate near Havana with a view to sinking the Stonewall when she left the harbor. Her Captain, finding escape doubtful, surrendered her to the authorities, or, in reality, made a present of her to Spain.

Presented to Her Majesty.—At a Court held on the 15th, the Right Hon. Edward Cardwell, (Secretary of State for the Colonies,) presented the Hon. J. A. Macdonald, the Hon. G. E. Cartier, the Hon. George Brown, and the Hon. Alexander Galt, who had the honor of kissing Her Majesty's hand.

Mr. Munro, of the Bank of Toronto, in Montreal, formerly agent in Peterboro, has been dismissed for speculating in Yankee Bonds, with Bank Funds—pocketing the profits, it is said, but placing losses to the bank account. He is gone to New York according to reports.

Report has it that Mr. Caleb Lowe, of Cavan, has withdrawn from public life in Canada, leaving his friends to lament his sudden change of residence. Dealing in the use of other men's names without their consent, is said to be the cause of his disappearance.

The Prince of Wales visited the steamship "Great Eastern" on the 24th ult., and inspected the Atlantic Telegraph Cable, and the works connected therewith; he was accompanied by our Canadian Commissioners.

Rain.—Since our last issue, there has been two fine showers of rain in this neighborhood. The one yesterday lasted for about three hours. The crops have not suffered much for the want of rain.

Personal.—In the last Canada Gazette, we notice that our fellow townsman, Mr. Wm. N. Kennedy, Lieutenant of No. 1, Infantry Company, has been granted a second class certificate.

Literary Club.—The members of the Peterboro Literary Club are requested to meet at the Fireman's Hall this evening at 8 o'clock, for the transaction of the business of the Club.

Fire.—Mr. Mercer's residence in Chatam was destroyed by fire on the 6th inst.; loss on house and furniture $15,000. Insurance $3,500.

ASHBURNHAM.

The Municipal Council of the village of Ashburnham, met on Monday evening the 5th instant.

Present: the Reeve, and Messrs. Bennett, Strickland, and Ludgate.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The Final Return of the Collector was presented and received, and the Treasurer directed to pay said collector his salary.

On motion of Mr. Bennett, seconded by Mr. Ludgate, the sum of ten dollars was granted to the Board of Trustees, for the purpose of purchasing prize books for the children attending School in the Municipality.

The Council adjourned to meet again on the 1st Monday of July next, at 8 o'clock, p. m.

GREAT UNION MEETING,—HORSE RACING CHRISTIANITY IN PETERBOROUGH.

"All this talk about the necessity of entertainment and the impossibility of relieving the monotony of life without parties, route, and diversions, sounds very like a growing weariness of the yoke of Christ."—J. James.

Observe that gathering crowd, see the people pouring in from all quarters, swelling its ranks, and increasing its dense ness. Almost as various as the faces are the classes that compose it. The lordly and the lowly, the mean and the mighty, the profane scoffer and the Christian, all jostling together in the mingled throng; and many, many likewise are there with motives and thoughts as different as the lineaments of their features, but all marshalled in good order, and in pursuit of one all-absorbing object—the races. But what is that in the distance? A temple dedicated to the Prince of Peace. No! A temporary camp in the woods for the worship of God? No! Well, one might think so from the numbers of Christian Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Baptists and Metho ists from Peterborough and the regions around. Well, if neither, what is it then? "A Racing ground;" and instead of a temple for God's worship, numerous tabernacles for the use of the drunkard and the gambler, escaped from the pressure of the crowd, see the very fences are crowded with anxious spectators. Here the revel is high and here all the intense and brutal passions of the heart are drawn out over the gambling table, or roused into madness by the inebriating draught. Here, too, the oath sounds loud, and the profane jest passes from lip to lip; and here also is the strange woman in her flaunting attire enjoying herself See yonder little groups of Christians and scoffers, Sons of Temperance and tipplers. Listen to their conversation,—"The wonders of redeeming love," or the conversion of home or foreign heathen" or the 'evils of intemperance or gambling. No! but "the splendid manner in which Gerry Owen and Prince Edward distanced the Maid." 'Tis all profession in our day and little else. "By their works ye will know them." Do men gather figs of thorns, or grapes of thistles.

Let me ask you Mr. Editor, can a man be a Christian who can enjoy himself in the atmosphere of a race ground! How can such read the word of God and pray after an afternoon spent in a place and among company where his Master is not welcome. How can such a one approve sin in a brother, &c., or with consistency teach his little ones to say "Our Father." The "Christian" who attends "Races" is making a dangerous experiment. Who can tell how far he may go astray. Ere long the New York Mercury may become his bible; the card table his Sacramental board, and the Theatre his Sanctuary.

In the March number of the Scottish Original Secession Magazine, a writer under the signature of "Knox" says:—"The 19th Century is therefore not an age of thought, and this is its lamentable character. (Discipline is a thing unknown in many of our churches,) and its ministry ministrations, and worshippers are superficial." This is a lamentable fact, and every day's experience proves it to be true; and to a greater extent in Canada than in Britain. O, for a Knox or a Whitfield to arouse the sleeping Christian of the day from the profound sleep into which the devil and the world has rocked them; and this in the year 1865. And this is a Christian land! It is well we are assured of these facts, for the gathering of Episcopalian and Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist with the drunkard and profane, the infidel and scoffer, in intimate union might well indeed cause to degrade the politic.

"Leave the rugged path—the steep ascent
"That carries pains to it. Chu a life than sweet
"Lead to the bliss who promises to the saint.
"Doth lift the soul from earth and speed it to the skies."

Acknowledgement has also to be made of various donations, not in money, as follows: Mr Erskine, store goods; Mr. H. Aiken, tea and sugar; Mr. J. Best, store goods; Mr. A. Stewart, 100 lbs. of flour; Mr. Hughson, $5 in goods; Mr. Isaac Robinson, a pair of blankets, two coats, a box of woolen goods, &c.; Mr. Ward, 60c. in bread tickets; Mr. Gardiner, 2½ cords of firewood; Mr. R. Patterson, a pair of boots; Mr. Blabee, a pair of boots.

The thanks of the Peterborough Protestant Relief Society are tendered to those kind friends who have sent contributions in wood, clothing orders on stores and money, during the last five months. The Committee are endeavoring faithfully to distribute these charities amongst the poor, the sick and the distressed, and have been gratified by receiving many messages of thanks for the timely assistance granted.

The Committee of the above Society had long felt the necessity that a Home or Refuge should be established for the aged, helpless and destitute women and children of this town and neighborhood, and it was resolved that immediate measures be taken to supply this want in connection with the existing Protestant Relief Society. The subject was warmly taken up by some of the leading and influential members of the Community (to whom thanks are offered) and laid before the Council, which resulted in the presentation of a building lot, for the sole object of erecting a house for the above purpose, subject to certain conditions. Meanwhile the designs of the committee have been still further aided by the immediate loan of a suitable house, where the operations of the society can be practically carried out without delay.

From the interest taken in their proceedings and the liberality evinced by the public in this truly benevolent undertaking, the committee are greatly encouraged to hope that their to-be endeavors to benefit the aged and destitute by opening for them a Home in which both their temporal and eternal interests will be considered, will not only meet with success, but become, by God's blessing, a flourishing institution and a means of comfort and happiness to those who are at present helpless, friendless and forlorn.

AMERICAN NEWS.

SURRENDER OF KIRBY SMITH'S ARMY COMPLETED.

FEDERAL TROOPS RAPIDLY DISBANDING.

LARGE DEPARTURES FOR EUROPE.

New York, June 3.—The Charleston Courier of the 28th ult. learns from Columbia that Governor Magrath had issued a notice, stating that his functions as Executive had ceased and that the State was now in the hands of the military authorities of the United States. After issuing this notice he decamped, but couriers have been sent after him.

Mrs. Davis, Mrs. C. C. Clay and party had reached Savanah.

The Augusta Constitutionalist speaks in high terms of a parade by Gen. Washburn's command.

Justice Chase and party had arrived at Jacksonville, Florida.

Col. Sanderson, author of the Florida secession ordinance, had come into Jacksonville to pay his taxes; also Hon. D. L. Yulee, Col. McCormick and others. They are ready to take the oath of allegiance.

The steamer Delaware went ashore in a gale on the 27th ult. at Hilton Head.

The Ellingburgh, Hansa and Louisianain sailed to-day for Europe, taking $73,000 in specie.

New Orleans papers contain details of the surrender of Kirby Smith's forces. The capitulation was completed on the 25th of May. Gen Buckner, it appears, conducted the last capitulation, as he also did the first, at Fort Donelson. He showed Gen. Canby indisputable authority to act for Smith. The Confederate navy was represented by Capt. Carter. Gen. Dick Taylor was present. It is probable, therefore, a competent Federal force will move forward at once to occupy the principle cities in Texas. In the meantime the Confederate representatives will remain within our lines to give counsel and advice as to social order, Gen. Smith proceeds through his departments to prepare the people for coming events.

A petition is in circulation in Mobile to be presented to President Johnson for measures to bring Alabama again to the Union

The Post's Washington special despatch says:—

"Howell Cobb and other leading Confederates are expected at Washington to-day or to-morrow under arrest. The President was beset to-day by delegations. The disbanded troops are departing rapidly to-day for their homes."

The three steamers which left for Europe to-day took out between 1,300 and 1,400 of our first families intending to spend the summer abroad. As an offset, the Helvitia from Liverpool to-day brought 1,257 emigrants.

Secretary Stanton to be Removed.—He has a Row with Johnston.—Disorder and Anarchy in Texas.—The Trial of the Alleged Assassins.—A Clergyman with confused ideas.—An Army sent to the Rio Grande.—Perplexity of Foreign Ministers.

Washington, June 4.—A special despatch to the Tribune says:—

"It is reported, on good authority, to-night, that Mr. Stanton has resigned. This is not positively confirmed, but it is known that he has determined to leave the cabinet very soon. There is a report afloat that the decision has been assisted by a violent collision between the President and the Secretary, both strong willed men, in which the latter indulged in his druegue manners, and the former took occasion to inform him that he (Andy) was President of the United States, but there is not much in this, for the President assured a major general yesterday that the seperation about to take place was only induced by the prostration of Mr. Stanton and his exhausting labors. Mr. Stanton has been offered the position of Minister to Berlin, but the place is not deemed of sufficient importance. If his resignation be not in already in the President's hands, it will be soon. Mr. Harrington Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, has resigned peremptorily, and will go as Minister to Berne in place of Mr. Fogg. He has engaged passage and will sail by the first of July. It is also rumored that Mr. Field, another assistant, is willing to accept some position abroad. The difference of opinion existing between Secretary Harlan and Mr. Usher his predecessor is very considerable and is assuming a serious form. The new Secretary is examining in a very impartial manner the huge contracts which the retired officer signed when leaving, and is demanding that they be reestablished on the principles of honesty and equity. Against this rough criticism Mr. Usher protests in behalf of his clients, making the fight it is understood before the President. The interior department, consequently is considerably agitated just now. As one result of the complication, Judge Otto, Assistant Secretary, is leaving the department, and John Wilson now third auditor will succeed him.

New York, June 5.—The southern papers are urgent for immigration from the North, and their statements of the circumstances and needs of the country indicate that an almost inexhaustable field for Northern enterprize in agricultural, commercial and other industrial pursuits is now or soon will be opened in that region by the termination of the rebellion. The advantages of Virginia and Texas for colonists of this kind are particularly urged upon by the journalistic advocates of these States.

A special despatch to the Times, dated Washington, June 4th says the conspiracy trial will occupy all this week. The arguments will commence on Wednesday, and it will be two weeks before the finding will be promulgated. The government is selling large numbers of draught horses and mules. It is asserted on credible authority that the President is considering the propriety of convening Congress as early as the 1st of October. Secretary Seward visited the State department on Saturday. He was able to walk up the steps, but required rest at each landing.

Louisville, Ky., June 4.—John Lewis, a negro, convicted by court-martial, of the murder of Thos. C. Magrath, at Shelbyville, has been sentenced to be hung on the 13th inst.

Gen. Palmer has issued an order that the city courts shall release from confinement slaves convicted of having their own time.

New York, June 5.—The steamer Havana brings Havana dates of the 30th.

Advices from Galveston, by the blockade runner Lark, dated 28th ult., states that great confusion and anarchy reigned in that city and Houston. The Lark was robbed of her cargo taken there and returned to Havana in ballast.

Gen. Magruder attempted a speech to the soldiers, but was hissed and silenced. He was told they had been humbuged enough and intended to settle affairs for themselves. Magruder returned to San Antonia.

The Texans would fight no longer and wished to return to the Union. The Mayor and principal citizens left Galveston to meet the Federal officers and hurry up the surrender. It is also said that Governor Murray and Ashbel Smith had gone to New Orleans to surrender the State.

The famous blockade runner Denbeigh has at last been destroyed by Federal gunboats. The captain and crew escaped.

The Owl returned to Havannah fearing robbery at Galveston.

Mexican dates of the 29th state that guerillas are as prevalent as ever. Negrete was at Monterey with 5,000 troops on May 2nd, and the French troops were moving against the place.

The United States steamer Susquehanna, monitors Monadnock and Canonicus, and gunboats Chippewa, Fahkee, Monticello and Wando had arrived at Havana, causing a great sensation.

The Tribune states that Mr. Conniver, whose testimony concerning the complicity of Confederate leaders in the assassination is now made public. He left Washington for Canada a fortnight ago to return in a few days, but has not been heard from since, though his presence in Washington is urgently demanded. It is feared he has been foully dealt by.

We have Barbadoes papers to the 15th May. Yellow fever is again raging among the crews of vessels at Demarara. Ninety-three cases were admitted to the hospital in 14 days—eighteen terminating fatally.

In Trinidad and Grenada the heavy rains had injured the prospects to the cane crop to the extent of 5,000 hogsheads.

In Gaudeloupe, the crop operations were proceeding briskly. Wharves and storehouses at Point a Pitre were full of sugar.

Washington, June 5.—The government has received a translation of the address of felicitation of the Hellenic Greeks of Constantinople to the Hon. E. J. Morris, United States Minister, on the victories which have saved this country against domestic treason and foreign intrigues. These Greeks also join in an address of sympathy on the assassination of President Lincoln and the attempt on the life of Secretary Seward.

Several witnesses were called to-day to show the disloyalty of Lieut D. Jenkins, a near relative of Mrs. Surratt. One of them said that after Jenkens lost a negro he abandoned all his Union principles. Another witness testified to the disloyalty of Mrs. Surratt, Rev Wm. B. Evans, a Presbyterian minister, testified that he saw Dr. Mudd go into Mrs. Surratt's house, between the 1st and 4th of March. He was rigidly cross-examined by the counsel for the defence, and excused himself for his confession of ideas and embarrassment by saying that he had been almost crazy since the assassination of President Lincoln.

A special despatch to the Commercial, dated Washington, June 5th, says:—

"The Mexican question once more attract attention, Gen Steele having been ordered to the Rio Grande with an army of observation of 30,000 men. The foreign ambassadors are greatly perplexed at the movement.'

"It is understood that Count Montouli will demand an explanation from the State Department.

A special despatch to the Post dated Washington, June 5, says:—

"Dr. Samuel Cox, of Lower Maryland, charged with harboring Booth and Harrold, has been released from confinement.

"Col. Greene, proprietor of the Van Ness place in Washington, and his wife, have also been released."

New York, June 5.—Gold is dull and tends downward. The sales for shipment are quite limited and the customs' demand is light. Quotations ranged from 135½ up to 136¾, at which it closed.

Boston, June 5.—The trial of Col. F. O. J. Smith, of Maine, on an indictment found by the grand jury of Suffolk County, for subornation of perjury, occupied the Superior Criminal Court nearly the whole of last week, and resulted this morning in a verdict of guilt. After the rendering of this verdict the counsel of Mr. Smith applied for time to file a bill of exceptions, and the court granted one month for that purpose.

New York, June 5.—The steamer Arago brings Savannah dates of the 1st.

The Herald says a committee of citizens has been appointed to visit Washington and represent to President Johnson the sentiments of the loyal citizens of Chatham county.

On the afternoon of the 31st of May, a brig having British papers was captured at Tybee, for an attempt to break the blockade of the port of Savannah.

Secretary Welles and party visited Savannah on the 31st ult., and returned to Port Royal.

The Charleston Courier publishes a circular from General Hatch, advising planters to make contracts with freedmen, and saying infirm negroes must be supported in their respective districts.

The Courier says Gov. Magrath's was arrested by a Lieutenant and two soldiers and taken to Charleston. A great body of the most respectable citizens waited on him expressing their sympathy and respect. That such an occurrence should be permitted in the capital of the State is conclusive as to the complete general and physical prostration of the people.

Newbern advices state that the result of the judicial investigation at Toronto, showing that the Yellow fever there last summer, which carried off some 2,000 citizens, was introduced by the infamous Dr. Blackburn, has caused the utmost horror. The people of the State are last becoming reconciled to the free labor system, and like the change. There is a strong attachment between the masters and their former slaves, and they seek each other, making satisfactory terms for labor.

The universal suffrage question excites great interest, the people being divided only as to the time when the negro should vote.

The removal of trade restrictions causes much rejoicing, and a new life has been given business.

Newburn promises to be very healthy this summer.

The Tribune's Washington special despatch says:—"It is not true that Jeff Davis has been brought from Fortress Monroe. The President on Saturday told a congressman that it seemed desirable that Davis be tried by a civil court for high treason as a perpetual reminder that treason was the highest crime, and he was willing to spread before the world the secret testimony in the assassination case and trust to their verdict as to Davis' complicity. Gov. Brown has been released and will go home under a pledge to work earnestly for the restoration of Georgia to her allegiance."

Grant's Address to his Soldiers.—A Great Deal of "Tall Talking."—Anxiety Concerning the Shenandoah.

Washington, June 3—General Grant has issued the following congratulatory address to the army:—

"Soldiers of the Armies of the United State:

"By your patriotic devotion to your country in the hour of danger and alarm, your magnificent fighting, bravery and endurance, you have maintained the supremacy of the Union and the constitution, overthrown all armed opposition to the enforcement of the laws and of the proclamations forever abolishing slavery, the cause and pretext of the rebellion, and opened the way to the rightful authorities to restore order and inaugurate peace on a permanent and enduring basis on every foot of American soil.

"Your matches, sieges, and battles, in distance, duration, resolution and brilliancy of results, dim the lustre of the world's past military achievements and will be the patriot's precedent in defence of liberty and right in all time to come. In obedience to your country's call you left your homes and families and volunteered in its defence. Victory has crowned your valor and secured the purpose of your patriotic hearts; and with the gratitude of your countrymen, and the highest honors a great and free nation can accord, you will soon be permitted to return to your homes and families, conscious of having discharged the highest duty of American citizens.

"To achieve these glorious triumphs and secure to yourselves, your fellow-countrymen and posterity the blessings of free institutions, tens of thousands of your gallant comrades have fallen and sealed the priceless legacy with their lives. The graves of these a peaceful nation bedews with tears, honors their memories, and will ever cherish and support their families.

(Signed) "U. S. GRANT, Lieut.-Gen."

San Francisco, May 23.—Their is considerable speculation as to the course the privateer Shenandoah steered after leaving Australian waters. Opinions are expressed that she will next be heard from on the coast of South America in the track of vessels sailing between California and the Atlantic ports and Europe. Increased war risks are demanded by the insurance agents.

Explosion of the Ordnance Depot at Mobile.

Chicago, May 29.

A special dispatch received in this city from New Orleans, dated the 26th instant, says:

The ordnance depot and magazine at Mobile exploded at 3 o'clock yesterday. The shock was terrific. The city was shook to its very foundations.

Eight squares of buildings were destroyed. Five hundred persons were buried in the ruins. The loss is estimated at eight millions of dollars. The origin of the explosion has not yet been ascertained.

Memphis, May 27, via. Cairo, 29.

The Bulletin's New Orleans special says:

"On the Morning of the 24th inst. the main ordnance department, in Marshall's warehouse, at Mobile, blew up with a terrible explosion. About three hundred persons were killed and many wounded. Thousands are buried in the ruins. Eight entire squares of the city were demolished, and about eight thousand bales of cotton destroyed. The steamers Colonel Cowles and Kate Dale, with all on board, were entirely destroyed. A great portion of the business centre is badly damaged. The total loss is estimated at three millions. General Granger rendered prompt relief to the sufferers. The cause of the explosion is uncertain.—The ordnance stores, which were a portion of the munitions of war surrendered by Dick Taylor, were in course of removal when it occurred. The entire city is more or less injured by the explosion.

INDICTMENT OF GENERAL LEE.

It is stated (a rumor which we shall be slow to credit) that the Government is taking steps to procure the indictment of Robert E. Lee for treason, before a grand jury at Richmond If, contrary to our expectations, this shall be

A Young Man Killed at a Charivari.

Early on Tuesday morning last, the people of this village and the surrounding neighbourhood were made acquainted with one of the most painful occurrences which, as a local Journalist, it has ever been our lot to chronicle. Joseph Marsh, a young man who has always borne an unblemished character, was married on Wednesday last, the Queen's birthday, and on Monday evening a party of young men living in his own neighborhood, together with a number from Prince Albert, assembled before his father's residence, about a mile south of this place, where he was stopping at the time, for the purpose of charivarying him. The majority of them, from what we have been able to ascertain, were disguised and their faces blackened. John Roberts, one of the party, from his known bravery and the perfection of his disguise, was chosen "captain" of the charivari party. On him devolved the duty of acting as mouthpiece of the others. He approached the door and demanded admittance, at the same time asking permission to remain in the house all night. This Mr. Marsh refused, and informed him that the tavern was the proper place to seek for lodgings. Roberts said he would not leave until he got some whisky. Mr. Marsh then closed the door on Roberts. After this the usual firing of guns and hideous noises made at such places were commenced, which exasperated Mr. Marsh so he went out, and with the aid of his wife and daughter, succeeded finally in driving the party from the premises. In doing so, however, a piece was discharged so close to Mr. Marsh that he fancied he was shot, and called for aid. Mrs Marsh then called her son Joseph, the party charivaried, to come to his father's assistance. By the time Joseph arrived on the scene of action, Mrs. Marsh had despatched a younger son, Charles, to Mr. Walker's, a near neighbor, who had borrowed their gun a few days before, ostensibly for the purpose of getting the gun, but in reality to ascertain whether the Walker boys were among the party. Unfortunately the gun still remained at Walker's, and was brought away by Charles. When Charles returned Joseph and his father were in the lane before the house, endeavouring to distinguish some of the party with a view to the arrest the following morning. In order to do so in a satisfactory manner, Joseph entered a field adjoining the road, on which the party were assembled at this time, and under the cover of the fence stealthily approached those on the road. He succeeded in getting directly opposite them, where he remained for some time listening to their conversation. Some of the party discovered him, and at once gave the alarm, and Joseph Young, called a number of them by name. He addressed some remarks to Roberts, which seemed to exasperate him, and Roberts threatened to whip him for what he had said. Roberts, with two or three others, scaled the fence and pursued Joseph, when the latter was met by Charles with the gun. Charles handed the gun to Joseph, who immediately turned and fired at the foremost of the pursuing party. This one happened to be John Roberts, who received the full charge of the piece, and with the words, "Oh, boys, I'm shot," dropped dead.

When the body was found by Mr. Marsh and Mr. McDonald they were unable, from the thorough disguise assumed by the unfortunate young man, to indentify it; and this was only done, with certainty, when the brothers to the deceased saw the body on Tuesday morning.

The Coroner's jury gave the following verdict:—

"That the deceased, John Roberts, came to his death by a shot supposed to be fired by Joseph Marsh, under circumstances of great aggravation and without malice aforethought."

A warrant for the arrest of Joseph Marsh had been issued during the examination of witnesses, and upon the jury rendering their verdict, he was commit on to stand his trial at the next Assizes.—Prince Albert Observers

EXPLORING THE HOLY LAND.

An interesting project is just started by a number of well-known and accomplished gentlemen, for whom the history of Palestine, and of the Jewish people, possesses peculiar attractions. Though many and diverse books have been written about the Holy Land, it is felt that the same intelligence and outlay that have been brought to bear with signal effect upon the explorations of Egypt and Assyria, and other portions of the Eastern world, have yet to be applied to Palestine, and that such a method of research ought not to be any longer delayed. It is probable that the sacred character of the Land of the Chosen People, and of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, had hitherto powerfully tended to prevent persons engaging in schemes of mere material discovery within its hallowed borders similar to those devised and prosecuted by Mr. Layard, Colonel Rawlinson, and other able men, in the interest of general knowledge. And, perhaps there are still people who indulge the opinion that reverence for the Scriptures would be lessened by following their methods and practices for the purpose of throwing new light upon Biblical history. Not so, however, think the cultivated minds of the age; and the value of devotion that is the seat in ignorance is happily very widely questioned in these days. For ourselves, we hold that the charm of the Bible becomes enhanced to multitudes, and its influence largely augmented by making the reality of its narratives as apparent as possible. To this end it is proposed to raise an exploration Fund, to be expended in employing thoroughly competent persons in each branch of research to examine the archæology, the manners and customs, the topography, the geology, and the natural sciences of the Holy Land for the positive and direct purpose of Biblical illustration, who should produce a report on Palestine which might be accepted both by parties as a trustworthy and satisfactory document. There is a survey of Jerusalem at present in progress under the direction of Captain Wilson, an Engineer of eminence,—a survey supported by the private liberality of a single person, and from the manner in which he has been treated by the people, it is inferred that the larger object can be accomplished if not with serious opposition. What is above ground in the once Holy City will be accurately known when Captain Wilson's survey is completed, but below the surface hardly anything has yet been discovered. Thus "the tomb of the King on Mount Zion, the palace of Herod, the site of the pool of Bethesda, the spring and conduit of Hezekiah," and many other objects and works are "all awaiting excavation." The country is also full of sites that will surely repay examination. The originators of this enterprise anticipate with reference to Jerusalem that every foot below the "sixty feet of rubbish" on which the city stands, will yield most interesting and important matter; and they argue generally that "much would be gained by obtaining an accurate map of the country, by settling disputed points of topography, by identifying the ancient towns of Holy Writ with the modern villages which are their successors, by bringing to light the remains of so many races and generations which must lie concealed under the accumulation of rubbish and ruins on which those villages stand, by ascertaining the course of the ancient roads, by the discovery of coins, inscriptions, and other relics,—in short, by doing at leisure and systematically that which has hitherto been entirely neglected, or done only in a fragmentary manner by the occasional unassisted efforts of hurried and inexperienced travellers." That the project will be successfully developed can scarcely be doubted, for it comes forth under high auspices, and seems to be in some sort a result of a visit of the Prince of Wales to those parts.—London Christian World.

THE HAMILTON ROBBERIES.—EXTRAORDINARY DEVELOPMENTS.—It was stated lately in the Hamilton papers that John Jeffrey and Mary Edwards had been re-arrested, in consequence of some new developments with regard to the burglaries which took place in Hamilton last winter. The examination of witnesses before the police magistrate commenced on the 31st, and, from the extraordinary revelations made, has caused great excitement in Hamilton. The principal witness for the crown was the man Barber, who was before arrested on the supposition that he was one of the gang, and was admitted to bail. His true name is John T. Armstrong, and it turns out that he is a detective, and has been acting on behalf of Government and various insurance companies. Armstrong states in his evidence that Jeffrey informed him that he had paid the Chief of Police and an alderman of Hamilton ten per cent. on his profits for aiding the gang in their operations. It appears that Armstrong found it impossible any longer to conceal his true character from the burglars, Sergeant McDowell, of the Toronto police force, having disclosed it to Murphy, one of the gang. The last witness examined was Nevins Jones, a farmer and mill-owner, living near Georgetown, in Esquesing, who is under arrest, and appears to have turned Queen's evidence against the rest.

The Shenandoah is the only rebel cruiser now afloat; she was last heard from off the coast of Australia.

TROOPS FOR CANADA.—The fourth battalion of the Rifle Brigade, now stationed at Gibraltar, is under orders for Canada, and may be expected to arrive about the end of this month.

FOR MEXICO.—A number of young men, doubtless tempted by the large bounties offered by the Mexican officers in New York, left Toronto last week to take 'their chance' in the fortunes of war. Perhaps they will regret their move before they have been away many months.

TOO FAST.—The New York Express says:—"A young lady of this city, professing the catholic religion, recently became enamored with a protestant young gentleman. In order to make things pleasant all around, the gentleman embraced the catholic religion but upon applying to a priest to perform the marriage ceremony, the latter refused, on the ground that the young lady had stood as godmother at the gentleman's conversion—it being against the doctrines of the Roman Catholic church to solemnize marriage between the god mother and the god child."

YOU HEAD IT.—A cold is thought to be a too trifling matter to claim quick or serious attention from some people: but, when 25 cents can go so far to cure a cold, cough, sore throat, or hoarseness, hesitate not to invest that in a box of Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, sold by all Druggists.

TWO EVILS.—First, to eat a hearty supper for the pleasure experienced during the brief time it is passing down the throat, at the expense of a whole night of disturbed sleep, and a weary waking in the morning. Second, to try all the remedies in existence for rheumatism, pains in the back and sides, coughs, colds, cramps, sprains, bruises, &c., before trying the "Canadian Pain Destroyer." Sold by all medicine dealers at 25 cts per bottle.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The progress of a great fact, Dropsy—It is a fact that no subject has caused more discussion among the faculty than the treatment necessary for dropsy—it is a notable fact, that nothing conclusive has yet been arrived at by the profession—but the great fact is, that Holloway's Pills are the surest and safest remedy, because founded on reason and common sense—it is an undeniable fact that the cause is too great an effusion of water in the blood—and a marked fact that olloway's pills by their purifying and invigorating properties cleanse and strengthen the blood and by exterminating the cause prevent the effect—and a universal fact, that they have cured thousands after all other means had failed.

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY IN CANADA.

The following testimony from a well known and highly respected Merchant of Prescott, is corroborative of the general approval given to Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY:

PRESCOTT, C. W., Dec. 8th, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Co., Boston.

Gentlemen:—

Being solicited by your Travelling Agent, for an expression of opinion of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, I with pleasure assert that it is, in my belief, the best remedy before the public for coughs and pulmonary complaints.

Having tested the article with myself and family, in case of severe coughs and colds, for years, with uniform and unexceptionable success, I unhesitatingly recommend it with full confidence in its merits.

Yours truly,
ALFRED HOOKER.

HOMŒOPATHY.

HOMŒOPATHY AND LIFE ASSURANCE.—The directors of a London life assurance office—the "General Provident"—at its recent meeting have placed on record its opinion "that persons treated by the Homœopathic system enjoy more robust health, are less frequently attacked by disease, and when attacked recover more rapidly than those treated by any other system; that with respect to the more fatal classes of disease the mortality under Homœopathy is small in comparison with that of Allopathy; that there are diseases not curable at all under the latter system, which are perfectly curable under the former; finally, that the medicines prescribed by Homœopathists do not injure the constitution, whereas the as employed by Allopaths not unfrequently entail the most serious, and in many instances fatal, consequences." The directors further propose to summon a meeting of the shareholders to lay before them the facts they have collected, and the decision at which they have arrived, namely, "to open a special section for persons treated by the Homœopathic system, at a lower rate of premium than that charged on other lives."—London (Eng.) Observer.—Toronto Globe.

DR. POOLE, (Water st., Peterborough,) is a Graduate and Licentiate of both the Allopathic and Homœopathic Schools, and confidently recommends the latter system of treatment, as by far the safest and most successful, in both Acute and Chronic diseases.

PIANO-FORTES
DRIGGS' NEW PATENT.

ARE THE ONLY INSTRUMENTS constructed on a truly scientific principle. That have greater strength, and will remain longer in tune than any other Piano. The construction is simple and natural, all the extraneous lumber in the body of the instrument is dispensed with; the sound boards are merely two arched planks of thin wood, like the front and back of a violin; the stringes are attached to a strong Iron frame, which is separate and entirely independent of the case, thereby dispensing with the old harp form of stringing by substituting straight bridges, preserving at the same time The Over Strung Bass, of which Mr Driggs is the inventor. By these improvements we gain much more vibratory power, at the same time preserving all its purity and richness of tone.

They have received the highest testimonials from the Press, and all the principal artists in the country, among which are:

Harry Sanderson,	L. M. Gottschalk,
Max Maretzek,	S. Thalberg,
Theodore Eisfeld,	Wm Mason,
Herman Wolfenhaupt,	A. Barili
Francis H. Brown,	M. Strackosch,
Wm. Henry Fry.	Charles Fradel

Mr. SIGESMUND THALBERG, the great pianist, says:—I have examined your new Piano-fortes and I cordially approve of its system of construction. Its principle, by which great increase of vibratory power is obtained, being very simple and perfectly philosophical. The tone is grand and noble; it has great capacity for sustaining the sound or singing, and its volume of tone or power I have never heard excelled in depth, purity and sympathetic sweetness.

Wm HENRY FRY, late musical critic of the N. Y. Tribune says:—I have examined your newly invented Piano-Fortes. They merit all the praise given to them by Messrs. Thalberg, Gottschalk, Strackosch, Mason and others. As regards the structure, they are original and philosophical; in purity, volume, and sustaining of tone; in vocal verisimilitude, that crowning excellence which enables the pianists to "sing" on the instrument. Your Pianos deserve the highest rank. Your invention, in my opinion, is destined to work radical changes in the manufacture of Pianos throughout the world.

From the N. Y. Herald, Sept. 5.—Upon a careful examination of Driggs Piano-Forte, we find the results obtained are a very fine singing tone, great purity and brilliancy throughout the entire instrument, not often found in Pianos constructed upon the old plan.

The N. Y. Times, July 12, says:—We have now an instrument without an equal. It can sing with a smoothe delicacy, perfectly unattainable on any other instrument, an ordinary player obtains with no exertion, the fullness of a Grand Piano Forte and they must speedily supercede the old styles.

GENTLEMEN:—Having thoroughly examined and tested the Piano-Fortes invented and patented by Mr S. P. Driggs, I am of the opinion that the tone resulting from his improvements as exhibited in the instruments under examination, in point of richness, depth and brilliancy, equals that of the best Grand Piano-fortes, and excells them in pure, musical and actual tone, power thus approximating closer to what I consider perfection in the instrument than has yet been achieved by any other system of manufacture.

Yours respectfully,
L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of one thousand dollars for the purpose therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $6000 in constructing, making and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County.

And whereas to carry into effect the said resolution it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $6000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $960 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole ratable property of the said Municipality, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the common any investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised assessment roll of the said Municipality, being for the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three was $3,196,583.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of $6000 and interest, as hereinafter mentioned, it will require an annual special rate of thirty-one ninetieths of a mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $6000, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than $100 each, and that the said debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden and counter-signed by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable in 10 years at the furthest from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first day of April and the first day of October in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon, an equal special rate of thirty-one ninetieths of a mill in the dollar shall, in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the ratable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the 24th day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough at its Council Chamber in the Court House, in the said County, on Thursday, the 22nd day of June, 1865, at the hour of 12 of the clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

WHIP-POOR-WILL.

BY ALEXANDER M'LACHLAN.

There is a lonely spirit
Which wanders thro' the wood,
And tells its mournful story
In every solitude;
It comes abroad at eventide
And hangs beside the rill,
And murmurs to the ear of night
"Whip-poor-will."

Oh 'tis a hapless spirit
In likeness of a bird,
A grief that cannot utter
Another woeful word,
A soul that seeks for sympathy,
A woe that won't be still,
A wandering sorrow murmuring
"Whip-poor-will."

A rural poet, in describing his lady-love, says—she is as graceful as a water-lilly, while her breath smiles like an armful of clover. His case is certainly approaching a crisis.

A man may eat his breakfast where he chooses, and dine at any place he pleases; but he must go to China or Japan for his 'tea.'

There are envious men who can hear no person praised without interposing a doubting "but." They throw their cold water "butts" at everybody.

The story of a man, who had a nose so large that he couldn't blow it without the use of gunpowder, is said to be a fabrication.

"You have stolen my soul, divine one!" exclaimed Mr. Sickly to Miss Sensible. "Pardon me," responded the lady, "I am not in the habit of picking up 'little' things."

A farmer who recently had his butter seized by the clerk of the market for short weight, gave as a reason that the cow from which the butter was made was subject to the cramp, and that caused the butter to shrink in weight.

A solicitor, who was remarkable for the length and sharpness of his nose, once told a lady, that if she did not immediately settle a matter in dispute, he would file a bill against her. Indeed, sir, said the lady, there is no necessity for you to file your bill, for I am sure it is sharp enough already.

A boy at school out west; when called out to recite his lesson in history, was asked:

"What is the German Diet composed of?"

The boy replied: "Sourkraut, schapps, lager-beer and nix comerous."

Boy promoted instanter.

"Martha, does thee love me?" asked a quaker youth of one at whose shrine his heart's holiest feelings had been offered up.

"Why, Seth," answered she, "We are commanded to love one another, are we not?"

"Ah, Martha, but does thee regard me with the feeling the world calls love?"

"I hardly know what to tell thee, Seth. I have greatly feared that my heart was an erring one. I have tried to bestow my love on all; but I may have sometimes thought, perhaps, that thee was getting rather more than thy share."

John, said an angry parent to his son, who had committed a misdeed, John, go to the next room and prepare yourself for a severe flogging.

The boy departed, and when his parent had finished the letter he was writing, and sought the offending youth, he was surprised at the swollen appearance of the young rascal's back.

What does this mean? he asked, what is on your back.

A leathern apron, replied John, three double. You told me to prepare myself for a hard flogging, and I did the best I could.

The hard features of the father's countenance relaxed, as also did the muscles of the hand which grasped the whip, and he let John off, for the once, with a gentle admonition.

SEWING MACHINES!

FINKLE & LYON'S

NEW PATENT ROTARY FEED Sewing Machines.

The following facts demonstrate that these Machines comprise the highest improvements in the Sewing Machine Art, viz:

1. Each Machine is guaranteed to give better satisfaction than any other Sewing Machine in Market, or money refunded.
2. They have taken many of the highest premiums at the most important Exhibitions and fairs ever held in the United States.
3. They make the lock stitch alike on both sides—thus saving more than half the thread and silk used in the raveling-ridge-seams of the loop stitch and single-thread Sewing Machines.
4. They are adapted to the widest range of heavy and light sewing.
5. They have no rattling wires, or delicate attachments to keep in repair.
6. They require no taking apart to clean or oil, and no "Lessons" to set needle, regulate tension, or operate Machine.

Please call and examine, and demonstrate for yourself, or send for Circular, with samples of sewing.

See what the most popular and widely circulated periodicals say of our Establishment:

From the "Dispatch" of February 25, 1865.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the announcement of Messrs. Devaugh & Co.'s Great Sale of Jewelry, Silver Ware, and Fancy Goods, in our advertising columns. We are personally acquainted with the members of this firm and know them to be gentlemen of sterling worth and integrity. Their stock of goods, for variety and extent, we have scarcely seen paralluled.

From the "Mirror of Fashion," March 1, 1865.

Messrs. Devaugh & Co.'s Great Sale of Jewelry, etc., opened on the 15th ult., and we venture to say that no finer display of goods was ever exhibited by any establishment in this city. The ladies thronged their bazaar almost to suffocation, although the streets were rendered nearly impassable by the melted snow and slush. We predict for them a wonderful success.

From the "Ledger," February 28, 1865.

Our lady friends should visit the extensive establishment of Messrs. Devaugh & Co., No. 15 Maiden Lane, if they wish to indulge themselves with a sight which they will long remember. Such a profusion of elegant Watches, Chains, Rings, Earrings, and, in short, of Jewelry of every name, kind and description, we never before witnessed. Their silver and plated ware is superb and almost casts into the shade the other splendid establishments which have long been the boast of our city. It is estimated that their stock is worth not less than one million of dollars.

How You Can Get a Prize.

Send Twenty-Five Cents to us, and as soon as we receive it we will mail you a Certificate, showing what you are entitled to. If the article or articles please you, send back the Certificate and One Dollar and we will forward you the article, no matter how costly it may be. If the article is not what you wish, state, when you send the Certificate and dollar, what other article of the same value you prefer and we will send it. If you wish more than one Certificate send us $1 and we will send five; for $2, eleven; for $5, thirty; for $10, sixty; for $15, one hundred.

Agents are wanted in the Army and in every place. We have an immense stock of goods to dispose of, and need a large number of Agents. Our terms to Agents are very liberal and some even of our Lady Agents are making from $5 to $20 a day. We give Agents 50 per cent. on all Certificates they sell provided they remit not less than $1 for eight.

Poetry.

THE LABORER'S EVENING SONG.

'Tis a cheery sight, you flickering light,
For the evening is chill and dreary;
And there is the glow of a hearth which I know
Has a welcome and rest for the weary.

In a little while with a sunny smile
My wife will haste to greet me;
And our baby boy, with a shout of joy,
Will stretch out his arms to meet me.

Others may stop at the first beer-shop,
Whilst their families beg or borrow,
But the cup of tea that's awaiting me
Will bring neither shame nor sorrow.

Around my knee, in joyous glee,
Will be happy children clinging:
And I shall hear their voices clear
A hymn at evening singing.

My wife and I will thankfully
Go on our way together,
And have no fear though storms be near,
Hard times—or wintry weather.

Life's wear and tear we'll bravely bear.
Sustained in joy or sorrow;
We'll face as we may the ills of to-day,
And trust in God for the morrow.

And when at last life's labors are past,
Our bodies in the dust are lying,
Our souls shall rest in that home of the blest
Where there's "no more sorrow or crying."

Agricultural.

PURE WATER--HEALTH OF STOCK

Foul water is the fruitful source of unthrift and disease in animals, besides, it is almost constantly operating, and in time will produce effects not perceptible at first.

"That farmer who has provided for his barnyard a never failing supply of good water, and an arrangement by which it is brought into the troughs or tubs without pumping or drawing, has a contenience, the value of which is not likely to be overestimated; but it is a matter of no small importance that it be given to the stock fresh and pure. Because animals drink from a filthy trough or a muddy and stagnant pool with apparent relish, it does not follow that their sense of taste is of a low order and can not appreciate good feeding. Necessity too often compels them to drink anywhere, and whatever they can find. Long continued habit deadens or perverts the taste. But animals with unvitiated taste left free to choose for themselves, will find the purest water as quickly as the sweetest grass; especially is this true of the horse. Some are naturaly very fastidious about both food and drink, and they often suffer from thirst rather than drink from a vessel or at a well they dislike. Some men entrusted with the care of stock, seeing a horse tasting and sipping, or playing as they imagine, say he is not dry, or is whimsical, and bring him back to his stall, there to remain till thirst compels him to drink. Thus a real cruelty is ignorantly practised against a dumb beast, when a few moments' attention would discover and remove the trouble. Fresh, pure water means more than simply water free from sticks, dirt, or substances which are readily detected by the eye. Water exposed in shallow vessels to the atmosphere during warm weather, quickly loses its fresh and sweet taste. Should it remain in a stable twenty-four hours, it becomes undrinkable from having absorbed the impurities of the air. Ammonia, carbonic acid, and all the gases escaping in the stable are absorbed rapidly and in large quantities by water. During hot weather these gases are always largely present, even in well regulated barns, and a tub of water exposed to the air in the stable yard, or cellar, soon becomes charged with them, and is unfit for any animal to drink.

"A cover that fits closely to the trough or tub is of some service in keeping out dust and dirt, and preventing contact with impure air, but it is impossible to keep water in shallow vessels about a barnyard and have it absolutely pure. The safest plan of escaping impurity is to draw from the fountain head as often as wanted and when the animels have drunk, throw the remainder away. It is a common practice in summer to keep water in the troughs to prevent its drying and falling into pieces. The more shallow a trough is made the less liable it is to dry up; but it is better to lose one occasionally than always give impure water to the stock. Scrupulous cleanliness in the care of all arrangements for furnishing water commends itself to every thinking man who is the owner and lover of animals, in proportion as the ill effects of neglecting them are understood."

The Art of Shearing Sheep.

It is essential to good shearing to cut the wool but once, to sheer smoothly and very close, to keep the fleeces whole, and to avoide cutting the sheep. When a shearer does not shear smoothly, but cuts a portion of the wool two or three times, there is not only a loss in the weight of the fleece, or if the clippings be included in the fleece, a loss in its value to the manufacturer, but much time is consumed in making the sheep look smooth. When the fleeces are torn to pieces by unskilful handling or the floundering of the sheep, it is impossible to do them up neatly and show the wool to advantage. The chief difficulty in shearing sheep arises from their struggling. To prevent this, some tie their legs; but this practice is quite objectionable, and no good shearer will adopt it. Sheep will kick and flounder but little if they be managed gently and carefully. Every shearer should have a mattress of straw, at lest five feet square, and so thick that his knees will not feel the floor while shearing a sheep. The object of the mattress is also to make it easier for the sheep. Laid on a hard floor sheep will make desperate efforts to gain their natural position, and if jammed down violently on the floor, or boxed, or held uncomfortably beneath the knees, as they often are by unskillful shearers, instead of keeping quiet they flounder and kick worse and worse. Placed on a mattress, their position is comparatively easy; and if handled gently, the fleeces will be torn but little. The sheep pen should be well littered with straw to prevent carrying much dirt on the shearing floor; and sheep always shear better if they are full and round than when empty. Even expert shearers are very liable to cut the skin of poor thin sheep. No man can shear a sheep well, unless he have good shears and keep them in good cutting order.

CORN BREAD.—Stir well together 1 pint each of water, Indian meal, and wheat flour, 1 tablespoonful of sugar or molasses, ¼ teaspoonful each of soda and salt, and 1 teacupful of yeast bread sponge. Place it in a 2 quart basin that has been well greased, and let it stand in a warm place until light. Then set the basin in a steamer over a kettle of boiling water, and let it steam two hours, after which put it in the oven for 20 or 30 minutes, to brown over, and dry out some of the moisture.

Tricks and treachery are the practice of fools that have not wit enough to be honest.

☞ Most men will have a living if they die for it.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!

CAN BE FOUND IN

Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF

Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER SHAPE internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE: they attack the RADIX OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL AND FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs UPON THE BLOOD ITSELF, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In winter or form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable curatives. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Convulsions,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venral Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worm- of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box: the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

 Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 88 cents, and $1 40 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33

Select Poetry.

WHAT IS A YEAR?

What is a year? 'Tis but a wave
On life's dark rolling stream,
Which is so quickly gone that we
Account it but a dream.
'Tis but a single earnest throb
Of Time's old iron heart,
Which tireless now, and strong as when
It first with life did start.

What is a year? 'Tis but a turn
Of Time's old brazen wheel;
Or put a page upon the book
Which Time must shortly seal.
'Tis but a step upon the road
Which we must travel o'er;
A few more steps and we shall walk
Life's weary road no more.

What is a year! 'Tis but a breath
From Time's old nostrils blown,
A rushing onward o'er the earth,
We hear its weary moan.
'Tis like the bubble on the wave,
Or wind upon the lawn—
As transient as the mist of morn
Beneath the summer's sun.

What is a year? 'Tis but a type
Of Life's oft changing scene,
Youth's happy morn comes gladly on
With hills and valleys green;
Next, Summer's prime succeeds the Spring;
Then Autumn with a tear,
Then comes old Winter—Death and all
Must find a level here.

Literature.

WORDS FITLY SPOKEN.

'Have you called to see Mr. Parsons yet?' asked Mrs. Fuller, addressing her husband.

'Not yet. The fact is, I feel rather diffident about going to see him. If I had any suggestions to make, or anything to offer him it would be different. Some people peculiarly sensitive when things go wrong with them. I know it is so with myself. He might consider my visit an intrusion.'

Mrs. Fuller thought differently. She did not see the case from her husband's point of view.

'Most people are grateful for any manifested interest in time of grief or trouble, if it be sincere. They easily discriminate between curious intrusion and genuine good feeling,' she replied.

'Very true,' answered Mr. Fuller. But a man in Mr. Parson's condition wants something more than sympathy. He wants help.'

'Perhaps you can help him,' said Mrs. Fuller.

'Me!' The surprise of Mr. Fuller was unfeigned.

'He comes by many ways. You may be able to suggest the very thing he needs.'

'To a man who has been living for the last ten years at an expense of four times greater than my income! Oh, no, I can't help him. If I had ten thousand dollars to spare, there would be some sense in my calling.

But Mrs Fuller could not see it in that light. 'Self help is the surest help,' she returned. A quick sug estive mind may get more of true material prosperity from a hint than from thousands of dollars.'

'Not from that hint of mine. It's of no use to argue with me in that direction.—Parsons can teach me twenty things when I can teach him one,' said Mr. Fuller.

'And y ur one may be more use to him than his twenty to you,' said Mrs. Fuller.

The woman saw that she was right and did not yield. Will is very persevering. After tea, for it was evening, Mrs. Fuller drifted upon the subject of their unfortunate neighbor again, and insisted that it was her husband's duty to make him a call.

'If I could see any use in it, if I had any suggestions to make that would be of value to him,' answered Mr. Fuller.

'It would be of use for him to know that you have no forgotten an old friend and neighbor. There will be enough to recede, to stand afar off—to look upon him coldly, or to pass by him of small account in the world, seeing that he has no longer the old money value,' replied Mrs. Fuller.

In the end Mrs. Fuller prevailed. Her husband, after concluding to make the visit, thought he would defer it until the next evening; but Mrs. Fuller urged that the present hour for a kind act was the best hour.

It was after eight o'clock when Mr. Fuller stood at Mr. Parson's door. He felt sure that his visit would be considered an intrusion, if not an impertinence. That Mr. Parsons would see in it a rude intimation that they were now on the same social level. His hand grasped the bell, but he hesitated to ring. If the thought of his wife and what she would say if he went home without accomplishing the errand that took him out, had not crossed his mind he would have turned from the door. But the thought stimulated his wavering purpose, and the bell was rung.

A servant showed him into the library, where he found Mr. Parsons. He had anticipated a cold and formal reception. He was prepared for it, but not for the high pleasure that beamed in Mr. Parson's countenance, nor for the cordial hand clasp with which he was received.

The two men sat down by the library table on which were packages of accounts, letters, legal papers, and other evidences going to show that Mr. Parsons had business on hand when his visitor called.

'I fear I may be an interruption,' said Mr. Fuller, glancing at the table.

'No, your coming is welcomed and timely—I was just wishing for a cool, clear seeing and conscientious friend with whom to take counsel; and I believe you are the man. You know that I am in trouble.'

'Yes.'

'The failure of Lawrence & James involves everything I have. I am on their paper for more than I am worth.'

'But they will have assets. The loss will not be complete,' said Mr. Fuller.

'In the meantime, being under protest on their paper, my credit is gone. The banks throw me out, and I can only get money on the streets at ruinous rates. To struggle longer would be folly. Usurers would get what creditors might divide. To day my own bills went into the Notary's hands. 'So I have heard.'

'Such news flies through business circles with electric swiftness. Well, the agony is over; the dread trial passed. My name, as drawer, is dishonored—I am a broken merchant.' Mr. Parson's voice expressed bitterness of feeling.

'Commercial dishonor is one thing—personal dishonor another.' said Mr. Fuller.

Mr. Parsons looked away from the face of his visitor. He moved with a slight gesture of uneasiness—a shade went over his countenance.

'Men who go down in the valley of misfortune tread on slippery ground, and should look well to their feet,' continued Mr. Fuller.

There was no response to this.

'On safer ground we may recover a false step, but be it is very difficult, sometimes impossible. We are no longer masters of the situation. It will not do to risk anything, continued Mr. Fuller.

Still Mr. Parsons remained silent, with his face turned partly away.

'All doubtful expedients should be avoided,' continued Mr. Fuller, following but the train of thought which had been suggested to his mind. 'They are never safe under the most favorable circumstances; but when misfortune limits and cripples a man, they almost always fail and leave him more unhappily situated than before.'

'Unquestionably you are right,' said Mr. Parsons, taking a deep breath. He spoke partly to himself. From his tone it was plain that he had been thinking intently.—'When a man gets into trouble it is of the first importance to him to show a clear record. As the case now stands, I think mine is clear. I will be misjudged, no doubt. All men are who fail in business. The first impression is against them. How ready the tongue is to whisper there is something wrong. It is difficult for certain men when they lose their money, to believe in anything but roguery.'

'Being rogues themselves at heart,' said Mr. Fuller.

'No, that does not always follow. I have known some very honest men to be severe on their debtors, and quick to judge them harshly.

'Did you ever see these honest men tried in the crucible of misfortune? Did you ever see the same men, their failing forthis way and that for help, like drowned men?' asked Mr. Fuller.

'I cannot now recall an instance,' replied Mr. Parsons.

'I can—many instances; and the clear record of which you speak did not appear when the struggle was over,' remarked Mr. Fuller.

Mr. Parsons sighed heavily.

'There are difficult waters to navigate and the man is in danger of losing his integrity,' he remarked, in a tone of sadness not unmingled with doubt and perplexity.

'Yes; in very great danger replied his visitor.

'With honor at the helm, and rectitude for pilot, the passage is safe,' continued Mr. Parsons.

'And faith in God,' said Mr. Parsons, speaking as from a sudden impulse.

'Yes, faith in God always. He is very near, especially in trouble; and if we desire to do right He will show us what is right. We must not hesitate to put our trust in Him. No matter how many hours are in the path of duty, our safest way is right onward, if we turn aside our souls are in danger,' said Mr. Parsons.

After sitting with his neighbor for an hour Mr. Fuller went home. Their conversation had been of a general character, touching mainly on those principles that lie at the basis of all right actions.

'It was kind of you to call. I think you have helped me to see some things in a strong light that was before obscure. It is often very dark with men so hard pressed as I am—with men who grope amid the ruins of a failing fortune. Friendly counsel is good for them. Come and see me again, said Mr. Parsons, as his visitors rose to retire.

It was perhaps a month later that Mr Fuller, urged once more by his wife, called upon Mr. Parsons. He was one of your diffident, retiring men, who are always afraid of intruding themselves. His wife, who knew his worth as a man, and understood his true value among men, was always disposed to push him out of himself, and farther into a social circle than he was inclined of his own accord to go.

'Ah, Mr. Fuller, I am glad to see you. Why did you not call before?' was the warm greeting he received. Mr. Parsons had still a care worn look, but his manner was more cheerful and confident.

'I have it on my thoughts many times—but did not wish to intrude myself,' said his visitor.

'Your calls can never be regarded as an intrusion, Mr. Fuller,' was replied with much earnestness of manner, 'No, never; I think your visit, one month ago, at a time when I was in great darkness and bewilderment, was a direct interposition of Providence.—When you called I was deeply revolving a scheme that promised extrication. It was not a very safe scheme,—it was hardly just,—nay, it was not just; for if it had failed it would have involved in loss persons in no way concerned in my affairs at the time. That I must have failed, is now clear to me; and I should have hurt myself inwardly, and given fair cause for a harsh judgment. But to-day Mr. Fuller, I bear a clear conscience—I am right with myself and can look every man fairly in the face. I have thanked you a hundred times for your fitly spoken words. They were as apples of gold in pictures of silver.

The appearance of Lord John Russell's letter incites a contemporary thus—Loyal Leaguers! assemble your cohorts, thumb the tomtom of war, smash the bloodthirsty potentates and pleated aristocrats of Europe into skyblue fits, or leastways utterly squelch the bloated Britishers with a shattering series of resolutions.

MARRYING FOR MONEY.

Mr Lennan was a retired pork-butcher of somewhat limited income, but great pretentions to gentility; he was a widdower and blessed with two daughters. The oldest Nancy, was just entering her twenty second year. In person she was tall, and (novelists would say) slender; but truth compells us to state, scraggy. Her features were not very bad but totally destitute of expression, while her manners were those of vulgar upstarts, self conceit and ignorance being predominant.

The other daughter, Ellen, was a timid quiet little girl, with what many would consider a pretty face, but her sister called it childish. Poor Ellen did not lead a happy life, she was domineered over by her father and snubbed by her sister, besides having to do the household work, her sister being much above such trifles. We have stated that Mr. Lennan's income was limited; he was therefore very desirous of seeing his eldest daughter comfortably settled in the world. He never troubled himself about the youngest. Nancy was his darling, and he took no pains to disguise it.

At a well known academey, Miss Nancy had formed an acquaintance with a young man named Fred Walton, and as he appeared to pay her some attention, she invited him to the house. In the meantime she requested her father to make requisite inquiries respecting his family and prospects.

The old gentleman came home in a state of delight; He had ascertained that Walton belonged to the family of a rich merchant, and, moreover, was considered a very respectable young man. At one of those visits which lovers are accustomed to make to their betrothed, Walton chanced to catch sight of little Ellen.

"Who is that young lady?" he inquired.

"Oh!" answered Nancy, "that is only my sister Ellen. She does not often come into the parlor; she has no taste for company, nor anything else that I can find out."

Walton saw at once the subject was not a pleasing one, so wisely avoided it, and after a few commonplace observations, took his departure. But he carried with him the remembrance of that sweet face, and determined to become better acquainted with its owner; but how to do so without offending Miss Nancy was a puzzle. He had never the least particle of true affection for her, but as it was evident that she viewed it in a different light, and might sue him for damages, he was, as the Yankees say, in a pretty fix; but when was a true born American ever in want of expedient? Walton hit upon a capital one, as the sequel will show.

The next day he called upon the old man, with a melancholy countenance, and informed him that he was a suitor for the hand of his daughter Nancy, but was afraid there were some slight objections.

"Well, young man, what is these 'ere objections?"

"Well, sir," stammered Fred, "the fact is—is—that I have offended my father, and he refuses to let me have any money, and I am afraid I shall have to depend on my own exertions."

THE CONFESSIONAL IN THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

We are not trespassing on the domains of religious journalism in noticing an incident or two of some public importance which has arisen in England in connection with the case of that unfortunate young woman, Constance Kent, who has publicly confessed to the murder of her half-brother at Road several years ago. Much has been said of the advance of Puseyism in England during the past decade, but few members of the "Established Church" in Canada were, perhaps, aware that a clergyman of that Church would venture to claim in open court the "seal of the confessional" was a bar to his divulging facts which had come to his knowledge. This was the case of the Rev. Mr. Wagner, of Trowbridge, the clergyman through whose instrumentality Constance Kent made known her crime to the Secretary of State. At the preliminary examination he declined to reveal anything which had passed at the confessional, and the presiding magistrate seems not to have pressed as firmly as he should that the laws of England recognize no such claim on the part of any man, no matter to what denomination he may belong. The position taken by the Rev. Mr. Wagner created so much stir among the Church people that the Marquis of Westmeath brought the subject before the House of Lords in the shape of an enquiry of the Lord Chancellor. "There can be no doubt," said Lord Westbury in reply, that in a suit or criminal proceedings a clergyman of the Church of England is not priviledged, so as to decline to answer a question which is put to him for the purpose of justice, on the ground that his answer would reveal something that he has known in confession. He is compelled to answer such a question, and the law of England does not even extend the priviledge of refusing to answer to Roman Catholic clergyman in dealing with a person of their own persuasion."

Such a declaration from Wordsack does not come amiss. It is well to have a distinct declaration upon a matter of so much importance. For, if we mistake not, we have heard clergymen in this city urge the "seal of the confessional" as a reason for withholding on public trials information which was in their possession. Magistrates should understand that such a claim is not known to English jurisprudence, that it is, in the words of a British journal, "the jargon of a system" entirely opposed to the genius and spirit of English law.—Leader.

My child, take these eggs to the store, and if you don't get ninepence a dozen bring them back. Tommy went as directed and came back saying—Mother, let me alone for a trade. They all tried to get 'em for a shilling, but I screwed 'em down to ninepence.

He has also very kindly placed at my disposal a smallpox abulance.

UNION SENTIMENT.

There is raly a great deal of sentiment in this city. I see it on every hand.

I met a man to-day—I am not at liberty to tell his name, but he is an old and influentiall citizen of Richmond, and sez he, "Why! we've been fightin' again the old flag! Lor' bless me how sin'lar.'

He then borrowed five dollars from me and bust into a flood of tears.

formerly a bitter rebuel] "Let us at once stop this effoosion of Blud! The old flag is good enough for me. "Sir" he added, "you air from the North! Hav you a doughnut or a piece of custard pie about you?"

I told him no, but I knew a man from Vermont who had just organized a sort of restaurent, where he could make a good meal on New England rum and cheese. He borrowed fifty cents from me, and askin, me to send him Wm Lloyd Garrison's ambratype as soon as I got home walked off.

Said another, "Ther's been a tremenjus Union feelin' here from the fust. But we are kept down by a feelin of terror. Hav you a dagerrtype of Wendell Phillips about your person? and will you lend me four dollars for a few days till we air once more a happy and united people?"

A PROUD AND HAWTY SUTHERNER

Feelin a little peckish, I went to a eatin' house to-day, and encountered a yung man with black hair and slender frame. "Yung man" I mildly and gravely sed, "this crood war is over, and you're bekt! Its rather necessary for somebody to lick in a good-quare lively fite, and in this 'ere case it happens to be the United States of America. You fit splendid, but we was too many for you. Then make the best of it & let us all give in and put the Republic on a firmer basis than ever.

"I dont gloat over your misfortins, my young frien.' Far from it. I'm a old man now, & my hart is softer now than it once was. You see my spectacles is mistened with sumthin' very like tears I thinkin of the sea of good rich Blud that has been spilt on both sides in this dredful war! I'm thinkin' of our widders and orfuns North, and your'n in the South. I can cry fur both. B'leeve me, my young fren,' I ken place my old hands on the young fair head of the Virginny maid whose lover was laid low in the battle dust by a fed'ral bullet and say as fervently and piously as a venerable sinner like me ken say anything,' God be good to you, my poor dear, my poor dear!"

I rix to go & takin my young Sutherners hand, I sed "Yung man adoo! You Suthern fellers is prob'bly my brothers, tho' you've occasionally had a cussed queer way of showin' it! It's over now. Let us all jine in and make a country of this continent that shall give all Europe a cramp in the stummuck every time they look at us! Adoo adoo!"

Let Every Man Read This.

We have probably all of us met with instances in which a word heedlessly spoken against the reputation of a female, has been magnified by malicious minds until the cloud has become dark enough to overshadow her whole existence. To those who are accustomed not necessarily from bad motives, but from thoughtlessness, to speak lightly of females, we recommend these hints as worthy of consideration:—"Never use a lady's name in an improper place, at an improper time, or in mixed company. Never make assertions about her that you think are untrue, or allusions that you feel she herself would blush to hear." Many a good and worthy woman's character has been forever ruined and her heart broken by a lie, manufactured by a villian, and repeated where it should not have been, and in the presence of those whose little judgment could not deter them from circulating the foul and fiendish report. Respect the name of a woman, for your mother and sisters are women; and as you would have their fair name untarnished, and their lives embittered by slanderers, biting tongues, heed the ill your own words may bring upon the mother, the sister, or the wife of some fellow-creature.

What a Newspaper Should Be.

From the Scottish American.

The people here have a preference for newspapers that are not called—newspapers. We do not conceal from ourselves the immense success of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL is due in a large degree to the fact that its news compendium is held to be especially valuable. People want to read the facts and occurrences of life, as well as to hear the learned pundits comment upon them. It is all well enough for the editor to sit down, looking as wise as an owl, and dreamt after an imposing fashion upon "men, women, and other things" throughout the world; but the reader wants to read in brief form what was done here, there, and anywhere, as well as to listen to long preachments about it.

These plain, everyday facts nine-tenths of our newspaper enterprisers overlook altogether. They think if they can get a few so-called wits together, or a select circle of long-winded and pretentious bummers—fellows who profess high art, dry art, and every thing above common apprehension—they can make a newspaper—a literary newspaper. This is all a delusion. Give the people liberal supplies of news in a condensed and come-at-able form, and they will forgive almost any conceivable amount of editorial dullness. They will at least have the sense to read only so much of the journal as promises them some instruction or entertainment. The rest they will quietly regard as so much advertising space allowed the editor on which to spread himself, and look an immense creature—such as, in his impersonality, he undoubtedly is.

A Fleet for Europe.

The many naval officers in the city are much excited in relation to the approaching rendezvous of Admiral Goldsborough's fleet at Fortress Monroe. This fleet will be composed of from thirty to sixty sail, and will depart for the Mediterranean, on a three years' cruise about the 4th of July. The naval officers are gesticulating excitedly with each other as to who shall go and who shall stay behind. The new Ironsides and two double-turreted monitors will make part of the [illegible] Colorado. She will drop anchor for several months in the harbour of Marseilles, and the rest of the fleet will scatter for various points of the sea. About ten vessels will cruise about the British Isles and in the North Sea. The ocean, at the time of the year designated, is generally smooth as a duck-pond, and the iron-clads, it is presumed, will get across bravely. Admiral Goldsborough, a private boat will be a small steam vessel, formerly called the A. D. Vance. The object of the expedition is to acquaint our pilots with European harbours, and to test the sea-going qualities of our marine, as well as to show Europe the advances we have made in naval architecture and gunnery. We shall lose nothing by thus plainly exhibiting our strength, as every board of admiralty in Europe has already plans and models of every gunboat we have built during the war. There is nothing out of the way in this cruise. Before the war, we made such expeditions frequently: but now we shall send abroad more vessels than before constituted our entire navy. The world, therefore, will get some inkling of us; heretofore its acquaintance with the States has been chiefly derived from rebel privateers. The Dearborn may come out if she chooses to see the brothers and sisters of the Kearsarge. Admiral Goldsborough is an excellent talker, and will do the oratory for the Jack Tars of the West. This expedition will make an era in the history of the continent. The Wilkes exploring expedition is nowhere. The present will miss more than ever discovered.—Washington Cor. World.

How to Keep Good Natured.

Uncle William writes to the American Agriculturist: "How that wagon wheel creaks. It seems to be grumbling and moaning with pain, just as I felt like doing when I had the rheumatism. Every boy knows that it needs grease or oil, to make it run easy. If it do not have this, it will tire everybody with the disagreeable sound, and soon be worn out. It is just like some people I have met, who needed oiling with good nature. They were honest, industrious, well meaning, and naturally affectionate, but oh! how peevish. There was my neighbor Squire Savage. How I used, when a boy, to dread to pass his place. 'What are you staring at boy?' he would call out if I turned to look toward his house. 'Stop your noisy jelly,' he shouted one day as I was singing on my way to school. Suppose I did annoy him a little by my childish ways, he would have felt pleasanter, and I certainly should, had he given me a kind word which would have cost him very little. There was Peter Brace, one of my school fellows, 'Peter Pickles' the boys nicknamed him. He was always snarling at something or somebody. If he granted a favor, he would do it with such a snap that you did not like to ask him a second time. But I need not speak of my cross acquaintances, most of you have seen such persons, and know that they are not favorites. But how can a person keep good nature? 1st, by making up his mind that he will act pleasantly whether he feels so or not. It may be hard work to do this at times, but it can be made a habit, and appearing pleasant will induce pleasant feelings. 2d, Good health has much to do with good nature. Preserve this by good habits and temperance in all things. 3d, Keep a quite conscience by trying to do right.—Be careful not to mistake phlegmy for good nature. A phlegmatic man agrees with everybody, has little will of his own, is ready to follow every body's suggestion; he does not know how to say 'No.' A good natured man may be very decided in his opinions and yet offend none justly by his expression of them; he can make 'No' pleasanter by his way of saying it, than the 'Yes' of a surly person.

Our Railway System,--Its Connection and Extension.

From reports circulated, and some kind of survey being made as well as from the declaration of the Lessees of the Millbrook Branch, there appears to be some desire on the part of the present monopolizers of our Railways to connect the Branch with the Chemong Ranch, so as the more completely to engross the whole traffic of the town and surrounding country for their own interest, but what would soon prove to be to the disadvantage of this Town and vicinity.

Already we have had a very fair trial of what we may expect of these railway speculators, if they can but secure the connection so as to obtain the lumber freight of both sides of the river. Cobourg has had an instance of perfidy on the part of these same gentlemen. They obtained the control of the Cobourg and Peterborough road. But the Millbrook Branch was likely to be less expensive and of consequence more remunerative, and at once, almost, the Cobourg road and Cobourg is abandoned to their fate, notwithstanding all the pretended zeal for Cobourg. Selfishness was mightiest, and prevailed. We do not say that the present Lessees are the only ones who would have [illegible] under any circumstances whatever. It is the evil of placing ourselves at the mercy of any one set of men that we are desirous of guarding against.

No sooner had it been found that there was no likelihood of competition in the carrying trade of this place than we find that the very highest possible rates are charged to the great injury of the trade of Peterborough and the back country. Witness for example the disproportion in the charges on the Grand Trunk and this line. On the Grand Trunk, from Montreal to Port Hope, a distance of about 300 miles, the rate per cwt. is 23 cents, not a mill per mile, while from Port Hope to Peterborough, the rate is 15 cents or about six times as much, and other charges in proportion to these, giving the trader at the front an undue advantage over the merchant in Peterborough, which would not be the case if a more equable rate was charged. It is admitted that the lumber trade of Peterborough, is of no small interest to us. During the latter part of last year and this spring it is rather more than usually depressed, under such circumstances we would be led to expect a fall in the rate of carrying it; on the contrary, we find that the rate per thousand has been raised from $1.50 to $1.80, and that at the very time of the greatest depression in that trade, and had not something been done by Cobourg we would have to endure this, and perhaps more. We do not say that Cobourg entirely considered our interest in the matter; but the fact goes to prove how unwise it would be to place ourselves at the mercy of either Port Hope, Cobourg or the Lessee if we can avoid it. It may be said that this effort of Cobourg will prove abortive, like the railroad will prove a failure, and will, at any rate, leave us at the mercy of the Managers of the Branch. It is time enough to place ourselves at their mercy when we must. At the present it has all appearance of continuing during the carrying season. The expense of it is not heavy, and it can easily be revived in the spring; let it have a trial. When it becomes a failure, then we can consider the wisdom of forming a connection with the Cobourg road; before that the experiment will prove a dangerous one.

Another phase of the question? Would it be just to divert the Chemong road from the end intended, viz: an extension of the Cobourg road. The Cobourg people first moved in obtaining a charter for the Chemong road. The fact is that even now it is a part and parcel of that road, and never was intended to be in any way connected with the Port Hope road. It would then be a manifest departure from the intent of the charter, and a gross injustice to the Town of Cobourg to allow it to be thus diverted. The Government never will allow it, as to do so would be in effect saying to Cobourg we enabled you to contract an immense debt—now we will cut off every means of enabling you to pay it. We will allow the road to be destroyed and its branches used to feed a hostile road. This we are sure they will not do.

Again, we are informed that the right of way for the connecting link has been procured on mere nominal terms. This can only be true in part, as no right of way has yet been procured in Peterborough East nor is it likely that it can or will be obtained. No one need allow his property to be disturbed unless he wishes, and we find the people hostile to the connexion as assuredly they ought, so long as there is hope of a healthy competing line. Let Cobourg have a line if she can, it will cost us nothing but to let it alone: and let the branch go on, we should do nothing to injure it; it is for the advantage of the Town that both roads should exist. But how has the right of way been procured through the South of the Town? This is merely so much buncombe. The Council can have taken no action in the matter yet. The Town Trust Commissioners cannot have yet given the right of way for a mere nothing. We take that part of the story as so much gas. And even should the connexion go on, why should those who manage the business of the Town give away any of the property for nought? This we think there is no fear of—inasmuch as we are now sure of both roads without any more premiums.

The action of the memorialists who are now petitioning the Government to improve the navigation of our noble river is the best thing that can be done. This will always enable us to have cheap communication with the front without any further outlay on our part, and by keeping up competition will keep down tariffs. This may appear selfish, but as we have had a very fair trial of supreme selfishness, is it to be wondered at if we have partaken of the contagion.

BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

The Board of School Trustees held their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday evening last instead of Tuesday, because of the fair day happening on the regular day of meeting. For some time it was doubtful whether a quorum could be obtained; eventually enough came to go on with business.

There were present the Chairman, the Rev. Mr. Burnham, Messrs. Ford, Edwards, Rogers, Clugston, Helm, Coulter, Eastland, and Lundy.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

From a report laid before the Board at a former meeting, there appears 454 registered pupils on the books. Boys, 243; Girls, 211; average—boys, 181; girls, 215; total average 326.

Attending Grammar School Department, boys, 24; girls, 15; total 39.

A letter of application from Miss Maria Dowling was read, and referred to the committe on applications.

The report of the special committee to investigate the matter of the Principal's report referred to in our last report, then came up. The report of the committee was very full, and contained so very much that involved remarks concerning parties that we consider unnecessary to publish in full—we have concluded to give only the result of the committee's investigation.

The charges against some of the Teachers' arose from a misunderstanding of the Principals' report, consequently these were removed by an explanatory report. Those against whom the heaviest charges were made suffered nothing by the investigation, as the reasons for the cause of complaint were admitted in some degree, by recommending more time for those classes, of which progress could not be reported. At the same time the committee strongly supported the Principal by not removing the censure implied in the report.

We at first intended to give a verbatim report of the whole proceedings, but found we could not without departing from our original intention of not giving names, this determination arose from the fact that just utes of the Board, delicate questions were being discussed, the report of which would do no one any good—could serve no good purpose—and would not benefit the school but on the contrary might injure it. For the future we intend furnishing our readers with full reports of the School Board.

WARD SCHOOLS.

In connection with the report of the Committee the subject of infant Ward Schools was discussed, and this, we believe, was referred to the same Committee to report on the best means of carrying out the suggestion relating to establishing such schools. It would appear that the very great number of small children in Mrs. Flavelle's Department, and the impossibility of dividing them, renders it necessary to do something towards easing the labors in this department and also providing more efficiently for the education of those who cannot go to the Union School or cannot be accommodated at it. The move, we have no doubt, is in the right direction.

Already there are successful primary Schools, (private enterprizes) one in the North Ward, and one in the South Ward. In the North ward Miss Rutherford has above sixty little ones, and we learn, has been very successful in managing them. Some of the members of the Board remarked that the private school in the South Ward was also in a favorable state.

UNDUE ACTION OF THE BOARD.

There were some things in connexion with the remarks of the Board, and also referred to by the special report that we are sure must have arisen from want of thought on the part of those gentlemen. We refer to their setting apart the time to be allotted to any class. This surely belongs to the Teachers concerned. The Principal should make out a Time Table, in this he could be aided by the other Teachers. In doing so it would be well to have all the Teachers acquiesce, at least as far as possible, but for the Board to say what time shall be occupied by any class is completely out of place. The Board expect certain results. But if they are found saying what time shall be occupied by any class, very reasonably the Teachers may say you must then abide the consequences and assume the responsibilities of the progress or inefficiency of these classes. The Principal and Teachers should regulate their time and manner of teaching, and should be held responsible for the state of the School.

THE PRINCIPAL SHOULD HAVE CONTROL.

We are decidedly of the opinion that the Principal should have the complete control, and then be held accountable for all the results. In permitting this, one or even more excellent teachers may have to be sacrificed to the whims of a Principal, but even so, while we would deplore such, yet we would sooner allow it, than that an institution costing so much should be a nullity. We are certain however, that unless cordial cooperation exists among the Teachers no institution can fulfil the end desired. And a tyrannical Principal who would attempt to Lord it over his colleagues will in the end be sure to suffer just retribution. A weekly meeting or monthly report of each division to the Principal in addition to his personal supervision would enable each Teacher to set forth his requirements, and a little attention to any complaint would soon allay it.

THE TEACHERS.

We are pleased to find that not a word of complaint is heard of any of the Teachers' want of ability to perform his or her duty. The only complaint heard of is, that some of the classes do not show sufficient progress. The Committee speak very favorably of the Principal's earnest anxious zest for the advancement of the School. Zeal tempered by good feeling among the Teachers and forbearance one with another, will be found to remove many difficulties.

COUNTY COURT.

The County Court and Court of Quarter Sessions for the County of Peterboro, took place on Tuesday last, before His honor Judge Boucher.

The business before the Court was very trifling; there was no criminal business whatever.

The following gentlemen composed the Grand Jury:—

Thomas Menzies, Esq., Foreman; and Messrs. James Alexander, Israil Black, Jas. Beckett, William Carter, Silas Cox, James Fowler, Jr., Timothy Fitzpatrick, J. R. Freeman, Garrett Galvin, Peter Hamilton, Isaac Johnston, William McKee, W. J. McKibbon, Alexander Preston, John Spence, W. G. Thomson, W. B. Ward, and William Webster.

The Grand Jury handed in the following

PRESENTMENT.

County of Peterborough,
TO WIT:

The Grand Jury of the County Court, and Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the County of Peterborough, beg leave to report:—

That they have examined the Jail and Court House and have found them clean and in good order.

They regret to find James Moloney, an insane person, confined in the Jail since the tenth of March last, and would recommend the Judge to take whatever steps he considers necessary to have him removed, with as little delay as possible, to an asylum, as they consider his detention in a Jail injurious to a person suffering under his malady.

The Jury would congratulate the Court upon their not having any criminal charges laid before them, which speaks well for the morality of the inhabitants of the County.

Robberies and Fires in Hamilton and other places.

From an investigation now going on in Hamilton most startling developments are being made of the existence of regularly banded robbers, who carried on the most extensive system of shop breaking, and "sweeling," and when the haul was too large, so as to cause fear for suspicion, buildings were burned to prevent any suspicion being cast their way. In the course of investigation, the Chief of Police in Hamilton has been brought under strong implication of being an aider and abettor of the "gang," as is too clearly testified by several witnesses. Also, one of the City Aldermen is accused of being hired to screen them from punishment, and of receiving ten per cent. of their plunder for so doing. One of the Police force of Toronto, has been suspended for evident complicity with the same land.

A detective, named Armstrong, who had been employed by the Government, and also by the Insurance Companies ferreted out the whole proceeding by getting into their graces as a purchaser of their plunder, but who was discovered to them by Sergeant McDowel, of the Toronto Police. Every reasonable measure is being taken to sift out the whole matter, we trust the authorities get leave to meditate over their follies in the Penitentiary. The whole party seem to be keepers of low houses in their localities, and some of them keepers of brothels. One vice too often begets another!

VINCENT CLEMENTI, Treas.

RETRACTING—Our whimsical contemporary the Review in referring to our article on "Business Morality" thinks we are very "severe on sinners" and yet finds fault with the teaching set forth. He insinuates that we have forgotton that evil proceeds from the heart. He will not feel astonished at our omission when we inform him that we took the Editor of the Review as our standard of business men, and as we are convinced that he does not possess such an organ in an editorial capacity, we thought it not wrong to consider all as of in the same state. And as he was our standard of comparison, and in our opinion is heartless, until he convinces the public as well as our humble selves that he does possess one, and that therefore our assumption was false, we have no reason to retract. When he makes that point satisfactory, we may reconsider—not till then. When he does that, which he will find some difficulty, still the other horn remains to be got off, viz: It he has a heart it must be a very cess-pool of iniquity considering the amount of trash that proceeds from it and finds its way into the columns of the Review.

THE OTONABEE RIVER AND THE LOCKS.—A Memorial has been forwarded to the Governor General, signed by 93 of the leading Merchants and manufacturers of the Town and the neighboring Village. The object of said Memorial is to obtain the repairs of the Locks and dam thereat, and to procure the action of the Government to improve the River a little lower down. It is believed that a small outlay would completely open up the River for all means of transport of freight and Lumber to and from this place to Harwood, and thence by Rail to Cobourg. We hope Government will see the wisdom of moving in the matter.

PETERBOROUGH & CHEMONG RAILWAY COMPANY.—The following gentlemen were chosen Directors of the above Company on Tuesday the 13th instant, at a meeting of stockholders, held at Caisse's Hotel:—

A. A. Burnham, President: Lewis Moffatt, John Fowler, G. M. Goodeve, Henry Covert, and Wm. Clinton, Esquires.

A protest was entered, by some of the Stockholders, regarding the election on the ground of irregularity.

This was the only business transacted.

"CHARITY."—We shall meet your wishes next week by inserting the 'Silent Deacon.'

BOOTS AND SHOES.—Mr. Bixbee advertises in this issue of the Examiner, the arrival of a large quantity of Boots and Shoes, which he intends to sell cheap for cash.

JEFF. DAVIS.—The trial of Mr. Davis has been postponed till a future day—it is thought it will not take place sooner than October.

A grocery was entered on the morning of the 11th inst., at Montreal, and a desk containing $1,000 in notes and cash carried away.

We have been requested to state that the Volunteer Companies of Peterboro' and Ashburnham will assemble at seven o'clock on Monday Evening next, for Batallion drill.

FIRES.—On Friday night last a small house the property of Mr. C. Stapleton was consumed. No Insurance. On Saturday night a house on Smithtown Hill belonging to Mr. Thos. Bradburn, was also destroyed by fire. Both fires were the work of incendiaries.

INTERESTING TO TEACHERS.—Among the regulations recently issued by the Council of Public Instruction for Upper Canada, the sixth reads thus:—"Any teacher of a common or a Grammar school shall be entitled to five of the ordinary school teaching days of each year to be selected by such teacher, for the purpose of visiting and observing the methods of classification, teaching, and discipline, practised in other schools than that in which he or she teaches." A weeks notice shoul l be previously given to the trustees.

WESLEYAN CONFERENCE—MINISTERS FOR THE PETERBORO DISTRICT.—Peterborough, James Brock, John Sanderson, Supt. Millbrook, James C. Slater, Wm. Holsteen. Hiawatha (Rice Lake) Thos. Williams.—Lindsay, Andrew Edwards. Oakwood, Ephraim L. Kayl. Omemee, Samuel C. Philp, sen., Wm. R. Barker. Keene, Wm. L. Scott. Norwood, Samuel Wilson. TOWN COUNCIL.

Monday, June 12, 1865.

Present:—His Worship the Mayor, Messrs. Toole, Lawson, Whyte, Stevenson, Williams, Helm, Ormond, McNaughton, Chambers, Leonard, Chamberlen and Burnham.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read over and confirmed.

PETITIONS.

A Petition from George Brownlee, asking leave from the Council to erect a rough cast house on his lot on Water Street, was received.

A petition from Daniel Hopkins, asking that the Council would direct that his rent for the land leased by him on the corner of the Market Square, commence from the 1st of May last in place of last fall, was read and received.

A petition was also received from John Hu[illegible] ments on the South of Aylmer Street, and referred to the Street and Bridge committee.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was received from Thos. White, Inspector of Inland Revenue, asking the Council what course it intended to take in reference to parties selling liquor without license, was referred to the Finance Committee.

ACCOUNTS

Were received from the following parties:

Lewis Glover, oil &c.	$5 49
George Stethem	5 60
George Hillier	27 65
Several persons for work	30 70
Wm. Arnott, ringing bell	30 00

were referred to the Committee on Finance, with instructions to order the payment if found correct.

FIRE COMMITTEE REPORT.

Mr. Chambers, as Chairman of the Committee on Fires, submitted the following report, which was received and adopted.

Your Committee on the Fire Department beg leave to Report,—That they have had under their consideration the following petitions, viz:

That of A. Stewart and others, relative to a Hook and Ladder and Bucket Company. We approve of the action already taken by the Council in the matter. We would however recommend the said Company to your favorable consideration, as we deem them necessary and beneficial.

And also that of R. O. Helm, Captain of the Juvenile Company. We recommend that the prayer of the Petitioners be granted.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

FINANCE.

The Committee on Finance submitted the following report:

Your Committee on Finance and Assessment beg to report.—That they have but one account to report upon, which is the expenses of the election for Mayor, amounting to $28. Your Committee recommend the different amounts to be paid to the respective claimants.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHARLES ORMOND,
Chairman.

MOTIONS.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Lawson.—That inasmuch as the County Council did appropriate $25 to be expended on Smith Street, between George and Water Streets, on condition that this Council would appropriate a similar amount; be it therefore resolved, that this Council do appropriate $25 or whatever portion thereof may be necessary, to carry out the work in contemplation between the points referred to.—Lost.

YEAS:—Messrs. Toole, Lawson, Whyte and McNaughton.

NAYS:—Messrs. Stevenson, Williams, Helm, Ormond, Chambers, Leonard, Chamberlen and Burnham.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Lawson,—That the part of the Street Inspector's report relating to George Street be adopted and that the Street and Bridge Committee be instructed to have said repairs made to the best possible advantage, not to exceed $50.—Lost.

YEAS:—Messrs. Toole, Lawson, Whyte and Williams.

NAYS:—Messrs. Stevenson, Helm, McNaughton, Chambers, Ormond, Leonard, Chamberlen and Burnham.

Moved by Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Williams,—That the Street Inspector be requested to repair by filling up with gravel, the hole on Hunter Street opposite the English Church, expense not to exceed $4,—Lost.

On motion the Mayor was instructed to have Mr. Dobson removed from the Jail to the Hospital at Toronto.

Moved by Mr. Ormond, seconded by Mr. Toole,—That the Clerk be requested to lay before this Council at its next session the names of all persons who have been fined and the said fine or in part not now paid, stating the date of such fine.—Carried.

Council adjourned for two weeks at half past seven.

COUNCIL OF SMITH & HARVEY.

June 5th, 1865.

The Council met. All the members present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

A petition from Francis I. Freeburn and 23 others was presented and read, praying that a road be opened between Lots number 27 and 28 in the Township of Smith, commencing where said line intersects the River Road, in the ninth Concession, thence Northerly on said line to the rear of the 14th Concession.

Moved by Mr. Garbutt, and seconded by Mr. Galvin, that the Petition of Francis I. Freeburn and 23 others be laid over until the Petitioners furnish this Council with a survey of the line prayed for, and an opinion be taken whether it be practicable for a road or not.—Carried.

A statement was made to the Council that a dispute had arisen between the owners of Lots numbered 28 and 29, in the 11th Concession of Smith, whether the present travelled road or not, a survey had been made but the owner of Lot number 29 had forbidden the overseer of Highways for said Road to have Statute labor performed on said surveyed line.

Mr. John Galvin was deputed to employ a P. L. S. to survey said line.

The sum of $1400 was appropriate to the general improvement of the Roads and Bridges in the Municipality, said sum to be divided as follows, viz: $160 to the Township of Harvey: $300 to the Road leading from Buckhorn Bridge to the 14th Concession of Smith; and $188 to each of the five Wards.

The Reeve was directed to issue his order on the Treasurer for the sum of $2.00, in favor of J. H. Walton, for services as Constable.

Oil Company Formed in Dummer.

(For the Examiner.)

For the past three or four years indications of Petroleum or Coal Oil have been observed on Lot No. 5, 6th Concession of Dummer, and quite an excitement has been got up in consequence. On Saturday, the 10th inst., a meeting was held for the purpose of forming a company, to sink a test well on the spot indicated, and to further develope all the oil producing capabilities of the surrounding country. Quite a number of our worthy farmers and others were present, and after inspecting the Oil Spring (which emitted a strong smell of the oil) organized the meeting by calling Hugh Drain, Esq., to the chair, and David Rose being requested to act as Secretary, the meeting proceeded to the transaction of business.

After addresses were delivered by several parties, the following resolutions were unanimously carried:—

That this company be called the South Dummer Joint Stock Oil Company.

That the stock of the Company be $5,000, in shares of $5 each.

The following gentlemen were then appointed office bearers.—Hugh Drain, President; David Rose, Secretary; Matthew Knox, Treasurer; John Spense, John Parker, Joseph Luky, and Thomas Ritchie, Directors.

A stock book was then opened, and 84 shares taken up. As the indications in the neighborhood are numerous, the stock holders are determined to begin the work as soon as possible.

19th inst., at 7 o'clock, P. M.

HEADINGS FOR LEDGERS.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

This is truly a money grasping age, and it would be a great blessing for mankind if the following quotations from a book not much used in our day were placed at the head of every ledger in the Provinces, and reduced to practice.

1st.—Let no man go beyond and defraud his brother in any matter. This Mr. Editor, is a specimen of Bible principles and Bible honesty. The commercial honesty of the present age oft times comes in such a questionable shape, that we must speak with it; it is but the poor ghost and shadow of that noble quality which should ever distinguish the Christian merchant. The honesty presented in this quotation, does not consist in that unnatural acuteness which many exhibit in striking a bargain, in which subtlety on the one hand so often plays the leading part, and simplicity on the other is deceed; in which a "good bargain," is the one supreme consideration; beyond it nothing more. The honesty of the Bible teaches the inmate of the Counting House, that a good bargain, however great, is not the chief end of a man's being; and that it is within the bounds of possibility, that a man may make what is technically called even a great bargain, and find it after all but a poor exchange for the purity and rectitude of his soul. It could not surely be that, with a healing such as the above, and with words forming part of a traders life, the ledger page should be defile l with the entries that turn all on this one pivot "get money honestly if you can; if not still get money."

A second page might be headed with—"They that will be rich fall into temptations and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition." This is par excellence, an age of speculation. Science, Theology, &c., are all of them trying to "make it out." Commerce has caught the infection, the industry of the olden time is too slow and plodding for it. We will be rich, the love is nothing, the being rich is all. The sturdy Saxon sense and weariness for which British and American Merchants have long been famed, appear fast lapsing into the traditions of the past. Evil indeed must be that project and perilous in the extreme the speculation which will not find some ready to adopt them, if they only hold out the very remotest prospects of gain. Schemes of the most Eutopian kind beckon on every side for the investment of money: insurance companies, &c., where nothing is insured save bankruptcy, spring up like the gourd of the old Hebrew prophet, and like it decay.

An Extensive Fire in Port Hope.

At about one o'clock on Wednesday morning, the 7th instant, a fire broke out in rear of the brick building belonging to Mr. Hatton. When discovered, it had made such headway as to render the destruction of Mr. Hatton's building a certainty. The fire was not long in communicating itself to the adjoining brick building on the north side, belonging to Mr. W. P. Whitehead, also to the double brick building on the south side, belonging to the estate of the late John Might, and now the property of Mrs. Kells and Mr. S. Might. These buildings were also destroyed. If the town were properly provided with fire engines and companies, &c., the block belonging to the estate of the late John Might could have been saved, without any difficulty.—Mr. Hatton's building, which was insured, was occupied as follows:—Mr. J. H. Delemere's Grocery, insured, part of stock saved; Mr Gibson's Grocery, no insurance; stock nearly all saved; the British Canadian Printing Office, insured, the greater part destroyed; Mr. Delamere's residence, the furniture insured, as at of it destroyed. Mr. Whitehead's building was partly occupied as the Custom House. The office furniture was all destroyed, and the books and papers mostly saved. Mr. Whitehead was partially insured. The block belonging to the late John Might was occupied by Mr Dickson as a Saddlery Shop, no insurance, the large stock of harness and material mostly saved; by Mrs Kells as a residence, part of the furniture being saved; and by Mr. Robinson, as a residence, part of the furniture being saved. The block was insured.—Guide

THE HOGAN MURDER.

DYING STATEMENT OF ELLEN MCGILLOCK.

Ellen McGillock died in the hospital in this city on Saturday morning last at 10 o'clock. She had given unmistakable signs of her approaching dissolution for some days before and appeared quite resigned to her fate. A clergyman of the Roman Catholic body was present with her shortly before she died. She was extremely penitent, and requested those of the patients who were about to read and sing to her. Her resignation had all the marks of the utmost sincerity.

But a short time before she died she had a conversation with the steward of the hospital as to the death of the late Mr. J. S. Hogan which for so long a time remained a mystery. The blow which rendered him helpless was, she said, struck by Jane Ward with a stone which she carried in a pocket handkerchief. Brown did not strike him at all, but while he was still alive helped to throw him over the bridge. To his latest moments, it will be remembered, Brown persisted in declaring his innocence, and many persons could hardly believe that he was guilty. There were present on the bridge at the time—besides Brown, Ward and McGillock—Sherrick, Maurice Malone and McAntaminy. Sherrick is now in the penitentiary serving a term for robbery; McAntaminy and Malone are dead—so that of all the actors in the dreadful tragedy Sherrick and Jane Ward alone survive. They were tried together for the murder and acquitted.—Ellen McGillock declared that Malone knew all about the murder, but had no hand in it. A young man named Hannov, who died in the hospital, was supposed to have been on the bridge the night of the murder, but McGillock declared he was not there.

At the trial the unfortunate woman, just deceased, said it was Brown who killed Mr. Hogan, but she said before she died that she "swore false" against him on that occasion, and that what she said now might be relied upon, as she knew she would be with her Maker in a few hours.—Leader.

ENGLISH NEWS.

The Owl-says the Canadian delegates have established a complete mission with the Imperial Government as to the Fortifications of Quebec and Montreal.

They firmly believe the proposed Confederation will be carried out.

The journals continue discussing the fate of Jeff. Davis.

The Daily News hopes mercy will be extended, not but that he fully deserves punishment, but because the principle which the Federal Government represents is already vindicated so triumphantly that nothing can be added. No punishment could be greater than failure, and mercy would cause no regret in future years.

The Times says, after the ominous language of the President, we can no longer regard the case with confidence and hope. It may prove a fortunate or a fatal success as the policy of the Government may be so affected by the personal views of the President.

In the House of Commons questions were asked as to the reported demands of the American Government on account of the Alabama depredations.

Lord Palmerston said communications had been taking place for claims lately made by some of the same kind as formerly made. He could not say whether the instructions were issued by Pres. Johnston or Lincoln. He said an impression prevailed since Johnson's accession, that new claims had been made in a totally different spirit than formerly. That impression was altogether unfounded. Mr. Seward had no fresh demands had been made.

The rupture between the Emperor and Prince Napoleon was complete.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says that the great unpardonable will question. The Prince glorying in the monroe doctrine; he feeling persuaded the consequence of the restoration of the Union would be the utter impossibility of prolonged French occupation of Mexico without a fear of war. M. Eston chief of the Cabanet of Maximilian had arrived in Paris, and had since gone to Brazil. Advices from Florence state that negotiations are progressing favorably.

THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH

One month from to-day it is believed the Great Eastern will leave Ireland with the cable on board which, if successfully laid, will unite the Old and the New Worlds together. It is perhaps not a little singular that an event of such great magnitude and importance should attract so little attention on this side of the Atlantic. The most wonderous circumstances lose in interest by repetition, and it is the fate of the Atlantic cable to have been once tried and to have failed. But though there are no outward demonstrations of enthusiasm, we do not doubt that quite as much real interest is felt in the successful laying of the cable now as there was when it possessed all the novelty of an untried enterprise.

The cable, as every one knows, is to have for its termini, the island of Valencia, on the south-west coast of Ireland, and the Bay of Hearts' Content in Newfoundland. The length of cable manufactured will be something like 2,600 miles, which will, it is believed, leave a sufficient margin over the actual distance to be supplied to make up for whatever divergences from a straight line may be necessitated by stress of weather or other causes. The present cable in the main core of the cable is very different from the old one. The central conductor is composed of seven fine copper wires, twisted into one complete strand, which is insulated with Chatterton's patent compound. Outside this come four distinct layers of gutta percha, each also insulated with the same material that encloses the conductor. Outside the gutta percha again are wound 11 stout iron wires, each of which, before being twisted on, is itself carefully wound round with strands of hemp, soaked with tar. Thus, then, there are no less than 25,000 miles of copper wire in the conductor, about 35,000 miles of iron wire in the outside covering, and upwards of 400,000 miles of strands of hemp, more than enough in all to go 24 times round the world. The strength of the cable is equal to a strain of seven and three quarter tons, and its specific gravity is such that it can be depended on to support eleven miles of its length in water. In the Great Eastern it will be placed in three enormous tanks, one in the forepart of the ship, another in the middle and the other in the afterpart. Only 500 miles remained to be stowed away on the Queen's Birthday. The tanks are kept constantly filled with water, and when each has its complement of coil, the whole cable will be joined together, and a constant system of signals kept through every part from the moment the expedition starts till the whole cable is laid. For the shore ends there will be special cables made; that for Valentia 25 miles long, owing to the rocky nature of the coast, and that for the Newfoundland shore 18 miles. These will be the strongest and heaviest ever made, weighing no less than 18 tons per mile.—Letter, 15 inst.

THE EFFECTS RECEIVED FROM J. WILKES BOOTH.—The Quebec Chronicle of Thursday says:—"Mr J. Dunbar, adjutant, Mr John B. Parkin, jr., commissioner under an order from the Admiralty, and Mr. Barker, constable, arrived in town yesterday a termon, bringing with them the trunks marked 'J. Wilkes Booth,' saved from the wreck of the schooner Marie Victoria, at Ile. On examination of the contents the trunks were found to contain a magnificent theatrical wardrobe, consisting of crowns, rings, cans, daubles, swords, &c., &c., also many books parts written out, tickets, memoranda letters, &c. We understand that all the written documents were, after a close examination, handed over to the American Consul for safe-keeping, to be transmitted by him to Washington. It is probable, we should say, that all the papers will be sent at once to Washington, inasmuch as it is only the parties conducting the military commission who can judge of their importance in the case now being proceeded with at the Federal capital."

There were 89 deaths in Montreal last week. One was caused by sun-stroke.

AMERICAN NEWS.

The Herald's special says that Congressman Harris, of Maryland, tried for persuading rebel soldiers not to take the oath of allegiance, was sentenced to the 5 years in prison and $1,000 fine, forfeiture of all political rights. The President has approved the finding but remitted the sentence.

The Memorial says:—President Johnson only renews a demand several times made by President Lincoln and denied by Richard but he asserts in with more vigour and energy than ever.

The delegation from Alabama receives very little countenance here.

The President will not consent for a call of the rebel legislature of that State.

Davis, according to all accounts, is incarcerated in the south, and his possible fate excites no particular sympathy.

The Times special says:—General Thomas and part of his staff arrived in Washington yesterday on invitation of the President.

The Richmond papers represent the wheat crop of Virginia as promising a luxuriant yield, but the breadth of land sowed last fall was much less than in former years. The harvest is near at hand.

It is anticipated that the largest wheat crops ever raised in Pennsylvania will be harvested this year. In the finest part of Maryland old men join in the opinion that never in their recollection have they at this season of the year seen such a luxuriant growth of wheat, grass and clover.

A careful and reliable estimate gives the amount of wheat on hand waiting Eastern market in the country north, west and northwest of La Crosse at four million bushels in the hands of farmers. Some farmers up the Chippewa, St Croix and Missouri rivers have 3 years crop still in store, waiting for higher prices, which will never come. But little wheat is coming forward, held back by the insufficient price and enormous rates of freight. On the Minnesota river above St Paul, wheat is a drug at fifty cents a bushel. In the storehouses thousands of bushels are waiting importation, and thousands upon thousands of bushels have suffered from dampness and heating. Some dealers who bought a year since at a dollar, and even ten shillings, a bushel there, have been ruined by the fall. The President of one of the upper river packet companies loses at least one hundred thousand dollars by depreciation of prices and damage to grain from unavoidable causes. Five years since wheat on the upper Minnesota was worth from fifty cents to one dollar and thirteen cents a bushel in gold. At present rates of grain and merchandise the farmers are having a retrograde time.

The Hartford Courant says that a Connecticut man, who has been in the employ of the government for the last four years as purchaser of horses and other stock, has lately returned from the West, and says that the Western country is completely surfeited with live stock. Horses and sheep are more plenty than he has ever known them before, and in his opinion prices must come down.

The New York Herald says the retail dealers must soon regulate their prices according to those in the wholesale markets, as meat of all descriptions for fallen eleven cents a pound from the quotations of five weeks ago, and the supply of beef cattle is considered ample to warrant a still further decline.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—A formal demand has been made upon the Spanish Government for the surrender of the rebel ram "Stonewall." Of course, no answer has yet been received, a the matter goes to Madrid for decision.

Notwithstanding the intimation of the British press, it is not the intention of our Government to abrogation, or to suspend, the treaty of 1817 between England for the purpose to our commerce by the Anglo-rebel pirates.

The disbanding of a portion of the army is no evidence of a cowardly policy. Enough will be retained to enforce any demands upon foreign Governments, and, if necessary, the veterans mustered out can easily be summoned back to the field.

It is understood that preliminary measures have already been taken in reference to the enforcement of the Monroe doctrine, and notification upon Napoleon that since we have settled our own family affairs, we will not submit to Europeans interference with those of our sick neighbor, Mexico, and a very plain intimation given that Napoleon must not only send no more troops into Mexico, but must withdraw the 8 or 9 early and Austrian troops now there, and that we [illegible] whether they will have an empire or a republic; otherwise, it will be our duty to see that the Republican have fair play.

It is not now probable that the trial of Jeff Davis will take place until September. The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in which the indictment was found, will adjourn to morrow, and there is at present no prospect of a special term of the Court during the summer.

THE LATEST PLOT.

THE CROTON DAM TO BE BLOWN UP—THE RESERVOIRS TO BE TAPPED—NEW YORK WATER AT THE PRICE OF RICHMOND WHISKEY—WHY POISONING WAS ABANDONED.

Notwithstanding the collapse of the rebellion the rebel agents in Canada are as busy as ever in concocting hostile projects against the country. Having lost their homes by their treasonable acts in a foreign country, they are impelled by fiendish malice to inflict all the injury they can on the people of the North. They care not a jot whether their blows fall upon the strong or the weak, upon the Government and those who have been in arms against them, or the non-combatants and helpless women and children.

One of the schemes they are now preparing to execute involves the destruction of the Croton Dam at Yorktown, Westchester County. If on this structure, it is well known, the city is dependent for water, and if destroyed it would cost millions of dollars and months of labor to replace it. In the meantime, the city would be without water, for the receiving and distributing reservoirs and aqueduct could never contain more than a supply for a few days. Therefore the agents are purposed that the destruction of that noble structure would be one of the most terrible blows that could be inflicted on the people of this metropolis. They are that not only would the most prominent and important factories and shops be obliged, for want of steam, &c., to suspend operations, but that indeed public safety would fall upon the people at large.

Proceedings of the Synod of the Canada Presbyterian Church.

MONTREAL, June 6, 1865.

The Synod met on Tuesday, the 6th June, at half-past seven o'clock, in the Cote-street Church, Montreal

The Rev. John McTavish, the retiring Moderator, af or devotional exercises, preached from Galatians iv, 19th—" My little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you." After a brief introduction, showing the bearing of these words on the duties and respon-ibilities of the Christian ministry, he proceeded to discuss the two following point :—

1. The grand end and aim of the Christian ministry.

2. The spirit which out to characterize those who are engaged in this work.

The discourse was vigorous in expression and full of fresh thought, dwelling especially on the duty of seeking the immediate conversion of sinners, and the immediate sanctification of the converted; that the principle of divine life may be first implanted and then developed in the soul. The conclusion was an impressive address to ministers, urging them to yield themselves unto God as alive from the dead, with steadfastness of purpose and feeling to give themselves to the grea. work entrusted to them, and to stand ready to labour and expect themselves for the advancement of Christ's cause for whatever way he may call upon them, as he affords them an opportunity to do so

The Synod was then constituted by prayer, and the roll called.

Only 85 ministers and elders answered to their names, of whom a majority were from the Presbyteries east of Cobourg. There will be a large increase of Western members to-morrow morning

The clerk then read an analysis from the reports of the various Presbyteries of the changes in the roll of the Synod since its last meeting From this we gathered the following interesting particulars :—

Four ministers have died during the past year. There have been eight demissions of pastoral charges; five translations, six inductions, nine ordinations, and ten licentiates.

The retiring Moderator then briefly addressed the Synod, and called on them to proceed to the choice of a new Moderator. The Rev. J Aitken, of Smith's falls, was chosen by a large majority and took his seat amid loud cheers

The Moderator kindly addressed the Synod, assuring the court how deeply he felt the honour they had done him in calling him to the chair and expressed his confident reliance in the kind indulgence of the members in aiding him to discharge the duties of the office.

Mr McTavish then read a reply which he had received to the address to the Prince and Princess of Wales, in connexion with their marriage, expressive of the gratification of their Royal Highness on receiving the congratulations and good wishes of the Synod on their behalf.

After receiving the report of committee on business and appointing a number of committees, the Synod adjourned.—Globe.

EXTRAORDINARY DISAPPEARANCE OF A HOUSE —One of the most extraordinary accidents that has been recorded for many years past, took place last week at Prince's Town, near the town of Trafalgar, South Wales. A boy was passing along the road, when, as he was looking at a cottage inhabited by a man named Evan Jenkins and his family, he thought that he observed a movement of part of the masonry On watching it more closely, he was satisfied that the framework of the window was sinking, and being apprehensive that the foundation of the structure was giving way, he ran to the door and alarmed the inmates, who were seated round the table at breakfast. By this time the floor began to shake, and the terrified persons ran into the road and had scarcely done so, when the house began to sink through the ground, and in a very short time was entirely out of sight, leaving the slight upon which it stood an open chasm till then with some yards of the road with earth and at ses which had fallen in from the sides It would seem that the ground on which the cottage was raised stood over a disused colliry, and the earth must have first given way at a depth of fifty a hundred feet below the surface. The escape of the family is looked upon as quite miraculous, as the whole of their furniture, and, indeed every thing contained in their humble dwelling was carried into the chasm beneath Under Providence, they feel that they owe their lives to the sharp conduct of the boy.—Liverpool Mercury.

DOCTOR, WILL MY CHILD LIVE?

Asked an anxious mother of her physician. "Madam," replied the Doctor, "all that science can suggest have been applied. I can do no more." At this instant Mrs. Cummings, a well known nurse, entered the sick chamber and overhearing the Doctors reply, said "Have you tried Radway's Ready Relief?" " No," responded the Doctor, "it is a quack nostrum" "A quack nostrum," indignantly retorted Mrs C, "and yet, Doctor, this simple remedy will cure this child, that you give no hope of recovery. I know its virtues, and will stake my life on its curing the child." "Madam," replied the Doctor, turning to the mother, "if you suffer this woman to interfere with my treatment you and she must bear the re-ponsibility." Mrs. C. however applied the Ready Relief to the throat of the apparently dying child, who was suffering from Diptheria, and in a few minutes the child breathed freely; ere the morning the child was safe. Had the Doctors advice been followed, the child would have died. Let every mother keep Radway's Ready Relief in the house.

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY IN CANADA.

The following testimony from a well known and highly respected Merchant of Prescott, a correspondent of the general approval given to Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY:

PRESCOTT, C W., Dec. 8th, 1859.

Messrs. S W Fowle & Co., Boston.

Gentlemen: -

Being solicited by your Travelling Agent, for an expression of opinion of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, I will h pleasure assert that it is, in my belief, the best remedy b fore the public for coughs and pulmonary complaints

Having tested the article with myself and family, in case of severe coughs and colds, for years, with uniform and unexceptionable success, I unhesitatingly recommend it with full confidence to its merits.

Yours truly,
ALFRED HOOKER.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN
SEWING MACHINES.
EMPIRE SHUTTLE MACHINE!

PATENTED FEB. 14th, 1860

Salesrooms, { 536 Broadway, New York, / 252 Washington St., Boston.

THIS MACHINE is constructed on entirely new principles of mechanism possessing many rare and valuable improvements, having been examined by the most profound experts, and pronounced to be

Simplicity and Perfection Combined.

It has a straight needle, perpendicular motion, makes the lock or shuttle stitch which will not ravel nor rip nor break on both sides; performs a perfect sewing on every description of material, from leather to the finest Nainsook Muslin, with cotton, linen or silk thread; from the coarsest to the finest number. Having neither CAM or COG WHEEL, and the least possible friction, it runs as smooth as glass and is Empinatically a Noiseless Machine.

It requires FIFTY PER CENT less power to drive it than any other Machine in the market A girl can do years of age can work it steadily, without fatigue or injury to health

Its strength and Wonderful simplicity of construction renders it alm st impossible to get out of order, and is GUARANTEED by the Company to give entire satisfaction.

We respectfully invite all those who may desire to supply the market with a superior article, to come and examine the Unrivalled Machine.

Being in a measure especial manner do we elicit the patronage of

Merchant Tailors,	Corset Makers,
Coach Makers,	Gaiter Fitters,
Hoop Skirt Manufacturers,	Shoe Binders,
Shirt and Bosom Makers.	Vest and Pantaloon Makers,
	Dress Makers.

Religious and Charitable Institutions will be liberally dealt with.

One half hours instruction is sufficient to enable any person to work the Machine to their entire satisfaction

AMERICAN
Button-hole, Cording, Braiding and Embroidering
SEWING MACHINE! COMPANY,
627 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK.

THE BUTTON HOLE S made by this entirely simple and novel machine are not only equal to the best Hand-made in the point or right side, but greatly surpassing them in beauty on the wrong side, which is formed by a locked hand stitch, made by an extra stitch, which no hand made button-hole possesses, thereby imparting to the same a much greater strength, which renders cording or barring altogether unnecessary

One Needle and Two Threads are only Used.

Unlike other Sewing Machines it manufactures its own Braid and Cord.

The best Merchant Tailors freely admit that at its best they can but seldom attain to equal to the most skilful Hand.

Simplicity is one of its great merits, therefore not liable to get out of order, and it can be worked with ease by any young lady, who will, after a few days' experience, make from 1,000 to 1,200 perfect button-holes in one day.

This is the only machine produced that will throw a stitch over the edge, so as to bind and sew it in a manner indispensable for button-holes, Cording and Braiding, each of which can be done with colored, shaded or silver silks, and produces a fabric of varied colors unexcelled for beauty and taste

To Ladies at home, Dress, Mantilla and Cloak maker, Shoemakers, Tailors, Hatters, Bookbinders, Saddlers, &c., it is indispensable; it is also admitted to be of great value, to other branches as Carpet Trades, Embroiderers, and Coats pain and many other kinds of Cloths, Cassimeres, Linen, Velvet, Leather, &c. &c.

Instructions and Needles accompany each Machine.

Every Machine is Warranted for Twelve Months.

Machines can be seen in full operation at our spacious Store, 627 Broadway, near Hooker, where instruction rooms are reserved for Ladies.

P S.—A novel patented BUTTON HOLE Cutter for sale which shall in all cases accompany a Button Hole Machine.

Machine, $125.00; Button-Hole Cutter, $5.00.

HOMŒOPATHY.

HOMŒOPATHY AND LIFE ASSURANCE.—The directors of a London life assurance office—the "General Provident"—at its recent meeting have placed on record their opinion "that persons treated by the Homœopathic system enjoy more robust health, are less frequently attacked by disease, and when attacked recover more rapidly than those treated by any other system; that with respect to the more fatal classes of disease the mortality under Homœopathy is small in comparison with that of Allopathy; that there are diseases not curable at all under the latter system, which are perfectly curable under the former; finally, that the medicines prescribed by Homœopathists do not injure the constitution, whereas those employed by Allopathy not unfrequently entail the most serious, and in many instances fatal, consequences." The directors further propose to summon a meeting of the shareholders to lay before them the facts they have collected, and the decision at which they have arrived, namely, "to open a special section for persons treated by the Homœopathic system, at a lower rate of premium than that charged on other lives."—London (Eng.) Observer.—Toronto Globe.

DR. POOLE, (Water st., Peterborough,) is a Graduate and Licentiate of both the Allopathic and Homœopathic schools, and confidently recommends the latter system of treatment, as by far the safest and most successful, in both Acute and Chronic diseases.

PIANO-FORTES
DRIOSO'S NEW PATENT.

ARE THE ONLY INSTRUMENTS constructed on a truly scientific principle. That have greater strength, and will remain longer in tune than any other Piano. The construction is simple and natural. All the extraneous lumber in the body of the instrument is dispensed with; the sound boards are merely two arched planks of thin wood, like the front and back of a violin; the strings are attached to a strong iron frame, which is separate and entirely independent of the case, thereby dispensing with the old barbarous of stringing by substituting straight bridges, preserving at the same time The Over Strung Beam, of which Mr Dunne is the inventor. By these improvements we gain much more vibratory power, at the same time preserving all its purity and richness of tone.

They have received the highest testimonials from the Press, and all the principal artists in the country, among which are :

Harry Sanderson,	L. M. Gottschalk,
Max Maretzek,	S. Thalberg,
Theodore Eisfeld,	Wm Mason,
Herman Wollenhaupt,	A. Barili
Francis H. Brown,	M. Strackosch,
Wm. Henry Fry,	Charles Fradel

Mr. SIGESMUND THALBERG, the great pianist, says :—I have examined your new Piano-fortes and I cordially approve of its system of construction. Its principle, by which great increase of vibratory power is obtained, being very simple and perfectly philosophical. The tone is grand and noble; it has great capacity for sustaining the sound or singing, and its volume of tone or power I have never heard excelled in depth, purity and sympathetic sweetness.

Wm. HENRY FRY, late musical critic of the N. Y. Tribune says :—I have examined your newly invented Piano-Fortes They merit all the praise given to them by Messrs. Thalberg, Gottschalk, Strackosch, Mason and others. As regards the structure, they are original and philosophical; in purity, volume, and continuity of tone; in vocal assimilitude, that crowning excellence which enables the pianist to "sing" on the instrument. Your Pianos deserve the highest rank. Your invention, in my opinion, is destined to work radical changes in the manufacture of Pianos throughout the world.

From the N. Y. Herald, Sept. 5 —Upon a careful examination of DRIOSO Piano-Forte, we find the results obtained are a very fine singing tone, great purity and brilliancy throughout the entire instrument, not often found in Pianos constructed upon the old plan.

The N. Y. Times, July 13, says:—We have now an instrument without an equal. It can sing with a smoothe delicacy, perfectly unattainable on any other instrument; an ordinary player obtains with ease fine, the follies of a Gottschalk or Forte and they must speedily supercede the old styles.

GENTLEMEN :—Having thoroughly examined and tested the Piano-Fortes invented and patented by Mr S. B. Driosi, I am of the opinion that the tone resulting from his improvements, as exhibited in the instruments under examination in point of richness, depth and brilliancy, equals that of the best Grand Piano-Fortes, and excells them in pure, musical and actual tone, power thus approximating closer to what I consider perfection in the instrument than has yet been achieved by any other system of manufacture.

Yours respectfully,
L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of six thousand dollars for the purpose therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $6000 in constructing, making and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $6,000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $600 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the temporary investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised assessment roll of the said Municipality, being for the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three was $2,780,683.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of $6000 and interest, as hereinafter mentioned, it will require an equal annual special rate of thirty-one nineteenths of a mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any persons or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same, upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $6000, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required but less than $100 each; and that the said debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden and counter-signed by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable in 10 years at the furthest from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first day of April and the first day of October in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon, an equal special rate of thirty-one nineteenths of a mill in the dollar shall, in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the 24th day of June, one thousand eight hun red and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at its Council Chamber in the Court House, in the said County, on Thursday, the 22nd day of June, 1865, at the hour of 12 of the clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

LOTTY LANE.

I once was gay as the lark in May,
And my young heart beat in tune,
And my step was light,
And my way was bright,
As the lily sweet in June.

But sad and lone in my grief I'll groan,
And all day I now complain,
For I've lost every bliss,
In a world like this;
Buried deep in sweet Lotty Lane,
Lotty Lane, Lotty Lane, Lotty Lane,
There's at all the world to me;
By thy grave I'll weep,
By thy grave I'll sleep,
Neath the boughs of the old oak tree.

Wither'd roses rest on her gentle breast,
And th' lillies o'er her wave;
The birds now job, their sweet notes with mine,
Singing dirges o'er her grave.

She was kind and true, she was all mirle too,
Lotty Lane, thou wert all to me;
Not a joy had I, but when she was nigh,
We lived so cheerfully.

A wit once asked a peasant what part he performed in the great drama of life? "I mind my own business," was the reply.

A shopkeeper purchased off an Irishwoman a quantity of butter, the lumps of which, intended for pounds, he weighed in the balance and found wanting. Sure it's your own fault, sir, for wasn't it with a pound of your own soap I bought here that I weighed them with?

A Good Answer.—On a certain occasion a noted infidel borrowed a sum of money from the late Dr. Lathrop, of West Springfield, Mass. When he came to pay it, he thought to dose the doctor with an argument from the Bible.

You ought not to take interest for this money, for the Jews were forbidde nto take usury.

Oh, no, answered the doctor, you forgot; the Jews were permitted to take it of the heathen.

The application was too direct to be mistaken, and the man was quite willing to pay the money.

Doctors are often annoyed by patients who will not follow direction. None could complain of this one.

Mike was taken bad and Pat was despatched for the doctor, who, after due enquiries into the case, sent some effervescing powders, with directions to have Mike swallow the draught while effervescing. Fearing that the word effervescing might not occur in Pat's dictionary, the doctor substituted the word boiling. When it boils and foams up, let Mike drink it. The next morning the doctor called round with the inquiry:—

How are you this morning, Mike!

Most well entirely, but it give me an awful sore mouth!

Sure enough upon examination the poor fellow's mouth and throat were found to be literally skinned.

What made your mouth this way, Mike?

The medicine you sent me to be sure.

Did you take it as directed?

To be sure I did. I put two into one, and put them on the coals till they boiled, and then I shrank them!

A Home Thrust.—The Rev. Matter Ryles had a slough opposite his house, in which on a certain wet day, a chaise containing two of the town council stuck fast. Dr. Ryles came to the door, and saluted the officials with the remark—

Gentlemen, I have often complained to you of this nuisance, without any attention being paid to it, and am very glad to see you "stirring in this matter now."

Epitaphs.—On a table in Allesley Church:
Ah; poor Joe Neal.

On a stone in Stratford Churchyard—
He strove to go good; but
His wife would not let him.

In a church in Derbyshire—
Underneath this ancient pew,
Lie the remains of Jonathan Blue.
His name was Brown, but, "that would not do."

The votaries of poetry sometimes indulge in metaphorical ideas. Here follows one original:

With eyes of fire majestically he rose,
And spoke divinely through his double-barrelled nose.

See what the most popular and widely circulated periodicals say of our Establishment:

From the "Dispatch" of February 25, 1865.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the announcement of Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, Silver Ware, and Fancy Goods, in our advertising columns. We are personally acquainted with the members of this firm and know them to be gentlemen of sterling worth and integrity. Their stock of goods, for variety and extent, we have scarcely seen paralleled.

From the "Mirror of Fashion," March 1, 1865.

Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, etc., opened on the 15th ult., and we venture to say that no finer display of goods was ever exhibited by any establishment in this city. The ladies thronged their bazaar almost to suffocation, although the streets were rendered nearly impassable by the melted snow and slush. We predict for them a wonderful success.

From the "Ledger," February 28, 1865.

Our lady friends should visit the extensive establishment of Messrs. Devaugh & Co., No. 15 Maiden Lane, if they wish to indulge themselves with a sight which they will long remember. Such a profusion of elegant Watches, Chains, Rings, Earrings, and, in short, of Jewelry of every name, kind and description, we never before witnessed. Their silver and plated ware is superb and almost casts into the shade the other splendid establishments which have long been the boast of our city. It is estimated that their stock is worth not less than one million of dollars.

How You Can Get a Prize.

Send Twenty-Five Cents to us, and as soon as we receive it we will mail you a Certificate showing what you are entitled to. If the article or articles please you, send back the Certificate and One Dollar and we will forward you the article, no matter how costly it may be. If the article is not what you wish, state, when you send the Certificate and dollar, what other article of the same value you prefer and we will send it. If you wish more than one Certificate send us $1 and we will send five; for $2, eleven; for $5, thirty; for $10, sixty; for $16, one hundred.

Agents are wanted in the Army and in every place. We have an immense stock of goods to dispose of, and need a large number of Agents. Our terms to Agents are very liberal and some even of our Lady Agents are making from $5 to $20 a day. We give Agents 50 per cent. on all Certificates they sell provided they remit not less than $1 for eight.

PURE BUTTER.

The fresh sweet pastures of June, furnishing that abundance of succulent feed which new milch cows need to give rich milk in abundance, make this month preeminently the butter month. We present herewith the views of a good butter maker expressed in a communication by "H. A. H.," which has lain for some time on our table: "I am very particular about thoroughly scalding and cooling my pans in hot weather; do not fill them more than half full, and skim after the milk thickens sufficiently so that the cream will come off smooth without taking any milk with it, which I think, is apt to make crudles in the butter, and that injures the looks of it. Churning should be done every day, if sufficient cream be obtained. If not, the cream in the pot should be thoroughly stirred whenever any is added, and I add a little salt, which certainly is not a bad idea. I design, when I churn, to have the cream the right temperature, neither too warm nor too cold, so as to avoid putting in any warm or cold water, and as soon as it is gathered I take it out and wash it in cold water until it is thoroughly freed from buttermilk; salt it to my taste, and set it in a cool place until the next morning, when I work it over again until it present a firm and uniform appearance. Last summer I worked my butter three times before packing. At the last working I add a small quantity more of salt. After packing it smoothly I sprinkle a tablespoonful of loaf sugar and a little salt over the top between every layer, and apply on the top of that a cloth pressed down closely to keep the air from it during the time that must intervene before the packing of the next layer. After the jar or firkin is well filled, I put the cloth on the top and apply another thicker one and fill up with salt packed tightly, and even with the top of the jar; then lay on another cloth to fit the top. I also put another one over the jar and have it come over the edge and paste it tight to the jar, then put on a board and weight. Or another way: Instead of putting in salt I take melted butter and turn in on the thin cloth even full, and lastly, apply salt sprinkled over the top before putting on the last cloth and weight. Then again, I have had butter keep well after packing thoroughly as I have stated, to fill up the top of the jar with strong brine, which should stand two inches deep on the top without being filled up with butter, and it is necessary to put a little saltpetre in the brine. Any one, whether he has a very good place to keep butter or not, if he attend to the strict observance of these rules, can have good butter and keep it for months, and that through the hottest weather."—American Agriculturist.

New way of Preserving Strawberries

Mrs. F's strawberry preserves are the best in the world. So F. thinks, and we don't dispute him. She has all the strawberries she needs, and many more to go to waste for want of hands to pick them. So large, firm, handsome berries, such as Wilson's, or Triomphe de Gands, are selected, cleaned without bruising, and with these her glass jars are filled. Then an abundance of the highest flavored berries, as, for instance, Brooklyn Scarlet, Burr's New Pine, Boston Pine, etc., are taken, picked over with great care, and washed. They are mixed with sugar, in judicious quantity, say half a pound to a pound for each pound of fruit, then they are put on the fire and cooked as is usual for preserving strawberries. They are then poured out on a cloth in a colander, and all the juice drained and squeezed out. While yet boiling hot, it is poured into the jars of fruit, previously placed in hot water. The jars are then sealed at once. The amount of sugar can be varied to suit the taste. The fruit will keep with more of its natural flavor and with less danger of fermentation without any sugar. It can be sweetened as used on the table.

A HINT TO GARDENERS.—Many of our gardeners complain about the appearance of voracious insects the present season, in greater numbers than usual, which have commenced their depredations on vegetation with an energy that threatens destruction. A scientific gardener writes for the benefit of his less gifted brethren that benzine is a sure extermination of the marauders. He says the article is well known as a detergent and is no less efficacious as an agent to insecticide. Two drops are sufficient to asphyxiate the most re oubtable pest be it beetle, cockchafer, spider, slug, caterpillar or any other creeping thing. Even rats and mice decamp from a place sprinkled a few drops of benzine. A singular fact connected with the application of benzine is that the bodies of the insects killed by it become so rigid that their wings, legs &c, will break rather than bend if touched. Next day, however, when the benzine has evaporated suppleness is restored. Another gentlemen who has been devoting his attention to the habits and susceptibilities of the "currant worm," gives out the information that his experiments have established the efficacy of unbleached salics, in summarily winding up the summer's campaign of this destructive insect. The article should be sprinkled over the bushes early in the morning, before the dew evaporates. These remedies are doubtless new to many of our gardeners and trifling trouble and expense will determine their virtues.

EXTERMINATION OF RED ANTS.—"N. H." of Albany, N. Y., inquires for a remedy for expelling red ants when they have gained possession of a dwelling. If they can find convenient refuge in the walls of a house, it will require a long time to exterminate them. If the house be new, and the door and window casing and base boards fit closely, fill with putty all the holes and cracks where they come in. Then, keep all kinds of food in close vessels, so that they will have difficulty in finding anything to eat. Procure two pieces of thin boards, say two feet long, eight inches wide, and fasten two edges together with hinges, so that they will close like the covers of a book. Spread a little molasses on the under board, and as often as a few ants are seen on it, press the upper board down and crush them. In a few days they can all be destroyed. Another way is to put some molasses into a milk pan, and place a piece of board against the side of it, so that they can ascend to the top of the pan. They are sure to tumble into the molasses, and cannot get out alone. Still another way is to procure a large sponge, sprinkle a little sugar through it, and place it near the haunts of ants. When a quantity of them have collected on it they can be killed in hot water, the sponge dried, bated and set again.

FURNITURE VARNISH.—A correspondent says: When black walnut or mahogany colored furniture becomes discolored or damaged, any one may, at a small cost, 'shine it up,' like me. Provide a few cents worth of burnt amber and Indian red. For mahogany color, mix Indian red with copal varnish till the right color is secured; thin with benzene, and add a little boiled linseed oil if it dries faster than desirable. For black walnut color, mix both pigments in such proportion as are necessary.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!
CAN BE FOUND IN
Holloway's Pills.
Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!
BY THE USE OF
Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHENEVER and in WHATEVER shape internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world. HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE: they attack the RADIX OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL AND FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs upon THE BLOOD ITSELF, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistible curatives. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterize Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Vernal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this notice cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

 Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 88 cents, and $1 40 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 32

THE SONGS OF OLD.

The songs of old! How deep a spell
Lies in the old familiar words,
Once sung by those we loved so well,
In other days, in happier moods!
Visions of hope long past'd away
Come o'er the heart so lone and cold,
And Memory asks, where, where are they
Who sweetly sung the songs of old?

Where are they? Some in silence sleep
Beneath the mournful yew-tree's gloom;
Others, within the boundless deep
Have early found an ocean tomb,
Dim are the eyes that brightly shone,
The once warm heart lies still and cold,
And hushed for aye, forever gone,
The voice that sung the songs of old.

Where are they? On some foreign land
For many a weary day they roam;
Cheerless they tread the stranger's land,
From friends afar, afar from home.
Do they not long to join once more
The joyous dance, the social throng,
And mingle, as in days of yore,
Their voices in the olden song?

Fondly the heart still loves to linger
Amid the ruins of the past,
Tracing with fancy's fairy finger
Visions too beautiful to last;
Bringing to memory's eye again
The long lost friends, the cherish'd ones,
Waking the past with some sad strain,
Some well-remembered song.

Literature.

The Silent Deacon's Opinion.

When the next summer coon a with its heat, and dust, and languor, and the tired spirit, fainting by the way, cries out to the wings of a dove, go up to W——, among the hills made sacred to Nature, where the hurry and anxiety of commerce are unknown, and the silent Sabbaths are never broken by the whizzing of machinery, or defiled with its smoke and steam. You will see no Newport belles, no Belmont equipages, nor will you be bidden to any "hop"—they don't "hop" there—but you will be taken into a holy, calm rest, such as the pilgrim found in the chamber which was called "Peace." If you have toiled hard enough to deserve rest, you will find it in W——; if not, you will seek it anywhere in vain.

W—— is the most silent place in the world; and were it not for the farmer turning his furrow, or casting in his seed, you might imagine yourself already where "Sabbaths never end." Perhaps it is only because Nature reigns with such calm dignity, and echoes back every sound so lovingly, that W—— seems silent in comparison with other places.

Entering the quaint, capacious church fathers and mothers, faces meet your eye on every hand, and you will soon forget that you are a stranger.

Yonder, in the square pew, sits Deacon Lee; you would know he was a deacon if he had not told you. Some men are born deacons—what a pity that any should enter the holy office who are not! Deacon Lee was not a native of W——, but went there to fill a farm left him by an aged relative some twelve years ago—about the time Deacon Bell died, leaving a sad void in the church and the parsonage—for he was a pillar in Zion, and a strong arm to his pastor. After seeking long to fill his place the mind of the church united on the newcomer, who, by his solemnity, piety and zeal, seemed created for the place. He was a man of few words, rarely even talking save in conference meeting; so that the boys called him at first "a grum old man." But they soon changed their opinion, for he set apart a tree of summer sweetings and one of bell-pears for their express benefit, as they went to and from school, and surprised them by a bee swing which he hung for them in his walnut grove. So the verdict of that and of each succeeding generation of boys was, that although the deacon never talked, he was a kind and genial man, and a lover of children. Every boy, for twenty years back, had been his shepherd, his watchman or his assistant farmer; feeling it a high honor to hitch his horse on Sunday, or to drive his manure cart on a holiday, and all because they saw, through the thick veil of reserve, the love that burned and glowed in his heart.

Deacon Lee's ministry trusted in him, and the church felt her temporal affairs safe in his hands, and the world honored his stern consistency.

There was a serpent in Eden, and a Judas in that three-blessed band who walked and talked with our dear Redeemer on earth, and who saw His glory mingled with his humanity; why, then, need we wonder that one man, subtle and treacherous, hid himself in the calm verdure of W——, crawling out only to deceive God's people with a kiss, till ready to spring upon them with his poisoned fangs? Upright, faithful and earnest as were the people, they were not proof against flattery and deception. There came among them one quite unused to their unostentatious way of serving God, and ambitious, as he said, "of seeing them make some stir in the world." We know from God's Word that "one sinner destroyeth much good," and yet we are often annoyed at the wide results of one man's evil work in the church; one may sow tares which an hundred cannot pluck out, and therefore does it become God's children to stay the enemy in his first efforts.

He who aimed at the life of the gospel church in W—— was "dead while he had a name to live." He scorned many of the humble ones whose crown is waiting them on high. He hated the humbling doctrines of the cross, and desired to see man glorified and exalted; he rebelled against the "iron bars," as he chose to call the bonds of love which separate God's chosen and obedient ones from the world that lieth in wickedness. He declared that the millennium could never dawn till all christians were as one—by which he meant that, for the sake of union, right must yeild to wrong, as if he was of the number who loved and longed for the appearing of Christ! He began stealthily to sow his poisonous seeds among the younger and weaker of the flock, and when he saw the first token of their root, he grew bold, and began to cast them in on the strong high hills. But here he found resistance; the soil which had borne such rich harvests of grace repelled his seed from its bosom; and he came to the mad resolve to assail the deacon, and try how he would receive it. If he, with his piety, zeal and influence, opened his bosom to it, the end was easily attained. The minister was not worthy of consideration in the matter—ministers are so readily put out of the way if they do not yeild to ungodliness. If he proved a dead sentinel, he would not molest him; if alive and jealous of his Master's honor, one bullet would settle him forever.

In pursuance of his "liberal views" and his deep-laid plans, our valiant reformer rode up and fastened his horse before the unpretending dwelling of Deacon Lee. Ushered into the neat "keeping room" to await his coming from the harvest field, his restless spirit was almost awed by the silence which reigned there. The tall clock in the corner, with its ever-saying ship, ticked painfully loud, and even the buzzing of the few flies on the panes annoyed him He suffered much the same oppression as do those who wait long, in a silent, darkened room, the coming of a minister to a funeral. He first wished for and then dreaded the good man, being not quite sure of a warm reception. He had just decided on a clandestine flight, when the door opened, and the deacon entered, as calm and neat as if toil had never ruffled his spirit or soil his garments. After the usual greetings, and a dead, awful pause, the visitor began—thank of the wiles of Satan—by lamenting the low state of religion, and asking the good man why this church had enjoyed no revival for three or four years! What cared he for God's set times to visit Zion? He was far more deeply interested in the opening of a new stage road to the Summit, and in getting up stock in the projected hotel there.

"Now, what do you think is the cause of things being so dull here? Do you know?" he persisted in asking.

The deacon was not ready to give his opinion, and after a little thought, frankly answered, "No, I don't."

"Do you think the church are alive to the work before them?"

"No, I don't."

"Do you think the minister fully realizes the solemnity of his work?"

"No, I don't."

A twinkle was seen in the eye of this troubler in Zion, and taking courage, he asked—

"Do you think Mr. B. a very extraordinary man?"

"No, I don't."

"Do you think his sermon on 'Their eyes were holden' was anything wonderfully great?"

"No, I don't"

Making bold after all this encouragement in monosyllables, he asked, "Then don't you think we had better dismiss this man, and have another?"

The old deacon started as if shot with an arrow, and in a tone far louder than his wont, shouted, "No, I don't."

"Why," cried the amazed visitor, "you agree with me in all I have said, don't you?"

"No, I don't."

"You talk so little, sir," replied the guest, not a little abashed, "that no one can find out what you do mean."

"I talked enough once," replied the old man, rising to his feet, "for six praying christians; but thirty years ago I got my heart humbled and my tongue bridled, and ever since I've walked softly before God. I then made vows solemn as eternity, and don't you tempt me to break them!"

The troubler was startled at the earnestness of the hitherto silent, immovable man, and asked "What happened to you thirty years ago?"

"Well, sir, I'll tell you; I was drawn into a scheme just like this of yours, to uproot one of God's servants from the field in which He had planted him. In my blindness I fancied it was a little thing to remove one of the "stars" which Jesus holds in His right hand, of thereby my ear could be tickled by more flowery words, and the pews filled with those who turned away from the simplicity of the gospel. I and the men that led me—for I admit that I was a dupe and a tool—flattered ourselves that we were conscientious. We thought that we were doing God service when we drove that holy man from his pulpit and his work, and and we considered his labors ended in B——, where I then lived; we groaned because there was no revival, while we were gossipping about and criticizing, and crushing instead of upholding by our efforts and our prayers the instrument at whose hand we harshly demanded the blessing. Well, sir, he could not drag on the chariot of salvation with half a dozen of us taunting him with his weakness, while we hung on as a dead weight to the wheels; he had not the power of the Spirit, and could not convert men; so we hunted him like a deer, till torn and bleeding, he fled into a covert to die. Scarcely had he gone, when God came among us by His Spirit to show that He had blessed the labors of his dear rejected servant. Our own hearts were broken and our wayward children converted and I resolved at a convenient season to visit my former pastor and confess my sin, and thank him for his faithfulness to my wayward sons, which, like long buried seed, had now sprung up. But God denied me that relief, that He might teach me a lesson every child of His ought to learn, that he who toucheth one of His servants toucheth the apple of His eye. I heard my old pastor was ill, and taking my son with me, set out on a twenty-five mile ride to see him. It was evening when I arrived, and his wife, with the spirit which any true woman ought to exhibit towards one who had so wronged her husband, denied me admittance to his chamber. She said—and her words were as arrows to my soul"—"He may be dying, and the sight of your face might add to his anguish!"

"'Had it come to this,' I said to myself, 'that the man whose labours had, through Christ, brought me into His fold

ANNEXATION.

Whether the popular desire is inclined that way or not, the public press is now inclined to discuss the matter, not so much, we hope, to bring such an event about, as to disabuse the mind of any tendency in that direction. But while we say, we hope we fear that we were mistaken, for some openly avow their sympathies and leanings towards the great Republic. Why this should be so we do not understand, unless it be complete ignorance of American institutions, customs, and past history, in relation to those who become incorporated with them; or perhaps disappointed expectations or deserved neglect. There are some whose great idea of a country depends upon the number of dollars they may be able to obtain for their daily labor. There are others whose loyalty depends upon their being out of, or in, office. While in office, and receiving pay, they are perfectly loyal—remove them and immediately they are for annexation. It is their great panacea for all the ills of the country, while the real cause of their murmurs is their being worthily neglected.

We at present possess every privilege which liberemen and enlightened subjects could desire, and we believe the most perfect system of responsible government; Laws, such as are not surpassed for justice and liberty in any country on the globe. Our country is just what we make it; if it is not prosperous it is not because it cannot be a happy and prosperous country, but because the spirit for change is such that it will not allow the possessor to be happy any where.

Annexation at the present time would be a curse instead of a blessing; a hinderance to progress instead of an advantage. The American people are now burdened equal to one sixth of all the people possess. The country is in the most unsettled state. Their finances are embarrassed, and all the necessary seed sown to bring about, ere long, such a revolution as has not yet been witnessed notwithstanding all the prattle about the "great Republic." Their liberty, like their actions, depends on the force of circumstances rather than any inherent desire they have for true liberty, as the history of the last four years fully testifies, during which period every principle of liberty has been violated, and right of the people ignored, under the impression that it should be so to crush the rebellion. Under such a government, embarrassed by debt, governed by impulses, at the mercy of the mob for their election and position, what would we gain by annexation; nay, rather, how much would we lose? At present we can depend on the protection of the mightiest nation on the face of the earth, Great Britain. Her army and navy are ready to pour out their last life's drop for our safety and happiness. We are not burdened with taxes unless when we impose them ourselves. Not even are our garrisons protected with our own sons, but with the gallant sons of Britain. British capital and British energy is not spared for our advantages, and even though in Canada, yes, and in England too, there be a few croakers, yet the great mass of Britons and British statesmen are ready to spend their last shilling, and send their last man for our defence. Out upon those men, Canadia nor English, who would inculcate annexation. It would not bring prosperity, it could not produce contentment, it could not change the soil, and would not change the climate. It would not change the dispositions of our people, who would be more than likely to remain where they are, but it would change our national liabilities, our national status, our political independence and freedom, would reduce us to a very inferior position by the overwhelming power at their present population, and leave us without any means of redress. The ear of the mass of the American people, just now, appears to be very slow to hear the cry of the oppressed, and their heart is hard enough to be still unmoved as is exhibited in their past history, especially when foreigners are the sufferers, or their antipathies excited. We trust that the good sense of the people will cry down every word of sympathy for such a change, and that they will learn to wait and see what can be done under British rule, by British hands and hearts. Let the people put forth their best efforts and there will soon be as prosperous times in Canada as borrow the like. We want no annexation till Great Britain says go, we will not have you; then we may consider what is best to be done. Let annexation be the last alternative.

THE European brings the news that the Pope has found himself compelled to make important concessions to the new Italian nationality. The Pope has consented to accept the Bishops who shall be nominated by Victor Immanuel on their acknowledging him as their sovereign, and acknowledging the Kingdom of Italy as a fait accompli.

COAL OIL.

A public meeting was held in the Town Hall, on Tuesday evening to take into consideration the propriety of boring a well for coal oil in this vicinity.

There was a large number present, but few of those who could, if they would, most materially aid the enterprise.

Shortly after the hour appointed, the meeting was called to order by calling W. H. Scott, Esq., to the chair, and requesting J. Stratton, Esq., to act as Secretary.

Mr. Scott, in a few opening remarks, said that he was not prepared with such facts and figures as would enable him to make a speech, as he had not given the matter that consideration that it deserved; but called on any person present who did possess information to come forward and tell the meeting what he knew or was prepared to say on the matter.

Mr. J. Craigie, as one of the chief promoters of the movement, said that he had been to the oil regions west and had seen for himself, and that from what he saw, and on comparison of the indications in this vicinity with those at Enniskillen and Bothwell, he believed that the indications were as good here as there. He believed we had oil for the boring, and advised immediate action.

Mr. Birdsall, a member of the County Council, had a desire to see the question of the existence of coal oil tested, and would therefore call on P. M. Grover, Esq., to address the meeting.

Mr. Grover said he would willingly afford what information he possessed, as he was strongly in favor of testing the existence of Petroleum at Peterboro.' He (Mr. G.) believed that there was oil, and that a little effort would prove it so. He cared but little for the reports of Geologists, as experiments had often proved them in error, as American enterprise had especially done in the case of Petroleum, when scientific men had said it was useless to bore for it. Here, as at Norwood, it was not far to the rock. The cost of boring, he believed would be about $1.50 to $2.00 per foot, but advised action, as practice was better than theory. Mr. Grover also passed very high eulogiums on American enterprize, spoke disparingly of the enterprize of Canadians, and by the appearance of the meeting, of the enterprise of the leading men of Peterboro. He inferred that Canadians were disloyal, as their loyalty was exhibited to that government, of any form, where they could make the most money; and yet it was their own want of energy and enterprize that hindered them of prospering as well as their neighbors. Some of his remarks, however, would have been as well unsaid. We fear annexation has been troubling his repose of late. His advice to make trial of boring, and the call to the people to raise the needful were appropriate.

Mr. Birdsall said that in Asphodel they had really obtained genuine Petroleum, as Mr. Cameron, J. P., and Mr. Larmuth had found it in the crevices of the rock, in quantities varying from a tea-spoonful to half an eggful, which would very easily take fire and burn. In Norwood they had formed a Company and had $4,000 stock subscribed in three days. It is due to Mr. Birdsall to say that he entirely differed from Mr. Grover in his annexation proclivities. He, Mr. B. would stick to the old flag.

Mr. Sutherland, after repeated calls, came forward and said that he had come to hear, but as he had been called on he would state that there were every indication of oil in the neighborhood, and that it only required a little effort and this would soon be verified. He thought that the cost would not be more than from $1 to $1.50 per foot, and had no doubt but that at 500 feet oil would be obtained; but if not, go on 500 feet more.

Rev. Mr. Burnham said that he had not given the subject much consideration, but believed that there were strong indications of oil; and thought it would be wise to form a committee to take some steps towards proving it. He Mr. Burnham did not say dig in Ashburnham, for if it should be found in the vicinity that would be enough to prove its existence, and then no doubt, men of capital would be found to take hold of the enterprise.

Mr. Calcutt said that the absence of those who had means, from the meeting only exhibited their selfishness, as the only desirable object of investment now was mortgages; and objects of high rates per cent. He thought if the speculation would pay twelve or twenty per cent, then there would be plenty to take stock.

Rev. Mr. Burnham however brought the matter to some shape by proposing, seconded by H. Calcutt,—That a Committee be appointed to open a stock book and take the necessary steps to test the existence of oil in this vicinity; and that the following gentlemen be a committee for that purpose, viz: H. T. Strickland, D. Sutherland, M. Millar, A. Grant, H. Calcutt, Jon. Stephenson, C. Cameron, A. Stewart, W. H. Scott, J. Ormond, with power to add to their number —Carried.

Moved by H. Calcutt, seconded by J. Craigie,—That the shares of the Company be four hundred, and that they be ten dollars each.

Moved by D. Sutherland, in amendment, seconded by H. T. Strickland,—That the shares be five dollars each, instead of ten dollars. Amendment was put and carried.

It was then moved by H. T. Strickland, seconded by H. Calcutt,—That this meeting stand adjourned to Tuesday evening next, the 27th instant, to meet in the same place, and that the Committee do open a stock book in the meantime, and obtain subscribers and report at the next meeting,—Carried.

The meeting was said to be on the 28th instant by mistake, but it will be on Tuesday the 27th instant.

A subscription list was opened and fifty-six shares taken up at once.

The Stock book can be seen at the Examiner Book Store, opposite Nicholls & Hall's, Simcoe Street.

EXAMINER BOOK STORE.

The Proprietors of the Peterborough Examiner having purchased the entire stock of Books, Stationery, &c., &c., of Mr. Cox, are prepared to furnish the public with almost every article in the Book and Stationery line. They intend selling at the lowest paying figures, as their motto will be small profits and quick sales. They respectfully solicit a share of public patronage.

Subscribers who got their papers at the Examiner Office, and also at Mr. Menzies' Book Store, will in future find them at the Examiner Book Store, Simcoe Street, opposite Messrs. Nicholls and Hall's.

A letter relating to the blanding and pay of persons working on the Bobcaygeon Road, has been received but too late for insertion this week.

Proceedings of the County Council.

Peterboro' June 20th, 1865.

The Council met in half-yearly session.

Present:—R. D. Rogers, Esq., Warden, and Messrs. Graves, Birdsall, Walton, Chalmers, Carnegie, Miller, Langton, Chant, Gilmour, Pearce, Sullivan, Annett, Parkhill, Galloway—absent Thomas Fenelon esq.

The minutes of last session were read and approved.

The Warden addressed the Council.

Moved by Mr. Peck and seconded by Mr. Grover,—That the Communications from Joseph Graham, Crown Land Agent at Bobcaygeon, and from John Fowler, be referred to Committee on Roads and Bridges.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Birdsall, seconded by Mr. Peck.—That Messrs. Ingram, Walton Carnegie, Chant, Gilmour, Pearce, Peck, Galborne and the mover, be a Committee to equalise and revise the Assessment Rolls, and that the Committee report not later than Tuesday at noon.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Grover and seconded by Mr. Gilmour.—That the Warden's Address be referred to a Committee composed of Messrs. Ingram, Birdsall, Pearce and Walton,—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Carnegie, seconded by Mr. Gilmour,—That Messrs. Grover, Ingram, Gilmour, Chant, Walton and the mover be a Committee to whom shall be referred the Auditors' report and their estimates of the ordinary expenditure for the year, with a view to their being reduced to the lowest possible minimum, consistent with true economy. Also that By-law now advertised for the issuing of Debentures, and the financial position of the County generally, and that the said Committee may the better be enabled to report, they are requested to put themselves in communication with the Manager of the Commercial Bank and the Solicitor of the County.—Carried.

On the motion of Mr. Gilmour, the Petition of the inhabitants of Smith and Monaghan was referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

Moved by Mr. Carnegie and seconded by Mr. Pearce.—That no application for money to be expended on roads, unless referred to the Road and Bridge Committee before ten o'clock, on Friday morning, be entertained.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. Austin,—That David Boxborough, of Snowdon, be Overseer for Road Division No. 11, in place of Charles Wilcox, who has left the Municipality.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Garbutt, seconded by Mr. Pearce,—That the petition of John Hall and 11 others, praying that the Township of Harvey be separated from the Township of Smith, to which it has been attached and set off as a separate Municipality, be received and read.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Pearce, seconded by Mr. Carnegie,—That the copy of memorials from the Counties of York and Peel, and from the County of Victoria, be referred to a special Committee to be named by the Warden, and that they report thereon at as early a day as possible during the present session.—Carried.

The Warden appointed Messrs. Pearce, Grover and Carnegie a special Committee to report.

Moved by Mr. Peck, seconded by Mr. Austin,—That James Harkness, of Minden, be Overseer for Road Division No. 16, in place of Benjamin Sywer.—Carried.

The Council adjourned till 10 o'clock, Wednesday morning.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

FOUR MEN SUFFOCATED BY BREATHING FOUL AIR IN A WELL.

Last week, a person named Jas. Crowley, in Otonabee, had his house consumed by fire. During the fire some burnt wood and timber had fallen into the well. Some men went to clean the well, and sad to relate, four of them perished,—Three brothers, Crowleys, and a labouring man named Murty. A Carpenter named Geo. Robinson also very narrowly escaped. The individual who was the means of saving Robinson perished himself a sad end to his heroism, and determination to save a human being. The man Murty, leaves a wife and helpless family to mourn his untimely death. The following appear to be the particulars, as elicited at the Inquest held by Dr. Poole: Patrick Crowley, it appears, went down into the well by means of a rope, but on saying he could not stand the smell, was drawn up to within about ten feet of the top, when he relaxed his hold and fell into the well. John Crowly, then went down to see what was the matter, and was unable to return. An alarm being raised, five men from the adjoining lot ran over, when one of them, Patrick Murty, went down to lose his life also. Murty was followed by George Robinson, who also remained below unable to make a noise or cry of despair, Michael Crowly then went down and succeeded in fastening a rope to Robinson by which he was pulled up, but Michael remained below with those who had already perished.

After letting down burning coals and afterwards a candle, which at length burned, Robert Deyell went down and attached ropes to those below, by which means the four corpses were drawn up.

The verdict was "that the deceased came to their deaths by descending into a deep well in which foul air had generated."

Our former fellow Townsman, Dr. Kincaid, who completed his medical course at Queen's College, Kingston, where he passed with honors, has taken up his residence amongst us, and intends to practice his profession here. Dr. K. comes highly recommended from every Institution and position where he has been. He graduated with honors in the Session of 1862-63. Was surgeon on the Staff of Armory Square Hospital, Washington, District of Columbia, during the summer of 1864, and had the honor of being selected from among 16 of the staff Surgeons for the responsible position of Surgeon in charge of that Institution, but declined the appointment on account of having to take the oath of allegiance. He was after appointed to the highly responsible position of Medical Instructor for the State of Maine. Dr. K. also studied Surgery under Professor Hamilton of N. Y., who spoke of him as the "most accomplished young medical man he has met." He also holds a Diploma from Prof. Flint for having studied chest diseases under him in the wards of Bellevue Hospital, New York. In fact Dr. K. comes very highly recommended, and will no doubt fully sustain those recommendations. We wish him a friendly reception, and general success.

CORONER'S INQUEST.—An inquest was held by Dr. A. Harvey, coroner, on the body of John Smith, a Bookbinder and Fireman in the city of Montreal. Deceased was found lying dead on the Burleigh Road on Saturday the 17th inst. He left Mr. Young's mill that morning in the boat for Julien's Landing, in the Township of Burleigh; on arriving there he left immediately for Mr. Mooney's farm and was found about three hours afterwards quite dead. The jury returned the following verdict:—"That deceased came to his death by the heat of the sun, being previously debilitated by the excessive use of liquor."

GOOD TEMPLARS.—The I. O. of Good Templars institutes a special meeting for Monday evening, to make final arrangements for holding their Annual Pic-Nic. All the members should attend, they require a day's fun and frolic. To make the affair pleasant there should be general action to strengthen the hands of the Committee of Management. We wish them a pleasant day.

The [illegible] Protestant Home [illegible] with thanks, the following:—

Mrs. [illegible], 6 large loaves and rolls; [illegible] cheese, 1 clothes-basket; Mrs. [illegible], 1 towel; Mrs. Kempt, 12 dinner plates, 1 tea pot, 1 dripper, 1 coffee pot; Mrs. Rubbs, 1 window blind; Mrs. R. Hamilton, 1 bedstead, 1 barrel potatoes; Ormond & Gilmour, garden seeds; Mrs. Romaine, Woodquick, basket vegetables; West & Hope, 1 washing machine; Mrs. Stapleton, 6 chairs; A Friend, 12 plates, 12 cups and saucers, 2 basins & ewers, 1 pitcher, 6 iron spoons, 1 lb. coffee, 4 lbs. rice; Mrs Dennistoun, 12 dinner plates, 1 pitcher, sauce-pan, pudding-dish & iron pot; Mr. H. Bennet, 1 wash-tub; Mrs. John Robertson, 1 bedstead, 1 bedding; A Friend, 1 basket potatoes; Mr. W. Adams 600 Cabbage plants, 25 Tomato plants.

D. McNAGHTON, Esq., Captain of Fire Company, Peterborough,

DEAR SIR:—I would beg to return thanks for the very efficient services rendered by your Company at the recent fire on my premises. I feel grateful for the interest shown by yourself and every member of your Company in your efforts to protect my property on that occasion. You will please accept the sum of five dollars, herein enclosed, to be employed for the benefit of your Company in whatever way they may choose. Trusting it may be a long time before they are again required.

I remain very gratefully yours,
SAMUEL DICKSON.

Peterborough, June 20, 1865.

ROBBERY IN LINDSAY.—We learn by telegraph from Lindsay that the store of Messrs. Cullis & Watson was entered by burglars last night, the safe opened by some means not stated and $800 in cash stolen. The constables are now on the look out for some thing to turn up, that may lead to the detection of the guilty ones.

GODEY'S Lady's Book is received for July, and is equal to any of the past numbers both for plates and literature. The Lady's Book is one of the best published of the kind, and amply repays the cost of subscription.

GOOD WORDS for June, and the CHURCH MAGAZINE, have been received. Orders for either of them, or all of them, can be left at the Examiner Book Store, Cox's old stand, opposite Messrs Nicholls & Hall's Simcoe Street.

WARDEN'S ADDRESS.—We regret that we have in some way missed the Warden's address this week. We shall give it next week.

We intend to refer to Mr. Grover's speech next week.

On the 14th instant superfine flour at Kingston was $4.50 to $5.00; here it is $6.00 to $6.25 for a worse brand.

THE MONTREAL WITNESS.

The Montreal Witness has now been in existence about twenty years. It has been conducted with ability. The tone highly moral and religious. Politically, reform, but taking no very decided stand on political questions till about two or three years since, and even during that period moderate in tone. It is one of the best family papers published in America, and deserves a very extensive circulation. Below will be found the remarks of the Witness itself on the commencement of the coming half year of its circulation:

"The Witness commenced about twenty years ago upon the footing to which it has steadily adhered since, namely, that of an evangelical and literary newspaper, in favor of Temperance, the Sabbath, human freedom, and all good causes. Advertisements of liquors, tobacco, theatres, quacks, &c., which so generally disgrace the newspaper press, have been steadily refused, though the income derivable from them was much needed. The paper has, throughout its career, been filled with the most interesting news and selections that could be found. It also gives special attention to commercial matters, and to the development of the resources of the country. It has fearlessly, and often almost alone, opposed encroachments on the public interests, no matter how powerful and overreaching parties might be. It has, in consequence, not only lost nearly all advertisements from official and many other sources, but it has to contend with the opposition, open or covert, of the most powerful corporations. With all this, it is one of the cheapest papers published in Canada, if not the very cheapest.

The times are pregnant with strange events and changes, and the Witness will chronicle and testify concerning them to the best of the ability vouchsafed to it.

Will the friends of such an enterprise give a little time and influence to help to increase our subscription-list, beginning 1st of July next?

TERMS:—Daily Witness $3, Montreal Witness (semi weekly) $2, Weekly Witness 1$, per annum;—or half these rates for half year, and a paper given gratis with a club of ten.

THE NEW COMMANDER IN CHIEF.—Sir John K. C. B., who succeeds Sir W. Fenwick Williams, K.C.B., as Commander-in-Chief of Her Majesty's Land Forces in British North America, and who has just arrived in Canada, entered the British army as Ensign in 1823, became a lieutenant in 1828, Captain 1836, Major 1840, Lieutenant-colonel 1842, Colonel 1854, Major-general 1858, and Colonel in-chief of Her Majesty's 86th (Royal County Down) Regiment in 1862. All his steps up to Lieutenant Colonel were by purchase. Sir John was nominally a C. B. after the termination of the Kaffir war in 1853, in consequence of his distinguished services in the Kaffir war of 1846-'47, and of 1851-'53 (medal). Was nominated to the 2nd class of the Medjidie for services with the Turkish Contingent. Served in the Indian campaigns in 1858-'59 in command of the Mhow field force, and defeated the rebels Tantie Topee at Beora, taking twenty-seven guns; subsequently actively engaged in pursuing the fugitive bands (K. C. B. and medal) Commanded a division of the army in the the campaign of 1860 in China, including the action of Sinho (medal with clasp for the Taku forts).

FIRE IN BRANTFORD.—A very destructive fire occurred in Brantford on the morning of the 14th inst. About one-half of the business part of the Town is in ruins, leaving only the stores on the market front. Thirty buildings have been destroyed, and the probable loss will reach from one hundred and fifty thousand to two hundred thousand dollars. The Insurance Companies will lose about fifty thousand dollars. An old man named John T. Mason, who had made threats the day before, was arrested but has been discharged, because no evidence could be obtained to justify his committal. It is still said, however, that the fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary.

The shackles were removed from Jeff. Davis last week. The suit of rebel grey has been changed for one of black, and he is now permitted more freedom. The casements where Davis and Clay are confined in Fortress Monroe are delightfully cool in the hottest days. The prisoners are allowed no books except the Bible and Episcopal prayer books; no news-papers, no pen, no ink, and have literally nothing to do. Clay smokes incessantly.

ENGLAND and France have withdrawn the acknowledgement of belligerent rights from the Confederates. It is also rumored that Secretary Seward does not accept very graciously the terms in which Earl Russell has couched the withdrawal, by the British Government, of the recognition of the right.

The retreat of the Toronto Custom House for May show a woeful falling off in the collection of duties. The amount collected in 1864 was $43,478, and in 1865 only $27,609, a reduction of $15,969.

Changes in the Grammar School Law.

The Chief Superintendent of Education for Upper Canada, has issued a circular to the Grammar School Trustees, announcing some very important changes in the regulations of Grammar Schools. Several of these new regulations will materially affect the standing of many of the schools throughout the Province, and should be generally known. We quote the most important:

I. Basis of Appointment of Grammar School Funds.—As far as the law will permit the appointment of the Grammar School Fund, payable half yearly to the Grammar Schools, shall (as in the case of Common Schools,) be made according to the average attendance at each Grammar school of pupils learning the Greek or Latin languages; and such attendance shall be certified by the head master and trustees, and verified by the inspector of Grammar Schools.

II. Conditions of Appointment.—After the first day of January, 1866, no Grammar School shall be entitled to receive anything from the Grammar School Fund, unless suitable accommodations shall be provided for it, and unless it shall have a daily average attendance (times of epidemic excepted) of at least ten pupils learning Greek or Latin; nor shall any other than pupils learning the Greek or Latin language be admitted or contained in any Grammar School.

III. Examination and Temporary admission of Pupils into the Grammar Schools.—The examination and admission of pupils by the head master of any Grammar School, shall be regarded as preliminary and provisional until the visit of the Inspector, who shall finally examine and admit all pupils to the Grammar Schools.

IV. Final admission of Pupils.—It shall be the duty of the Inspector, not only to examine the Grammar Schools, as heretofore, but to examine and finally admit all pupils into the schools according to the entrance examination prescribed, and ascertain by careful investigation, how far each Grammar School is fulfilling the conditions of the law and is conducted as the law and general regulations require, and to report forthwith to the Chief Superintendent any case of failure or delinquency in these respects.

V. Queen's Birthday a Holiday.—The anniversary of the the Queen's Birthday shall be a holiday in all the Grammar and Common Schools of Upper Canada.

VI. Teacher's may visit each other's Schools.—Any teacher of Grammar and Common Schools shall be entitled to five of the ordinary school-teaching days of each year to be selected by such teacher, for the purpose of visiting and observing the methods of classification, teaching and discipline practiced in the other schools than that in which he or she teaches."

NOTE.—Union Grammar and Common Schools are subject to the regulations affecting holidays and vacations in Grammar Schools.

"Each Grammar and Common School Master and teacher must give at least one week's notice to the Trustees and, in addition, the Grammar School Master must communicate with the Educational department, in order that he may not be absent during the visits of the Inspector of his School.

The Canadian Delegates in England.

A report came by one of the Liverpool steamers a few days ago that the Canadian delegates had entirely succeeded in their mission, and that they would at once return home. This is contradicted in a later despatch by the Scotia, which arrived on Tuesday afternoon. The conference with the Imperial Government is still going on.

We believe the Chief difficulty in the negotiations is with Mr. Gladstone, who has charge of the public purse, and who naturally fights shy in committing himself to any scheme for defensive works, for railroads, or for anything else within the Provinces that may be made the subject of public discussion.

We are assured that the delegates press strongly to have the amount that Canada may borrow for the erection of fortifications in the Western sections of the Province guaranteed by the Home Government. The delegates think it is unfair that Canada should be asked to undertake quasi Imperial works by borrowing on her own account to an extent sure to affect the value of her securities very unfavorably. And it is really nothing more than just, so long as there is a connection kept up with the Mother Country, that the latter should at least back up the credit of the Provinces in all expenditures of a military character—outside of the maintenance of a Provincial Volunteer Force.—Scottish American.

Hanging of Indian Chiefs at Fort Laramie.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Republican, writing from Fort Laramie, Dakota Territory, gives an account of the depredations committed by the Indian tribes in that Territory, and the loss of life and property in suppressing them. We clip the following description of a company of scouts in the employ of the government, and the hang ng of two chiefs captured by them:

By direction of the General commanding, a company of Indian soldiers has been organized, and are under the supervision of Charles Elliston a white scout. These soldiers are furnished with condemned clothing by the government They are armed with guns, revolvers, bows and arrows. They are sworn friends to the whites, and have vowed deep revenge against hostile Indians They are of great service, while on scouts, and have captured a number of prisoners, some of whom we hung.

Early on the morning of the 26th of May there was a great commotion throughout the garrison; men with arms bright, their sabres glistening in the sun, all anxious to make the day pass off with good results. The post band was in full attendance, and discoursed some beautiful strains. At half-past one o'clock the men formed to march to the place of execution The command being drawn up in line in front of the guard-house, the men took a last look at the noted chiefs, who, in a short time, would be sent to join their fallen braves in the happy hunting grounds of the red man.

An army waggon, being the only conveyance, was brought to convey them to their doom. Previous to their entering the waggon they had been bound hand and foot. At twenty minutes two the command moved toward the gallows the band playing the Grand March in Saul. All along the road the chiefs remained fearless They know they were to die, and were determined to do it like brave warriors.

The scaffold being composed of two upright pieces of heavy timber, and a cross piece at the top, two chains, for hanging, were fastened to this cross-piece. The waggon which brought the chiefs to the place of execution was used as the platform. While the hangman was placing the fatal noose around their necks they spoke, in their Indian tongue, 'Mean washta,' meaning "I am brave." They also spoke and said that they had killed a number of white men, and would kill more, but as they were about to join their brothers in the happy hunting-ground, would leave that for their tribes to do. The noose being around their necks, the order was given to drive off, and, at two o'clock, they were hanging, making three which have been hung in the past month.

"Two-face," who was one of the pair of today, has been engaged in numerous depredations. Last summer he with his band attacked an emigrant train on the Little Blue, killing all but two women and one child, these he kept as captives, making them roam around with him, and endure hardships and sufferings of which one of the women died. The other was captured from them by the friendly Indians, who brought him, with her, to the post.

"Blackfoot," the other, has also been engaged in a great many depredations. He is a noted chief, and was at the battle of Rush Creek, also in several up the road. At the time of his capture, he, with his band of five lodges, was camped on Snake Creek. The Indian soldiers hearing of it, made a sudden dash upon the camp, and captured the whole, including Blackfoot, four warriors, seventeen women, and fifty-two children, with a large herd of stolen stock, guns, revolvers, &c.

It is said that France has given the Washington Government to understand that Mexico is under French protection, and that she will not allow any power to attack Maximillian, and that she will deal with filibusters without mercy.

On Saturday a raft struck the Victoria bridge at Montreal, and went to pieces, the raftsmen were cast into the water, and six were drowned, although skiffs were sent immediately to their assistance.

AMERICAN NEWS.

New York, June 9.

A pilot boat yesterday, 30 m les east of Cape May, fell in with fragment of the steam transport Admiral Dupont. Two boats belonging to the steamer, and the captain's watch in part of a writing-desk were also picked up. The Admiral Dupont left here on the 7th for Fortress Monroe, to take troops to Texas.

Washington, June 9.

A letter from Saline Pass, dated May 27, says the forts at Sabine Pass, Texas, have surrendered to the United States steamer Awasso.

Secretary Seward walked to the State Department at to-day from his residence, for the first time since he received his injuries. His body, who has been confined to her bed for a week past, is quite low.

Nashville, June 10.

At about two o'clock this afternoon the extensive brick buildings used for quartermasters and commissariat stores, corner of Summer and Broad streets, known as Taylor's Depot, was discovered on fire. Capt W. W. Wainwright, in charge of the building, had two or three inches of water on the fire before the arrival of the fire department. The firemen, however, rallied to the scene, but found it impossible to stay the flames until half of the immense building was destroyed. The other half, filled with commissary stores, was saved from destruction only by the most strenuous exertion of the firemen. The loss to the government is estimated at from four to five millions of dollars. Several dwellings near the scene of the fire, with their contents, were also destroyed. So great was the heat from the flames that approaches to the burning buildings were almost impossible. Two or three employers of the Quartermaster's department are supposed to have perished in the flames.

LATER.—The destruction of Government property at the great fire to-day is now believed will amount to from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 Within the walls of the Quartermaster's building were stores sufficient to supply an army of 80,000 men for two years. The quantity of rope alone consumed was valued at upwards of $1,000,000. The building was the largest in the country, being 800 feet front and 200 feet deep. It was partitioned off by walls, which were suggested and built by Gen. J. L. Donaldson. By this precaution a large part of the building, five hundred feet front, was saved from destruction. Various rumors are afloat as to the cause of the fire, some maintaining it as the work of an incendiary, and others that it was the result of accident. A court of inquiry will investigate the matter. The fire spread so rapidly that the building was almost one sheet of flames before the firemen could get to work on it.

Washington, June 10.

Several witnesses were examined. One of them for the government testified as to George N Sanders being an agent of the rebel government for the destruction of the Northern cities. There being no more witnesses the court adjourned till Monday, in order in the meantime to enable Dr. Nichols to examine Payne as to alleged insanity.

The Intelligencer also announces an early restoration of the writ of Habeas Corpus.

BLOWING UP OF ORDNANCE STORES AT CHATTANOOGA, &C., &C., &C.

Chattanooga, June 10.

A tremendous explosion and fire occurred here last evening, as is supposed through carelessness. A spark from a locomotive, it is thought, ignited the loose powder in the ordnance department, and an instantaneous and terrible explosion followed. There were several thousand tons of fixed ammunition and powder on hand all of which was destroyed. Shot and shell went hissing about the town, and many were killed and wounded. The immense quartermaster's and commissary's buildings in the neighborhood caught fire, and were destroyed involving the destruction of a quarter of a million dollars worth of stores. I was on Lookout Mountain and felt the shock plainly. The railroad is nearly completed to Atlanta. Prominent rebels are being arrested in Northern Georgia. The Fifteenth Regulars are ordered to Newport, Rhode Island. Many believe that the great fire and explosion here last night was the work of incendiarism, as government property was destroyed simultaneously at Nashville and Chattanooga. Through the exertions of General Grosvenor, the bridge and much other government property was saved.

We are assured that the delegates press strongly to have the amount that Canada may borrow for the erection of fortifications in the Western sections of the Province guaranteed by the Home Government. The delegates think it is unfair that Canada should be asked to undertake quasi Imperial works by borrowing on her own account to an extent sure to affect the value of her securities very unfavorably. And it is really nothing more than just, so long as there is a connection kept up with the Mother Country, that the latter should at least back up the credit of the Provinces in all expenditures of a military character—outside of the maintenance of a Provincial Volunteer Force.—Scottish American.

THE AMERICAN DEBT.

[From the New York Times, 17th inst.]

The proposition to pay off the entire Public Debt of the United States, incurred in the rebellion and the vindication of the National Union and supremacy, by the immediate voluntary contributions of the large taxpayers of the country—divided by 150,000 shares of $200, 00 each—attracts a good deal of remark in the street to-day. The plan really begins to be considered feasible: more so, perhaps, in respect to raising the requisite pledges of the money, than in regard to the ability or power of the government to call in its Funded Stock for its 7.30 per Cents, convertible into such stock or even its Greenbacks, without a good many years' delay or the purchase of the stocks not subject to redemption until 1867 or 1881, at premiums which would not be justified by the nature of the plan itself. This might possibly be avoided by receiving the voluntary subscriptions of the great taxpayers of the country to the full amount, subject to assessments only so fast as the Government could command the redemption of the Public Debt. Assuming the finality of the War to leave a gross Public Debt of $4,000,000,000, (three thousand millions,) its redemption at par could be commanded by the Government in about the following proportions:—

Ordinary Greenbacks when presented	$4,000,000
Interest Greenbacks due in 1865	200,000,000
Five Twenties subject to redemption in 1867	510,000,000
Five-Twenties in 1871	300,000,000
Five-Twenties in 1873	530,000,000
Five-Twenties in 1868	85,000,000
Sixes of 1881 to 1881	285,000,000
Ten Forties in 1874	173,000,000
Old Debt 1867 to 1874	45,000,000
Together	$3,580,000,000
Certificates of Indebtness and Deposit, Arrearages, claims, &c.	420,000,000
Total	$3,000,000,000

An Excommunication by Father Ignatius.

(From the London Record.)

We have already alluded to the case of two young men connected with the Bristol Branch of the "Benedictines" expelled from the congregation for alleged intoxication, which they denied, protesting that they were only indignant at the introduction by their Superior, Prior Cyprian, of certain innovations. Father Ignatius being applied to, adjudged that the offending brethren should do penance, by kneeling in the face of the congregation covered with white sheets, and holding lighted candles in their hands, and making certain confessions to the prior. This the young men refused to do, and Father Ignatius resolved to excommunicate them

The excommunication took place at Bristol Monastery Chapel, on Thursday night, after the ordinary vesper service. The altar was then draped in black, and, previous to the excommunication, the details of which had been sent down by Father Ignatius in a lengthy document, the lights were extinguished. This was part of the arrangement prescribed, and immediately as it took place there were some hisses from the spectators. These were quickly silenced by a rebuke from the prior, Brother Cyprian, and the event of the evening then commenced, the excommunication being conducted by the prior.

The excommunication was preceded by a pastoral to the Prior and brethren. The document began as follows:—

"Ignatius, superior of the English Convent of Blessed St. Benedict, father of the monks, to his most dear children in the Lord Jesus and St. Benedict, tarrying in Bristol or near it, greeting."

The pastoral follows it being dated from Norwich, "at our most holy house of religion, on the 10th day of the month of May, ever Virgin Mother of our Lord and God Jesus Christ, in the 5th week of the great 40 days in the year of the world's redemption, 1865." In the course of it Brother Ignatius states that his soul had been troubled by hearing of how they had committed themselves, and he exhorts the brotherhood to be still the brave soldiers of Christ, remembering that He was despised and rejected of men, and to pray that even yet the divine grace may be poured out upon the offenders. Addressing the offending brethren he said, "We now solemnly enjoin upon you both the penance which we have before sent unto you, and in the holy name call upon you to fulfil your promises with glad and cheerful submission."

Then follows a crucifix with the word Pax, and addressed to the English congregation of St Benedict, and it then proceeded:—"Inasmuch as Brother Benedict and Brother Etheldred (acting forth the personal name of each), did solemnly, freely of their own entire free will, promise the following things, upon the strength of which promises alone, believing them to be sincere and honest men, we did admit them as brethren of our religious community on the morrow of the feast of St. Edward's translation, in the year of our Lord and Saviour, 1864; we, Ignatius, Superior of the said congregation, do now solemnly, and in the name of God, command them and call upon them to fulfil their free and solemn promises, which in the same holy name of God and upon the holy cross, they did constantly make unto us, reminding them in all love of the great day of account, when perjured persons and false swearers shall have their portion given them with the father of lies for evermore."

The promises made at their admission to the fraternity were then set forth, question and answer, and the document then proceeded:—

"Now seeing, dear sons, that six of your brethren do accuse you (the offender) of causing a great scandal to your children at Bristol, having been guilty of the sin of drunkenness, we do call upon you, by virtue of our holy office and your most free and solemn promises above named, to comply with our monitions and commands which in may God's grace enable you to do, otherwise as perjurers and false swearers in the great and holy name of God we shall excommunicate you from our congregation and publish your names as excommunicated members of all and for the brethren throughout the kingdom."

The form of excommunication was then prescribed. The brethren assembled together at the conclusion of vespers were to kneel down upon their knees and sing the 51st Psalm. While it was being sung the alter was to be draped in black, and the crucifix and holy images to be vei

Winter Wheat.—There is considerably more than the average amount of winter wheat and rye in this State, also of spring wheat, rye and oats. All the crops look well.

West Virginia.—The winter and winter rye crops look a-ch better than usual this year. There was also the usual amount of spring wheat sown, and considerably more of oats.

Wisconsin.—It is the universal testimony that, in this portion of the State, wheat never gave a fairer promise of an abundant harvest than it now does. Winter wheat, especially, of which a larger breadth than usual was sown, is looking particularly well.—Madison Journal.

Should the remainder of the season prove favorable, we may expect a good harvest of crops of almost every description.—Montpelier News.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY IN TORONTO.—A daring attempt at burglary was made in Toronto recently. At about 11 o'clock, says the Globe, a party of thieves laid their plans to enter the house of Mr. William Smith, on the corner of Victoria and Stanley streets. While four of the party, to use one of their terms, "stalled" the premises, or, in decent English, kept near at hand to see that the coast was clear, another named James Pendergrith, getting on top of a verandah in front of the house, raised a window and entered one of the rooms used by Mr. Smith as a bed-room. The burglar prowled about the room, and finally opened a bureau drawer, on which there was a cash-box containing $500 in bank bills. He was busy endeavoring with a bunch of false keys to open the box, when Mr. Smith, who was in the room below, hearing the noise, went up stairs caught Pendergrith in the act, and nabbed him; but the desperado, who is a powerfully-built young man, dashed from his grasp, bounded across the room, dropping the cash-box and false keys, and jumping through the window was quickly over the verandah on to the street—his party also seeing that all was up making themselves scarce. Pendergrith fled, followed by the crowd who had been alarmed by Smith's cries, and was finally captured and conveyed to the lock up.

UPSET IN THE BAY—SAVED BY LADIES.—On Saturday evening between 8 and 9 o'clock, two young gentlemen, Mr. Howson and Mr. Mulleck, while out on the bay with a skiff were suddenly struck by a squall and their boat swamped. They were seen by several persons on the Island, but none of the male portion among them had the courage to push out to their relief. At length three ladies, Mrs. Parkinson, her daughter and Mrs. Deware took a boat and hastened to the rescue, although the bay was very rough at the time. They found the young men quite exhausted and thoroughly wet, and saved them with some little difficulty. Had not these ladies bravely risked themselves the young men might have perished in the water. Their conduct put to shame the timid men who stood by and witnessed the proceeding. We understand that this is not the first time that Mrs. Parkinson and her daughters have saved human life in this manner.—Leader

INVESTIGATIONS.—Investigations seem to be the order of the day. In Hamilton a searching examination into the conduct of our Police force is going on. In Toronto an investigation into the doings of Sergeant McDowell is about to be prosecuted. In Montreal serious complaints are being made against the police force, and it is not improbable that an enquiry will be demanded. In London the Mayor has taken alarm at the statement that the members of the police force of that city were implicated in the doings of the Parker gang, and has written to Mr Freeman to obtain further information upon the matter. And a rumor is current that in Kingston also, some uneasiness is felt, and that enquiries are being set on foot. If half the looseness of administration is brought to light that is hinted at, it will show the whole police force of the Province to be in a sad state of demoralization.—Hamilton Times.

A man named Quill, a graduate of Dublin University, in a state of despondency, on Saturday nigh, in Toronto, cut his throat from ear to ear with a razor. He fell in such a position as to prevent the loss of blood, and a Dr. being called in his life was saved, but remains in a precarious state.

DR. RADWAY'S PILLS.

CURE SCARLET FEVER,
CURE SCARLET FEVER,
CURE SCARLET FEVER.

Dr. Radway's Pills are the only purgative medicines safe to administer in Scarlet Fever, Erysipelas, Small Pox and other eruptive and reducing fevers. These pills cure the patient and are a safeguard against the subsequent appearance of Dropsical effusions, Opthalmia, Strumous discharges from the ears, sores, ulcers, and swollen joints, fits, convulsions and a trail of other maladies that scarlet fever patients suffer after treatment of this disease.

A LAMENTABLE FACT.

Not one physician in one hundred ever cures the patient under treatment of Scarlet Fever, Small Pox, Erysipelas. Granted that the patient recovers from the peculiar symptoms of the original disease—but the disease is only smothered, and subsequently breaks out in other forms. If Radway's Pills are used in this or any other disease where a cure depends upon purgation, and purity of the blood, a perfect cure will be secured. Radway's Pills purge thoroughly, cleanse and purify the blood, regulate the Liver, Kidneys, Spleen and other glands to a healthy and harmonious action; occasion no straining, flux or tenesmus, they make a perfect cure, no more purging is necessary, man is restored to health, and Nature, on whose laws are violated, keeps him healthy. Price 25 cents per box. Sold by Druggists.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—The greatest plague of life. Piles and Fistula—Though thousands are afflicted with the terrible scourges, few if any acquainted with their cause or nature and resign themselves to the belief that they are incurable—but an explanation of their character will satisfy any man of common sense that they are remediable. Piles and their kindred diseases arise from costiveness, over-straining or neglected appeals of nature; by removing these we extinguish the exciting causes. Holloway's Pills renovate the stomach and invigorate the action of the bowels, and a few applications of the ointment to the seat of the disease will eradicate the piles forever—try them and be convinced.

It a person faints place him instantly flat on the floor, or bed on his back, and let him lay quietly for ten minutes or so, it is simply fainting fit, and the blood flowing on a level will speedily equalize itself through the system. If you are troubled with rheumatism, pleurisy, pain in the side or back, cramps in the stomach, burns, frost-bites, &c., procure at once a bottle of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," which is a certain cure for all such complaints Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

A SINGULAR FACT.—Take a single wafer, put it upon your tongue, allow it to melt gradually away, and your sore throat, hoarseness, cough, and cold will disappear. Be careful that the wafer used be Bryan's Pulmonic Wafer—25 cents a box, all Druggists sell it. They are really a great medicine.

HOMŒOPATHY.

HOMŒOPATHY AND LIFE ASSURANCE.—The directors of a London life assurance office—the "General Provident"—at its recent meeting have placed on record their opinion "that persons treated by the Homœopathic system enjoy more robust health, are less frequently attacked by disease, and when attacked recover more rapidly than those treated by any other system; that with respect to the more fatal classes of disease the mortality under Homœopathy is small in comparison with that of Allopathy; that there are diseases not curable at all under the latter system, which are perfectly curable under the former; finally, that the medicines prescribed by Homœopathists do not injure the constitution, whereas those employed by Allopathe not unfrequently entail the most serious, and in many instances fatal, consequences." The directors further propose to summon a meeting of the shareholders to lay before them the facts they have collected, and the decision at which they have arrived, namely, "to open a special section for persons treated by the Homœopathic system, at a lower rate of premium than that charged on other lives."—London (Eng.) Observer.—Toronto Globe.

DR. POOLE, (Water st., Peterborough,) is a Graduate and Licentiate of both the Allopathic and Homœopathic schools, and confidently recommends the latter system of treatment, as by far the safest and most successful, in both Acute and Chronic diseases.

Button-hole, Cording, Braiding and Embroidering

SEWING MACHINE!

COMPANY,

627 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK.

THE BUTTON HOLE Stitch made by this entirely simple and novel machine, is not only equal to the best hand-made in the pearl or right side, but greatly surpassing them in beauty on the wrong side, which is formed by a beautiful braid stitch, made by an extra stitch, which no hand made button-hole possesses; thereby imparting to the same a much greater strength, which renders cording or barring altogether unnecessary.

One Needle and Two Threads are only Used.

Unlike other Sewing Machines it manufactures its own Braid and Cord.

The first Merchant Tailors freely admit that its beauty, finish and strength cannot be attained by the most skilful hands.

Simplicity is one of its great merits, therefore not liable to get out of order, and it can be worked with ease by any young lady, who will, after a few days' experience, make from 1,000 to 1,200 perfect button-holes in one day.

This is the only machine produced that will throw a stitch over the edge, so as to bind and cover it in a manner indispensible for Button-holes, Cording and Braiding, each of which can be done with colored, gimlet or chain silk, and produce a fabrique of varied colors unexcelled for beauty and taste.

To Ladies at home, Dress, Mantilla and Cloak makers, Shoemakers, Tailors, Hatters, Bookbinders, Saddlers, &c., &c., it is indispensable; it is also admitted to be of great value, to other branches as it Braids, Embroiders, and Cords plain and fancy on all kinds of Clothes, Cassimers, Linen, Velvet Leather, &c., &c.

Instructions and Needles accompany each Machine.

Every Machine is Warranted for Twelve Months.

Machines can be seen in full operation at our spacious Store, 627 Broadway, near Bleaker, where instruction Rooms are reserved for Ladies.

PIANO-FORTES.

NEWEST NEW PATENT.

A T THE ONLY INSTRUMENTS manufactured on a truly scientific principle. That have greater strength, and will remain longer in tune than any other Piano. The construction is simple and natural, all the unnecessary timber in the body of the instrument is dispensed with; the overall bounds are entirely true finished planks of thin sound, like the finest cast back of a violin; the stringe are attached to a square iron frame, which is separate and entirely independent of the case, thereby dispensing with the old heap form of stringing by substituting straight bridges, preserving at the same time The Over Strung Scale, of which Mr Dunton is the inventor. By these improvements we gain much more vibratory power, at the same time preserving all its purity and richness of tone.

They have received the highest testimonials from the Press, and all the principal artists in the country, among which are:

Harry Sanderson,	L. M. Gottschalk,
Miss Marstock,	S. Thalberg,
Theodore Eisfeld,	Wm Mason,
Herman Wollenhaupt,	A. Barili
Francis H. Brown,	M. Strackosch,
Wm. Henry Fry.	Charles Pradel

Mr. SIGESMOND THALBERG, the great pianist, says:—I have examined your new Piano-fortes and I cordially approve of its system of construction. Its principle, by which great increase of vibratory power is obtained, being very simple and perfectly philosophical. The tone is grand and noble; it has great capacity for sustaining the sound or singing, and its volume of tone or power I have never heard excelled in depth, purity and sympathetic sweetness.

Wm. HENRY FRY, late musical critic of the N. Y. Tribune says:—I have examined your newly invented Piano-Fortes. They merit all the praise given to them by Messrs. Thalberg, Gottschalk, Strakosch, Mason and others. As regards the structure, they are original and philosophical; in purity, volume, and continuity of tone; in vocal verisimilitude, that crowning excellence which enables the pianists to "sing" on the instrument. Your Pianos deserve the highest rank. Your invention, in my opinion, is destined to work radical changes in the manufacture of Pianos throughout the world.

From the N. Y. Herald, Sept. 8.—Upon a careful examination of Dunton Piano-Forte, we find the results obtained are a very fine singing tone, great purity and brilliancy throughout the entire instrument, not often found in Pianos constructed upon the old plan.

The N. Y. Times, July 12, says:—We have now an instrument without an equal. It combines with a smoothe delicacy, perfectly unattainable on any other Instrument; an ordinary player obtains with no exertion, the fullness of a Grand Piano Forte and they must speedily supercede the old styles.

GENTLEMEN:—Having thoroughly examined and tested the Piano-Fortes invented and patented by Mr S. B. Dunton, I am of the opinion that the tone resulting from his improvements as exhibited in the instruments under examination in point of richness, depth and brilliancy, equals that of the best Grand Piano-Fortes, and excells them in pure, musical and actual tone, power thus approximating closer to what I consider perfection in the instrument than has yet been achieved by any other system of manufacture.

Yours respectfully,
L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN

SEWING MACHINES.

EMPIRE SHUTTLE MACHINE!

PATENTED FEB. 14th, 1860.

Salesrooms, { 536 Broadway, New York, / 252 Washington St., Boston.

THIS MACHINE is constructed on entirely new principle of mechanism, possessing many rare and valuable improvements, having been examined by the most profound experts, and pronounced to be

Simplicity and Perfection Combined.

It has a straight needle, perpendicular action, makes the lock or shuttle stitch, which will neither rip nor ravel, and is alike on both sides; performs perfect sewing on every description of material, from leather to the finest Nainsook Muslin, with cotton, linen or silk thread, from the coarsest to the finest number. Having neither CAM nor COGWHEEL, and the least possible friction, it runs as smooth as glass and is

Emphatically a Noiseless Machine.

It requires FIFTY PER CENT less power to drive it than any other Machine in the market. A girl twelve years of age can work it steadily, without fatigue or injury to health.

Its strength and Wonderful Simplicity of construction renders it almost impossible to get out of order, and is GUARANTEED by the Company to give entire satisfaction.

We respectfully invite all those who may desire to supply themselves with a superior article, to come and examine the Unrivalled Machine.

But in a more especial manner do we elicit the pat onage of

Merchant Tailors,	Corset Makers,
Coach Makers,	Gaiter Fitters,
Hoop Skirt Manufacturers,	Shoe Binders,
	Vest and Pantaloon Makers,
Shirt and Bosom Makers.	Dress Makers.

Religious and Charitable Institution will be liberally dealt with.

One half-hour's instruction is sufficient to enable any person to work the Machine to their entire satisfaction.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of six thousand dollars for the purpose therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $6000 in constructing, making and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County.

And whereas to carry into effect the said resolved object it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $6000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $600 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any increase to be derived from the proposed new investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised assessment roll of the said Municipality, being for the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three was $2,796,883.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of $6000 and interest, as hereinafter mentioned, it will require an equal annual special rate of thirty-one nineteenths of a mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough as follows:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Wardens of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $6000, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Wardens to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than $100 each; and that the said debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Wardens and counter-signed by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable in 20 years at the further from the date hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per cent. per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first day of April and the first day of October in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon, an equal special rate of thirty-one nineteenths of a mill in the dollar shall, in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the 24th day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at its Council Chamber in the Court House, in the said County, on Thursday, the 22nd day of June, 1865, at the hour of 12 of the clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

Poetry.

A SHADOW.

What look the valleys and mountains
That once were green and gay?
What look the twinkling fountains?
Their voice is sad to-day.
Only the sound of a voice,
Tender and sweet and low,
That made the earth rejoice
Two years ago.

What look the tender flowers?
A shadow is on the sun;
What look the merry hours,
That I long that they were done?
Only two smiling eyes,
That told of joy and mirth;
They are shining in the skies—
I mourn them on earth.

What looks my heart that makes it
So weary and full of pain,
That trembling hope forsakes it,
Never to come again?
Only another heart,
Tender and all mine own,
In the still grave it lies—
I weep alone.

Varieties.

How They Read the Newspaper.

It is a proof of great variety of human development to notice persons reading a newspaper.

Mr. General Intelligence first glances at the telegraph, then at the editorial, and then he goes into the correspondence.

Mr. Sharper opens with stocks and markets, and then he goes into the correspondence.

Aunt Sukey first reads the stories—then looks to see who is married.

Miss Prim looks at the marriages first, and then reads the stories.

Mr. Marvellous is curious to see the list of accidents, murders, and the like.

Uncle Ned Hunts up a funny thing, and laughs with a will.

Mrs. Friendly drops the first tear of sympathy over the deaths, and then over the marriages; "for," says she, "one is about as bad as the other."

Mr. Politician dashes into the telegraph, and from that into the editorial, ending with the speeches alluded to.

Our literary friend is eager for a nice composition from the editor, or some kind correspondent. After analyzing the rhetoric, grammar and logic of the production, he takes a careless glance at the news department and then takes to his Greek, perfectly satisfied.

The pleasure-seeker examines the programme of the public entertainments, and decides which will afford him the most amusement.

The laborer searches among the wants for better opening in his business, and—enough; an expression of the list is ... There is just as much difference readers as in—anything.

The worst is yet to come. If each finds a column or less of his peculiar liking, the editor of course has been and is unworthy of patronage. O, I wouldn't be an editor!

HEALTH INSURANCE.—A thin cadaverous looking German, about fifty years of age, entered the office of one of our health insurance companies a few days ago, and enquired—"Ish dere a man in vot insures de people a helts?" The agent politely answered, "I attend to that, sir!" "Vell I vants my belts insured. Vot you charge?" "Different prices," answered the agent. "From three to ten dollars a year; pay ten dollars a year and you get ten dollars a week in case of sickness." "Vell," says Mynheer, "I vant ten dollers vort." The agent inquired his state of health. "Vat, I ish sick all de time. I's about out to bed two, three hours a day until de doctor says he can't do nothing good for me." "If that's the state of your health," returned the agent, "we can't insure it. We only insure persons who are in good health. At this Mynheer bristled up in great anger,—"You must took I's a fool; vot you took I come to pay you ten dollars for to insure my belt, ven I vas vel.

SAM SLICK ON MEMORY.—There is something very curious about memory. I don't think there is such a thing as total forgetfulness. Memory has many cells. Some of them aint used much; and dust and cobwebs get around them, and you can't tell where the hinge is, or can't easily discern the secret spring; but open it at once, and whatever is stowed away there it is safe and sound as ever. I have a good many capital stories poked away in them chubby holes that I can't lay my hands on when I want to; but now and then, when looking for something else, I stumble upon them by accident. Tell you what, as for forgettin' a thing totally, I don't believe there is such a thing in nature.

How old are you, asked a lawyer of a venerable looking witness.

O well, sir, I am unmarried, I cannot answer.

O yes inform the gentlemen how old you are, said the judge.

Well, a week. I'm fifty.

Are you not more?

Well, I'm sixty.

The inquisitive lawyer further asked if she had any hope of getting married; to which Miss Evergreen replied—"I wunna tell a lie; I hinna lost all hope yet." And she further added—"But I widna marry you, for I'm sick and tired o' your palaver already.

As a lame country school-master was hobbling one day to his school room he was met by a nobleman, who asked his name and vocation. Having declared his name, he added, "and I am master of this parish."

"Master of this parish!" observed the peer, "how can that be?"

"I am master of the children of the parish," said the man; "the children are masters of their mothers; the mothers are the rulers of the fathers, and consequently I am master of the whole entire parish."

Muggins was one day with a friend, when he observed a poor dog, that had been killed, lying in the gutter. Muggins paused, gazed intently at the animal, and at last said,—

"Here is another shipwreck."

"Shipwreck! where?"

"There's a mark that's lost forever." His companion growled and passed on.

A SHORT NOVEL.—Sweet Margaret Fane came up the lane from picking red ... roses, and met young Paul, comely and well going to market with cherries. Stopping, she blushed, and he looked flushed—perhaps 'twas the burden they carried; ... burdens rested on their burdens were ... and at Christmas they were married.

At a social party, says the Post, where ... questions was one of the games ... evening, the question was put, ... is religion?" "Religion," replied ... the party, more famous as a man of ... than as a man of wit—"religion ... an insurance against fire in the next world, ... which humanity is the best policy."

See what the most popular and widely circulated periodicals say of our Establishment:

From the "Dispatch" of February 25, 1865.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the announcement of Messrs. Devaugh & Co.'s Great Sale of Jewelry, Silver Ware, and Fancy Goods, in our advertising columns. We are personally acquainted with the members of this firm and know them to be gentlemen of sterling worth and integrity. Their stock of goods, for variety and extent, we have scarcely seen paralleled.

From the "Mirror of Fashion," March 1, 1865.

Messrs. Devaugh & Co.'s Great Sale of Jewelry, etc., opened on the 15th ult., and we venture to say that no finer display of goods was ever exhibited by any establishment in this city. The ladies thronged their bazaar almost to suffocation, although the streets were rendered nearly impassable by the melted snow and slush. We predict for them a wonderful success.

From the "Ledger," February 28, 1865.

Our lady friends should visit the extensive establishment of Messrs. Devaugh & Co., No. 15 Maiden Lane, if they wish to indulge themselves with a sight which they will long remember. Such a profusion of elegant Watches, Chains, Rings, Earrings, and, in short, of Jewelry of every name, kind and description, we never before witnessed. Their silver and plated wares is superb and almost casts into the shade the other splendid establishments which have long been the boast of our city. It is estimated that their stock is worth not less than one million of Dollars.

How You Can Get a Prize.

Send Twenty-Five Cents to us, and as soon as we receive it we will mail you a Certificate, showing what you are entitled to. If the article or articles please you, send back the Certificate and One Dollar and we will forward you the article, no matter how costly it may be. If the article is not what you wish, state, when you send the Certificate and dollar, what other article of the same value you prefer and we will send it. If you wish more than one Certificate send us $1 and we will send five; for $2, eleven; for $5, thirty; for $10, sixty; for $15, one hundred.

Agents are wanted in the Army and in every place. We have an immense stock of goods to dispose of, and need a large number of Agents. Our terms to Agents are very like all and some even of our Lady Agents are making from $5 to $20 a day. We give Agents 50 per cent. on all Certificates they sell provided they remit not less than $1 for eight.

How to Choose a Cow.

On this subject, the Working Farmer says:—"There is always some risk in buying a cow, of whose previous character and history we know nothing, for there are no infallible signs of excellence. A rough, coarse, ill-shaped cow is often a noble milker. Yet there are a few points, generally agreed upon by experienced farmers, which it is well to consider before purchasing. A small-boned head and light horns are better than large. Long legs make too wide a gap between the udder and milk pail, and long-legged cows are seldom quiet feeders, but wander about too much. A slender rather than a thick neck, a straight back wide ribs and broad brisket, are to be sought for. The body of the cow should be large in proportion to head, neck and legs, though not excessively large; and the hind quarters if large out of proportion indicate good milking qualities. Medium sized cows, all things considered, prove the best milkers for the amount of food they consume. The color of the hair has probably nothing to do with the milking qualities, and good looks should be regarded but little in purchasing dairy animals.—As to the color of the skin, a bright yellow approaching that of gold coins, creamy color within the ears—thin and good rich milk are very apt to go together; and withal, a soft flexible hide, loose over the ribs and rump, is also to be sought. The udder should be large, soft, and full of veins, which ramify over it, with full sized milk veins stretching forward along the belly, and the teats be large and not crowded together. Test the cow's disposition and enquire about it. Irritable and nervous cows are unpleasant to handle, and almost always scanty milkers. Something can be ascertained from the looks and motions. Large mild eyes, easy quiet motions when driven, and gentleness when handled, indicate good nature. What butchers term 'good handling' is an important quality in a milch cow, for it indicates not only good milking properties, but easy fattening, when services in the dairy are over."

How to Keep Cattle on Thirty Acres of Land.

One of the most interesting papers, in the Journal of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, is that in which the Rev. J. L. Brereton relates his experience in the use of bought food upon about thirty acres of grass land, the extent of his glebe. On his small plot about £1500 worth of stock has been kept by a purchase of food and manure to the amount of nearly £800, that the result is a profit of about £100, beside manure, "worth at least £200." The following are Mr. Brereton's conclusions on the question of feeding cattle on bought food:—1. That it is quite possible to feed animals on purchased food alone. 2. That a mixture of the common grains and pulse, e. g., linseed, peas, beans, wheat, &c., may be made for £10 per ton, which will fatten any animal. 3. That the addition of seasoning (linseed and fenugreek are those that I have used for five years), at an additional cost of £1 per ton, appears to pay well in the added relish and the improved condition of the animals. 4. That doubling the quantity of linseed, though raising the price, probably gives quite a proportionate increase to the value of the mixture. 5. That by the use of this meal the farmer may fearlessly increase his stock, without adding to his acres; and yet by that increase of stock greatly increase the productiveness of his farm. This consideration both suggested and replied to the following exclamation of a neighbouring farmer: "Mr. Brereton, if you're doing all this on thirty acres, I'm thinking what's to become of the land-ods." 6. That the use of seasand as bedding will enable the farmer either to dispense with straw, or to use it more profitably as food; and that besides possessing, according to its quality manurial properties, the sand acts as a purifier of the land, and seems to allow of a closer feeding of stock than might be otherwise safe. 7. That sheep may be folded on grass with great advantage if some shelter and dry treading are provided in adjacent yards during excessively wet weather; but the bullocks and horses do best in yards and sheds, the grass grown after the fold being cut by the scythe and carried to them.—Scottish Farmer.

Growing Clover and Clover Seed.

The editor of the Genesee Farmer remarks:—I bought six bushels of clover seed to-day and had to pay $17 per bushel for it. But clover, on a grain farm, is indispensable. It is the only really renovating crop we have. John Johnston, now that he has made his land so rich, may think clover does not pay, but on most farms we must grow clover or we shall grow little else. In fact, one of the means Mr. Johnston used to bring up his land was by raising large crops of clover and making it into hay to be fed to sheep in winter. The manure from clover is much more valuable than from timothy. Clover may not pay directly as well as timothy, but when we take into consideration the fact that it impoverishes the soil less than timothy, while it makes better manure, and is, theoretically at least, weight for weight, quite as nutritious, clover must be the main reliance of wheat-growers for keeping up the fertility of the land. I have always recommended the farmers in Western New York to "grow their own clover seed, and sow it with an unsparing hand." I will for the future endeavor to conform my practice to my preaching. I think it will be some years before I again pay out $102 for six bushels of clover seed. It is an excellent plan to have a piece of young clover near the barn-yard, and give it a heavy dressing of well rotted manure in the fall. This will start it very early in the spring, and give a great crop. It is just the thing to eat green to feed horses at noon in the stable. And if the second crop is allowed to go to seed, a large yield may be expected, even in such a dry season as the last.

TANNING FUR SKINS.—Mr. Byron Vaughn, Dupage Co., Ill., sends the following method of preparing skins with the fur on to the American Agriculturist: The skins cleaned of flesh are put into a liquid prepared thus: Upon 1 lb. of hardwood ashes, pour 4 gallons hot soft water, let stand for a few hours and then pour off the liquor, then add three pounds of common salt, one fourth pound of alum, and one pound of sal. horse acid (oil of vitro). The mixture is to be made in a wooden tub or similar vessel, and care should be exercised in handling the acid, that it now come in contact with the person or clothing. The skins are placed in the liquid and allowed to remain there from one to two hours, when they are rinsed and hung out to dry. Mr. V. recommends the process as cheap and satisfactory. He does not state if the skins need any oiling or other after treatment.

When there is a spanking breeze, bad children should be kept out to take the air.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!

CAN BE FOUND IN

Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF

Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER GUISE internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling med cinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attributes is to PURIFY as well as to CURE; they attack the RADIX OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL AND FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs UPON THE BLOOD itself, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a protective safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is compelled and exterminated by its searching, ... and irresistible energies. Biliousness, ... dyspepsia, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, is denoted by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the white of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a certainty which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whose hopes have been abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful antibilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterize dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, tendency to local prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids, colics and in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, no growing one of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has entirely failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Vereal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worm of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box: the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

 Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 88 cents, and $1 40 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33

ONE NOTE WRONG.

Blue bonds the sky above—
Blue runs the stream below—
Earth quiet as a dove;
Would that my heart were so!

Nor leaf nor shadow falls
On all the green hill side;
Even to the cuckoo's calls
Echo but half replied.

So lazy goes the hour,
The very dragon fly,
Perched on the dozing flower,
Moves neither wing nor eye.

Bird, blossom, branch, and stream,
All quiet as the air;
And lying, as in a dream,
Earth seemeth passing fair.

Oh, what a hymn divine
Breathes from this golden noon!
Only this heart of mine
Is beating out of tune.

THE NIGHT OF PERIL.

A DETECTIVE'S STORY.

Of course it is to be expected that in a life like mine I should often be exposed to dangers of a personal character; it is the lot of all detective officers, and I have been no exception to the rule. In the course of my life I have been subjected several times to extreme peril. In the following I am about to give an instance of such peril to the reader.

One day I was sent for by the President of the Bank of Commerce. When I arrived there I found the whole Bank in a state of consternation. The safe had been broken into during the night, and all the specie abstracted. I immediately proceeded to examine the safe and found that the locks had been forced; but a single glance was sufficient to show me that it had been forced after it had been opened, or in other words that whoever had taken the money had wished to convey the impress on that it had been forced open from the outside. Of course I came at once to the conclusion that some one connected with the establishment had taken the money. While examining the spot, I found on the ground a single leaf of a white Provence rose. It is the observation of small things that makes a good detective, for it is often the most trivial circumstance which supplies the first link in the chain. I did not pick up this rose leaf nor indeed appear to notice it. After the scrutiny was over, I went to the President's, Mr. Cameron, apartment.

'Well, Brampton,' said he, 'what do you make out of it?'

'Do you suspect anybody connected with the bank?' I asked.

'Certainly not! It is impossible that anybody connected with the bank could have committed the robbery; it must have been the work of burglars. Did you visit the cellar where the burglars entered?'

'Yes and found that the bars had been filed from the inside.

'Indeed!—but what do you make out about the safe?'

'That the lock was forced after the safe was opened.'

'What do you infer from that?'

'That some one connected with the bank is guilty of that robbery; and he has endeavored to make it appear that it is the work of professional burglars. But he has done his work very hungingly.'

'You must be mistaken,' replied the President. 'I would answer for all in the employ of the bank with my life.'

'I am afraid you would lose it,' I replied, with a smile, 'for there can be no doubt about the truth of my assertion.'

'But how will you prove it?'

'That remains to be seen. How many have you in the employ of the bank?'

'Twelve including the porter.'

'Who has care of the safe?'

'Mr. Charles Munsel.'

'Have any of your clerks special fondness for flowers?'

'That is a strange question. But since you ask it, I remember that Munsell generally has a flower in his buttonhole.'

'Who is Munsel?'

'A very worthy young man. You surely do not suspect him?'

'I shall be very much surprised if he does not prove to be the robber.'

'You astonish me! He has the reputation of being very pious.'

'Very well, we shall see. Where does he live?'

'No—East Broadway.'

'What time does he go to dinner?'

'At two o'clock.'

'Just point him out to me as I go through the bank, and I will see you again to-morrow morning.'

Mr. Cameron did as I requested. The young man I suspected was about twenty five years of age. He was quite handsome; at night have been my fancy, but I thought there was a hypocritical look about his face. I glanced earnestly at him, so that I might engrave his countenance in my memory, and then passed into the street.

I directed my steps at once to East Broadway, and calling at the clerk's residence, I found that it was furnished in gorgeous style, far beyond his means. The door was opened by a shrewd old woman I asked to see Mr. Munsel, but was told that he was not at home. My purpose was answered by my visit, for in the hall I saw a quantity of choice flower in pots, and among them a fine Provence rose. I employed the rest of the day in making inquiries as to the private life of Mr Munsel, and found that he was very extravagant in his habits and also discovered that on that very day he had deposited a large sum of money under a false name in the Manhatan Savings Bank. The next morning I went to the bank for the purpose of reporting progress to the President, and to advise the immediate arrest of young Munsel.

'Well, you were right about that young man, said Mr. Cameron to me, the moment I entered his private room.'

'You have come to that conclusion, have you?' I replied.

'Yes, after you had gone yesterday, I caused his accounts to be examined, and found a terrible deficit, amounting to $30,000. I called him to the room, and asked him for an explanation—'

'The worst thing you could have done,' I interrupted.

'You are right—he has escaped.'

'I expected as much. And where has he gone?'

'He left last night by the Southern train—at least, so we suspect. He has an uncle living about fifteen miles from Augusta, Ga. and it is very likely he has gone there. now Mr. Brampton you must follow him.'

'If you had left the matter in my hands he should have been arrested without any trouble.'

'I acknowledge I am in fault, and I am the more anxious to have him captured. Come, I will pay you well. Say will you go.'

It was the middle of summer, decidedly not the best time to travel in. But the affair was imperative, and I was obliged to undertake the journey That same afternoon at five o'clock I had started on my expedition.

Railway travelling in July! Who is there that has experienced it, that does not vividly remember its discomforts. The hot glaring sun, the intolerable thirst, and the warm water in the coolers, are all evils of such magnitude that they make an indelible impression on the mind. Why, at the very thought of it at this moment, my throat feels choked up and I feel the pricking of the flinty dust in my skin. And then the view from the car window; how hot and glaring everything looks. The poor cows are panting in the meadows, the dogs at the stations appear to be on the verge of hydrophobia, everybody and every thing is lazy, excepting the flies; and it appears to be their particular province to keep passengers from dozing, so that they (the passengers) may not lose any of the beauties of the scenery.

The longest journey must eventually come to an end, and after three days of really hard work, I reached the pleasing town of Augusta, in Georgia. I was, however in a very bad humor. I was annoyed at the bank's want of thought in allowing his dishonest clerk to escape. Now, when a man is in a bad humor with a journey he is obliged to take, he is very apt to consider the town at which he is compelled to stay as the most odious part in the world. I was no exception to this general rule. I hated Augusta, I detested it, I abominated it, I—but I cannot just now think of any other word to express my abhorrence of that unoffending Southern city. I went to the best hotel in the place, and entered my name in the most savage manner, actually blotting the book in the act, much to the disgust of a precise looking clerk, who stood to kin, at me while I made the entry.

At last I partook of supper, and I must confess after that genial meal 'a change over the spirit of my dream.' After all, Augusta was not such a very bad place. I actually began to think that it possessed some fine streets and elegant houses. A cup of tea will sometimes work a marvel. I determined I would go and explore the city till bedtime, and make enquiry about the absconding bank robber.

This young man's fondness for flowers seemed to be the greatest misfortune that could befall him. I have mentioned that a single bud remained on the rosebush in his hall. During my investigations this bud had blossomed. When he absconded from New York he took this flower with him. By means of it I had no difficulty in tracing him to Augusta. There was something peculiar about the rose; it was a large white one, and for unately attracted the attention of all the conductors on the route. My business now was to visit all the hotels in the city, to see if he had been there. The very first one I entered immediately settled the question in my mind that Munsel had left Augusta, and this too, before I made a single inquiry.

I entered the bar room, and the first thing I noticed was a faded Provence rose on a chair. On the back of this chair was a newspaper. I took it up, and my eyes at once fell on a paragraph containing an account of the Bank robbery in New York; but I was immediately struck with the fact that where the person of the defaulter was described the paper was mutilated, seemingly accidentally, but sufficiently so as to mar the description. This paper was the New York Herald, and from its date I knew it had only been delivered in Augusta that morning. I walked up to the bar and called for something to drink. While the bar-keeper was preparing it, I said to him, carelessly:

'There was a young man here this morning with very black hair and dark eyes; he was of medium height, but stooped a little.'

'I suppose you saw him here,' replied the barkeeper. 'He did not stay long, however, but left with Mr. Theodore Munsel, of Parkville.'

'You know Mr. Theodore Munsel, of Parkville, then?'

'Yes, indeed.'

'What sort of a man is he?'

'A very rough customer.'

'How do you mean rough?'

'He's been tried for his life twice, but managed to escape.'

'You say he lives at Parkville?'

'No, that's his post town; but he lives in the woods five miles from the village.'

'How can I get there?'

'You had better drive to Parkville, which is twelve miles off, and then inquire your way—his house is rather hard to find'

The next day I got a horse and buggy and drove to Parkville; the horse, however, fell dead lame just as I entered the village and could proceed no further. I drove up to the tavern, and determined to proceed the rest of the way on foot. After making particular enquiries as to my road, I set off on my five miles walk. I did not suppose that I was known to Munsel, and my intention was to verify his actual presence, and then return the next day with the proper officers to arrest him.

It was a beautiful July evening, just cool enough to render walking a pleasant exercise. It was dark when I started, and I had not walked a mile till it became quite dark. But I had informed myself so well as to the right road that I thought I could not mistake it. It soon, however, became apparent to me that a great change had taken place in the scenery around me. Instead of the road being clear and open, as it was when I first set out, large trees loomed up on each side of me, and the road became very bad—entirely different from the smooth gravelled surface I had first passed over. But I still pressed on, not even suspecting that I had mistaken my way. I now began to get tired. I must have walked at least two hours before any doubt entered my head,

By this time the broad road had degenerated into a narrow path. I knew then, that there must be something wrong, for the people of the town of whom I had inquired had informed me that the road to Mr. Theodore Munsel's house was pretty good all the way. I paused for a moment irresolute, and did not know whether to retrace my steps or press forward. It had now become pitch dark, and I determined to go on, well assured that I could never find my way back. I had not proceeded many steps before I became convinced that I was wandering about in a forest. The undergrowth began now to seriously impede my progress, and I found great difficulty in keeping on my feet.

My position was anything but agreeable—in the midst of a forest on a dark night. I cannot tell how I passed the three ensuing hours—they appeared three centuries to me. I suppose I must have walked the same path over and over again. I was at last completely overcome by physical fatigue, and sank exhausted on the stump of a tree.

I rested my head upon my hands, and determined to pass the night there, being now certain that it was perfectly futile endeavoring to find my way till morning. While in this stooping position I thought I saw a light glimmer through the trees. I looked earnestly, and became convinced that such was really the fact. I immediately determined to make for it, hoping to find a shelter for the night. I advanced in that direction, and soon reached a dilapidated house built entirely of wood. It was a mise able looking abode, and had it not been for my tired condition, I should have hesitated seeking its shelter. But anything was better than spending the night in the forest so I resolutely knocked again and again, then the door opened, and a gruff voice asked what I wanted.

'Can you give me lodging for the night?' I replied.

I was told to come in, and found myself in a room of moderate size, miserably furnished. A big fire was burning on the hearth; and two persons occupied the apartment. The one that opened the door to me was a man about fifty years of age, very stoutly built, and possessed of a very sinister expression of countenance. The second occupant was none other than the absconding clerk. I then knew that I was in Mr. Munsel's house, and I congratulated myself on my good fortune. I noticed that as I entered he cast a scrutinizing glance at me, but as I felt assured he did not know me personally, I experienced no alarm.

'I have lost my way in the forest,' said I, in answer to their looks of interrogation, 'and if you will afford me shelter for the night I shall be happy to repay you for your hospitality.'

'Be good enough to sit down,' said Mr. Theodore Munsel, his eyes spa king when the word 'repay' was used.

'Where are you going?' asked his nephew, and then fixing another search look on my face.

'I am going to Centerville. I left Parkville at six o'clock, but I suppose I mistook the road, for I have been wandering about the woods ever since.'

'You are fifteen miles from Centerville,' said the uncle with a kind of leer.

'You do not belong to this part of the country? said the banker's clerk.

'No,' I replied, 'I am from the State of Virginia.'

'What is your business?'

'I am collector for a house in Richmond.'

'I should have taken you for a Yankee,' said the young man.

'No, indeed,' I replied, with an attempt to smile.

The uncle and nephew now left the room, and I could hear them whispering together in the next apartment. Still I did not feel any uneasiness, for I relied on the fact that I was unknown to the absconding clerk. They soon returned to the apartment where I sat.

'We have only one room in the house,' said the uncle as he entered: 'if you will not mind sleeping with a son of mine, you can have part of his bed.'

I of course, immediately consented glad enough to find any place where I could rest my weary limbs.

After a pause of a few minutes, I pulled out my watch, and said I should like to go to bed. I noticed at the time significant looks pass between the uncle and nephew when they saw my watch. It was a fine gold one—a real Cooper—and had been presented to me by an importer of watches for services which I had rendered.

'You will find my son next the wall,' said the uncle. 'You will have the goodness not to awaken him, for he has been sick lately, and has to get up very early.'

I replied that I would certainly avoid waking him. The uncle took up a candle, and showed me to a room up stairs; it was the only habitable sleeping room in the house, and was situated over that in which we had been seated. Cautioning me to put out the light as soon as I was in bed, he left me.

I found myself in a room the exact counterpart of the one below, excepting that the one contained a bedstead. Sleeping on the bed next the wall was a man some years younger than myself. I cautiously brought the light to bear on his face. The first thing that struck me was, that the man below had deceived me when he had told me his son was sick. He was undressed and wore on his head a nightcap.

A vague sensation of uneasiness crept over me, I regretted having entered the house, and looked round the room for means of exit. There was only one door in the room, that by which I had entered. Opposite to the door was a window. I walked up to it, and endeavored to peer through the outside darkness, but could distinguish nothing. I tried to reason away my forebodings, and succeeded in doing so to some extent.

I began to prepare for bed, and had already taken off my coat and waistcoat, when I fancied I heard a step on the stairs. I immediately extinguished the light, and waited with breathless anxiety; the door faintly opened, and the uncle cautiously thrust forward his head. In the gloom of the chamber he could not perceive me; and finding the light extinguished, I suppose he thought I was in bed, for he closed the door very softly and descended the stairs again.

I was now worked up to the highest pitch of excitement. I felt certain that something was going to happen. I remembered my lonely situation—the inquisitive questions of the men below. There was no possible means for me to escape, except in going through the room in which they were seated—and such a course I knew would be perfect madness. I summoned up all my philosophy, and determined to wait the denouement, and tried to persuade myself my fears were groundless.

But when I thought of the significant looks that passed between the men when they saw my gold watch, I must confess that the effort was a failure. And then the thought suddenly struck me, if, after all, the clerk had recognized me, it was certain they would never let me leave that place alive. Five long minutes passed away, and I heard nothing. At that moment a light flashed before my window. I went directly to it, and saw the uncle with a lantern digging in the garden. I watched him with eager eyes; he was digging a hole about six feet long and three broad.

'Good God!' I exclaimed to myself, 'he is digging my grave!

I now felt certain that the young man had been left in the room below to prevent my escape. But I determined to satisfy myself if such were the fact or not. I opened the door noiselessly, and stole cautiously down stairs in my stocking feet. I glanced through the keyhole of the door which opened into the room, and saw that my suspicions were well founded, for the absconding clerk sat beside a table with a revolver all ready cocked within his reach. I returned to the bedroom again.

I again took my position at the window. Five minutes more of agonizing suspense ensued. I had nothing with which to defend myself, and was completely at their mercy. A sudden calmness now took possession of me. I suppose it was the calmness of despair, but withal my faculties were perfectly clear, and I turned over a hundred plans to escape the doom that awaited me. All this time I was eagerly watching the actions of the uncle.

The soil was very light, and he soon succeeded in opening the hole to at least four feet. He then threw down his spade and entered the house again. I expected every moment to hear them ascending the stairs, and made up my mind to sell my life as dear as possible, when a purring sound attracted my attention.

I now perceived for the first time that the light from the room below penetrated through several chinks in the floor. I lay down on the ground, and looking through one of the cracks found that I could perceive everything in the apartment. One of the men was sharpening a large knife on a grindstone, and it was this that made the purring sound that I had heard. He felt the edge, and finding it sharp enough, discontinued his employment. They then began to converse. I could hear every word they said.

'Are you certain, Charles, that this is the detective?' said the uncle.

'Perfectly certain!' returned the clerk. 'I know Brampton as well as I do you.'

'It is certain he must die then. I suppose he has plenty of money with him besides his gold watch.'

'Yes, he must be well provided with funds, and his business here is evidently to arrest me.'

'Come, then, let us finish the business at once,' said the uncle.

'Do you think he is asleep yet?' returned the clerk.

'No matter if he is not, he'll sleep well enough afterwards anyhow.'

The clerk laughed—hideously, I thought.

'Will you do it, or shall I?' said the nephew.

'O, you may go, but be sure you make no mistake. Bill, you know, lies next the wall; he has a nightcap on, the detective has none. Leave the light outside the door, for fear of waking Brampton; and above all be quick about it.'

In a moment my plan was formed. Bill was fast asleep. I gently turned him over to the outside of the bed, and pulling off his nightcap, put it on my own head. I accomplished this without waking Bill. I then cautiously laid myself in his place near the wall. The agony of the few minutes was intense—my heart seemed ready to cease beating. I heard a step on the stairs; it advanced, the door opened softly the floor creaked with the weight of a heavy tread. The murderer approached the bed. I could feel his hot breath on my cheek. I had the presence of mind enough to imitate a snore. I felt his hand passing over my head—it rested on my shoulder. O, agony of agonies he had found out my ruse, and was about to kill me! My whole body was bathed in a cold perspiration.

Suddenly I heard a heavy thud on the bed, which was followed by a groan, and then all was still. The blow had been struck, and I was not the victim. A pause of some moments ensued, and then I heard the uncle ascending the stairs. They wrapped the body of the unfortunate Bill in a sheet, and conveyed it at once into the garden. They had no sooner left the house than I leaped out of bed and ran to the window. They had evidently not discovered their mistake, for the body was already in the grave prepared for it, and they were filling it in.

I lost not a moment to put on the rest of my clothes, and creeping quietly down stairs, escaped through the front door. I ran as fast as I possibly could, and by chance struck the right road. In less than an hour I was at Parkville. I roused the whole village, and in a few hurried words told my story. A large party of men immediately set off for the scene of the tragedy accompanied by myself.

When we entered the house we found the front room still occupied by the uncle and nephew. When they saw me they turned deadly pale, and I really believed they thought that I had risen from the grave, for they had not yet discovered that they had sacrificed Theodore Munsel's son. When they saw that I was really alive, they assumed an air of bravado, supposing that I had only come to arrest the clerk for the bank robbery. Their dream, however was soon dissipated, for in a few moments the body of the murdered man was exhumed, and they were confronted with their bloody work.

It was shocking to see the uncle's agony when he discovered that his son had been murdered. Neither of the criminals attempted any defence. Three months afterwards they were tried, convicted and executed.

BEUTIFUL ANSWERS.

A pupil of Abb Sicard gave the following answers:—

"What is gratitude?"

"Gratitude is the memory of the heart."

"What is hope?"

"Hope is the blossom of happiness."

"What is the difference between hope and desire?"

"Desire is a tree in leaf, hope is a tree in flower, and enjoyment is a tree in fruit."

"What is eternity?"

"A day without yesterday or to-morrow—a line that has no end."

"What is time?"

"A line that has two ends—a path which begins at the cradle and ends at the tomb."

"What is God?"

"The necessary being, the soul of eternity, the merchant of nature, the eye of justice, the watchmaker of the universe, the soul of the world."

"Does God reason?"

"Man reasons, because he doubts; he deliberates—he decides. God is omniscient. He never doubts—He therefore never reasons."

AN EDITOR'S ACCOMPLISHMENTS.—At a late printer's festival in Boston the following toast was given:—"THE EDITOR—The man who is expected to know everything, tell all he knows, and guess at the rest; to make known his own character, establish the reputation of his neighbor, and elect all the candidates to office, to show us everybody and reform the world; to live for the benefit of others, and the epitaph on his tombstone:—"there he lies at last;" in short he is a locomotive running on the track of public notoriety; his lever is his pen; his boiler is filled with ink; his tender is his scissors; his driving wheel is public opinion; and whenever he explodes it is caused by non-payment of subscriptions.

Try for a single day, I beseech you, to preserve yourself in an easy frame of mind. Be for one day instead of a fire worshipper of passion, the sun-worshipper of a clear self-possession; and compare the day in which you rooted out the seed of dissatisfaction with that on which you allowed it to grow up; and you will find your heart open to every good motive, your life much strengthened, and your breast armed with a panoply against every trick of fate; truly you will wonder at your own improvement.

The fashion of shaving the beard was first introduced into Greece about the time of Alexander the Great. It was at first, however, regarded as a mark of effeminacy, and was only practised by low persons and fops. The great musician Timotheus wore a very long beard; and Diogenes one day meeting a man with a smoothly shaven chin, inquired of him whether he shaved as a reproach to nature for having made him a man and not a woman?

A carte de visite of General Butler has been recently published. It is said to be so true a likeness as to be absolutely striking. A Southern lady of our acquaintance says it is well done, but that being copied from a painting, its execution might be better. She wishes he had been taken from life.

A farmer in Pennsylvania, whose sheep had been stolen for many years, offered a notorious sheep stealer twenty pounds a year, to let his flocks alone. That worthy, however, only smiled and said, "No, thank you, I think I can do better."

PETROLEUM COMPANY.

On Tuesday Evening a meeting was held in the Town Hall to receive the report of the Special Committee appointed at the last meeting. Sheriff Hall was called to the chair, and Mr. A. Stewart Sec. of Provisional Committee acted as Secretary.

Captain Sutherland then Reported in behalf of the Committee. He stated that the Committee had met and although they had not all they could wish they had done much. They had divided themselves into Committees and called on parties in the vicinity and had got stock to the amount of about $1000. Mr. W. H. Scott to explain what the Committee had done, and what remained to be pursued.

He stated that he had little more to add to what already had been said. He advised the formation of a company under the Joint Stock Companies Limited-Liabilities Act which he explained. Stating that if the company should be organized the business would be conducted by Trustees (from three to nine.) The Company could not exist longer than fifty years, and might be limited to five. He further stated that the Stockholders would be liable for expenses incurred by Trustees until their Stock should be all paid, which the Stockholders could do at any time, and thus save himself from further liability.

Mr. Craigie was asked to explain the probable cost of boring a test well. He said that boring through clay cost about $2,50 per foot, and through the rock about $2 per foot; but he, Mr. C., thought that it could be done for less, as general contractors always calculated on making something out of the operations. The drill he said would cost $45, a rope $80, engine about $1000.

Mr. Sutherland said a gentleman in the place had offered the use of an engine for nothing, therefore, that $1000 would be saved.

In answer to a question from the Chair, Mr. Craigie said that the cost of sinking 300 feet would be about $1000 for labour, drill, rope, &c.

Mr. Stratton thought that it would be wisdom to make sure of enough subscribed stock before the Trustees proceed to do anything, for fear that they should not be able to go on, after the work had been commenced. He therefore proposed, Seconded by H. T. Strickland, Esq. "That the Trustees do not commence operation until they have at least $2000 subscribed" which was carried.

In order to guard against unnecessary and unexpected calls upon the stockholders, Mr. Stratton thought it advisable to have it understood that no call beyond the amount subscribed should be made on any stockholder; and also that the time of the company's existence should be limited, so that it should not be as it had been with some railroad companies, when long after they had been considered dead those who had subscribed were sued. He also thought it wise to have the power of the company limited as to contracting heavy expenses (nothing beyond what was subscribed, as seemed to be in the power of the Trustees.

Mr. Romaine thought it was a pity that Mr. Stratton had not been in when Mr. Scott explained the act, as by his explanation, Mr. Stratton's fears were groundless.

Mr. Stratton remarked that he had been in and referred to Mr. Scott if he had not said that the company was liable for costs incurred by trustees, unless all the stock subscribed was paid up.

Mr. Scott in explanation said that the Trustees could incur expenses, and the company would be liable for such expenses until the whole stock was paid up. But if the Trustees incurred more than the amount of stock, they the Trustees, would be individually liable for all above the amount subscribed.

On motion of Mr. Romaine the Company was named the "Peterborough Petroleum Company."

It was moved by Rev. Mr. Burnham seconded by Mr. Romaine that the following gentlemen be the Trustees of the company viz:—Sheriff Hall, M. Millar, Wm. Helm, Duncan Stephenson, R. Romaine, C. Cameron, T. Grant, D. Sutherland and John [illegible], Esqr.

In amendment the name of A. Smith Esqr. in place of C. Cameron, as Mr. Cameron was not a stockholder.

The Trustees then proceeded to elect their President when Sheriff Hall was chosen President, Secretary, Rev. M. Burnham, Treasurer, W. H. Scott, Solicitor.

The officers are well selected which augurs well for the company. Especially do we congratulate the Trustees in procuring the services of Rev. Mr. Burnham as Treasurer, whose name itself is a strong guarantee that the finances of the company will be safely managed.

We were requested to state that the stock books of the company will be found at the Peterborough Examiner book store when those who wish to have the existence of oil or salt tested can materially aid by lending their mite if but one share.

Annexationists and Disappointed Politicians.

Last week we endeavored to show that Annexation would or could do us no good, unless we did something for ourselves. This week we would make a few enquiries as to the reasons for annexation predilitions.

At several times in our history we have had a little annexation cry; but this always came from the party out of power, as there was not hither to any tangible reason for such cry, nor has it been heard from any but those who were either disappointed in receiving some office or those who had been kicked out of office. The natural inference is that, not the evils of Government, nor of the Country, but the evils of not being in office is the real cause of the cant about annexation. Another class are so Lazy or so careless that they will do nothing themselves; yet they suppose that the Country (the Government even) should provide some comfortable nook for them from which they could derive eight or ten hundred dollars a year, and also provide an office that could, yea would, take care of itself, or forsooth the whole Country is going to the dogs. There is no progress—no enterprize, no hope—all is going to ruin, unless some change can be effected to get them into a snug little berth. We have another class who think they and they only are capable of managing the business of the country, and anon, they must be elected to Parliament. But the people think different, and they are elected to stay at home, and immediately, heigh ho! the rumpus, annexation,—annexation. Of this class we have a celebrated hero down east, who had the audacity to get up in the Town Hall a few evenings since crying annexation. This would-be M. L. C., can now see no hope for the country as it is. The whole mass of the people English, Irish, Scotch, are all disloyal. There is no progress or enterprize among us, nor will there, while connected with Great Britain. Are these the men to hold office in our country? Are these the men to be elected to office? No, it is a disgrace to any people who call themselves descendants of Britons to elect them to even the meanest office. What sort of men are the generally? Men who but poorly attend to their own business, or the business of any one else. Men whom but few admire or respect. And because of this they must be annexed. It is really a wonder that even the good sense of the people of Peterborough bore with our Down-east orator; that he did not remove him to some place of safe keeping till he should come to his right mind. He may free a foul digestive organ at home when he pleases, but common sense should warn the gentleman to stay round home in future when he feels diseased in either body or mind.

We give the proceedings of the County Council this session very fully. Considerable business of importance has been transacted. The By-law published to be passed at the meeting was found defective and a new one prepared. The amount to be raised is also increased from $6,000 to $20,000. It was also agreed to memorialize the Government to lower the price of wild land in the back country; also to pass a law to reduce the rate of interest in the Province to not more then seven per cent. This would be a wholesome step for the Province, as the high rate of interest is at present beggaring thousands and ruining the Country. We intended to refer at greater length to the working of the Council but want of space forbids it this week.

We regret very much that by inadvertence we omitted Mr. Leeson's Communication on the Back Country last week. We make the speediest possible amends by publishing it this week. The evils complained of in the communication cannot surely be conceived of as the work of the Government. If so the idea of a Government Boarding House is a new thing. How it has been inaugurated we cannot at present opine. We have no doubt, however, but upon proper representations to Mr. Graham, the Agent, that the evil will be removed.

FIRE.—On Saturday night, about 12 o'clock the citizens were aroused by the alarm of fire; when it was found that a house, formerly used as a tavern, nearly opposite to the residence of T. Fenety, Esq., was in flames. The house at the time was unoccupied, but immediately behind it there was a cozy spot. The fire was evidently the work of incendiaries. We did not learn whether it was insured or not. It belongs to Mrs. Lane, at present residing in New York. The loss might be about $500. We have no doubt however but that so desirable insurance company will have to foot the bill.

A ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH BURNT IN TORONTO.—On Thursday morning at half-past six, a Roman Catholic Church at the head of Dummer Street, the church and the residence of Mr. Way were both consumed. It is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. All sorts of rumors of suspicious character being seen pass are afloat. No fire had been in the building since the warm weather commenced. The buildings, which were wood, were insured to the amount of $3,800.

GOOD TIMES COMING. — We have been shown a handful of this year's wheat by James Edwards, Esq., grown on his farm (white soules). It, stands without roots, five feet ten and a half inches high, is well-headed and promises to produce an abundant return. There are good times coming. No annexation yet. There is plenty more like the above.

A farmer from Cavan request us to contradict the prevailing error, that this crop promises to be more than a full one. He thinks it will not be more than a medium crop; and advises caution and economy for fear. The advice is good. It would be wisdom to take it, let the crops turn out as they may.

We are informed by a gentleman from Minden, that the crops in that region look splendid. They have rain enough this year. The people are looking forward with joyful expectations.

A serious accident occurred on the Great Western Railway. A heavy excursion train from Liverpool to London, containing nearly 1,000 passengers, upset near Shrewsbury; 14 were killed and about 60 seriously injured.

Moved by Mr. Pearce, and seconded by Mr. Chout, That having seen in the Lindsay Advocate in the reported proceedings of County Council of the County of Victoria a statement purporting to be made by the Warden of that County, that while in Peterborough on business he had met the Warden, and several members of the Peterborough County Council, and found "that they did not intend hearing their proportion of the expense involved in making the necessary repairs to the Little Bob Bridge," This Council on behalf of the Warden and members distinctly repudiate any such view or expressions as are herein attributed to them, and state that no application has yet been made to the Council for aid in repairing the Little Bob Bridge by any person whatsoever, and further that this Council has always shown a readiness to contribute one half the expenses in repairing the Bridges on the Boundry line between the Counties in repair. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Grover, and seconded by Mr. Ingram, That the By-law to authorize the levying and collecting of County rates be now read a first time. Carried.

By-law read in Committee of the whole without amendment.

Moved by Mr. Ingram, and seconded by Mr. Birdsall, That the By-law to authorize the levying and collecting of County rates be now read a third time and passed.

On motion of Mr. Birdsall a By-law to pay certain accounts and claims was passed.

A motion of Mr. Pearce to grant five hundred dollars to any individual or company who should dig the first test well of 1,000ft. for petroleum or salt, was lost.

Messrs. Walton and Carnegie were appointed a committee, to be associated with the Warden, to attend to any business that may require their attention from one session to another.

On motion of Mr. Ingram, the Warden and advisory committee were authorized to have some necessary grading done to the gaol wood yard; and also some of said earth that may be removed, placed on the bare spots of the grounds in front of the Court House.

The Council adjourned to meet on Tuesday the third day of October next, at 12 o'clock, noon.

WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

GENTLEMEN.—We have now met in the most important session of the year. The financial affairs of the County demand your careful consideration. The practice of discounting notes to raise money for County purposes is not either legal or prudent, and should only be resorted to as a temporary accommodation; and means should be provided to retire all notes discounted within the current year. An examination of the Treasurer's accounts shows that a very large amount has been paid for discounts during the past few years. I trust that Measures will be adopted during the present session to place the finances of the county in a more satisfactory position.

The By-law published by order of the Council is said to be illegal on account of the amount of the assessment rolls for 1863 having been taken as the basis for laying on the yearly rate. It will be for you to consider whether it will not be advisable to drop this By-law altogether and to pass one which shall be more in accordance with the requirements of the County.

Having been directed by the Council to have one half the bridge across the Otonabee river at Peterborough newly planked, and to request the Corporation of the town of Peterborough to plank the other half. I made application to the Town Council, and they desired that I should get the whole of the bridge planked, and promised to pay one half of the expense. I agreed for the work to be done, supposing that it would be necessary to have it done as soon as the winter was over, but on the breaking up of the winter I found the planking of the bridge better than anticipated and I have not yet got the new planking done, but it will be necessary to have it done before the fall. I find the pier above the bridge repaired and made secure for the spring at a small outlay, and it will require to be substantially repaired before the next winter.

The Commissioner of Crown Lands has consented that the Department shall assume the making of the road through the Township of Harvey, and relieve the County from further liability respecting it, upon the payment of the sum of $1500 voted by the Council, which must be raised and placed to the credit of the Department as soon as possible

The Inspectors of Prisons have examined the improvements recently made in the jail and yards, and their report of the whole work is very satisfactory. They suggested several alterations and additions which are now in progress. As there has been a very large amount laid out in making additions, alterations and improvements in the County buildings during the past few years, I trust the County will be relieved from any considerable expenditure in that way for some time to come.

I trust that the Council will enter at once upon the business of the session, and not leave the most important matters to be hurried through in the last day as has sometimes been the case.

(Signed)
ROBT. D. ROGERS,
Warden.

POLICE COURT.—On Thursday last, Mr. Redmond, of Hunter Street, was, on complaint of Constable Arnott, brought before Jas. Edwards, Esq., at the Police Court, to answer to a charge of assault on a boy named "Anthony," which said assault was committed on one of the streets of this town, on Wednesday. Mr. Redmond, in answer to the charge, said it was a work of necessity; he was compelled to knock the boy down to stop his mouth. He also complained that while he was chastising the boy, the Chief Constable came up, and asked him why he was abusing the lad? He (Redmond) told him he could not help it: as he was afraid the boy might knock his (Redmond's) brains out. Mr. Arnott replied "it would not be any loss, as the kind of brains possessed by Mr. Redmond were worthless." Chief Constable Arnott's evidence was corroborated by other creditable witnesses; and the Magistrate imposed a fine of $5 and costs, about $3, to be paid forthwith. In due course of time, a notice was served, and Redmond paying no attention thereto, a Distress Warrant was issued, and placed in the hands of Mr. Arnott, who repaired to Mr. Redmond's place of business,—and after receiving a considerable amount of abuse from Redmond and other members of his family, the fine and costs (by this time was $1.25 more) were paid, and the Constable left him to meditate on his want of prudence, as well as a certain other necessary engredient of the cranium,—which the Chief Constable does not value at a high rate.

MARRIAGE WITH A CONDITION.—A curious case is reported from the Transvaal Republic. One De Villiers—who left a wife in the colony—married again at Rustenberg, but the bandrest, in marrying him, imposed the condition that he should, within six months, produce proof of his having a divorce from his first wife, or otherwise, the second marriage should be declared null and void.—South African Advertiser.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Monday, June 26, 1865.

Present: His Worship the Mayor, Messrs. Teole, Whyte, Stevenson, Williams, Helm, Ormond, McNaughton, Chambers, Leonard, Chamberlen, Burnham and Lawson.

Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from Hon. Billa Flint, addressed to the Mayor, stating that he had sent ten dollars for the purpose of being appropriated to purchase books to be awarded as prizes to the common school in the Town, provided the council appropriate a like sum for the same purpose, otherwise the sum to be returned to him.

A communication from J. W. Fitzgerald, was read, stating that a poor woman named Dennison was in destitute circumstances who was desirous to get to Quebec and asking the council to provide her with a pass for that purpose.

A petition from Mrs. Haslehurst and others, asking for a sidewalk on Stewart street, was read and received.

A report from the Finance Committee was read by the chairman, and after some discussion it was received and adopted. It is as follows:

Your Committee on Finance beg to report:

The petition from Mr. D. Hopkins, praying for a remission of rent, for a lot by him, from the Commissioners. "Your Committee beg to state that they have power over the lease, and knowing the Commissioners will do what is correct; your Committee decline to interfere."

The petition of Mr Thomas White, respecting the portion of money due to him as Inland Revenue Inspector: Your Committee would remark that the law is very clear as regards his duty.

In reporting on the claim of Chief Constable, William Arnott, $30, for ringing the Bell to June 1 of this year; Your Committee would remind this Council that a Report presented to them from a Special Committee appointed to report on the salary and duties of the Chief Constable, in which Report it was stated the whole of the time of the Chief Constable was to be devoted to the Town, consequently, they must decline recommending the claim.

Mr. Hillard's acct. $27.65, for lumber; Your Committee find there is a supposed difference of measurement, consequently the defer the account till next meeting. Your Committee recommend the following accounts to be paid, viz: Lewis Glover, $5.49; G. Stethem, $5.60; H. Nex, $10 40; P. Arnott, $7.80; sundry items for carting and labor, $3.50; George Johnston, 9 nights as watch, $9.

All of which is respectively submitted.

(Signed) CHAS. ORMOND,
JAS. STEVENSON,
E. CHAMBERLEN,
W. TOOLE.

Moved by Mr. Stevenson and seconded by Mr. Lawson, That the the thanks of the Council be given to the Hon. Billa Flint, for the grant of ten dollars, to assist in purchasing books, to be given as prizes to the Common School, and that the terms on which the grant is made, be accepted and acted upon by this Council. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Ormond, seconded by Mr. Helm, That the Chief constable be directed to order 2,000ft of plank to repair the side walk damaged by the late fire on Sunday morning last; also fifteen scantling of 15 feet each. Carried.

Mr McNaughton gave notice that he would introduce at the next meeting of the Council a motion for the payment of the account of the fire company.

Moved by Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Williams, That Widow Denison receive the sum of six dollars, to assist her in returning to her friends in Quebec.

Moved by Mr. Williams, seconded by Mr. Helm, That the Mayor do issue his proclamation ordering the chief constable to kill all dogs found running at large without muzzles in this Town, after the 10th day of July, next until the 10th day of September, next. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr Whyte, That the late Mayor, Chas. Percy, Esq., be paid the salary due to the Mayor up to the end of the present quarter, and that the resolution on the Minute Book of this council, bearing date the 3rd day of April, of the present year, be rescinded: and we do now declare the said resolution void. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Williams, seconded by Mr. Helm, That the chief constable be authorized to purchase 1,000ft of plank for the repairing of a sidewalk opposite to Mr. Tunnicliffe's lot, on Hunter Street, under the superintendence of the chief constable. Carried

Moved by Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Chambers, That William Arnott, the chief constable, be directed to prosecute all parties selling intoxicating liquors without having paid their license; and that the fines collected be paid to the Town. Carried.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Lawson, the council adjourned for four weeks.

THE BACK COUNTRY.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner

MR. EDITOR.—I beg leave to trespass on your for the insertion of a few lines in your valuable paper, with regard to the doings on the Bobcaygeon Road; and in so doing I wish to make no statement that is untrue.

That there was a considerable amount of money granted by our Government, and a commissioner appointed, and the work progressing in a favorable manner, and that the settlers were employed in preference to any others—you know, I presume, better than I do, for the action taken in the matter by the Government the thanks of the settler is due. You might then say we ought not to be fault-finding; but I think otherwise, and for this reason we ask is it right to compel, suppose as is the case, a man with family of three or four (as the case may be) in number, and pay at the rate of $2 20c a week for his board in the place set apart for that purpose, which is, of course, good enough for any backwoodsman; we ask what remuneration is left to the settler after deducting his board bill; there is just the sum of $2.90 cents, exactly 40 cents more than he pays for his own board for seven days. But then we have not deducted lost time nor spoken of the fact that a man must find his own spade and shovel, and also his own bedding apparatus, or take the cold, cold ground for it. On the whole we think it is not very encouraging. We have no wish to find fault with our government or with Mr. Graham, the Commissioner of the road, for many of his endeavors to do good are praiseworthy, and he no doubt acts according to instructions given him. But we fearlessly say that if these same parties who framed and put into execution, these rules which compel the settler to pass his own door and sit at the stranger's table, were placed in the same position which they compel others to occupy, they would then know and feel its grievance. A free country is this: no we think not; the fact before us and some others call us it is not.—Who could invite his friends to come and possess land in a country where the laws are made for the few and the many never thought of. I think I may with safety say that their does not appear in it much of that oft spoken of liberty which Canadians so often hear and speak of, and which receives so much attention (we say it with respect) from some of our honorable gentlemen in high places on particular occasions. It is a small matter to write about, but one that effects many a poor man who is struggling with poverty and distress, to hew out a living for self and family in this hard land.—As to what we have said or may say being the means of having the grievance removed, we have not the remotest idea, for few in our adopted country care for the poor; they bind heavy burdens on their fellow men but will not raise the tip of their finger to ease them.. We have said more than we intended, and perhaps may in some way suffer for it, but it is truth, and we do not fear; it is not the thoughts of one man but of nearly all in the back country, that are here expressed. Fearing that we are trespassing to far on you, Mr. Editor, we will conclude with the wish that the time may speedily come when the voice of the oppressor will be no more heard in its broadest sense in any land.

I am, sir,
Your obd't. servt.
WILLIAM LEESON.

Extensive Conflagration at Pres-De-Ville, Quebec.

GREAT DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY—FIVE HUNDRED FAMILIES HOUSELESS.

From Quebec we learn some after mid-day on the 21 inst., a fire broke out in a building at Pres-de-Ville, near the Bishop's school-house. The wind, rather strong, being strong from the south-west, the fire swept along the narrow street, hardly wide enough to admit two carriages passing each other, both sides of this narrow street falling a prey before the all-devouring flames, the houses in that locality being thickly inhabited from cellar to garret principally by the labouring classes. It was most distressing to witness the unfortunate people flying with their household effects, men, women and children sinking under the burdens. The police force and firemen were early on the spot, the military of the different corps soon following at the double from their barracks. Owing to the confusion of the locality all communication from one side to the other of the conflagration being severed by the high barrier of Cape Diamond and the river—little could be done to stay the progress of the fire, which was fed by the numerous wooden houses and out buildings. All classes seemed to go heartily to work, the Mayor, amongst others, doing his utmost to encourage the firemen. At four o'clock the fire was still in full and destructive sway. At five o'clock the burning houses were blown up. Two carts laden with barrels of gunpowder, to blow up the houses and stop the progress of the fire, were used. It appears that the fire commenced at the house of Mr. Tucker, a tailor, on the river side of Champlain street, near the Bishops school. Having worked a few houses to the windward, the flames were then carried by the wind and fired both sides of Champlain street, and increased with great violence; and, travelling east, reached the Plessant property, next to Martin's, which is the last block in that part of Champlain street, adjoining the square place in the rocks. Every house on both sides of the street as well as all the tenements on the wharves, is consumed; the large stone building belonging to Miles O'Brien, the city councillor, excepted; this is the fourth escape of this building from surrounding fires. The water police were most efficient in the services rendered, and they had five boats at work, and carried out a number of women and helpless children, placing some on schooners and others on wharves at a distance. They also saved much property. Fortunately, there has been no loss of life heard of, but many narrow escapes from the daring efforts of the firemen. The artillery arrived on the scene at about four o'clock at full speed, with ammunition to make an explosion. From Flanagan's wharf down to the Montreal steamship wharf, every tier of shipping has slipped its mooring and gone into the stream. The present calculation is that there are at least two hundred houses burnt, including the tenements on the wharves.

It is impossible to say the number of houses consumed, but 100 is the lowest estimate, for there were many buildings on the wharves, besides those on the street. The extent of the fire is almost half a mile. Five hundred families at least are homeless. The loss falls upon the poorer classes, who are nearly all uninsured. The destruction of furniture has been immense, although much has been saved by boats, steamers, &c., on the river side. The view of the fire from the river afforded the most correct idea of its extent. Boats were in general requisition for spectators, hundreds sailing about opposite the devastated locality. Several wharves were destroyed, together with the coals on them. No injury done to the shipping, the many vessels at the wharves having been moored in time by the tug-boats. The military are rendered all possible assistance. The loss to the insurance companies will be great. We have heard of one company alone which suffers to the amount of forty thousand dollars.

The loss is roughly estimated at one million of dollars. The burnt distance extends from Bishop's School to within about six houses of the various space under the citadel.

The insurance companies withhold returns of their losses, except the "Quebec Fire" office, which loses $800 on one policy, the "Imperial" $800, and the "Queen" $10,000. The remainder close to give any information.

The distance devastated by the fire is about one-third of a mile.

The amounts of insurance on property destroyed by the late fire approximates as follows:—"Royal," $30,000; "Globe," $12,

"THE DEAD ALIVE AGAIN!"

We find the above startling and highly objectionable sentence at the head of an advertisement in a newspaper published in the town of Stratford, C. W. It is followed by the announcement that the advertiser having purchased his stock at a very low figure, he is determined to dispose of it equally cheap.—Further down in the very same column may be found the explanation. It is in these words, and refers to the same advertiser:—"A deed of composition and discharge having been filed in my office by the insolvent, creditors are informed," &c., &c. One would think that the insolvent would have got fairly out of Bankruptcy before he announced himself again to the world in such a shape as the above; but failing has become so fashionable in some localities, that there is not much sense of the proprieties left. Besides which, our friend has doubtless got a good bargain out of his creditors, he is anxious to make the most of it, and does not hesitate to adopt the earliest and most effective means to tell his luck be known. "The dead alive again" is the key-note with which he sounds the success of a liberal compromise, and the low prices at which he can comfortably afford to give his goods away. Of course any one understands that no legitimate trader, honestly endeavouring to pay twenty shillings in the pound, can afford to sell goods as cheap. It can't be done, and the people know it; depend upon it, our friend, who has had a commercial reverse too, will do a roaring season's trade. His store will be crowded, while that of others more deserving will be deserted. His sales will foot up largely every day, his profits be good; while those of the fair-dealing merchant will dwindle and disappear.

This is but one fruit of the plentiful crop of seed which a bad system of compromises has sown. The full harvest has yet to come. It was bad enough that a large number of imprudent, incapable, and not a few dishonest, traders should have been encouraged to fail in the last half-year by the liberality with which wholesale merchants compromised their indebtedness. The evil was sufficiently painful even with these. But what will be its extent and consequences, if, with this liberality of compromising, a large number of the prudent, the capable and honest traders are forced to succumb? What other fate is in store for them, if this system is permitted to continue? Either good men will be driven out of trade, because they can make nothing at it; or, unable to successfully compete they will be forced to adopt the same plans with which to make a profit. Are our wholesale merchants prepared for a general repudiation of indebtedness? Have they made up their minds that all retailers—the good as well as the bad—shall have their obligations reduced by one-third or one half; have they made money enough in the last few years to afford the entire retail trade of the country the luxury of a liberal compromise? If they have a surplus to abundance, we are rejoiced to hear it. But if they have not, which is certainly the case, they must either cease this system of compromising for their debtors, or they will be forced to seek a similar indulgence for themselves. We speak thus strongly because we know the difficulty which all honest, legitimate traders in all sections of the country are now experiencing. With declining prices for stock, with but little money in the country, and with their obligations to meet in full at maturity, they find it utterly futile to attempt competition with parties who have got their stock at half its value, and whose obligations are reduced one-half, and who have long time in which to pay them.

The injustice of such a position to the good man, its absolute cruelty, is apparent on the merest reflection; but it is not more apparent than that such a policy is suicidal and ruinous to the importers themselves. The latter have the power in their own hands of stopping a system that is certain to sap the foundations of our financial fabric, and unless they speedily cease from encouraging every adventurer that comes along with a poor face and a poorer statement, they may make up their minds to have this class alone to deal with.

Had there been some great calamity by which many retail merchants had experienced heavy loss, there might have been some excuse for an indiscriminate reduction of indebtedness. Had losses by sea, by decline in prices, by defalcations, by bank failures, or a general collapse of consumers; had any serious circumstances affected the general standing of the trade, there might be some wisdom, some charity, in forgiving a large number a part of their indebtedness. But when it is understood that this liberality is expended upon a class that have generally either been extravagant, imprudent, incapable, or even dishonest, what, in the one case would have been a virtue, now absolutely becomes a vice. We know that there have been some compromises in the past season, which were proper and right, but we also know that at least seven out of every ten were brought about by either a lack of capability, lack of capital, or lack of character. Such compromise would supply any of these needs, there would be some sense in adopting it as a general policy; but it rather encourages an extravagance, certainly results in cutting prices to a profitless level, and begets a recklessness and immorality that is destructive of the best interests of the trade.—Trade Review

THE FORTIFICATIONS AT LEVIS.—Active steps are being taken in connection with the proposed fortifications at Levis. The highest point of ground in the town has been purchased by the War Department, and the Royal Engineers have taken possession. This site, which is now occupied by a handsome villa, is almost directly opposite the Citadel of Quebec. It is understood that it will be occupied by the central or principal triangular fort, which is to form one of the defences of the south shore of the river. Colonel Shore's house and two lots of ground close to the Church of St. Joseph de Levis have also been purchased by the War Department. Arrangements are said to be in progress for the purchase of a narrow strip of ground nearly three miles in length, extending from the Church of St Joseph to a point immediately opposite the Citadel of Quebec, upon which will be thrown up a line of entrenchment along the brow of the cliff.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY
IN CANADA.

The following testimony from a well known and highly respected Merchant of Prescott, is corroborative of the general approval given to Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY:

PRESCOTT, C. W., Dec 8th, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Co., Boston.

Gentlemen:—

Being solicited by your Travelling Agent, for an expression of opinion of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, I with pleasure assert that it is, in my belief, the best remedy before the public for coughs and pulmonary complaints.

Having tested the article with myself and family, in case of severe coughs and colds, for years, with uniform and unexceptionable success, I unhesitatingly recommend it, with full confidence in its merits.

Yours truly,
ALFRED HOOKER.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of twenty thousand dollars for the purpose therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $20,000 in constructing, making and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $20,000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $2,200 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality of the said County of Peterborough, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the temporary investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised assessment rolls of the said Municipality, is the sum of $2,360,228.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of $20,000 and interest, as hereinafter mentioned, it will require an equal annual special rate of one mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same, upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $20,000, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than $100 each and not to exceed in the whole the said sum of $20,000; and that the said debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden and counter-signed by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable in 20 years at the furthest from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first day of April and the first day of October in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon, an equal special rate of one mill in the dollar shall, in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the rateable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the 5th day of October, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at its Council Chamber in the Court House, in the said County, on Tuesday, the 3rd day of October, 1865, at the hour of 12 of the clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

HOMŒOPATHY.

HOMŒOPATHY AND LIFE ASSURANCE.—The directors of a London life assurance office—the "General Provident"—at its recent meeting have placed on record their opinion "that persons be treated by the Homœopathic system enjoy more robust health, are less frequently attacked by disease, and when attacked recover more rapidly than those treated by any other system; that with respect to the more fatal classes of disease the mortality under Homœopathy is small in comparison with that of Allopathy; but there are diseases not curable at all under the latter system, which are perfectly curable under the former; finally, that the medicines prescribed by Homœopathists do not injure the constitution, whereas that so employed by Allopaths not unfrequently entail the most serious, and in many instances fatal, consequences." The directors further propose to summon a special meeting of the shareholders to lay before them the facts they have collected, and the decision at which they have arrived, namely, "to open a special section for persons treated by the Homœopathic system, at a lower rate of premium than that charged on other lives."—London (Eng.) Observer.—Toronto Globe.

DR. POOLE, (Water st., Peterborough,) is a Graduate and Licentiate of both the Allopathic and Homœopathic schools, and confidently recommends the latter system of treatment, as by far the safest and most successful, in both Acute and Chronic diseases.

AMERICAN
Button-hole, Cording, Braiding and Embroidering
SEWING MACHINE COMPANY,
627 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK

THE BUTTON HOLE made by this entirely simple and novel machine are not only equal to the best hand-made in the point of right side, but greatly surpassing them in beauty on the wrong side, which is formed by a beautiful braid stitch, made by an extra stitch, which no hand made button-hole possesses, thereby imparting to the same a much greater strength, which renders cording or darning altogether unnecessary.

One Needle and Two Threads are only Used.

Unlike other Sewing Machines it manufactures its own Braid and Cord.

The best Merchant Tailors freely admit that its beauty, finish and strength cannot be attained by the most skilful hand.

Simplicity is one of its great merits, therefore not liable to get out of order, and it can be worked with ease by any young lady, who will, after a few days' experience, make from 1,000 to 1,200 perfect button-holes in one day.

This is the only machine produced that will throw a stitch over the edge, so as to bind and cover it in a manner indispensible for Button-holes, Cording and Braiding, each of which can be done with colored, shaded or chine silks, and produce a fabrique of varied colors unexcelled for beauty and taste.

To Ladies at home, Dress, Mantilla and Cloak makers, Shoemakers, Tailors, Hatters, Bookbinders, Saddlers, &c., &c., it is indispensable; it is also admitted to be of great value, to other branches as it Braids, Embroiders, and Cords plain and fancy on all kinds of Cloths, Cassimers, Linen, Velvet Leather, &c., &c.

Instructions and Needles accompany each Machine.

Every Machine is Warranted for Twelve Months.

Machines can be seen in full operation at our spacious Store, 627 Broadway, near Bleaker, where Instruction Rooms are reserved for Ladies.

P.S.—A novel patented BUTTON-HOLE Cutter for sale which shall in all cases accompany a Button Hole Machine.

PIANO-FORTES.
DRISSE'S NEW PATENT.

ARE THE ONLY INSTRUMENTS constructed on a truly scientific principle. They have greater strength, and will remain longer in tune than any other Piano. The construction is simple and natural, all the extraneous lumber in the body of the instrument is dispensed with; the sound boards are merely two arched planks of thin wood, like the front and back of a violin; the strings are attached to a massive Iron frame, which is separate and entirely independent of the case, thereby dispensing with the old heavy frame of stringing by substituting straight bridges, preserving at the same time The Over Strung Beam, of which Mr Dawson is the inventor. By these improvements we get much more vibratory power, at the same time preserving all its purity and richness of tone.

They have received the highest testimonials from the Press, and all the principal musicians in the country, among which are:

Harry Sanderson,	L. M. Gottschalk,
Max Maretzek,	S. Thalberg,
Theodore Eisfeld,	Wm. Mason,
Herman Wollenhaupt,	A. Barili
Francis H. Brown,	M. Strakosch,
Wm. Henry Fry.	Charles Fradel

Mr. SIGISMUND THALBERG, the great pianist, says:—I have examined your new Piano-forte and I cordially approve of its system of construction. Its principle, by which great increase of vibratory power is obtained, being very simple and perfectly philosophic. The tone is grand and noble; it has great capacity for sustaining the sound or singing, and its volume of tone or power I have never had excelled in depth, purity and sympathetic oneness.

Wm. HENRY FRY, late musical critic of the N. Y. Tribune says:—I have examined your newly invented Piano-Fortes. They merit all the praise given to them by Messrs Thalberg, Gottschalk, Strakosch, Mason and others. As regards the structure, they are original and philosophical; in purity, volume, and continuity of tone; in vocal verisimilitude, that commanding excellence which enables the pianists to "sing" on the instrument. Your Pianos deserve the highest rank. Your invention, in my opinion, is destined to work radical changes in the manufacture of Pianos throughout the world.

From the N. Y. Herald, Sept. 5—Upon a careful examination of Dawes Piano-Forte, we find the results obtained are a very fine singing tone, great purity and battery throughout the entire instrument, not often found in Pianos constructed upon the old plan.

The N. Y. Times, July 13, says:—We have now an instrument without an equal. It rivals sing with a smoothe delicacy, perfectly maintainable on any other instrument, an ordinary player obtains with no exertion, the fullness of a Grand Piano Forte and they must speedily supercede the old styles.

GENTLEMEN:—Having thoroughly examined and tested the Piano-Fortes invented and patented by Mr S. B. Dawes, I am of the opinion that the tone resulting from his improvements as exhibited in the instruments under examination, in point of richness, depth and brilliancy, equals that of the best Grand Piano-Fortes, and excells them in pure, musical and sensual tone power thus approximating closer to what I consider perfection in the instrument than has been achieved by any other system of music.

Yours respectfully,
L. M. GOTTSCHALK

GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN
SEWING MACHINES.
EMPIRE SHUTTLE MACHINE!

PATENTED FEB. 14th, 1860.

Salesrooms, { 536 Broadway, New York, / 252 Washington St., Boston.

THIS MACHINE is constructed on entirely new principles of mechanism, possessing many rare and valuable improvements, having been examined by the most profound experts, and pronounced to be

Simplicity and Perfection Combined.

It has a straight needle, perpendicular motion, makes the lock or shuttle stitch which will neither rip nor ravel, and is alike on both sides; performs perfect sewing on every description of material, from leather to the finest Nainsook muslin, with cotton, linen or silk thread, from the coarsest to the finest number. Having neither CAM nor COGWHEEL, and the least possible friction, it runs as smooth as glass and is

Emphatically a Noiseless Machine.

It requires FIFTY PER CENT less power to drive it than any other Machine in the market. A girl twelve years of age can work it steadily, without fatigue or injury to health.

Its strength and Wonderful Simplicity of construction renders it almost impossible to get out of order, and is GUARANTEED by the Company to give entire satisfaction.

We respectfully invite all those who may desire to supply themselves with a superior article, to come and examine the Unrivalled Machine.

But in a more especial manner do we elicit the patronage of

Merchant Tailors,	Corset Makers,
Coach Makers,	Gaiter Fitters,
Hoop Skirt Manufacturers,	Shoe Binders,
Shirt and Bosom Makers.	Vest and Pantaloon Makers,
	Dress Makers

PRIC

THE GOOD BYE.

George—George!

Well, what's wanting now?

The young husband turned back the door knob, and there was impatience in his tone, and annoyance on his brow as he answered his wife's call.

Nothing, pape, only baby and I want to kiss you good bye, and she came up toward him, the little, grateful, sweet-voiced woman with the baby in her arms, and held up the small, soft face to his cheeks, and and the little one crowed, and thrust up its dimpled hands, and clutched the short, thick locks triumpantly.

Oh, baby, you rogue, you'd like to pull out a handful of pape's hair, wouldn't you now? laughed the merchant, in a tone so unlike the former, that you would not have recognised it, and he leaned down and kissed the small, fragrant lips over and over.

Now it's my turn, pape, and Mrs. Reynold's smoothed away the rumpled hair, and kissed her husband's forehead; and as he went out of the house that morning, a new softness and peace had erased the troubled look from the man's face. And that day it was appointed to George Reynold's to pass through a sharp and fearful temptation. He was in the midst of a commercial crisis, and several of his commercial debtors had failed that week, and now a payment of ten thousand dollars was due, and there was no way to raise this sum unless——

He held the pen irresolutely in his shaking hand, the veins were swollen into great blue cords on his forehead, and the breath came thick and fast betwixt his hot lips; a few scrawls of the pen, a solitary name at the bottom, and the young merchant could secure the ten thousand dollars, and his business credit would be safe. There was no sort of doubt, too, but he could raise the money in a few days, and thus secure himself from discovery, and the pressing circumstances in the case certainly allowed some liberties in financiering.

So whispered the tempter, as he walked up and down the soul of George Reynolds always softening down the word forgery into some false name, which totally changed to his perceptions the moral complexion of the deed he was about to commit. The young merchant's eyes glared around his office, but there was no one to see him then; he dipped his pen with a kind of desperate eagerness into a tall porcelian inkstand, and drew it along the paper, when suddenly his hand paused, struck by a thought—the memory of his wife's kiss that morning. He saw her as he saw her last, standing in the door, the baby in her arms, her sweet face full of motherly tenderness and wifely trust, as she lifted it to him at parting; the voice of the tempter passed away before the rush of better emotion which blurred the man's eyes, he dashed down the pen. Mary! Mary! you have saved your husband. Sink or swim I will not do this deed; I should blush for shame to meet your eyes and our baby' together, if I carry the burning consciousness in my own soul, though no other man did or would. Mary, my little wife, you won't know it, but that good bye of yours has saved me from this great sin.'

George Reynolds did not sink. It was a hard struggle but the storm passed by without telling on him as it did on many others, and Mary, his wife, never knew that she had saved her husband from a sin which in her eyes would have been worse than death.

The good which we have done we shall know, not here, but hereafter, and the best and truest lives are those which strew all the years with the sweet aroma of loving and self-sacrificed deeds.

Guess I Won't.

While passing down Wall street, New York, several years ago, my attention was arrested by two boys who stood near a basket of pears, which a poor old man had left for a moment on the side walk, while he entered a house to obtain a morsel to eat.

'Bob, take one,' said one of the boys.

Bob looked up the street and down, stepped nearer the basket, then moving suddenly back he said—

'Guess I won't.'

'Guess you'd better not,' said I.

'Thank you,' said he, 'I did feel like taking one, but now I don't want it.

Ten years later, while examining some articles in a shop window in Vine street, Cincinnatti a clerk presented himself, and while waiting for me to make a selection, he was accosted by his next door neighbor with these words—

'Bob, do you stand to your bet?'

'Well' said he, rather hesitatingly, 'I don't know, I guess I won't.

'Guess you'd better not,' said I.

'Thank you,' said he, 'I'll take your advice.'

Five years later, and but a few days ago, while in a store on Canal street, a gentleman came in and addressed one of the firm as follows—

'A cold day, Bob, business dull; let's go over and take a glass of egg nog.'

'Why, Mr. L., are you not aware that I am about joining the Sons?'

'I've heard so, but don't believe it.'

'It's a fact,

'You have not joined yet?'

'No; but I have been proposed.'

'Well, it will not injure you to take your bitters until you do join, and perhaps the cold weather will be over by that time.

'But you know, Mr. L., it has been some thing of an effort for me to break off and if I taste again, it may have a tendency to renew my old appetite.'

'O, come along, no more nonsense; you might have been over and back by this time; it will do you good this cold morning, and you can talk afterwards.

'Well, I don't know,' said he taking up his hat, 'but I guess I won't. No, Mr. L., I will not go.'

'Guess you'd better not,' said I.

'Now stop a moment, and I'll tell you something very strange. This is the third time in my life that I have been deterred from doing wrong, by the same words, spoken by a female voice. Once by a little girl, next by a young lady, and now by this lady.'

'Is it not,' said he turning to me, very strange?

'It is,' said I; but would it not be more so, if in every instance the words had been uttered by the same voice?'

'It would indeed' said he, 'for they were spoken in different parts of the United States.'

I then related the incident of the pears and hat. He said that he was the man; I was much surprised at this, as were others present, and believed that its very singularity renders it worthy of notice. It also shows how much good a few words, spoken at a proper time, and in a proper spirit, may do.

A West Indian, who had a remarkably fiery nose, had fallen asleep in his chair, and a negro boy who was in waiting, observed a musquito hovering round his face. Quashy eyed the insect very attentively; at last he saw him alight on his master's nose, and instantly fly off again. "Yah, yah," he exclaimed in great glee, "me berry glad to see you burn your fat."

SEWING MACHINES!
FINKLE & LYON'S
NEW PATENT ROTARY FEED
Sewing Machines.

The following facts demonstrate that these Machines comprise the highest improvements in the Sewing Machine Art, viz:

1. Each Machine is guaranteed to give better satisfaction than any other Sewing Machine in Market, or money refunded.
2. They have taken many of the highest premiums at the most important Exhibitions and fairs ever held in the United States
3. They make the lock stitch alike on both sides—thus saving more than half the thread and silk used in the raveling-ridge-seams of the loop stitch and single-thread Sewing Machines.
4. They are adapted to the widest range of heavy and light sewing.
5. They have no rattling wires, or delicate attachments to keep in repair.

See what the most popular and widely circulated periodicals say of our Establishment:

From the "Dispatch" of February 25, 1865.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the announcement of Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, Silver Ware, and Fancy Goods, in our advertising columns. We are personally acquainted with the members of this firm and know them to be gentlemen of sterling worth and integrity. Their stock of goods, for variety and extent, we have scarcely seen paralleled.

From the "Mirror of Fashion," March 1, 1865.

Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, etc, opened on the 15th ult., and we venture to say that no finer display of goods was ever exhibited by any establishment in this city. The ladies thronged their bazaar almost to suffocation, although the streets were rendered nearly impassable by the melted snow and slush We predict for them a wonderful success.

From the "Ledger," February 28, 1865.

Our lady friends should visit the extensive establishment of Messrs. Devaugh & Co, No. 15 Maiden Lane, if they wish to indulge themselves with a sight which they will long remember. Such a profusion of elegant Watches, Chains, Rings, Earrings, and, in short, of Jewelry of every name, kind and description, we never before witnessed. Their silver and plated ware is superb and on entering into the other splendid establishments which have long been the boast of our city. It is estimated that their stock is worth not less than one million of dollars.

The Folly of the Ridge and Furrow System

We make the following extract from Bell's Weekly Messenger, premising that the paper, of which it forms a part, was read before the Wigtown Farmers' Club. Mr. R. Jeffreson, of Preston House, Wigtonshire:—"Now for a bit on the barbarous custom of ploughing our land into ridges. Can any practical man tell me the use of it on any land which is thoroughly drained? And we all know it as a waste of capital to cultivate undrained land, and that no man with common sense will attempt it. To illustrate the folly of the ridge and furrow system, I will take, for example, a fallow field. We have it measured with farm yard dung, and ploughed into ridges; and, after sowing with wheat we water furrow it, and do all we can to facilitate the quickest escape of the surface water. What is the result? Why, the first heavy rainfall washes away the very essence of the dung. You may see the rich brown fluid floating off the field like a stream of liquid manure (which in fact it is), and making its escape to the nearest river thus polluting our waters with the material which we intended to enrich our soils. Now, supposing we plough our land as level as possible, and have no water furrows in it what would be the effect? The rain water would gradually percolate down to the drains and thus legitimately make its escape in a limpid stream, having been purified by passing through that best of filters, mother earth I could enumerate many other evils attending upon the ridge and furrow system, besides its unsightly appearance. The land is more liable to drought; the grain does not ripen equally; it militates against the free use of machinery; and the furrows act as so many traps to catch our sheep, where we will find them, feet in the air, and unable to rise. Indeed, the loss of many a good sheep can be attributed to no other cause. I shall feel obliged to any gentleman who will tell me what advantages we derive from adhering to this old-fashioned custom, which can compensate for the evils I have enumerated."

Kindness to Cows.

A correspondent of the Farmer writes on this subject as follows:—"Cows should always be treated kindly, and as far as possible always have the same milker. If a cow or heifer persist in kicking under kind treatment, take a small rope and quietly fasten it around the opposite fore foot, thence bring it over the back to hang by the milker; when she kicks again, will out saying a word, draw her foot up to her belly. You can now handle her as you please.—She will struggle to release her foot, but to no purpose, and will soon crouch to the floor. Now let her get up again, and pet her a little. If she makes a fuss again repeat the operation as often, and you will soon find that she will not move a foot while you are milking, unless there be some irritating cause like sore teats or sharp finger nails. One thing I regard as imperatively demanded for success in the management of stock, viz: never allow a cow to be kicked or in any way abused by hired help. Whatever good qualities a man may have, better part with him at once if found disobeying orders in this respect. The practice has become common and should be broken up. The annual losses from this source are immense. If every dairy-man would make it a rule t at his milch cows must be treated kindly, and that no excuse can be taken for blows and kicks, and that no person would be employed who maltreats stock, the whole country would be greatly benefitted. We have known of valuable animals being lost by a kick, and others rendered valueless for the season by an apparently slight thump of the milking stool, from bad tempered persons. Laborers of this kind are dangerous, and the sooner one is rid of them the better. Much can be effected in this respect by good example, for if the owner so far forgets himself as to abuse stock, he cannot expect the men in his employ to do otherwise.

WORKING OXEN.—I have long found that in all heavy farming operations oxen are most useful, and am convinced every farmer with one hundred acres of arable land, could work one or two pair to great advantage; for deep plowing, oxen will draw greater weights and are as quick as horses. In lighter operations the horse surpasses them in speed but every improvement in agriculture now tends to deep, consequently slow work, and until steam is adapted to drawing our implements, oxen will be most useful. They cost much less to keep, and improve daily in value; they are easily broken in, may be worked for a few months during a busy season of the year and then fed off. The application of steam to our threshing machines, turnip and chaff cutters, and the railways lessening the distances at which many deliver their grain, has diminished the winter work of many farmers' horses. Oxen would, in these cases, prove very beneficial in summer. I know one large occupier who commonly buys every spring four or six pairs of working oxen, uses them until all the turnips are sown and cleaned, and then, fee'ing them off his stalks; and by this course has his work done at two-thirds less cost than by keeping a large number of horses. As a practical farmer, I should be very sorry to be without some oxen as auxiliaries to my horse teams.—E. W. Wilmot, in the London Gardeners' Chronicle.

ANIMALS COOLING OFF.—Men and horses are the only animal that have the double means of refrigeration; all others have but one. No other beings sweat like men and horses, and therefore cannot cool themselves by perspiring through the skin. This will be found true throughout the whole range of practical anatomy, and applies to the largest as well as the smallest animals. None of the thick skinned animals except the horse have pores in the skin to exhale heat by perspiration, it being only a secretive surface. All the cloth feet species, including those with feet and toes rounded and unprovided with claws—the rhinoceros, elephant, bison, mastodon, buffalo, swine, ox deer, lion, tiger, bear, wolf fox, squirrel dormouse, opossum,—all like dogs have no means of cooling themselves when heated except through the medium of respiration. Thus the ox when very hot, thrusts out his tongue and pants to exhale the heat generated by exercise; and if driven with out time being allowed for this, he will die with the heat accumulated within him.—Hogs often die when driven too fast, because they cannot part with the generated heat.

OUT-DOOR WHITEWASH.—2 quarts skimmed milk; 2 ozs. fresh slaked lime; 5 lbs. whiting; put the lime in a stoneware vessel, pour upon it a sufficient quantity of milk to make a mixture resembling cream, and then add the balance of the milk Crumble the whiting, and spread it on the surface of the fluid. Stir or grind as you would lead paint, and apply as you do other paints. It dries quickly, and a second or third coat can be added if desired. It is moderate, does not rub off. This quantity will cover 57 square yards with one coat. It may be colored, desired, by adding coloring matter.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?
A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!
CAN BE FOUND IN
Holloway's Pills.
Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!
BY THE USE OF
Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER shape internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the ROOT OR SEED of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL AND FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs UPON THE BLOOD itself, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In wintertorm disease attacks the liver, it is compelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and invaluable curative. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c, are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c

The terrible debility and mental pangs which characterise dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, tendency to local prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of the extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Contiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Vernal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this notice cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box: the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious

☞ Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 63 cents, and $1 40 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33

GOING TO SLEEP.

From the Atlantic Monthly.

The light is fading down the sky,
The shadows grow and multiply,
I hear the thru-hee' evening song;
But I have born with toil and wrong
So long! so long!
Dim dreams my drowsy senses drown—
So, darling, kiss my eyelids down!

My life's brief spring went wanted by,—
My summer ended fruitlessly;
I learned to hunger, strive, and wait—
I found you, love—oh, happy fate!
So late, so late!
Now all my fields are turning brown,—
So, darling, kiss my eyelids down!

Oh, blessed sleep! oh, perfect rest!
Thus pillowed on your faithful breast,
Nor life nor death is wholly drear,
O tender heart, since you are here,
So dear, so dear!
Sweet love, my soul's sufficient crown!
Now, darling, kiss my eyelids down!

MRS. AKERS.

IN THE TWILIGHT.

A tall blue-eyed girl, with loose, brown curls floating away from her face like an aureole of amber brightness, and a slender throat, white and smooth as mother of pearl—that was Valentin Bruce, as she sat by the open French window, dreamily watching the sunset flame melt into opal billows of light.

And Colonel Mordaunt smoked his despairing cigar in the fragrant shadows of the shrubbery, and marvelled what fortunate mortal might be fated to buy Valentin's wedding ring, and pay her millinery bills, and be her humble slave and secretor through life.

Colonel Mordaunt tossed his cigar in among the rose acacias that skirted the lawn, and began to select a cluster of exquisite moss roses, heedless of the thorns that pierced his unaccustomed fingers.

'She likes flowers,' he soliloquized; 'and moss roses are certainly the prettiest flowers that grow. I will win a smile from those velvet lips of hers.'

He twisted a blade of plaint grass round the mossy stems, in place of a ribbon, and sauntered carelessly up the gravel walk.

All of a sudden he stopped.

'Frank Aldrick's voice!' he exclaimed, biting his lip with vexation, as a merry peal of laughter floated through the purpling twilight from the open window below.—'What brings that puppy, here, now, of all times and seasons in the world?'

'Hallo, Jack!' said Aldrich, 'been sentiment hunting out in the dew? The ladies were just fretting over the chance of your taking cold.'

No dount's face brightened up—then Valentin did think of him sometimes.

'That is,' pursued the relentless Aldrich, 'your thoughtful sister Katy said she was afraid you would have a cold, and Miss Bruce said nothing.'

Colonel Mordaunt's countenance elongated again. But he stepped forward, and laid the knot of moss roses on the folds of Valentin's white muslin dress, with a few murmured words, that nobody could understand.

'Flowers, eh?' said Frank superciliously. "Up in my word, Jack is getting prodigal!'

Valentin looked carelessly down at the cluster of pink buds then deliberately took them up, and tossed them out in the lawn.

'Explain if you please,' said Frank, composedly, while Mordaunt grew scarlet, and bit his lips until the blood start d.

'There was a worm—a horrid green worm—on one of the buds,' said Valentin, haughtily, shaking off one or two crimson petals that still adhered to her muslin dress. 'I have a perfect horror of all such noxious insects.'

'Do you hear that Jack?' appealed Mr. Aldrich, lazily turning round in his chair. "It's a pity you were so unfortunate in the selection of your floral offering.'

In Col. Mordaunt had left the room: Kate followed him the next minute.

'D arest Jack are you vexed with Frank and Valentin? They don't mean to annoy you, I am sure and—'

'Not vexed dear,' said Mordaunt, speaking slowly and sadly—'only grieved. I am sorry Miss Bruce finds me so disagreeable.

He went up stairs, while Kate hesitated a moment below.

'He is better by himself,' she said, meekly.

'Poor fellow! he's dreadfully in love, and I do wish Valentin would'n't tease him so.'

And she went into the terraced garden to gather honeysuckles for the parlor vases, and muse on her brother's manifold grievances.

'It's too bad, so it is!' she murmured, winking back the bright drops that would suffuse her hazel brown orbs. 'I shall talk seriously to Valentin about it this evening.'

Meanwhile Colonel Mordaunt stalked sulkily up stairs, into his sisters pretty little sitting room, where the muslin curtains were fluttering to and fro in the delicious night wind, and the sofa was drawn into a little recess beside a table all littered with books and magazines, and needle cases, and thimbles, and the indescribable debris which two girls invariably collect around themselves in the course of a long June afternoon.

He threw himself recklessly down on the sofa and drew the soft folds of Kate's cashmere shawl over him, as if jealous lest the soft eyes of the watching stars that were just beginning to gem the heavens should witness the struggle that convulsed his strong heart.

Not that his grief wrought itself into any external signs. No, there was neither groan nor motion. One might almost have fancied him asleep as he lay there, white and silent, with the curtains sweeping down around his motionless head.

'Katy!'

Like the tremulous coo of the wood pigeon, Valentin's voice murmured the two soft syllables with the yearning accent of a penitent child. And in the same instant she knelt down beside the sofa, her white dress sweeping over the crimson carpet like tides of translucent pearl, and one round arm thrown carelessly over the folds of the deceitful cashmere shawl.

Colonel Mordaunt's first impulse was to spring up and declare his individuality—his second to be still and let Fate manage the matter to suit her capricious self. So he lay still accordingly experiencing a very singular and not at all disagreeable sensation from the contact of the caressing arm. No doubt he was a treacherous, hypocritical wretch—but fair lady, or chivalrous gentleman, don't judge the poor fellow too harshly until you have been in precisely the circumstances yourself. It is just possible—only possible, you know—that you might do the same thing.

'Now you are angry with me, Kate?' pleaded the soft voice, 'because I threw those flowers away! And you won't speak to me! and I know I deserve it, darling!'

There was a moment's silence, as if Valentin had expected some sort of response to her pretty penitence. But she didn't get any, and so, after a brief pause, she went on:

'Indeed Katy, I don't mean to grieve you—and I wont do it again. I am so sorry for my ridiculous freak. Do you suppose he was very angry, Kitty? Do you think I ought to ask his pardon? But then you know he didn't see me steal round the lawn and pick up the roses again.'

There were strong symptoms of coming tears—a sort of quivering sob in the voice.

'You won't forgive me, Katy? Not if I tell you that I do really love your tall, stern brother? Only, Kitty, I was silly enough to want to tease him a little, and test my power over his noble heart. I love him, Katy—I may tell you of it dear without being bold, or unwomanly because you know we have so often talked about his liking me a little, and—and—oh, Katy, answer me! don't be so cold and cruel! Surely you can't be asleep!'

Valentin leaned over and drew back the folds of the shawl, her soft hand pressing lightly over the forehead below.

'Where are your lips, chere amie?' she coaxed playfully. 'I shall soon break the magic spell of silence that binds them—You know you could never keep vexed with me more than five minutes at a time. Why—where's your hair. Where—"

She sprang suddenly to her feet with a piercing scream—her wandering hand had touched the dark, heavy moustaches on Col. Mordaunt prided himself so specially

He strove to catch the hand—to detain the frightened beauty long enough to plead his cause in earnest, impassioned words, but in vain. Fear seemed literally to lend her wings.

Away, like a frightened white dove, she flew, uttering wild, hysteric screams, and nearly falling into the arms of the astounded Katy Mordaunt, who was just coming in from the starlighted garden with both hands full of dewy branches of honeysuckle.

'Valentin!' she exclaimed, dropping the spicy blossoms. 'Why what's the matter? what can have started you so dreadfully?'

'Oh, Katy, Katy!' sobbed Valentin, clinging to her friend's shoulder with nervous remembrance, 'there is a man in your room—a robber, hid g under your cashmere shawl on the sofa!' Oh I am so frightened to death!'

When Mrs. Ulric discovered this new member of her family, she was much alarmed, and begged that he might be turned out of doors at once; but her husband insisted that there was no danger in a wolf, if it was properly managed, and he was one of those who knew exactly how to manage such an animal.

"The wolf, when he first came, promised to live upon the scraps which were left from the table; but it was soon discovered that he was devouring his master's sheep every night. Yet, when this was told Mr Ulric, he absolutely refused to believe it, and said that people were only prejudiced against his poor pet. So the wolf grew bolder and bolder in his operations, and being one of the most voracious animals that was ever seen, it was not a great while before he had devoured all the sheep, hogs, calves, and poultry, about the farm besides wantonly tramping down the fields of grain when he was ranging about. In short, this destructive animal, in the space of one year, proved the ruin of his keeper; and Mr. Ulric's family were obliged to remove from their comfortable home into a poor little hut, which was furnished in a scanty and wretched manner. But what will seem most astonishing is, that Mr. Ulric actually insisted upon taking with him to their new dwelling-place the beast who was the cause of their poverty and distress!

'And now the wolf, to satisfy his own appetite, took the greatest part of the food which the family were able to procure, and often snatched from the lips of the poor children the scanty portion which they were about to eat. The only person who saw, without any pity, the miserable condition of this family, seemed to be Ulric himself, for he became lusty when any one urged him to part with his favorite wolf, without whose company, he said, he would not wish to live. At length, one evening, the wolf, in a fierce and authoritative tone, thus exclaimed to Mr. Ulric:

"'You must turn this woman and her children out of doors, for you cannot support both them and me!'

'Something in these words seemed to madden the brain of the unhappy man to whom they were spoken, and with all the behavior of a lunatic, he proceeded to drive his family out of doors, though it was in the middle of winter, and they were very scantily clothed. The poor woman and children were badly frost-bitten, and indeed, almost frozen to death by the time they had reached a neighbor's house, where they were allowed to take shelter. And now the wolf, left alone with Ulric, demanded it as he should give him some food.

"I have none—none even for myself," was the reply.

'Glaring at him with flaming eyes, the wolf howled forth: 'Whether you are fed or not, I must be!' and then he remorselessly sprang upon the wretched man who had sacrificed everything for his sake. For some time dreadful cries and yells were heard proceeding from the lonely hut, and when, at length, some of the neighbors had courage to enter, they found Ulric lying dead upon the floor, with the wolf's gripe upon his throat."

Here the grandmother concluded her story, during which Alfred and his brother hustled as close up to her as possible, sometimes looking nervously over their shoulders, as if to see whether some monster were not stealing in to make them his prey.

'That was awful,' said Alfred; 'but, of course, it was not true.'

'Indeed it is, though,' answered his grandmother. 'It has happened a great many times, and is now happening every day. The name of the wolf, which men allow to ruin their fortunes and take away all their feeling for their own families, and which pays them at least by destroying their wretched lives is Intemperance, or the love of drinking. Who that knows all this, and has his proper senses, would not wish to keep that wolf from his door?'—Christian Intelligencer.

What New York Pays for Amusement.

[From the Internal Revenue Reporter.]

When the future historian of the republic takes up the burden of our great conflict, it will interest him and his readers to turn for a while from the glare of flaming cannon, and bristling musketry, to examine the social conditions of civil life in a country in which such scenes of rigorous warfare were enacted; and it will promote accuracy in the estimate of our national character to study the habits and demeanor of society through its badness of fire and blood. To this end we have collected the items of expenditure of the people of New-York for public amusements during the present season, as eminently calculated to illustrate the temper and habits of our people. From the 1st day of July to the 30th day of April, last, the even principal theatres and the Academy of Music, in this city, received for dramatic performances, $1,053,000 and paid a tax on the same to the amount $21,000. The largest sum paid by any theatre for tax during the period above named, was that paid by Niblo's Garden, amounting to $4,778 92. The smallest sum paid by any theatre, between the foregoing dates, was that paid by the Old Bowery Theatre, amounting to $1,681.84. The second largest tax was that paid by the Academy of Music, amounting to $3,320. The second smallest tax was paid by the New Bowery Theatre, and amounted to $1,817.36. The third largest tax was paid by Wallack's Theater, and amounted to the sum of $3,788.44. The third smallest tax was paid by the Broadway Theatre, amounting to $2,271 56. The French Theatre from October to February, paid a tax of $197 48. The three Negro Minstrelsy Exhibitions paid tax to the amount of $3,440 24. Bryant's paid the largest tax, amounting from September 1 to April 30, to $993 00. Wood's establishment paid the next largest, amounting to $728 16. Campbell's & Hooley's Troupe paid tax to the amount of $719 08.

From October 1 to March 31, the Hippotheatron, in Fourteenth street, paid tax amounting to $1,540.74 on their equestrian and other performances. The American Theatre, 444 Broadway, paid a tax of $774.40 on their receipts from July to April. The German Theatre paid, from September to April, tax to the amount of $1,9 2. In addition to the foregoing amounts of tax paid by places of amusement between July 1 and April 1, we may mention Barnum's Museum, the taxes on the gross receipts of which reach the high figure of $5,178 68. Independent of the sums enumerated above, a large amount of tax is paid annually in the city by the proprietors of miscellaneous exhibitions, making a total of not less than $30 000 annually, paid into the Treasury from the single source of public amusements in the metropolis alone.

AWFUL REVENGE.

The condition of affairs in Georgia and Alabama, as reported by the New York Times' correspondents, is perfectly awful We make one brief quotation from a letter addressed to that journal by the Rev Mr Conway. That gentleman writing from Mobile, says:—"The colored people will be murdered and driven to untimely graves if the government does not keep provost guards at the county seats and the cities. So great is the madness of the old slaveholders over their defeat and subjugation that, on their return home, they amuse themselves by cutting off the ears, noses or lips of their former slaves. This is not a dream. It is a terrible fact, and I am sure that when it is known to our loyal people there will arise such a feeling of indignation as will surely reach the very heavens. At Montgomery, five men came in one day with ears cut off and in an almost nude state. Others came in with throats cut; while others appeared terribly mangled over their bodies with blows from sticks and stones. The perpetrators are "chivalrous" men, high-minded well-bred gentlemen, no doubt. Thank heaven, the dominion such gentry is at an end. General A. J Smith and Colonel Geeries are vigilant in their search for the cruel monsters. But these are only samples. All officers and soldiers of the army here are filled with the deepest horror over these awful deeds, and are resolved that they must end." To aggravate this overwhelming social disorder, secret incendiarism has full swing. The blowing up of all the ordnance stores at Mobile, with the loss of several hundred lives, has been followed by a similar catastrophe at Chattanooga. At all the great military posts of the South, with the exception only of New Orleans, similar disasters have occurred. They are all too clearly traceable to a terrible, silently-working, all-pervading spirit of love go.

Presents to Potentates.

A story is going the rounds of the Italian press which may comfort the worthy gentlemen who on dis interestedly offered President Johnson a carriage and pair of horses which our excellent executive declined to accept.

A citizen of Genoa, it appears, had a bas-relief which he thought was so beautiful that it was fit to be bought by a king. No king, however, appearing to buy it, the Genoese wrote to the Italian minister at London on the subject. The minister not having a purchaser to propose, suggested in an evil hour, that if people made presents they usual'y got something handsome, sooner or later, by way of acknowledgment. Perhaps the minister had lived in the United States; perhaps he had not; at all events this was his suggestion. The Genoese acted upon it instantly, and offered his bas-relief in a very pretty note to the Queen of Portugal, a daughter of Victor Emmanuel and sister of the Princess Clothilde of France. The Queen accepted the bas-relief, and to Lisbon it went forthwith.

Time passed on; but no acknowledgment came to the Genoese, excepting a letter from the Queen, which was a letter of honor, indeed, but not of credit. So, one day the impatient donor wrote again to the Queen, somewhat plainly hinting that bas reliefs sent to Queens ought to be a remunerative investment.

Upon which the Queen very promptly sent back to the Genoese, not a procession of slaves, one even the cross of the "Tower and Sword," but simply and merely his own bas relief! This was bad enough, but worse than this was the fact that the bas relief came back broken into a thousand pieces! Driven to despair the Genoese has printed the story of his tribulations, and set it up with a photograph of the smashed bas-relief in a public place of Genoa, as a new and eloquent commentary on the advice of the wise man: "put not your trust in princes."

Whereby our disappointed carriage donors may take heart to congratulate themselves. If they are unhappy now, what would their feelings have been had President Johnson accepted their gift, and then, upon the first application of one of their number for a custom-house post, sent the vehicle back with a broken axle, and the horses sparvined with work?—N. Y. World.

SEA SOUNDINGS.—Various sea soundings, made by the new telegraph company of England, in preparation for laying the Atlantic submarine cable this summer, reveal the following results:—The Baltic Sea between Germany and Sweden is only 120 feet deep, and the Adriatic between Venice and Trieste 130. The greatest depth of the channel between France and England does not exceed 300, whilst to the south-west of Ireland, where the sea is open, the depth is more than 2000 feet. The seas to the South of Europe are much deeper than those in the interior. In the narrowest part of the Strait of Gibraltar the depth is only 1000 feet, while a little more to the east it is 3000. On the coast of Spain the depth is nearly 6000 feet. At 250 miles south of Nantucket (south of Cape Cod) no bottom was found at 7,800 feet. The greatest depths of all are to be met with in the Southern Ocean. To the west of the Cape of Good Hope 16,000 feet have been measured, and to the west of St. Helena 27,000. Dr. Young estimates the average depth of the Atlantic at 28,000 feet, and of the Pacific at 20,000.

DESTRUCTION OF LIFE BY WAR.—Official returns in the War Office show that the deaths since the war broke out, so far as heard from, with the estimates made from those returns not handed in, including the starved prisoners, &c., will aggregate about three hundred and twenty-five thousand. These are the deaths alone. From this number we may deduct some forty thousand on account of ordinary mortality had war not existed, and there have left 285,000 dead. These are the dead only on one side. If we suppose a mortality of 175 000 on the rebel side, we have a total of 450,000 who have perished in the war. Supposing among the wounded and diseased of the survivors that one half are permanently disabled, we must add at least 600,000 more to the number of victims, making a total of over a million of human beings whose death or uselessness while living may be ascribed to this war.—*Am. CONUNDRUM.—Which are the lightest men—Scotchmen, Irishmen, or Englishmen? Answer—In Ireland there are men of Cork; in Scotland men of Ayr (air); but in England upon the Thames, there are lighter-men there.

Dull Times and the Cause.

Our ills we are too often prone to attribute to causes foreign to ourselves for our wisdom or business capacity might be challenged, and hence in order to exculpate ourselves, earth, air and ocean are ransacked to find some cause for our general depression of trade at the present juncture. Bad crops, bad season, Rebellion in the United States, extravagance, pride, and improvidence all have all been arraigned, tried and condemned as being the promoters and continuers of the present depression. We are not prepared to say that the accused are entirely in some degree, but we say, which it is assuredly in a minor degree the cause above and beyond any of these, that has played the principal part and that is, in a word, avarice. In the early history of the country there were hard times, insurmountable difficulties. (If they existed now) to be overcome, privations to be borne, unequalled by anything of the present, and yet the early settler never despaired, but labored strenuously and successfully till he gained a comfortable home for himself and family, and to all appearance the promise of at least a reasonably comfortable subsistence for the future. All at once, however, a too great desire arose for increasing his wealth, and also for increasing the facilities for trade and commerce. To carry out this, foreign capital was necessary to build canals, railroads and public works, and the increased prices for farm produce, together with superabundant crops, persuaded the community, agricultural and commercial, that almost any rates of interest could be paid. All that was wanted was the capital. English capital was introduced through agencies, these agents must have their profits for transacting the business, and the present state of private finances, caused by promising too much, and crops and prices failing, compelled the borrower to promise extortion rates of interest, which are now crushing the trade of the country, and must, if not removed by timely Legislation, eventually ruin the Province. It is an admitted fact that the farmer cannot pay more than five per cent on the outlayed capital in any country, even in Great Britain, where labor is cheaper than in Canada. At the prices of land in this country for the last seven years, the profits of the outlayed capital would, perhaps, not have exceeded three and a half or four per cent, to the agriculturist. When the agriculturist is being pressed, the merchant is also in some degree made to suffer, as ours is an agricultural country. And so we find that while a few have been increasing their wealth, numberless traders have been ruined, as the number of insolvents in arrears now fully testifies, and the great cause, in the majority of cases is attributable to the high rates of interests they had to pay during the last ten years. It may therefore be safely asserted that this has been, and continues to be the cause of the dull times. The traders must have twelve to fifteen per cent for unpaid accounts. This the buyers find themselves unable to pay, and reason is gaining sway, the consumer wisely refrains from purchasing anything but the necessaries of life, until he is able to pay for them, and hence trade is not as brisk as would otherwise be.

But these extortion rates will end in the ruin of the country and the injury of those who are exacting them. Money generally will command, and healthy commerce and agriculture will ensure 6 to 7 per cent on small sums. When more is exacted the property will fall into the hands of the lender. He will be forced to rent the same, but it is found that rented property rarely pays three per cent on an average, and this while the original proprietor is forced to give up his land, the lender is only a loser by it, as instead of receiving six per cent, as he might be, he only receives about three per cent. The land of the country will deteriorate under a rental system, and the country will become poorer instead of richer. There is another evil still greater which is sure to follow, and that is, when a man has nothing, there is nothing to bind him; and there will in the above case, things be an unstable state of society, a want of union and affection between the people and the country or government; and a floating settlement instead of an increasing and all brought about by this system grinding the honest laborer and mechanic, so they who have obtained the soil will dwell alone in the earth. Legislation is much needed on this vexed question, so as to in some degree restrain the oppression that at present exists and to enable the poor man to obtain a home for himself, and where his home is his country will generally be.

EDUCATIONAL.

We find ourselves unable to give any report of the examination of the Grammar and Union School at the close of this half-year, although at no period heretofore do we believe was there more anxiety to hear of the state of that institution.

We do not make these remarks so as to influence the minds of the people or any individual, even, against either the Union School, or any of the Teachers thereof, but because of the fact that the public were not acquainted of the time or manner of the examination exercises unless it might be a favored few, but even of this we cannot speak except from flying reports. We have made it a matter of enquiry, by looking at our exchanges, and can testify that in every town where there is a local paper published, the public have been made acquainted of the time and subjects of examination at least in general terms. Now we would ask is this as it should be, or should the public be excluded from the examination, as is the case in Peterboro'. But it may be answered, that notice was given through the children. This, however, must be acknowledged as only a secondary excuse for neglect of duty. There are many parents who do not fully value the benefits of public examinations and of course do not care about them. And there are many who are not parents, or not parents of children attending the Union School who are interested in the cause of education, and who could enjoy a day at an examination, who by the present method of closing the doors almost have been debarred from witnessing the exercises, or as many of them as they wished.

THE CAUSE OF CLOSED DOORS.

We have made enquiries of the Principal, and he excuses himself upon the plea of the interference of the Board. And so it has come to this that the Board of School Trustees consider the Union School ground "holy ground," and in consequence will allow none but those who are peculiarly favored, or forsooth, who have taken their shoes off their feet to tread thereon. We would ask them on what principle they exercise such a right as to keep the people in ignorance of the matter? And no answer can be given unless a strong desire to return to the secret enclaves of monastries, nunneries, or the state of the dark ages—perhaps the common people could not appreciate an examination. Let the Board alone and they (the people,) will not get the chance. Are the people of Peterboro' satisfied to allow their representatives to act thus? Or will they not call them to account for thus conducting (their doings will we say) the state of the School. But, there is the financial phase of the question. The Board would have "to pay the people's money" for giving notice! Well, about seventy-five cents to each paper at the very most, and rather than do this they thought in their wisdom, it would be better to put new shutters on the Union School building, and thus shroud the whole in darkness,—miserable, miserly Board. But the excuse is as unsound as those who would make it. We published the days of the last examination for the public benefit, and neither asked nor received a cent for so doing, and if the finances of the Town are so low that the City Fathers are unable to pay 75 cents for the information of the people. We will (pro bono publico) give the use of our columns for nought, even though the poor devil should go unpaid, and perhaps hungry to sleep, and we are confident that our contemporary will do the same, if the Board will but apply for relief under the new Insolvent Act. We have a word or two more on the matter, but as they are of a personal nature we will restrain them now, giving this word of warning, that if the management should again be as it has been this time, we will be louder and more personal. The following extract exonerates the Principal in some degree, but speaks volumes of the enlightened views of its proposers.

"The Committee would recommend that advertisements in the newspapers should in no case exceed three insertions, and they would also recommend that notices of Examinations of the School in the newspapers should be discontinued."

"The above is a true extract from a report of the Finance Committee of the Board received and adopted on the 3rd May, 1864.

IVAN O'BEIRNE,
Secy.

Extracted 26th June, 1865."

The Principal and Teachers we have all along felt every confidence in, nor have we had any reason to change our minds yet. The Grammar and Union School may be answering the expectations of its supporters. Of this we have nothing to say; but that the examination should be secret, or only a few made acquainted thereof, is not likely to give or ensure satisfaction. For this state of things the Board are entirely to blame, and the sooner it is rid of those who would thus control its affairs the better for its efficiency and future popularity.

FIRE COMPANY.—At the monthly meeting of Protection Fire Company No. 1 of Peterboro held in the Firemen's Hall on Tuesday evening July 4th instant the following resolutions were carried unanimously:—Resolved,—That the thanks of this Company is due and are hereby tendered to the Municipality of Ashburnham for the Sum of twenty dollars granted by the Council as a donation to this Company.—Resolved,—That this Company beg leave to return thanks to Samuel Dixon, Esq., for the Sum of five dollars donated by him for services on the 14th June 1865.

LITERARY CLUB.—A Public Debate will be held in the Firemen's Hall this evening by the members of the Peterboro Literary Club. Subject.—"In the event of the Confederation of the Provinces would a Hereditary Monarch or an Elective President be the better to preside over our government."

FIRE COMPANY.—We are solicited to state that the Firemen are requested to meet at the Engine House, on Monday evening next at half-past 7 o'clock, P. M., for drill, in full uniform. The Fire Bell will be tolled for five minutes previous to meeting.

MILITARY SCHOOL.—We are pleased to see that our townsman, Lieut. Kennedy, received a first class certificate at the examination of this school in Toronto last week. We believe he was the only gentleman who was so fortunate at the examination.

A MAN KILLS HIS MOTHER.—A religious enthusiast, J. B. Proler, of Damase, murdered his mother on Friday last, leaving three frightful axe wounds in her head. The woman was 62 years of age.

UNION SCHOOL BOARD.

The Board of School Trustees met on Tuesday evening, being the regular night of meeting.

Present,—The Chairman, Rev's. Rogers, Davidson and Brock, and Messrs. Edwards, Comber, Hall, Reed, Helm and Stevenson.

The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Several communications were read making application for the situations that are now likely to be at the disposal of the Board in Ward Schools, &c.

On motion of Col. Haultain, these were referred to the Standing Committee on appointments.

A Communication was read from the Principal, referring the Board to a paragraph that had appeared in the Hamilton Spectator, reflecting on the state of the School, and the manner in which its affairs are being conducted, and asserting that the statements made therein are false, and requesting the Board to consider the matter.

MONTHLY VISITOR'S REPORT.

When asked for there did not appear to be any one to make a report.

The special Committee appointed to report on Ward Schools reported, and recommended the immediate establishment of a Ward School in the North Ward, and also recommended the engaging of a house, lately occupied as a Baptist Church, for a term of three or five years, as the rent would be moderate, only forty dollars a year. The report was received and adopted, [we think,] and a strong desire manifested to establish the School by the commencement of the new term.

In reference to the South Ward, the Committee could find no suitable place for a School, and consequently could take no immediate action until a building could be provided.

From a report of attendance it would appear that there were on the register in

April, Boys	185
" Girls	181
Total,	366
May, Boys	196
" Girls,	201
Total,	397

The average for June was 326.

Grammar School department:

Boys,	22
Girls,	12
Total,	34

The number attending gives evidence of a reasonably healthy state.

In reference to the paragraph in the Spectator. The Board "did not consider it at all necessary to take any notice of the remarks in question, and requested the same to be made known to the Principal.

Several members of the Board though that there ought to be a report of the examination, and that the Principal should be requested to furnish one for the next sitting.

Col. Haultain made some remarks in reference to the examination of one department, but we will not deviate from our fixed purpose of not giving any names.

A worthy member of the Board asked that the report of the Principal would have to be sent to Toronto for publication, as the Town papers published the bad reports only, never anything good about the school, [perhaps the Union School, like our worthy, has very little good to be reported concerning it.]

There was a variety of other matters brought before the Board in a very unconnected manner. To give it would not enlighten any one.

There was a motion passed referring the appointment of Teachers to the Standing Committee on Appointments in connection with the Principal, and to report.

There was a motion also carried to obtain a male Teacher for the department vacated by Miss Hardie's resignation, and fixing the salary at $300.

POLICE COURT.

At the Police Court yesterday morning more than the usual number of cases were on for trial. The Mayor and James Edwards, Esquire, presided. The first case called was John O'Brien vs. Michael Kane,—Charged with assaulting O'Brien in his Tavern in this Town on Tuesday evening. The assault being proven, the prisoner was fined $10 and costs or twenty-one days in jail.

The Chief Constable vs. Matthew Bird, an unfortunate old inebriate, found drunk in Mr. Heuthorn's yard. Prisoner admitted the charge; but on its being his first offence he was allowed to go on his way rejoicing. It is to be hoped this will be a warning to him to keep sober.

John Connors was charged with being drunk on the street. Admitted the charge. Fined $2 and costs or ten days in jail.

Bridget Fagan, a married woman, was charged with being drunk, and lying on the side-walk. The prisoner admitted the charge, but pleaded that she had been excited yesterday in consequence of not getting some money on account of her son's wages. She went into a grocery and took one glass of whiskey, which "flew to her head," and what happened afterwards she does not know. The Magistrates considering that the quantity imbibed by her might have had a greater effect than she supposed it would have, admonished and discharged her.

The notorious swamp gang, Jane Edmison, Ann Brennan, Elizabeth Parker and Eliza McKnight, were brought up to answer the charge of standing about the corners of the streets after dark, annoying passers by. They pleaded guilty to the charge, but declared that it let out they would immediately leave Town. The Magistrates thought it best to give them a trial, and consequently discharged them.

Wm. Larkin was charged with having on Sunday morning deposited a dead dog on one of the streets of the Town. The evidence failed to establish a charge,—case dismissed.

Wm. Heathorn charged Wm. Larkin with killing a valuable hound dog, the property of him, (Heathorn,) on Sunday morning. The case was adjourned till to-day, to enable the Court to take legal advice as to whether the wish of the accused can be made to give evidence in the case.

John Doig, an old offender, was charged with being drunk on the street. As he has several times been fined, and his family being poor the Court thought it best to provide him with free lodging for ten days in the Norton palace.

The State-department at Washington has sent circulars to the cities of the United States announcing that the Russian plague is extending westward with great rapidity, and suggesting precautionary measures.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

The Municipal Council of the Village of Ashburnham met on Monday evening, pursuance to adjournment.

Present,—Bridge D. Rogers, Esq., Reeve, and Messrs. Hughes, Strickland, McGregor and Ledgett.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

A Petition from D. Sutherland, Esq., praying for aid to defray the expenses of planting trees on Elizabeth Street was presented.

The Petition was received and ten dollars granted for the purpose set forth in the Petition.

The Clerk was authorized to make out a list of persons liable to pay Poll Tax and the Collector was instructed to proceed and collect the same forthwith, as well as from all persons liable to pay the same in the Village.

The Clerk was authorized to give Messrs. Craigie & Stephenson notice to remove all obstruction of their lumber &c off the street opposite their Saw Mill and to keep the same off.

The Council then adjourned to meet again on the First Monday of August at 7 o'clock, P. M.

PERSONAL.—We are pleased to learn that Mr. Dunn, late principal of the Grammar and Union School here, appears to be very favorably received in his new sphere of labor. The following we clip from the York Herald, published at Richmond Hill:—

GRAMMAR SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

This Grammar School closed, after a three days examination, yesterday afternoon. The first two days, the pupils were engaged in written examinations. The Examiners and those present can speak in the highest terms of the manner in which the pupils acquitted themselves. In Classics, Mathematics, and the higher English branches, both oral and written examinations were unusually severe. The three higher classes proved themselves competent for them. The papers in Lucian and Cicero were especially good; showing a very minute and thorough acquaintance with the principles of the language. We were especially struck with one paper in Lucian which, though the same as given for honors at the late University Exam nations—only made much harder, was answered correctly throughout not only as regards translation and parsing, but even in reference and accent. Some pupils only studying Latin from three to six months read and referred correctly, and gave rules for every word;—the pieces read being selected promiscuously. Much attention had evidently been paid to "Quantity" and Grammar.

We think we are only giving expression to the general opinion when we say that this Institution was never in a more prosperous condition,—the scholars more thoroughly drilled and greater progress made than since it has been under the able and efficient management of the present teacher. Mr. Dunn, whose heart seems to be in his work and who appears to know not only how to work himself, but how to make those under him work as well. We congratulate Mr. Dunn upon the success which has crowned his efforts for the past six months, as all who were present at this, as well as former examinations could not fail to perceive the real progress made by the pupil; who have attended this department. We will give the particulars at more length in our next issue.

RETURN OF MILLBROOK VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.—This Company, under command of Captain Hourden, left Niagara on Monday morning, and arrived at Millbrook by special train about nine o'clock P. M. The station and platforms were densely crowded by the wives and friends and sisters of the gallant volunteers, who welcomed them by hearty cheers. The Company looked well and presented quite a soldierly appearance. They formed in line at the station and marched to Town, where a bon-fire and other demonstrations had been made to welcome their return. After being put through some evolutions they were allowed to go to their homes; and ordered to meet again on this [Thursday] afternoon, when they will be paid off and "mustered out of service."—The officers and men speak in high terms of the inhabitants of Niagara while there, and express the hope that if ever called out again they may be stationed there again.

MIDGE PROOF WHEAT.—FROM THE COUNTY OF WENTWORTH.—We have been shown a handful of wheat, grown by John Barnard, Esq., of South Monaghan, which he says is proof against the Midge. It has a very nice, stiff straw, very heavy head, and ripens one to two weeks earlier than any of the common sorts. Mr. Barnard invites the attention of farmers to it, and would be gratified to have them go and judge for themselves.

A TRIO.—A rather amusing incident was witnessed on Tuesday evening. Chief Constable Arnott, with a carter and three men, (not Dunkinites,) who were completely unable to take care of themselves, lay heads and feet mixed, stretched on a drag, when they were conveyed to the Lock-up to await further orders.

BOY BIT WITH A DOG.—On Saturday last, a boy (son of Mr. McLellan, Jeweller, was bit by a dog owned by Mr. John Bird. The teeth of the animal entered on each side of the boy's mouth leaving him a very ugly face. Such animals should not be allowed to run at large. The dog was shot on the same evening.

GODEY, for July can be obtained at the Examiner Book Store.

CHAMBERS is also received and contains a good share of very interesting reading matter.

All the Monthlies, Magazines and Literary papers can be procured at the Examiner Book Store.

A NEW STORY.—The Scottish American Journal is just commencing a new story entitled, "By the Trent," by Mrs. E. Oldham. This one promises to be very entertaining and instructive also, and will, no doubt, repay a perusal. Now is the time to subscribe for the Journal so as to get the whole story.

The long-disputed question of the Hudson Bay Company's Territory has been at last settled by the cession to Canada of all British territory East of the Rocky Mountains. The country is to be transferred to as subject to the claims for compensation of the Hudson's Bay Company. Immediate steps are to be taken for determining the claims of the Company, and the amount (if any be found due) is to be raised on the credit of the Imperial Government, but to be ultimately borne by the Provincial Exchequer. As the Company purchased all its possessions recently for £1,500,000, and as its stock-in-trade, buildings, ships, &c., &c., are valued at nearly that sum, the amount of compensation must in any case be utterly insignificant in comparison with the value of so magnificent an addition to our territorial domain.—Globe.

The Shooting Case near Bowmanville.

BOWMANVILLE, JUNE 28.—A Miss Munson, a school teacher from Owen Sound accompanied by a young lady named Calahan, arrived by train at Bowmanville yesterday afternoon. They procured a buggy and horse at Avery stables, and went to Orono, five miles north, where Messrs Kerr & Son formerly resided. After arriving at Orono they called at the house of James Kerr, and asked him to take a drive with them. At first he declined, but afterwards consented to do so. After started they urged him to go to Hampton and bring back the conveyance. The latter place is directly back of Bowmanville five miles north, where it appears Kerr's

ESCAPED FROM JAIL.—On Saturday evening as a team was leaving the jail yard with a load of broken stone, one of the prisoners, named James Mulholland, who was serving out a sentence from the last Spring Assizes, for crimping, bolted through the gate and took to his heels. At last accounts he had not been re-captured.—Times.

A French mason, named Guibant, father of five children, recently blew out his brains in the strange manner:—He filled a long sporting-gun with gunpowder, and introduced the short end into his mouth; he then applied a lighted match to the open part, and the powder exploded. His head was blown to pieces in a dreadful manner. The cause of the suicide is unknown.

SUDDEN DEATH.—A Miss McCammon, living near St. James' Church, met a sudden death yesterday morning. She left her mother's house quite well, to go to her work at sewing near the Eagle Foundry. She had been at work but a short while, when she complained of dizziness, and before her mother could be brought was dead. We did not learn what was the cause of her death. She was nineteen years of age.—Whig.

A collision took place on Lake Erie on the 25th inst., between the bark "Republic," to be lost, and the brig "Canopus," loaded with 16,500 bushels of wheat, which resulted in the sinking of the latter in seven fathoms of water. The crew were saved, but lost all their personal effects. The bark lost her jibboom, bowsprit, and head gear, with some slight damage to her bows. The "Canopus" was bound for Buffalo, and was owned by Munn & Scott, of Chicago.

"TWIGGING."—During the examination of the robberies case yesterday, the Detective Armstrong was requested to define a technical term in the thieves' vocabulary, which occurred in his evidence. The Detective stated that the night succeeding the first robbery of Gates & Co's establishment, the robbers "twigged" the door of the store to discover what certain operations were detected, and whether the store was being watched. This device consisted in placing a small piece of whitebone, bent double, between the jam of the doors, so that if the doors were opened the splinter immediately sprung out. A spy kept watch at the hour of closing, and made sure that all persons left the store; the "sprigs" were then inserted, and the robbers, on visiting the premises at any hour thereafter during the night, could readily detect whether any one had since entered and was lying in wait for them. An explanation of this piece of rascality in reality may prove of interest to merchants generally.—Hamilton Times.

MURDER AT A FUNERAL IN ACTON.—On Thursday afternoon, about 2 o'clock, a horrible affair took place in the village of Acton, at the funeral of a young woman named Lightheart. It appears that a man named Turnbull had been in company with the woman Lightheart, and had illicit communication with her. About a month ago she was delivered of a child, and a few days ago she died. After her death the brother of the woman told Turnbull that he must not come to the funeral or "it would be dangerous for him." Not heeding these threats he went to the funeral, and on entering the door of the house from whence it was to proceed, he was shot by Lightheart and was killed. Strange to say, no attempt was made at the time to arrest the murderer who walked around for a full hour afterward. On the spread of the startling news, however, orders were issued for his arrest, but he had made his escape, and, up to the latest accounts, has not been heard of.—[Guelph Advertiser.

A YOUNG LADY DRAGGED TWO MILES BY RUNAWAY HORSES.—About 11 o'clock on Thursday night a shocking accident occurred at Rahway, resulting in the death of a highly respectable young lady, Miss Kate Degraw, daughter of Mr. John Degraw, proprietor of the principal hotel at that place. Mrs. Degraw, together with her two sisters, had attended a picnic a few miles out of town, in company with a young gentleman named Ennis. Upon their return the carriage drove up to the door and the two sisters had alighted, and as the deceased was being assisted from the carriage the horses took a sudden fright and dashed off at a furious speed. The young lady's crinoline became entangled in the step of the carriage, and with her head and shoulders dragging upon the ground, the horses made the circuit of the village twice before the coachman could stop them. When they did so, the young lady was found to be lifeless, and her remains presented a mutilated and gastly appearance.

FATAL ACCIDENT NEAR LANCASTER.—On Saturday night, June 24, after the night express train had passed Lancaster, a party of seven men in the employ of the Company had occasion to go to Lancaster after provisions, for which purpose they had taken a handcar belonging to the Company, and when returning home came in contact with a special train, for which they had been waiting some time before starting, killing four or five of their number. The names of those that were killed are S. Curry, E. Sutherland, James Thomas and T. Dancher ty. A coroner's inquest was held on the bodies and several witnesses were examined, and the jury returned a verdict that the accident resulted from carelessness on the part of the men, that they had no right whatever to take a handcar belonging to the Company, except in business for the Company, and exonerating from all blame those that were on the special train, as they had no reason to apprehend that it was not going on as clear as was on their part that the accident occurred.

ROBBERY BY A SERVANT GIRL.—$2000 WORTH STOLEN.—On Tuesday evening last a red-haired Irish girl, in the employ of Professor Halpin, in Harbor College committed a rather extensive robbery of all sorts of private household articles. Professor and Mrs. Halpin left their residence for a walk, leaving it in charge of the colored servant, nurse and children. While away, the former, who gave her name at different times as Isabella Thompson and Isabella Smith respectively, rummaged the wardrobe, bureaus and closets at will, and purloined a great many articles of value, consisting of clothes, ornaments, jewellery, among which were seven silk and satin dresses, collars, brooches, bracelets, &c., &c., to the value of a sum $300. These she took to the back premises and concealed them in the ash barrel and elsewhere carefully covering them with some kind of rubbish. The governess, in afterwards searching for something, discovered the theft, when an inquiry was immediately instituted, resulting in finding the articles in the position described. The thief herself was nowhere to be found, and we believe the case has been lodged with proper authorities for investigation, who no doubt will use their best efforts for the detection and bringing to justice of the criminal.—[London Free Press.

TO THEE—A THOUGHT IN ABSENCE.

Believed, though I cannot see
The sunlight of thy smile,
That makes the world so gay to me,
If rolen o'ghom the while.

And though I cannot hear the tones
Of thy bewitching voice,
The accents that on sparrowas
The music of its choice.

Though to my eye and to my ear
No joy the morning brings,
Love that I feel when thou art near,
Wreck from thy presence springs.

Yet in there still a sweet degree
Of pleasure in my pain,
For tender memories of thee
Cluster on my heart again.

Till all the pure and priceless worth,
And all thy matchless love,
Seem less of this delusive earth
Than of the Heaven above.

And for so rich, so rare a gift,
Though absent from thy side,
My heart in grateful praise lift,
My daring case—my pride.

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY IN CANADA.

The following testimony from a well known and highly respected Merchant of Pickering, is confirmative of the general approval given to Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY:

PICKERING, C. W., Dec. 8th, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Co., Boston.

Gentlemen:

Being solicited by your Travelling Agent, for an expression of opinion of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. I with pleasure assert that it is, in my belief, the best remedy before the public for coughs and pulmonary complaints.

Having tested the article with myself and family, in case of severe coughs and colds, for years, with uniform and unexceptionable success, I unhesitatingly recommend it with full confidence in its merits.

Yours truly,
ALFRED HOOKER.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of twenty thousand dollars for the purpose therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $20,000 in constructing, one long and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County.

And whereas to carry into effect the said resolved object it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $20,000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $2,200 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole ratable property of the said Municipality of the said County of Peterborough, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the Tolls upon any investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised assessment rolls of the said Municipality, is the sum of $4,200,220.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of $20,000 and interest, as hereinafter mentioned, it will require an equal annual special rate of one mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same, upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $20,000; and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than $100 each and not to exceed in the whole the said sum of $ 0,000; and that the said debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden and counter-signed by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable in 20 years at the furthest from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum, per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first day of April and the first day of October in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon, an equal special rate of one mill in the dollar shall, in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the ratable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the 5th day of October, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at its Council Chamber in the Court House, in the said County, on Tuesday, the 3rd day of October, 1865, at the hour of 12 of the clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

AMERICAN Button-hole, Cording, Braiding and Embroidering SEWING MACHINE! COMPANY,

627 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK.

THE BUTTON HOLE is made by this entirely simple and novel machine, are not only equal to the best hand-made in the pearl or right side, but greatly surpassing them in beauty on the wrong side, which is formed by a beautiful braid stitch, made by an extra stitch, which no hand made button-hole possesses; thereby imparting to the same a much greater strength, which renders cording or barring altogether unnecessary.

One Needle and Two Threads are only Used

Unlike other Sewing Machines it manufactures its own Braid and Cord.

The last Merchant Tailors freely admit that its beauty, finish and strength cannot be attained by the most skilful hand.

Simplicity is one of its great merits, therefore not liable to get out of order, and it can be worked with ease by any young lady, who will, after a few days' experience, make from 1,000 to 1,200 perfect button-holes in one day.

This is the only machine produced that will throw a stitch over the edge, so as to bind and cover it in a manner indispensible for Button-holes, Cording and Braiding, each of which can be done with colored, shaded or chine silks, and produces a fabrique of varied colors unexcelled for beauty and taste.

To Ladies at home, Dress, Mantilla and Cloak maker, Shoemakers, Tailors, Hatters, Pocket-binders, Saddlers, &c., &c., it is indispensable; it is also admitted to be of great value, to other branches as it Braids, Embroiders, and Cords plain and fancy on all kinds of Cloths Cassimers, Linen, Velvet Leather, &c., &c.

Instructions and Needles accompany each Machine.

Every Machine is Warranted for Twelve Months.

Machines can be seen in full operation at our spacious Store, 627 Broadway, near Bleaker, where instruction Rooms are reserved for Ladies.

P. S.—A novel patented BUTTON-HOLE Cutter for sale which shall in all cases accompany a Button Hole Machine.

PIANO-FORTES.

GROSS' NEW PATENT.

ARE THE ONLY INSTRUMENTS constructed on a truly scientific principle. They have greater strength, and will remain longer in tune than any other Piano. The construction is simple and natural, all the component parts being in the body of the instrument, and therefore with; the second bearers are merely two arched planks of thin wood, like the front and back of a violin; the strings are attached to a solid iron frame, which is separate and entirely independent of the case, thereby dispensing with the old heavy form of construction by substituting straight bridges, preserving, at the same time, The Over Strung Scale, of which Mr. Gross is the inventor. By these improvements we gain much more vibratory power, at the same time preserving all its purity and richness of tone.

They have received the highest testimonials from the Press, and all the principal artists in the country, among which are:

Harry Sanderson,	L. M. Gottschalk,
Max Maretzek,	S. Thalberg,
Theodore Eichtal,	Wm. Mason,
Herman Wallenhaupt,	A. Ruth,
Francis H. Brown,	M. Strakosch,
Wm. Henry Fry.	Charles Fradel

Mr. SIGISMUND THALBERG, the great pianist, says:—I have examined your new Piano-forte and I cordially approve of its system of construction. Its principle, by which great increase of vibratory power is obtained, being very simple and perfectly philosophical. The tone is grand and noble; it has great capacity for sustaining the sound or singing, and its volume of tone or power I have never heard excelled in depth, purity and sympathetic sweetness.

Wm. HENRY FRY, late musical art is of the N. Y. Tribune says:—I have examined your newly invented Piano-Forte. They merit all the praise given to them by Messrs. Thalberg, Gottschalk, Strakosch, Mason and others. As regards the structure, they are original and philosophical; in purity, volume, and continuity of tone in vocal combination, and crowning excellence which enables the pianists to "sing" on the instrument. Your Pianos deserve the highest rank. Your invention, in my opinion, is destined to work radical changes in the manufacture of Pianos throughout the world.

From the N. Y. Herald, Sept. 5.—Upon a careful examination of Dunbar Piano-Forte, we find the results obtained are a very fine singing tone, great purity and brilliancy throughout the entire instrument, not often found in Pianos constructed upon the old plan.

The N. Y. Times, July 12, says:—We have now an instrument without an equal. It is a sing with a smooths delicacy, perfectly unattainable on any other instrument; an ordinary player obtains with no exertion, the fullness of a Grand Piano Forte and they must speedily supersede the old style.

GENTLEMEN:—Having thoroughly examined and tested the Piano-Forte invented and patented by Mr. S. B. Dunbar, I am of the opinion that the tone metal ing from his improvements, as exhibited in the instruments under examination in point of richness, depth and brilliancy, equals that of the best Grand Piano-Forte, and excells them in pure, musical and sustaining power than any other instrument of the kind I consider perfection in the instrument has yet been achieved by any other system of manufacture.

Yours respectfully,
L. B. GOTTSCHALK.

Salesrooms, { 536 Broadway, New York, 253 Washington St., Boston.

THIS MACHINE is constructed on entirely new principles of mechanism, possessing many rare and valuable improvements, having been examined by the most profound experts, and pronounced to be

Simplicity and Perfection Combined.

It has a straight needle, peculiar motion, makes the lock or shoe stitch, which will neither rip nor ravel, and is alike on both sides; performs perfect sewing on every description of material, from leather to the finest Nansook Muslin, with cotton, linen or silk thread, from the coarsest to the finest number. Having neither CAM nor COGWHEEL, and the least possible friction, it runs as smooth as glass and is

Emphatically a Noiseless Machine.

It requires FIFTY PER CENT less power to drive it than any other Machine in the market. A girl twelve years of age can work it steadily, without fatigue or injury to health.

Its strength and Wonderful Simplicity of construction renders it almost impossible to get out of order, and is GUARANTEED by the Company to give entire satisfaction.

We respectfully invite all those who may desire to supply themselves with a superior article, to come and examine the Unrivalled Machine.

But in a more especial manner do we solicit the pat onage of

Merchant Tailors,	Corset Makers,
Coach Makers,	Gaiter Fitters,
Hoop Skirt Manufacturers,	Shoe Binders,
Shirt and Bosom Makers.	Vest and Pantaloon Makers,
	Dress Makers.

Religious and Charitable Institutions will be liberally dealt with.

One half-hour's instruction is sufficient to enable any person to work the Machine to their entire satisfaction.

Agents wanted for all Towns in the United States, where agents are not already established. Also for Cuba, Mexico, Central and South America, to whom a liberal discount will be given.

Terms invariably Cash on delivery.

HOMŒOPATHY.

HOMŒOPATHY AND LIFE ASSURANCE.—The directors of a London life assurance office—the "General Provident"—at its recent meeting have placed on record their opinion "that persons treated by the Homœopathic system enjoy more robust health, are less frequently attacked by disease, and when attacked recover more rapidly than those treated by any other system; that with resp

DON'T LET THE CHILDREN WAIT

Late a grocer's shop I knew,
To purchase household stores I go,
And buy at prices fair;
The tradesman is a civil man,
But one thing in his daily plan,
A grave reproof will take.

For often you may see, among
His customers (a well-dressed throng),
A child in tones entire;
Who has to wait and watch and stand,
Till grown-up ladies and ladies grand
Are served to their desire.

So in that shop I sat one morn,
I marked a ragged child forlorn,
With eager gaze stand there.
The shopman passed her by, as though
Her presence o'er they did not know,
Which was not kind nor fair.

My thoughts were on the girl alone,
When I was asked in courteous tone—
"Your pleasure, ma'am, to-day?"
"That little girl," I said, "I fear
Is sadly tired of waiting here,
Attend to her, I pray!"

The child, a bright glance threw on me,
And then she asked for so much tea
"As her few pence would buy.
"Now, little woman, look with haste,
Lest mother think your time you waste;"
A tear stood in her eye.

"Oh yes! I will! or baby dear
Will into mischief get I fear—
I left him on the floor;
My mother has been ill in bed,
With burning cheek and aching head,
I think a week or more!"

Varieties.

DOMESTIC MAGAZINES.—Wives who are always blowing up their husbands.

IF poverty, like Saul, has killed its thousands, riches, like David, have killed their tens of thousands.

Some people keep savage dogs around their houses, so that the hungry poor who stop to "get a bite," may get it outside the door.

Dr. Johnson, once speaking of a quarrelsome fellow, said. "If he had two ideas in his head they would fall out with each other."

"MA. I've struck an oil spring," exclaimed a young hopeful, the other day, as he ran a slice of bread into the gravy bowl, before company.

A CELEBRATED physician boasting at dinner that he cured his name, one of the guests observed, "I would rather be your ham than your patience."

The darkest scene we ever saw, says a contemporary, was a darky in a dark cellar with an extinguished candle, looking for a black cat that wasn't there!

THE jailer of a county prison, when asked how many he could hang on his new drop, replied, "Why, sir, we can hang six, but four will hang comfortably.

Wear your learning like your watch, in a private pocket, and don't pull it out to show that you have one; but if you are asked what o'clock it is, tell it.

FREDERIC—"There, now, how very provoking; I've left my prayer-book at home." Maria—"Well, never mind it, my dear; but do tell me, is my bonnet straight."

All bachelors are not entirely lost to the refinement of sentiment, for the following toast was lately given by one of them at a public dinner:—"The Ladies, sweet-briars in the garden of life."

A lady was desirous of purchasing a cheap watch. The jeweller showed her, among others, a very beautiful one, remarking at the same time, that it went thirty six hours. "In one day?" the purchaser asked.

A facetious fellow having unwittingly angered a conceited-puppy, the latter told him he was no gentleman. Are you a gentleman? asked the dull one. Yes sir, answered the fop. Then I am very glad that I am not.

AGREEING.—An eminent judge said to a jury who had passed a sleepless night in their room unable to agree on a verdict, "Gentlemen, I am surprised that you cannot agree in this case. I could agree either way in five minutes."

THE REASON WHY.—Said Bill to Ben. "Pray lend me a V, or what is better, just make it ten, and I will eternally be your debtor." "I know you would," said B—n, "and ain't it funny—just for that reason you can't have the money."

VERY CLEAR.—An Irish advertisment reads as followers:—"Lost on Saturday last, but the bearer does not know where, an empty cask with a cheese in it. On the sack the letters P. G. are marked, but so completely worn out as not to be legible."

An old Dutchman had taken a wife for the third time, and being asked his views of matrimony replied—"Vel, den, you see first time I marries for love—dat was goot; den I marries for beauty—dat was goot too; but this time I marries for monish—and that was better as both.

WISDOM BY MEASUREMENT.—A wealthy but weak headed barrister once remarked to Curran that "No one should be admitted to the bar who has not an independent landed property."

"May I ask, Sir," replied Curran, "how many acres make a wise acre."

LORD John Russell endeavoured to persuade Lord Langdale to resign the permanent Mastership of the Rolls for the uncertain position of Lord Chancellor, and paid the learned Lord some very high compliments. "It is useless talking, my Lord," said Langdale, "as long as I enjoy the rolls, I care nothing for your butter."

AFTER dinner, the other evening, poor old Lady B——sighed deeply, exclaiming, "This is the anniversary of poor dear S——'s death," alluding to her first husband, upon which my Lord clearing his throat, and looking very indignant, replied, "Well, madam, I think you need not have referred to that, considering I have the most cause for grief."

The porter of a Dobbs grocer was brought before a magistrate on a charge of stealing chocolate, which he could not deny. On being asked to whom he sold it, the pride of Patrick was greatly wounded. "To whom did I sell it?" says Pat, why, does ye think I took it to sell?" "Then, sir, said the magistrate, "what did you do with it?" "Do with it! since you must know, we made tay of it."

A female member of Dr. S.'s church in Boston having safely passed through her nineteenth accouchement, her husband sent the following note to the Rev Doctor, to be read before the congregation: "Mrs. A having been safely delivered of her nineteenth child, she, with her husband, would return unfeigned thanks to Almighty God for his great favour, and humbly ask for a continuance of his blessings."

SEWING MACHINES!
FINKLE & LYON'S
NEW PATENT ROTARY FEED
Sewing Machines.
The following facts demonstrate that these Machines comprise the highest improvements in the Sewing Machine Art, viz:
1. Each Machine is guaranteed to give better satisfaction than any other Sewing Machine in Market, or money refunded.
2. They have taken many of the highest premiums at the most important Exhibitions and fairs ever held in the United States
3. They make the lock stitch alike on both sides—thus saving more than half the thread and silk used in the raveling-ridge-seams of the loop stitch and single-thread Sewing Machines.
4. They are adapted to the widest range of heavy and light sewing.
5. They have no rattling wires, or delicate attachments to keep in repair.
6. They require no taking apart to clean or oil, and no "Lessons" to set needle, regulate tension, or operate Machine.
Please call and examine, and demonstrate for yourself, or send for Circular, with samples of sewing.

See what the most popular and widely circulated periodicals say of our Establishment:
From the "Dispatch" of February 25, 1865.
We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the announcement of Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, Silver Ware, and Fancy Goods, in our advertising columns. We are personally acquainted with the members of this firm and know them to be gentlemen of sterling worth and integrity. Their stock of goods, for variety and extent, we have scarcely seen paralleled.
From the "Mirror of Fashion," March 1, 1865.
Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, etc, opened on the 15th ult., and we venture to say that no finer display of goods was ever exhibited by any establishment in this city. The ladies thronged their bazaar almost to suffocation, although the streets were rendered nearly impassable by the melted snow and slush. We predict for them a wonderful success.
From the "Ledger," February 28, 1865.
Our lady friends should visit the extensive establishment of Messrs. Devaugh & Co., No. 15 Maiden Lane, if they wish to indulge themselves with a sight which they will long remember. Such a profusion of elegant Watches Chains, Rings, Earrings, and, in short, of Jewelry of every name, kind and description, we never before witnessed. Their silver and plated ware is superb and almost casts into the shade the other splendid establishments which have long been the boast of our city. It is estimated that their stock is worth not less than one million of dollars.

Cheese-Making in the Small Way.
"A Farmer's Wife," from Gorham, Maine, gives an account of her very successful practice in cheese-making with a few cows, in the hope of benefiting some of the readers of the American Agriculturist: "A large amount of good cheese might be produced from dairies of from four to six cows, if the farmers' wives only felt competent to undertake cheese-making, and were furnished with a few simple and necessary articles. The things most needed are a cheese tub, to "set" the milk in, a good basket to drain the curd in; a lever press, and hoops of two or more sizes, to accommodate the smaller supply of milk as the season advances. I was brought up on a farm, in what was then a cheese-making district, and have been for the last ten years engaged in cheese-making through the hot weather, on a farm of which I am the mistress, and as my method differs somewhat from any that I have seen recommended for either large or small dairies, and as it produces almost uniformly a good cheese which finds a ready sale, notwithstanding its small size (perhaps partly in consequence of it,) I write my process out for the information of those who have lived—as a person told me the other day—"twenty-two years on a farm and never saw a cheese made." I take parts of several well cured rennets, and soak them in warm water a few hours, rubbing occasionally and adding as much salt as will dissolve readily; then drain the liquor and soak again a few hours; drain off the second liquor, and put it with the first, into a glass jar or bottle, adding so much rock salt that there shall always be some undissolved; cork it tight, and keep in a cool place.
When the night's milk is brought in, I strain it immediately into the cheese tub and put in rennet sufficient to bring the curd, or show that it is coming in ten minutes, and in twenty minutes the curd should be firm enough to admit of being crossed off coarsely with a wooden cheese-knife. In ten or fifteen minutes more it is cut finely and left to settle until bed time, when if it is settled sufficiently, it is dipped into the basket and left to drain through the night. If from any cause, such as late milking, or the rennet not proving strong enough to bring the curd readily, it does not separate from the whey at bed time, it is left in the tub until morning. It is much better to put it draining before going to bed, for if it remains all night in the tub it is liable to sour, particularly in warm weather, to the very great detriment of the cheese.
In the morning the tub is prepared by simply rinsing in cold water, unless the weather is cold, when hot water is used, in order to warm the tub so that it may not cool the milk. The morning's milk is strained into it, and the same process as with the night's milk, is gone through with, until it is ready to drain, when it is dipped into the same basket with the curd formed from the night's milk and thenceforward both are treated together.
The whey that runs off in the morning is saved to scald the curd with, and is carefully heated over a slow fire so as not to scorch it. When the curd has become sufficiently firm to admit of being cut in slices, which condition may be hastened by frequently cutting it with a case knife, and by a light weight laid upon it, it is put back into the tub, cut in thin slices and "scalded," not so as to melt the curd and make it run together, but merely to harden it. My rule for the temperature of the scalding whey is, that it should feel hot to the hand, but not hot enough to burn the hand, as the whey is poured over it, while moving the curd in the tub, so that it may all become equally scalded. Enough hot whey is thus poured over the curd to cover it, and fifteen or twenty minutes is sufficient time to be allowed for scalding. Then it is dipped again into the basket to drain and cool.—Half an hour, with an occasional cutting and turning, is sufficient for cooling, when it is again put in the tub to be chopped fine and salted. A cup of salt, for a cheese weighing from 10 to 12 lbs. when dry enough to market, is the quantity that I use. It is then put in press and subjected to a moderate pressure until toward night, then it is turned, and an increase of pressure added until the next morning, when it is ready to remove to the curing room. In two or three weeks, if the weather is favorable, with proper care, rubbing and turning over every day, these cheeses will be ready for market.
The advantages of this method over others described, are, that it prevents the cream from separating from the milk, with which it can never again be so thoroughly incorporated. It saves the labor of cooling and again warming the milk, and it makes a good cheese. Try it and see."

Deficient Drainage of Pastures.
In some remarks on this subject the London Field has the following:
There can be no doubt, for experience has proved it, that one of the chief causes of periodical disease is want of drainage. In this respect our village lands are generally better managed than grass lands, for many imagine that pastures do not require under drainage; but this is essentially a mistake. On some lands, scouring takes place periodically; others are liable to produce splenic apoplexy, black leg and red water. Now, however different these may be in their characteristics, Dr. Voelcker, in his investigations, has thrown much light on the subject. It would appear that "Scour" is partly caused by too rapid growth of grass, and its consumption, either green or converted into hay, whilst in an unripe state—that is while containing an excess of saline and nitrogenous ingredients and lack of sugar." And this is especially the case on imperfectly drained lands. Again splenic apoplexy, which was very frequent during last autumn was owing in a great measure to the rapid growth of grass from some warm showers in the autumn after the very dry summer. "The plant found in the soil an excess of mineral matters; the animal eating such rapidly formed and raw food was afflicted, the blood rendered vitiated, and inflammation of the spleen ensued. Even the liver rot in sheep is caused by a rank state of grass upon undrained or partially drained lands, and that the conditions causing this terrible disorder only occurs during two months of the year, and generally from rank vegetation. Professor Coleman, in a paper lately read at the Central Farmers' Club, states: "As two instances of very fatal diseases which arise from unhealthy grass, I may mention black leg and red water. Blackleg invariably attacked animals grazing on somepeaty, swampy pastures, and disappeared when the same were thoroughly drained." It may be objected to this, that these diseases may also be found on land that has been drained. But though this may be so in some cases, the fact still remains that in almost all cases where grass land is unhealthy for stock, it is because an excess of moisture imperfishes the herbage, and during the summer causes a too luxuriant rapid growth.

MODESTY.—A girl down East said she didn't like to sewing in the garden "cause tailors had eyes."

ARE YOU IN AGONY?
A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!
CAN BE FOUND IN
Holloway's Pills.
Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!
BY THE USE OF
Holloway's Ointment.
THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER SHAPE internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are
The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.
This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began:
These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick
The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to cure; they attack the RADICAL ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.
Disorders of the Stomach
Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs UPON THE BLOOD ITSELF, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.
Woman in all her Difficulties
is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively a bject.
Be it Understood,
That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.
Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.
In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is compelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable curative. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.
Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c
The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.
Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Constiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Vernal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.
If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.
None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious
. Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 88 cents, and $1 40 each.
☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33

THE WIFE'S WELCOME.

The hearth is swept, the fire is bright,
The Kettle sings for thee;
The cloth is spread, the lamps are light,
The hot cakes smoke in napkins white,
And now I wait for thee.

Come home, love: home, thy task is done;
The clock ticks listeningly,
The blinds are shut, the curtain down,
The arm-chair to the fireside drawn,
The boy is on my knee.

The task is done, we miss thee here;
Where'er thy footsteps roam,
No hand will spread such kindly cheer,
No beating heart, no listening ear,
Like those which wait thee home.

Ahal along the crisp walks fast
That well known step doth come,
The bolt is drawn, the gate is past,
The babe is wild with joy at last,—
A thousand welcome home.

Literature.

The Longest Night in a Life.

A THRILLING SKETCH

In one of these old fashioned winters in the days of the Georges, when the snow lay for weeks, when railways were unknown, and the electric telegraph had not been dreamed of save by the speculative Countess of London. The mails had not been regular for a month past, and the letter bags which did reach the post office had been brought thither with difficulty. The newspapers were devoid of all foreign intelligence, the metropolis knew nothing of the doings of the provinces; they knew little more of the affairs of the metropolis; but the columns of both were crowded with accidents from the inclemency of the weather, with heart rending accounts of starvation and destitution, with wonderful escapes of adventurous mail coach men and guards. Business was almost at a standstill, or was only carried on by fits and starts; families were made uneasy by the frequent long silence of their absent members, and the poor were suffering great misery from cold and famine.

The south road had been blocked up for nearly a month, when a partial thaw almost caused a public rejoicing; coaches began to run, letters to be despatched and delivered, and weather bound travellers to have some hope of reaching their destination.—Among the first ladies who undertook the journey from the west of Scotland to London at this time, was a certain Miss Sterling, who had, for weeks past, desired to reach the metropolis Her friends assured her that it was a foolhardy attempt, and told her of travellers who had been twice, nay three times snowed up on their way to town; but their advice and warnings were no avail; Miss Sterling's business was urgent—it concerned others more than herself, and she was not one to be deterred by personal discomfort or physical difficulties from doing what she thought was right.

So she kept to her purpose, and early in February took her seat in the mail for London, being the only passenger who was booked for the whole journey.

The thaw had continued for some days; the roads, though heavy, were open; and with the aid of extra horses, here and there, the first half of the journey was performed pretty easily, though tediously.

The second day was more trying than the first; the wind blew keenly and penetrated every crevice of the coach; the partial thaw had but slightly affected the wild moorland they had to cross; thick heavy clouds were gathering round the red rayless sun; and when, on reaching a little roadside inn the snow began to fall fast, both the guard and and coachman urged their solitary passenger to remain there for the night, instead of attempting the discomforts and perhaps the perils of the next stage. Miss Sterling hesitated for a moment, but the little inn looked by no means a pleasant place to be snowed up in, so she resisted their entreaties, gathering her furs more closely around her, she nestled herself into a corner of the coach. Thus for a time she lost all consciousness of outward things in sleep.

A sudden lurch awoke her; and she soon learned that they had stuck fast in a snow drift, and that no efforts of the tired horses could extricate the coach from its unpleasant predicament. The guard mounted one one of the leaders, set off in search of assistance, while the coachman comforted Miss Sterling by telling her that as nearly as they could calculate they were only a mile or two from 'the squire's,' and that if the guard could find his way to the squire's, the squire was certain to come to their rescue with his sledge. It was not the first time that the squire had helped the mail bags out of a snow wreath by that means.

The coachman's expectations were fulfilled. Within an hour, the distant tinkling of the sledge bells was heard, and lights were seen gleaming; they rapidly advanced nearer and nearer; and soon a hearty voice was heard hailing them. A party of men with lanterns and shovels came to their assistance; a strong arm lifted Miss Sterling from the coach, and supported her trembling steps to a sledge close at hand; and almost before she knew where she was, she found herself in a large hall, brilliantly lighted by a blazing wood fire. Numbers of rosy glowing, childish faces were gathered around her, numbers of bright eager eyes were gazing curiously upon her, kindly hands busied in removing her wraps, and pleasant voices welcomed her and congratulated her on her escape.

'Ay, ay, Mary' said her host, addressing his wife. 'I told you that the sleigh would have plenty of work this winter, and you see I was right.'

'As you always are, uncle,' a merry voice exclaimed. 'We all say at Hawtree that Uncle Artherton never can be wrong.'

'Ath ction! Hawtree!' repeated Miss Sterling in some amazement, 'and uttered in that familiar voice! "Ellen, Ellen Middleton, is it possible that you are here!"

A joyful exclamation and a rush into her arms were the young girl's reply to this question as she cried, 'Uncle Artherton, Aunt Mary; don't you know your old friend, Miss Sterling.

Mrs. Artherton fixed her soft blue eyes on the stranger, in whom she could not at first scarcely recognize the bright haired girl whom she had not seen for eighteen or twenty years; but by and by, she satisfied herself that, though changed, she was Ellen Sterling still, with the same sunny smile and the same laughing eyes that had made every one love her in their school days. Heartfelt indeed were the greetings which followed, and cordial the welcome Mrs. Artherton gave her friend as she congratulated herself on having dear Ellen under her own roof; more especially as she owed this good fortune to Mr. Artherton's exertions in rescuing her.

'It is by the merest chance, too, that he is home at present,' she said; 'he ought to have been in Scotland, but the state of the roads in this bleak country has kept him prisoner here for weeks.'

'And others as well,' Ellen Middleton added; 'but both children and grown are only too thankful to have so good an excuse for staying longer at Bellfield.' And then, laughing, she asked Aunt Mary how she intended to dispose of Miss Sterling for the house was as full already as it could hold.

'Oh,' said her aunt, 'we shall manage very well. Bellfield is very elastic.'

She smiled as she spoke; but it struck Miss Sterling that the question was, nevertheless, a puzzling one so she took the first opportunity of entreating her to take no trouble on her account; a chair by the fire was all the accommodation she cared for,as she wished to be in readiness to pursue her journey as soon as the coach could proceed.

'We shall be able to do better for you than that, Ellen,' Mrs. Artherton answered cheerfully. 'I cannot, it is true, promise you a 'state room' every bed in the house is full, and I know you will not allow any one to be moved for your convenience; which except in one respect is comfortable enough.'

'Haunted, of course,' said Miss Sterling, gaily.

'Oh, no, no, it is not that! I had fitted it up for my brother William, when he used to be here more frequently than of late, and it is often occupied by gentlemen when the house is full; but as it is detatched from the house, I have, of course never asked any lady to sleep there till now.'

'Oh, if that be all. I am quite willing to become its first lady tenant,' said Miss Sterling, heartily. So the matter was settled, and orders were given to prepare the Pa-[illegible] for the reception of the guest.

The evening passed pleasantly; music, dancing and ghost stories made the hours fly fast. It was long past ten—the usual hour of retiring at Bellfield—when Miss Stirling, under her hostess's guidance, took possession of her out door chamber. It really was a pleasant, cheerful little apartment. The crimson hangings of the bed and window look warm and comfortable in the flashing fire-light; and when the candles on the mantel piece were lighted, and the two easy chairs drawn close to the hearth, the long parted friends found it impossible to resist the temptation of sitting down to have, what in old days they used to call a 'two handed chat.' There was much to tell of what had befallen both, of chequered scenes of joy and sorrow, deeply interesting to those two, whose youth had been passed together; there were mutual recollections of school days to be talked over; mutual friends and future plans to be discussed; and midnight rung out from the table clock before Mrs. Artherton said good night. She had already crossed the threshold to go, when she turned back to say, 'I forgot to tell you, Ellen, that the inside bar of this door is not very secure, and that the key only turns outside. Are you inclined to trust to the bar alone, or will you, as Will used to do, have the door locked outside, and let the servants bring the key in the morning? William used to say that he found it rather an advantage to do so, as the unlocking of the door was sure to awake him.

Miss Sterling laughingly allowed that though generally, she could not quite think it an advantage to be locked in her room, still she had no objection to it on this particular occasion, as she wished to rise in reasonable time.

'Very well, then, you had better not fasten the bar at all, and I will send my maid with the key, at eight o'clock precisely. Good night.'

'Good night.'

They parted; the door was locked outside; the key taken out; and Miss Sterling sat by the window, watching her friend across the narrow back path, which had been swept clear of snow to make a dry passage from the house to the pavilion. A ruddy light streamed from the hall door, as it opened to admit its mistress, and gave a cheerful friendly aspect to the scene, but when the door closed and shut out that warm comfortable light, the dark porch, the pale moonlight glimmering on the shrouded trees, and the stars twinkling in the frosty sky, and such an aspect of solitude as to cast over a kind of chill that made her half repent having consented to quit the house at all, and let herself be locked up in that lonely place.

Yet what has she to fear? No harm could happen to her from within the chamber; the door was safely locked out and strong iron stanchions girded the window; there could be no possible danger. So drawing her chair once more to the fire, and stirring it into a brighter blaze, she took up a little bible which lay on the dressing table, and read some portions of the New Testament.

When she laid down the book she took out the comb that fastened up the long, dark silken tresses—in which, despite her five and thirty years, not a silvery thread was visible—and, as she arranged them for the night, her thoughts strayed back to the old world memories which her meeting with Mary Artherton had revived. The sound of the clock striking two was the first thing that recalled her to her present life. By this time the candles were burned down almost to the socket, and the fire was dying fast. As she turned to fling a fresh log into the grate her eyes fell upon the dressing glass, and in its reflection she saw, or fancied she saw, the bed curtains move.

She stood for a moment gazing at the mirror, expecting a repetition of the movement; but all was still, and she blamed herself for allowing nervous fear to overcome her. Still, it was exertion, even of her brave spirit, to approach the bed and withdraw the curtains. She was rewarded by finding nothing save the bed clothes folded neatly down, as if inviting her to press the snow white sheets, and a luxurious pile of pillows that looked most tempting. She could not resist the mute temptation to rest her wearied limbs. Allowing herself no time for further doubts, she placed her candle on the mantle piece and stepped into bed.

She was very tired, her eyes ached with weariness, but sleep seemed to fly from her. Old recollections thronged on her memory; thoughts connected with the business she had still to get through, haunted her; and difficulties that had not occurred to her till now, rose up before her. She was restless and feverish; and the vexation of feeling so, made her so wakeful. Perhaps if she were to close the curtains between her and the fire, she might be better able to sleep—the flickering light disturbed her and the moonbeams streaing between the window curtains cast ghostly shadows on the wall. So, she carefully shut out the light on that side, and turned again to sleep. Whether she had or had not quite lost consciousness, she could not well remember, but she was soon thoroughly aroused by feeling the bed heave under her. She started up, and waiting with a beating heart a repetition of the movement but it did not come. It must have been a return of the nervous fancies which had twice assailed her that night. Laying her head on the pillow, she determined to control her groundless terrors. Again she started up! This time there could be no doubt the bed had heaved more than once, accompanied by a strange gurgling sound as if of a creature in pain. Leaning on her elbow she listened with that intensity of fear which desires almost as much as it dreads a recurrence of the sound that caused it. It came again followed by a loud rustling noise as if some heavy body were dragged from under the bed in the direction of the fire. What could it be? She longed to call for help, but her tongue clave to the roof of her mouth, and the pulses in her temples throbbed until she felt as if their painful beating sounded in the silence of the night like the loud tick of a clock.

[illegible] until it reached the hearth rug, where it flung itself down with violence. As it did so, she heard the clank of a chain. Her breath came less painfully as she heard it, for it occurred to her that the creature might be nothing worse than the house dog, who, having broken his chain, had sought shelter beneath the bed in the warm room. Even this notion was disagreeable enough, but it was nothing to the vague terror which had hitherto oppressed her. She persuaded herself that if she lay quiet no harm would happen to her. Thus reasoning, she laid herself down again.

By and by the creature began to snore, and it struck her feverish fancy that the snoring was not like that of a dog. After a little time, she raised herself gently, and with trembling hands drew back an inch or two of the curtain and peered out—thinking that any certainty was better than a terrible suspense. She looked towards the fire place, and there, sure enough, the huge creature lay; a brown hairy mass, but of what shape it was impossible to divine, so fitful was the light and so strangely was it coiled up on the hearth rug. By and by, it began to stretch itself out, to open its eyes which shone in the flickering ray of the fire, and to raise its paws above its hairy head.

Good God! those are not paws! They are human hands, and dangling from the wrists long fragments of broken chains!

A chill of horror froze Ellen Stirling's veins as a flash of the expiring fire showed her this clearly and the conviction seized upon her mind that she was shut up with an escaped convict. An inward invocation to Heaven for aid rose from her heart as with the whole force of her intellect she endeavoured to survey the danger of her position, and to think of the most persuasive words she could use to the man into whose power she had so strangely fallen. For the present, however, she must make no movement to betray herself and perhaps he might overlook her presence till daylight came, and with it possible help. The night must be far spent; she must wait and hope.

She had not to wait long. The creature moved again—stood upright staggered towards the bed. For one moment—one dreadful moment—she saw his face, his pale pinched features, his flashing eyes, his black bristling hair; but, thank God he did not see her. She shrunk behind the curtains; he advanced to the bed slowly, hesitatingly, and the clanking sound of the broken chains fell menacingly on her ear. He laid his hand upon the curtains, and, for a few moments trembled to find the opening. These moments were all in all to Ellen Stirling. Despair sharpened her senses; she found that the other side of the bed was not put so close against the wall but that she could pass between. Into the narrow space between she contrived to slip noiselessly.

She had hardly accomplished the difficult feat and sheltered herself behind the curtains, when the creature flung itself on the bed, and drawing the bed clothes round him, uttered a sound more like the whining of a horse than the laugh of a human being.

For some little time Miss Sterling stood in her narrow hiding place, trembling with cold and terror, fearful least some unguarded movement should betray her, and bring down on her a fate she dare not contemplate. She lifted up her heart in prayer for courage; when her composure had in some degree revived, it occurred to her that if she could but reach the window, she might from that position possibly attract the attention of some passers by, and be released from her terrible durance.

Very cautiously she attempted the perilous experiment; her bare feet moved noiselessly across the floor, and a friendly ray of moonlight guided her safely to the window. As she put out her hand toward the curtain her heart gave a fresh bound of terror, for it came in contact with something soft and warm. At length, however, she remembered that she had flung down her fur cloak in that spot, and it was a mercy to come upon it now, as she was chilled to the bone. She wrapped it round her and reached the window without further adventure, or any alarm from the occupant of the bed, whose heavy regular breathing gave assurance that he was now fast asleep. This was some comfort, and she evidently needed it. The look out from the window was anything but inspiring. The stars still shone peaceful on the sleeping earth; the moon showed her pallid visage; not a sigh or sound presaged dawn; and after long listening in vain for any sign of life in the outer world, she heard the table clock strike four.

Only four!

She felt as if it were impossible to survive even another hour of such terror as she had just passed through. Was there no hope? None.

She tried to support herself against the window frame, but her first touch caused it to shake and creak in a manner that seemed to her strangely loud; she fancied that the creature moved uneasily in its bed at the sound. Drops of agony fell from her brow, as minute after minute wore heavily on; ever and anon a rustle of the bed-clothes, or a slight clank of the manacled hands, sent a renewed chill to her heart.

The clock struck five.

Still all was quiet within. Suddenly a man's whistle was heard in the court, and the driver of the mail coach, lantern in hand, crossed the yard towards the pavilion. Would to God she could call him, or in any way attract his attention! but she dared not make the slightest sound. He looked up at the window, against which he almost brushed in passing, and the light he held flashed on Miss Stirling's crouched figure. He paused, looked again, and seemed about to speak, when she hastily made signs that he should be silent, but seek assistance at the house. He gave her a glance of intelligence and hastened away.

How long his absence seemed! Could he have understood her? The occupant of the bed was growing every instant more and more restless; he was rising from the bed—he was groping round the room.—They would come too late.

But no! steps in the court-yard—then with a yell that rang in Ellen Stirling's ear [illegible] to her hiding place, dashed the slight window frame to piece, and finding him baulked of his purposed escape by the strength of the iron bars outside, turned like a wild beast on his pursuers. She was the first on whom his glance fell. He clasped her throat; his face was close to hers; his glittering eyes were glaring at her with frenzy when a blow from behind felled him.

She awoke from a long swoon to find herself safe in Mrs. Artherton's dressing room, and to hear that no one was hurt but the poor maniac, and that he was again in the charge of his keepers, from whom he had escaped a few hours before.

"A few hours! A lifetime, Mary! But heaven be thanked, it is passed like a wild dream!"

It was not all past. One enduring effect remained ever after to imprint on Ellen Stirling's memory, and on the memories of all who knew her, the event of that long night. Such had been her suffering, anxiety and fear, that in these few hours her hair had turned as white as snow.

ON RESPECT OF PERSONS.

For the Examiner.

DEAR SIR:—In late issues of the Examiner, both from yourself and correspondents, have appeared a number of articles on the prevailing vices, &c., of the day. I now send you a few thoughts on 'Respect of Persons,' a vice to which human nature is prone. We may infer this from the frequency of its exposure and interdiction in the bible. This serpent early crawled into the Christian church. It came in through the exclusive pride of the Jewish, and the class propensities of the heathen converts to Christianity. It showed itself among them, notwithstanding their Christian brotherhood and profession of the gospel, which teaches in language not to be misunderstood, the equality of mankind—their natural oneness in origin, capacity and destiny. "My brethren, have not the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory with respect of persons." The doctrinal sentiment of this clause forbids us to treat some persons with contempt and others with honor on account of external and circumstancial difference in their condition.

The Apostle James supposes, for illustration, the entrance of two strangers into one of their Christian assemblies. The garb and appearance of the one betokens poverty; the other, rank and opulence; for the gold ring in his day was a badge of rank and office. Then he tells us that the rich man may be sure of all the courtesy and respect within the gift of the congregation; but the salutation to the poor brother is 'stand thou there,' or 'sit' under my footstool."

The Christian, would fain find relief from the repulsiveness of this picture of early Christianity in the idea of its want of accuracy until he bethink himself of the inspired hand that drew it; and also too plentiful counterparts of it in our day, both in "fashionable churches" and out of them.

Human nature is the same in all ages. The human heart must have some object of idolatry, and none seems to suit so well, as the Golden Calf. It sees more than enough in "riches" to compensate for the want of wit or virtue. In an election for officers in a congregation, material qualifications usually outweigh intellectual and moral worth. The choice of a pastor is often determined rather by the sweetness of his voice than the soundness of his principles, or the piety of his character, popularity in the best reconstruction of a candidate, and of course, the preacher must represent the idea and spirit of his constituents. He is expected to understand the "signs of the times." He must "become all things to all men." He must be silent concerning the popular sins of the day, and say nothing in the pulpit to offend A. B. Esq., or Judge O. His temptation to preach the gospel to the rich is further enhanced by the character of the Deacons &c., who are associated with him. Financial availability had much to do with their selection also. They owe their elevation to the wealth or respectability of themselves or the friends they have in the church.

And the aim of the door-keeper runs in the same line with that of his superior officers. He is as busy as an Assessor in estimating the wealth of the people. He has an almost preternatural discernment between the rich and the poor. Of course as he has nothing but appearances to judge by, not looking at the mind but the "gold" ring; not at the heart, but at the "gay" clothing, he cannot always give a correct judgment, but sometimes falls into very mortifying blunders. However, our door-keeper's detective powers of riches are admirable. He meets the "honorable" stranger at the door with a smiling subserviency, and conducts him (upon whom the admiring eyes of the worshippers are turned) to an uppermost seat. Where the "Honorable" is received with gracious recognitions, hasty unlatching of the door, and every flattering courtesy of the genteel occupants.

The door-keepers' self complacency is now, however, somewhat disturbed by the entrance of another individual whose humble and unfashionable dress bespeak for him a very different rank from that of his predecessor. No eye follows him, no latch turned, and the fashionables are so busy reading their bibles, that they cannot see any one. And the door-keeper with all the speed possible hurries the intruder into a back seat in the gallery, or leaves him standing in the lobby to catch what crumbs may reach him from the bread of life.

Ah! the sacredness of the Sabbath morning, and the sweet amenities of the Christian sanctum are still profaned by the hissing of the old serpent. "Stand thou there, or sit here under my footstool."

Christians consult wealth and fashion in their ecclesiastical connections. They must worship where their God is. They prefer the magnificence, the instrument of music, and the costly sacrifices of the temple to the simple and spiritual worship of the unadorned meeting house. Crassus, not Christ, they seek.

A young man has some medical or legal practice to [illegible] starting some mechanical or mercantile trade. In the meantime he becomes religious and concludes to join the "church" Before doing so, however, he prepares himself by studying the "roll" book of the neighbouring congregations.

In another case we find a large and growing family. The parents wish their children to get into genteel society. By and by they are lifting their certificates from the obscure congregation where they could be of some use, and combine with other equally devoted and enterprising christians in erecting a temple of fashion up town. Bethel is deserted for Bethaven; and if we accompany these persons from the sanctuary to the pursuits and intercourse of every day life we shall find them governed by the same selfish principles and spirit, "having men's persons in admiration, because of advantage." They are the friends of the rich, but they do not know the poor. They are careful to bestow their benefactions upon those who circumstances justify the hope of reward. They bid their honorable friends to their entertainments. Their doors would be closed against John, with his rough dress of camels hair, or Paul, who degraded himself by his trade of tent-making. They are not likely to be of those who "entertain angels unawares" And yet they have the effrontery to regard themselves as holding the "faith of our Lord Jesus Christ the Lord of Glory."

Not a few in our day are ashamed to "confess Christ before men." They do not choose "to suffer affliction with the people of God." They would rather be known to the world as the friends and associates of the worldling, however ungodly, than of their Christian brethren, who are looked upon with contempt by the proud and the gay. They cultivate the favor, they ape the manners, and covet and delight in the society of such persons as palpably despise the name of Christ, and are by no means sparing of their ridicule of vital godliness; and in whose presence the mention of the "new birth" would be no less a breach of good breeding than an end of social pleasantry and enjoyment. An aristocratic spirit is unbecoming in all; but especially in men whose names are not to be found in the Herald's office.

Otonabee, June 27th, 1865.

It is said that the rose of Florida, the most beautiful of flowers, emits no fragrance; the bird of Paradise, the most beautiful of birds, gives no song; the cypress of Greece, the finest of trees, yields no fruit; dandies, the shiest of men, have no sense; and ballroom belles, the loveliest creatures in the world, are very often ditto.

A diminutive attorney, named Else, once asked Jeckyll: 'Sir, I hear you called me a pettifogging scoundrel. Have you done so, sir?' 'No, sir,' said Jeckyll, with a look of contempt. 'I never said you were a pettifogger or a scoundrel; but I did say you were little Else.'

The violet grows low and covers itself with its own leaves; and yet, of all flowers it yields the most delicious and fragrant smell. Such is humanity.

Men of genius are often very dull and inert when in society, just as blazing meteor, when it descends to the earth, is only a stone.

BURLEIGH ROAD.

It appears now, that the arrangements have been completed for the building of the Burleigh road by the Government, another difficulty arises about the course of the road. The line known as Gibson's line is through a miserable tract of uninhabitable land, the settlement of which is almost never to be expected. This line which starts from Buck Horn passes by the East end of Little Ball Lake, then passes through a country that never can be settled, as no one could make a subsistence in it. This a joint committee from the County and Town Councils discovered, and set to work to find a more practicable route, and one that would open a portion of Land fit for settlement. Accordingly they discovered and surveyed a line that, starting at the same place as Gibson's line, yet taking a more Westerly direction, touching at Sandy Lake, passes between the Great and Little Ball lakes, at a place known as the Ball Lakes' narrows.—This place is not over two hundred feet broad, and would offer no great difficulty. Then the road, we are informed (by one of the Committee,) passes through good land, the soil good, the timber good, and containing all that is required for a comfortable and prosperous settlement. The two lines, however, eventually meet North of Great Ball Lake, and it is contemplated will be continued through Glamorgan to Dysert. But a difficulty arises about the bridging of the Ball Lakes' narrows. There is a saw mill on the Missinaga Creek, the manufactured lumber of which must pass through these narrows, [illegible] hence arises the necessity of putting on a swing bridge; this we believe, the committee have prevailed on the Government also to do; but, if a swing bridge is built there must be some one appointed to open and see to the same during the season of navigation. This the Government is not inclined to assume, and now there arises the possibility of the road being abandoned, unless the County assumes the responsibility of providing for the opening and shutting of the bridge, if constructed. Or the Government will go on and construct the road on Gibson's line, which we learn would be a complete waste of money, as there never can be a settlement on that line. The evil of constructing a road through an inhospitable country must be apparent to every one. It has a bad effect on the mind of those who go with the intention of settling. They see nothing on each side but rock—no settlement—no hopes of a settlement, and they return discouraged and give up all intention of settling in such a country. It would therefore be a perfect waste of the public money to build a road where it would be of no use whatever, but rather would be an injury to the settlement of the tracts of good land that may be in Harvey. It is desirable therefore that something should be done to have the bridge built across the Ball narrows, and either allow those whose interests it is to have the navigation kept open a sum yearly for that purpose, and we are informed that the cost would not exceed $40 to $50 yearly. This would not be a very great burden, but who is to assume it. The government will not assume it, it is not a place of so much importance as to warrant their doing so. It naturally belongs to Harvey to assume the care of the bridge, but that Municipality will have burden enough to open up its roads and perform the imperatively demanded public works for some time to come. Perhaps the wisest plan would be for the County to assume the care of the bridge for a number of years until the country becomes better settled, say for eight or ten years and thus leave Harvey to provide for it. This may easily be provided for by considering the road as belonging to the Municipality of Harvey, which undoubtedly it does, and also the grants from the County, Town and Government as so much assistance to that municipality. In this way the Government would not be under any necessity to provide for the keeping of the bridge. The County would be aiding the Township of Harvey for a few years, as is often done by Counties, and the duty would devolve on the proper parties, as soon as they would be in a position to bear the expenses thereof.

But, in the meantime, before a settlement can be effected, time for constructing the road will be wasted, and the fall will come, yet but little done. This will retard also the settlement of the wild land, and be an injury to those who have already become settlers. One thing is certain, that no individual interest ought to be any barrier to the better interest of the community generally; and therefore, however much it may inconvenience any one individual, no time should be lost in having the road constructed on the best route, through the best land, and to suit the greatest number of settlers. In the mean time the County Council have appointed a Committee to see to all the road of importance until next session, and there, we presume could take action in the matter. There is no time for delay, something immediate must be done. We only offer these remarks as hints that may induce action. Perhaps some better scheme can be brought forward, if so, all the better. But let something be done immediately. The back country has been long enough kept back for want of means of ingress and egress.

The Bobcaygeon Road Boarding House Scheme.

We have made some enquiry concerning the scheme of keeping a Boarding House for those employed on the Road, and find it was not intended to be compulsory on the part of every one to board at the boarding place of the Agent. The Agent, however, reaps no advantage from the scheme, nor yet does the Government; it is the contractor who, although he provides the accommodations, provides neither bed nor bedding—nothing but board, and we presume a building to sleep in. The rate of $2.50 per week is surely exorbitant; but whether this is so or not, we will not discuss—but the rate of board should be left to the agreement of the individual parties concerned, and cannot have been fixed by the Government, much less intimated. It is also beyond the intention of the Government scheme to force any one, whose dwelling is at a convenient distance, to board at the boarding place for those on the Road; nor was it intended to compel those who could get it at convenient places, at any rate they might agree for. On the contrary, it was devised to meet the wants of parties who might be building a road through a country where it was impossible to get a boarding place unless so provided. The intentions, therefore were good, but not certainly applicable to every government work, nor intended for every work. It is necessary, however, that men should do something for the government money, and that they should be prepared to honestly earn their wages, which they certainly would not be if they had to travel three or four miles evening and morning: and it was to prohibit the necessity for this that induced the establishing of boarding places. We trust, therefore, that the agent will see it his duty to allow men to obtain their board where they can get it cheapest, but see that they do so at proper distances. If he has not the power, we believe he has only to write to the proper authorities, and the power will be granted; if not, our Government will find that these complaints will not be of any advantage to the settlement of the back country. The very novelty of the affair may lead many to say "What will come next?" We believe the Government desires the advantage of the settlers, and that on proper representations ample liberty will be granted to men to board where they please.

THE TWO POSITIVES.

It is a principle in electricity that two bodies electrified similarly repel each other. Is it not also a principle in human nature. Two men electrified alike are not likely to work very well together. If both are dogmatic: they will disagree, and strange to say, that it is certain to be the most dogmatic or positive of the two who will show signs of repulsion and separation, first. Mr. A. says it is so. Mr. B. says it is not so. To all appearance they both exhibit the same confidence and tone. Yet one turns away and finds fault with the other. In every case the fault-finder will invariably be found the [illegible] so it would be stranger still; for the principle can be tested by every day's experience.

Men seem to forget that like begets like, in everything, and in this as in other things, should not two over positive men rather agree to bear with each other: bear and forbear. Why can they not? The reason is self evident. human pride. But if men thus possessing these repellent qualities would stop to consider in whom lies the great fault of repulsion, less of the hard words uttered would be heard of. Is there not also great need for mutual forbearance, in things human, there would then be less contention and strife, more peace and good will among men.

AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Payne, Atzerott, Harrold and Mrs. Surratt have suffered the extreme penalty of the law, for the death of President Lincoln. They were executed on Friday last. There was a great reaction of public opinion in regard to Mrs. Surratt, and considerable effort was made to get her reprieved, but in vain. President Johnson suspended the habeas corpus in her case, and had her executed. Yet no charge is proved against her, but that of harbouring those that did it. Certainly we cannot admire the manner of President Johnson in dealing with the charter of the people's liberty against tyranny or despotism. The war is over, and civil law should be paramount.

The Anniversary of the Boyne.

We are unable to give particulars of the doings of the Sons of William yesterday, as we went to press too soon for their return. A number of them went to Omemee, to unite with their brethren of Emily in celebrating the day. Some also went to Keene. The day here is very still.

"Not a leaf has leave to stir,
Nature's lulled serene and still,
Quiet e'en the shepherd's cur."

Next week we will give particulars.

PRINTER'S PIC-NIC.

Printers, like other men, require a little relaxation now and then, and accordingly have determined to have a Pic Nic on Friday, for that purpose. In consequence, the Examiner office will be closed on that day. We hope they will have a fine day and a pleasant time.

We have dwelt at some length on the causes of our educational troubles, and intend to take up the matter again. We deny, emphatically, any intention to injure the institution, or any one connected therewith. On the contrary, it is our desire to see it flourish, see it what it ought to be and may be, the pride of the Town. We have no unkind personal feelings toward any one, our only desire is to serve the public faithfully, and this we try to do without fear, favor or affection. We would also inform the friends of education that we will freely publish any report of the School that will be of any advantage to our readers, personalities against individuals excepted, unless in relation to persons elected by the people. Local matters and acts we will give space for concerning so long as expressed in decorous language.

CHAMBERS FOR JUNE is received, and is a very good number.

THE UNION SCHOOL.

There has been considerable talk for the last few years concerning the status of the Union School. By some it has been urged that it is not fulfilling the end for which—that of supplying the connecting link between the Common School and the University, as well as supplying those who might not be inclined to go any further with an education than would fit them for the common business of life. Now, whether it has been answering this or not, for the present, we will not stop to discuss; but one thing is certain that the school has not been free from trouble, nor exempt from blame. Hence, it is worth enquiring to find has there been real cause for the trouble? who were the promoters? and how may it be avoided in future?

It is impossible to find an institution entirely free from some blame. There is a class of persons, in communities generally, who appear to live on fault-finding. They must be harping on some string; and when every other object fails, they will attack persons and institutions, without respect or investigation. Another class are only too good while they are good; but, alas, their goodness is as the morning due—it soon passes away. To these it is no matter how much injury they may do any one or any institution, if they can but gratify their spirit of revenge. We have had instances of such conduct in Peterborough; yet it may be shown that at any period in the past history of the School, more good could have been done by aiding the teachers, rather than trying to crush them under foot, as has been done.

During the incumbency of the last three or more Principals, the most trivial excuses were got up in order to injure their influence, and indirectly, would we say, may, directly destroy the usefulness of the School. Was the teachers or the people themselves most to blame for such things? We assert most positively, to our certain knowledge, not the teachers (except in a minor degree); but those carpers that continually are annoying, either themselves or some one else, very often both. The Board, then, instead of going to work to strengthen the hands of the teachers, are too ready to listen (at least always some of them) to the idle reports or cavils that may chance to take place between the teachers, or perchance between one of the teachers and some outsiders. It is impossible but that offences must come. These every teacher expects, and every Board knows must be. How necessary, then that the Board should consist of men who, knowing this, are prepared to withstand the results, instead of adding fuel to the fire. There has not been cause for one half of the fuss and cry that has been made; nor would it have been at all, had the promoters not received more or less countenance from those in authority. The spirit for change is becoming so strong that as soon as a teacher is three or four years in a place, he must begin to look for trouble. The merest trifle is often magnified into heresy; and woe betide the teacher, he will suffer, no matter who misses. In these squabbles, however, the teacher is not the only sufferer, as may be proved in the case of the Union School. By these remarks we do not wish to be understood as saying that the Union School is behind other institutions of the same kind in the Province; for we believe that it will compare favourably with any school of the kind. But while there is a continual cry of mismanagement—incompetence on the part of the teacher—a "no progress" cry in the [illegible] and [illegible] the state of the School by mere listeners, who never make inquiry.

We believe that the Peterborough Grammar an Union School is second to none in all the advantages of building and appliances. The staff of teachers, making allowances for human nature, are as well qualified as could be expected of men. To expect that they are perfection is too much—more than they would claim; and with the exception of a single unhappy affair, the school we believe has been well taught and well managed, even during the period of the greatest faultfinding. If these things be so, what is the cause of the troubles?

Twice the harmony among the teachers has not been as it ought to be; but such might naturally be expected now an then. The great cause of trouble, however, we believe to be undue interference on the part of the Board, and a little petty spite on the part of one or two of the people. Another great cause of trouble is the subordinate position of the Principal in the control of the internal management, such as engaging teachers,—continual recommendations of visitors, who urged their recommendations also on the Board: and, if we mistake not, that body has gone so far as to interfere in timetables and other internal arrangements, as also in the order of the studies, the time of some of them, and an indefinite number of other minutiæ too trifling to be noticed at all, and altogether out of place for them. Let the Principal be put into the School as the Rector—give him the choice of his colleagues—make him responsible for the progress from the primary to the highest department, and let no interference be by any person or persons—and two of the greatest causes of all the trouble will be removed, viz: the existence of continual interference, and the removal of an incubus from the principal having almost no control in appointments. We were pleased to see that the Board at its last meeting were inclined to consult the Head Master in the choice of at least one teacher. By thus doing the teachers and Board would be left free to attend to the promotion of education—instead of promoting feuds and adding fuel to the flames—by taking sides in everything that came up.

This may be called giving the Principal too much power. If he be tyrannical he may act with a too high hand; but this will soon recoil on himself. One thing is certain, it will destroy the cry of insubordination on the part of the under teachers, as they will find it to their interest to aid him, while he, responsible for the whole, will find it to his own interest to work with them. And we are confident that if this mutual co-operation existed, none of the departments would be long in the background.

Another cause of the trouble in the School is the manner in which not only the parents and guardians sometimes, but also the Trustees treat their teachers. They must just speak so much, and they must remain silent so long; they must be of the same mind of every member of the Board, and every individual of influence in the place; but especially they must be even as little machines to show that they do, like very clocks and watches of the different hours of the day, or to move as expressed in decorous language.

BANK CHANGES.

R. J. Dallas, Esq., of the Bank of Montreal here has accepted the management of the Toronto Bank in Montreal, and has left for his new sphere of action. Mr. Dallas while in Peterboro' conducted the affairs of the institution with ability, and to the general satisfaction of the community, which is certainly as much as could be expected of any individual taking charge of it at the time he did; and we have no doubt that he will be equally successful in his present position.

His successor, Robert Richardson, Esq., has been agent of the Bank of Montreal, in Perth, for five years and comes to Peterboro' with the highest testimonials, viz. the esteem of the people whence he comes.

The following we clip from the Perth Expositor in relation to Mr. Richardson's departure:

PRESENTATION TO ROBERT RICARDSON, ESQ., OF THE BANK OF MONTREAL, ON HIS LEAVING PERTH.

On it becoming known that Robert Richardson, Esq., who for the past five years and so efficiently performed the duties of Agent of the Bank of Montreal, in this town was about to leave the place to take charge of the Branch of the Institution in Peterboro, it was at once determined that he should not be allowed to depart without some substantial token of the high esteem in which he is held by the people of this place, and more especially by those who are in the habit of transacting business in the Bank of Montreal.

The notice of Mr. Richardson's removal was extremely short, and fears were at one time entertained that it would be impossible to prepare a fitting testimonial before his departure. The subscribers, however took advantage of the services of Mr. William Meighen, of this place, who happened to be in Montreal at that time, and he was immediately telegraphed to; and it was owing to that gentleman's praiseworthy and good taste that a most beautiful testimonial, in the shape of a Silver Tea Service, arrived in Perth the very night before Mr. Richardson's departure.

The Presentation took place at the residence of Arthur Meighen, Esq., on Thursday, 29th ult., and was attended by most of the subscribers.

The following address was read by W. M Shaw, Esq:

TO ROBERT RICHARDSON, ESQ.

DEAR SIR,—The undersigned learn with regret that you are about to remove from the Agency of the Bank of Montreal at Perth, and beg to assure you that our business relations with you as Agent of the Bank here, have left on our minds an earnest conviction of your highly honorable and impartial character. We beg also to express our appreciation of your moral and exemplary character as a man and a member of the community. In token of the hearty good will and friendship which we entertain for you, we beg to offer for your acceptance a silver Tea Service. Wishing you and Mrs. Richardson health, prosperity and happiness in your new home.

We remain,
Yours very respectfully.

To this Mr. Richardson made the following reply:

WM. SHAW, ESQ., and others,

Gentlemen,—It is with feelings of mingled satisfaction that I have listened to the address just read on behalf of yourself and others, conveying to me expressions of confidence, which I assure you I cherish as of much value. I may say that the past five years of business intercourse with you in this place have passed pleasantly away, and I regret that those relations which have existed during that period are so shortly to cease. I thank you for the valuable Tea Service with which you have been pleased to accompany your words of kind friendship. Sincerely thanking you for your good wishes towards Mrs. Richardson and myself in our new home.

I am, Gentlemen,
Yours Respectfully,
R. RICHARDSON.

The Tea Service presented to Mr. Richardson was of silver, and consisted of five pieces, including a very large and handsomely chased tray. On the latter the following inscription was beautifully engraved:

THIS TRAY
with a Tea and Coffee Service, is presented to
R. RICHARDSON, ESQ.,
By a few of his friends, on his removal from the Bank of Montreal, Perth, to the Branch at Peterboro',
June, 1865.

Each of the other pieces had Mr. Richardson's initials engraved on their sides.

This presentation was in every respect creditable alike to those who presented and to him who accepted. For the latter it was indeed richly deserved, for by his gentlemanly and courteous demeanour, and his sterling integrity he had succeeded in securing the entire confidence and esteem of all who were acquainted with him. By this removal Perth sustains a great loss. We only echo the universal sentiment of the inhabitants of this place when we wish him and his every possible blessing and prosperity for the future.

A trial has just been made at Toulon with an ironclad, said to be the most useful yet invented. It is a steam gunboat which can be taken to pieces, drawn but little water, and may be removed from one place to another by rail or by an ordinary waggon. This boat is said to be ball-proof, draws but 3 feet of water when fully laden, and carries a battery of rifled guns in a space where 40 gunners as well as the guns are protected. The trial was made in the outer roads of the harbor, and succeeded perfectly in regard to speed, precision in firing, and facility of evolution.

FREEMASONRY.—The London Protodype informs us that "a question is now before the Wesleyan Conference, the object being to denounce Freemasonry. It is nothing less than the passing of a law to prohibit any Methodist clergyman from becoming a Freemason, and to compel those who are already members to renounce all claims of such an institution." The man who proposes such a resolution is a fit subject for the Asylum, or a Cardinal's hat, as it is only the Church of Rome that interdicts Freemasonry.

The will of Sir Samuel Cunard was proved in London on the 13th ult., the personality in England being under £350,000. The executors are his two sons, Sir Edward Cunard, Bart., and Mr. William Cunard.

It is reported that the negotiations between the Mexican embassy and the Papal Court have been interrupted, and that the Embassy will leave Rome, and M. Reglia return from Mexico.

The Hon. Thomas Connoly, M. P. for Donnegal, Ireland, has tendered to Gen. Lee a home for himself and family in any part of Great Britain he may select. The offer has been declined.

BEAT IT WHO CAN.—We notice that at the late Exhibition, Mr. Kingsley Calcutt exhibited a strawberry of the "Triomphe de Gand" variety which measured nine inches and a half inches in circumference.—Cobourg Sun.

An iron clad on a new principle, discovered by the Emperor of the French, is now being constructed at Toulon. It is called "Le Taureau," carries no guns, and only needs by its weight and speed, breaking the ships it attacks by breaking them to pieces.

Communications.

For the views of our Correspondents we do not hold ourselves responsible.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—In the romantic and beautiful village of Bobcaygeon I witnessed on Saturday 8th inst. a sublime scene: (if we can call the ridiculous sublime). All on account of Mr. Dunkin. The inhabitants of Verulam are not prepared for Mr. Dunkin's well intended Bill; it needs to be made popular, and to force its popularity, introduces at once, Demoralization and disorder, as the sequel shows. A first class Hotel keeper in Bobcaygeon was complained of and summoned before the resident J. P's., for a breach in Mr. Dunkin's Bill. The trial came off on the aforesaid Saturday. The Plaintiff was unsuccessful in establishing his point. Then came the sublime: the appointed Detective had his lip split; the chief magistrate his peepers closed; his associate assaulted; the informer, (a son of the J. P's., mauled, and Mr. D. burned in effigy. Hence the bill in a place like Verulam instead of doing its intended good, is demoralising society. The high office of magistrate, Her Majesty's representative insulted, and none dare say why do you do so. It is unworthy of Britons. The dill, Sir, in Bobcaygeon is unpopular and uncalled for, and should be banished to some more genial clime. For all, Sir, you must not consider Bobcaygeon a village of "out laws," they are a quiet, sober, industrious, moral and church-going people; as much so as any little village I ever visited, but this Bill they consider contemptible.—They will banish it.

A. Traveller.

MILLBROOK, July 11th, 1865.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—Knowing the interest taken by you and the country generally, in the movement of our gallant Volunteers, I beg leave to send you a short account of the interesting proceedings which took place here on Thursday last. On that day the Millbrook Infantry Company, Captain Hourden, who have just returned from two months' frontier service at Niagara, were paraded at three o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of being inspected by Brigade-Major Patterson. Upon the arrival of this officer upon the parade ground, the Officers saluted and the Company presented arms; after which the Captain opened the ranks, and the Brigade-Major inspected the arms and accoutrements, which being concluded, the Company was put through a number of Company and Battalion movements, all of which were admirably executed and spoke well for the officers and men.

Brigade-Major Patterson complimented Captain Howden, his officers and men, upon the high state of discipline to which they had attained, and upon the enviable reputation they had left behind them at Niagara. The Company was then marched to the armory and dismissed.

At six o'clock, p. m., the members of the Company sat down to a repast, which had been prepared for them by their admiring friends, who feel proud of the gallant fellows whose conduct has reflected honour upon themselves and the loyal Township of Cavan.

Yours, &c.,
YEOMAN.

School Boards, Schools and Teachers.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

MR. EDITOR,—What a queer set of mortals the members of the Peterboro' Union School Board must be. Not content in displaying their abilities in the selling of drugs, broad-cloth, sugar and tea, they now discuss the subject of education, pronouncing upon Teachers and School matters generally, (things far beyond their grasp) with all the pomp and authority of a Zengis Khan, or a Tamerlane; and woe be to the Teacher who questions their fitness to make out Time tables, or to speak and give judgment on the education of the young. Dismission and abuse is his portion.

Concerning our "Union School magnates in appointing private school examinations in the place of public ones." There is something doubtless rotten in the "State of Denmark."—In our country schools things have not got to that point as yet. But in other respects things are not to be better. When a school is vacant shoals of green horns, old and young, who have little experience and less talent are found applying for it. The Teacher of talent and experience can hardly get along, for whenever a school is vacant some "given-horn" offers to teach for the magnificent sum of $160 to $180. His offer be accepted. Meanwhile the "new hand" enters on the duties of the school room; things do not work well with him. As his time advances his difficulties increase, and the section find out as poor Richard says, that they have "pull too dear for their whistle."

Such state of things this is, Mr. Editor. Is there no remedy? Yes, abolish the office of Township Superintendent and appoint a County one. Let all disputes between Teachers and Boards be referred to the judgment of practical educationists. Then merit in old or young will be rewarded, drones be driven from our schools and justice meted out to all.

Emigrant Ship Burned on Banks of Newfoundland.

NEARLY 400 LIVES LOST.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The Merchants' Exchange, of this city, bulletins the following: The ship William Nelson, Capt. Smith, from Antwerp, June 4, and for New York with passengers, was burned on the Banks of Newfoundland on the 1st inst. About 30 of her passengers were picked up and taken to St. Johns, Newfoundland. The boats, with the crew, &c., are missing, and it is supposed four hundred lives have been lost.

MONTREAL, July 7.—The purser of the steamer Moravian makes the following statement:—The ship Wm. Nelson, from Flushing for Philadelphia, was destroyed by fire on the Banks of Newfoundland. The fire originated from a red hot bolt being put into a tar pot between decks. Forty people were taken to St. Johns by the steamer Meteor. Four hundred people are missing. Some may have been saved in the boats.

SECOND DESPATCH.—Capt. Aiton, of the steamship Moravian, gives the following statement:—The Associated Press boatman at Cape Race reported that the steamer Meteor, belonging to D. & W. Stewart, arrived at St. Johns on Friday, with 40 of the passengers and crew of the ship Wm. Nelson, taken from the burning wreck on the Banks of Newfoundland. The Wm. Nelson sailed from Flushing for New York with German emigrants on board. Before the Meteor reached the burning vessel, all the boats had put off full of passengers and crew, but none of the boats had been heard of. As far as Capt. Aiton could learn, there were upwards of 400 passengers on board when the vessel sailed.

A Vienna paper asserts that an angry correspondence has lately taken place between the cabinets of St. Petersburg and Constantinople. Russia charges the Sublime Porte with attempting to bring about an emigration of the Mahommedan subjects of the Emperor in a mass to Turkey, from some of the Provinces on the Asiatic border. The Northern Autocrat demands an explanation; and at the same time a change in the organization of Polish regiments in Turkey, which are largely recruited by the emigration; in fact, so much so that their chief has openly remonstrated upon the possible importance of those troops to Russia.

The Times has a leader on the probable difficulty of finding skilful operatives to work up cotton, for it is said the old hands actually prefer the out-door labor to which they have become accustomed, and set its superior healthiness against its higher wage.

THE FATE of the CONSPIRATORS.

Sentences of the Commission Approved.—Harrold, Payne, Atzerott and Mrs. Surratt to be hung.—Mudd, Arnold, and O'Laughlin to be Imprisoned for Life.—Spangler Six Years in Penitentiary.—How They received their Sentences.—Efforts to get Mrs. Surratt Reprieved.—Execution of Conspirators.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—In accordance with the findings and sentences of the Military Commission, which President Johnson approved yesterday, David E. Harrold, Lewis Payne, Mrs. Mary E. Surrat, and George A Atzerott, were to be hung by the proper military authorities.

The coffins and burial clothes have already been prepared.

Only a limited number of persons will be admitted to the scene.

The sentences of the con pirators who are to be imprisoned will be carried into immediate effect.

The attending physicians entertain the belief that the President will be able to resume his duties in a few days.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—All the condemned conspirators sentenced to be hanged to-day were executed. On the petition of Mary E. Surratt, through her counsel, Messrs Aiken and Clampitt, Judge Wylie, of the Supreme Court of this District, directed an issue of the writ of habeas corpus to Gen. Hancock, commanding him to produce in court, at 10 o'clock this morning, the body of Mary E. Surratt, with the cause and day of her detention. The writ was served on General Hancock, at 8 o'clock this morning, by U. S. Marshal Gooding. He immediately consulted with the Attorney-General and the Secretary of War. At 10.30 o'clock the General had not obeyed the writ. This fact was brought to the notice of the court by her counsel, but the judge said he had not the power to enforce the writ.

A few minutes after one o'clock the outer prison-door was opened, and Mrs. Surratt was supported on her way to the gallows by two military officers. Next followed Atzerot, Harrold, and Payne, accompanied by a guard, and their respective ministers of the Gospel. Front seats were provided for them on the platform in the following order: Mrs. Surratt, Payne, Harold and Atzerot. The officers entrusted with the execution and the ministers occupied intermediate positions.

Major-General Hartsuff who has been from the commencement in charge of the prisoners, came forward and read the order of the War Department already published, approving the sentences, and ordering the penalty of death to be inflicted. A heavy guard was stationed on the walls surrounding the ground; soldiers below were formed on two sides of a square.—Several hundred civilians were present, anxious spectators of the solemn scene. One of the priests attendant on Mrs. Surratt repeated a short prayer, to which Payne, who was seated next to her, attentively listened. The minister who has been administering to Payne expressed in the name of the latter his sincere thanks to General Hartsuff, and the officers and soldiers who had charge of him for their personal kindness. They had not uttered an unkind word, nor given an unpleasant look or gesture, but seemed to compassionate his misfortune. The minister then uttered a brief prayer, asking for Payne the forgiveness of all his sins, and a passage out of this unhappy world into the joys and blessings of Heaven.

The condemned were then required to rise from their seats, when the shawls were removed. They were now all on the drops; their hands were fastened behind them, and their legs bandaged both below and above the knees, and white caps placed over their heads.

After all, while being prepared for the execution, exclaimed, "Gentlemen, farewell! Take care! and good bye, gentlemen now before me." One of the clergymen standing near exclaimed, "May we all meet in the other world!"

As soon as the noose was placed around each neck, Mrs. Surratt's being the last one adjusted, the section of the platform on which they had been standing, suddenly fell, and the culprits were hanging several feet from the ground.—Mrs. Surratt and Payne scarcely moved a muscle.

The scaffold was constructed with two drops or traps, each one for two of the conspirators. From a beam above hung four ropes of different lengths, according to the stature of the criminals, the longest being for Payne. The drops had a fall of five feet. About two rods from the scaffold were four new-made graves, and near them rough pine-board coffins. As the hour of execution approached a number of guards on the walls were increased until they stood in close order, elbow to elbow. At a little past 1 o'clock the regiment was drawn up inside the yard, forming 3 sides of a square.—Mrs. Surratt was on the scaffold, next to the penitentiary; then came Payne, Harold and Atzerot. A clergyman attended each on the scaffold. All were hung in manacles, save Mrs. Surratt. Four soldiers performed the execution.

Payne was strangled to death, but the necks of all the others were broken. The bodies hung till 2 o'clock, when they were cut down.

NEWS BY THE CHINA.

The Cunard steamship China, from Liverpool on Saturday afternoon, June 24th, via Queenstown on Sunday 25th, passed this point at eight o'clock this morning en route to Halifax and Boston.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The English papers are unusually silent on American affairs.

The whole 2,300 miles of the Atlantic Telegraph Cable was on board the Great Eastern, and as soon as the balance of the paying-out machinery was put up, the telegraph fleet would sail for Valentia, and it was hoped, before their departure from Valentia, that a United States Government steamer would join them.

The vessels will probably leave Valentia on the 10th July, and arrive at Heart's Content, Trinity Bay, about the 24th July. The Directors of the Company have decided on the following uniform tariff between all points of the United States and British North America to Great Britain:—£20 sterling for twenty words or less, and £1 for each additional word. To the Continent of Europe, £21 for twenty words, and £1 1s for each additional word. To Asia and Africa, £25 for twenty words, and £1 5s for each additional word. The address, date and signature are all to be counted and charged for in messages. Messages for places in Asia and Africa, to which the telegraph does not extend, will be forwarded by the first mail, postage paid. Messages in cipher will be charged double these rates. The Directors are convinced that, unless they charge high prices at first, there will be such an accumulation of business that great delay will arise in the transmission of the messages, but they intend to put down new cables as fast as possible, and then reduce the price. The cable will be opened for business as soon after it is laid as is possible, and messages will be forwarded in the order in which they are received at Heart's Content and Trinity Bay.

The new stock of the Atlantic Telegraph Company sells in London at a premium, and old one thousand pound shares at £360. On the 21st June, the shareholders in the Telegraph Construction Company visited the Great Eastern by invitation from the Directors of the Atlantic Company, and on the following day Mr. Adams, the American minister, Duke and Duchess of Somerset, and a large number of other distinguished persons visited the ship.

The health of Mr. Adams was drank on board. Mr. Adams, in returning thanks, said that during the recent troubles he was selfish enough to wish the cable might not be laid, as he would have been overwhelmed with telegrams; but now he wished it every success, as he believed it would do more than any other agency to strengthen the bonds of union between the two countries. The interest and object of Great Britain had always been to maintain peace, and now that the contest which had distracted the United States had been put an end to, the sole object they had in view was peace also.

No more visitors were to be admitted on board the Great Eastern before she sailed. The present condition of the cable was all that could be desired, and those most interested in it seemed to be perfectly confident of its complete success.

The report of the Hudson Bay Company is ready, with regard to the claim of the Company against the United States under the Oregon treaty. The hope is expressed that the question may be concluded before the end of the year.

FRANCE.

The Prince Napoleon was about to proceed to Switzerland. His interview with the Emperor is said to have widened the breach between them.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The following important order has just been issued:

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJ. GEN'S OFFICE,
Washington, July 6, 1865.

To Major General W. S. Hancock, U. S. Volunteers, Middle Military Division, Washington, &c.

Whereas, by the military commission appointed in paragraph 4 special orders No. 211, dated War Department, Adjutant General's Office, May 9, 1865, and of which Major General David Hunter, United States Volunteers, is president, the following persons were tried and sentenced, as hereinafter stated, as follows:—

1st. David E. Harrold, Finding:—Of the specification, "guilty," except "combining, confederating, and conspiring with Edward Spangler," as to which part thereof "not guilty." Of the charge "guilty," except the words of the charge that he "combined, confederated, and conspired with Edward Spangler," as to which part of the charge "not guilty." Sentence. And the commission therefore sentence him, the said David E. Harrold, to be hanged by the neck until he be dead, at such time and place as the President of the United States shall direct, two-thirds of the members of the commission concurring therein.

2nd. George A. Atzerott. Finding:—Of the specification, "guilty," except "combining, confederating, and conspiring with Edward Spangler," of this "not guilty." Of the charge "guilty," except as to "combining, confederating and conspiring with Edward Spangler;" of this "not guilty." Sentence: And he commission does therefore sentence him, the said George A. Atzerott to be hung by the neck until he be dead, at such time and place as the President of the United States shall direct, two-thirds of the members of the commission concurring therein.

3rd. Lewis Payne. Finding:—Of the specification "guilty," except "combining, confederating and conspiring with Edward Spangler;" of this "not guilty." Of the charge "guilty," except as to "combining, confederating and conspiring with Edward Spangler;" of this "not guilty." Sentence—And the Commission does therefore sentence him, the said Mary E. Surrat, to be hung by the neck until she be dead, at such time and place as the President of the United States shall direct, two-thirds of the members of the commission concurring therein.

And whereas the President of the United States has approved the foregoing sentences in the following order, to wit:—

EXECUTIVE MANSION, July 5, 1865.

The foregoing sentences in the cases of David E. Harrold, George A. Atzerott, Lewis Payne, and Mary E Surratt, are hereby approved, and it is ordered that the sentences in the cases of of David E. Harrold, George A. Atzerott, Lewis Payne, and Mary E. Surratt, be carried into execution by the proper military authority, under the direction of the secretary of War, on the seventh day of July, 1865, between the hours of ten o'clock a.m., and two o'clock p.m., of that day.

(Signed) ANDREW JOHNSON,
President.

Therefore, you are hereby commanded to cause the foregoing sentences in the cases of D. E. Harrold, G. A. Atzerott, Lewis Payne, and Mary E. Surratt to be duly executed, in accordance with the President's order.

By command of the President of the United States,

E. D. TOWNSEND,
Assistant Adjt. General.

In the remaining cases O'Laughlin, Spangler, Arnold and Mudd, the findings and sentences are as follows:—

Fifth. Michael O'Laughlin—Finding: Of the specification "guilty," except the words thereof as follows: "And in the further prosecution of the conspiracy aforesaid and its murderous and treasonable purposes aforesaid, on the nights of the 13th and 14th April, A. D., 1865, at Washington city, and within the military department and military lines aforesaid, the said Michael O'Laughlin did then and there lie in wait for Ulysses S. Grant, then Lieutenant-General and Commander of the armies of the United States, with intent then and there to kill and murder the said U. S. Grant;" of said words, "Not Guilty;" and except "combining, confederating and conspiring with Edward Spangler," of this "Not Guilty," of the charge, "Guilty," except combining, confederating and conspiring with Edward Spangler," of this "Not Guilty." The Commission sentenced Michael O'Laughlin to be imprisoned for life.

Sixth. Edward Spangler—Finding: of the specification, "Not Guilty," except as to the words "the said Edward Spangler, on said 14th day of April, A. D., 1865, at about the same hour of that day as aforesaid, within said military department and the military lines aforesaid, did aid and abet him," meaning John Wilkes Booth, "in making his escape after the said Abraham Lincoln had been murdered in the manner aforesaid;" and of these words "guilty." Of the charge "not guilty," but guilty of having "feloniously and traitorously aided and abetted John Wilkes Booth in making his escape after having killed and murdered Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States—he, the said Edward Spangler at the time of aiding and abetting as aforesaid, well knowing that he said Abraham Lincoln, President as aforesaid, had been murdered by the said John Wilkes Booth as aforesaid." The Commission sentenced Spangler to be confined at hard labour for six years.

Seventh. Samuel Arnold Of the specification, "guilty," except "combining, conspirating and conspiring with Edward Spangler," of this "not guilty." Of the charge "guilty," except "combining, confederating and conspiring with Edward Spangler," of this "not guilty." The Commission sentenced him to imprisonment at hard labour for life.

Eighth—Samuel A Mudd. Of the specification "guilty," except "combining, confederating and conspiring with Edward Spangler," of this "not guilty;" and except "receiving with and entertaining and harbouring and consealing said Lewis Payne, John W. Surratt, Michael O'Laughl

THE TRANS-ATLANTIC CABLE.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST ACCIDENT—THE COMMERCIAL PROSPECTS OF THE UNDERTAKING.

(From the London Times, June 19th.)

At length all the preparations connected with the final departure of this great telegraphic expedition are completed. On Wednesday the "Amerbyat" left the telegraph works with the last length of 245 miles of cable on board, and on Saturday the operation of coiling this in was begun. This work will probably last till the 22nd inst. Before the following spring tides set in, about the 6th or 7th of July, the "Great Eastern" will start for Valentia. There she is expected to arrive about the 9th or 10th, and there she will be met by the two ships of war appointed to convoy her—the "Terrible" and the "Sphinx." Both these vessels are being fitted with the best apparatus for deep-sea soundings, with buoys as I means for buoying the end of the cable, if ever it should become necessary, and with Bullen's night light naval signals, with which the "Great Eastern" is likewise to be supplied. To avoid all chance of accident, the big ship will not approach the Irish coast nearer than twenty or twenty-five miles, and her stay off Valentia will be limited to the time occupied in making a splice with the massive shore end, which for a length of twenty-five miles from the coast will be laid previous to her arrival.

With regard to the process of laying, it is hoped the "Great Eastern" may be kept throughout the whole voyage at a uniform speed of six knots per hour, faster than which it would not be safe, as a rule, to run out the cable. At less speed than this, however, the big ship would fall of steerage way, and with a beam wind would certainly go to leeward without some counteracting influence. This influence will be afforded if necessary by the paddle engines, which are to be disconnected, and the efforts of one wheel at either side would be quite sufficient to overbalance the effects of anything but a very violent storm. This latter risk is now literally all that has to be feared. On this only doubtful point, therefore, it is gratifying to know that Capt. Anderson is sanguine of all going well.

Yet, in this estimate of events, it must not be forgotten that, in the last memorable expedition in the "Agamemnon," midsummer was fixed on as the time when a storm in the Atlantic was almost impossible; and the records of the Meteorological Department both here and in America, certainly justified such an expectation, as they showed that for fifty years no storm had taken place at that time. Yet it was precisely on the 2'st of June, that the hurricane with which the "Agamemnon" and "Niagara" had been battling for some days, was at its height, and those on board the ill-starred "Agamemnon," at least, knew not from hour to hour which was to be their last. Most earnestly is it to be wished that on this great occasion the calculation of averages, if not more just, may prove at least more fortunate. As far as regards the cable itself, there is absolutely nothing to be desired.

As regards the commercial prospects of the undertaking, it may be stated that the Atlantic Company have begun their work under the renewed agreement with the Government for a subsidy of £14,000 a year, and, in addition, a guarantee of eight per cent. upon a capital of £600,000. All systems of government guarantee of this kind are in themselves radically bad, and opposed to every rule of free trade and commercial enterprise. In this case, however the guarantee is not only at variance with the principal economy, but possesses its own special attributes of absurdity. Thus, in return for their guarantee, which is only to continue in force while the line is in working-order, the Government demand that the maximum charge for message shall not exceed 4s 6d. per word. With such a tariff the line would be absolutely choked with messages, and the company, in return for its overwork and general maladministration of business, would only receive a revenue of £.50,000 a year. At a tariff of £1 per word, on the contrary, the company, while guaranteeing a mes-age to, and the receipt of a reply from, any part of the United States within twenty-four hours, could with ease earn a revenue of £1,000,000 a year, or nearly twice the cost of the present cable. In fact the Government guarantee is only conditional on the line being in working-order, and while it is so working the company can, for the reasons we have stated, do ten times better without it If the shareholders are wise, the sooner they shake off this clog upon their enterprise the better. At present it is estimated that the operation of telegraphing can be safely conducted day and night at the rate of from six to eight words a minute. Both Professor Thompson and Mr. Varley, however, are confident that with the new machines they have invented this rate may be increased to nearly twelve words a minute. On this expectation, however, we decline to venture an opinion. The despatch of a message of one hundred words through the line to America, and the clear receipt of a similar number in reply, will, after the cable has been laid, be accepted by the company as a proof that the wire is in perfect working-order, and without further formality it will at once be opened to the use of the public. Most earnestly do we hope that this greatest scientific undertaking may be followed by the commercial and political success which the completion of telegraphic communication with the United States must achieve.

A Hint to Butter Dealers.

From the Montreal Tr de Review

PACKING BUTTER.—Use none but new packages, White Ash preferable; let them be well seasoned and thoroughly cleaned and soaked in brine; mark distinctly the correct dry tare on each package; use fine salt only; pack the butter closely; let the various colors be carefully selected; fill the kegs as full as possible; place a clean linen cloth over the top, carefully tuck it down; then put on a handful of fine salt and a little brine; head up immediately; mark neatly with your own initials and address in full to the Consignee. A brass stencil-plate is best for marking.

PACKAGE.—The tiniest bobbing from 50 to 60 lbs is most suitable; it suits the retailer, and is preferred by English buyers; they also arrive in better condition; they cannot be rolled like kegs, therefore they are generally much cleaner. Kegs with loose or slip covers are also much sought after, and are always taken in preference to the ordinary keg;—where large packages are used, we would in all cases recommend the slip covers. We would also advise that, as far as possible, packages should be given out to the farmers to be filled by one maker; where this cannot be done, and where packing in the store is unavoidable, the Butter should never be allowed to remain exposed to the damp atmosphere of a cellar, which perchance, contains every description of Soap, Candles, Oils, Liquors, &c., but it should be packed the earliest opportunity, and, when packed, should be immediately headed up.

It is expected that the demand from England will be very large this season for FINE QUALITIES, for which comparatively higher prices will be paid; but inferior will probably be a greater drug than ever, so that we would advise great care in taking in Butter.

LIGHTING.

No quicker is the lightning's flash to the eye, than is the marvellous action of Radway's Ready Relief in relieving the sufferer of pain. The moment it is applied to external injuries, painful parts, Swollen Joints, Inflamation or Congestion, the patient derives ease and comfort. In cases where pain is experienced in the stomach or bowels, one teaspoonful in a wine glass of water, taken internally, will afford relief. Every parent should keep this remedy in the house. If suddenly seized with Cramp, Diptheria, Influenza, Cramps, Spasms, Burns, Scalds, Falls, Bruises, Strains, Sprains, Toothache, Bilious Cholic, or any other pain, the use of Radway's Ready Relief will in a few minutes afford ease and comfort, and break up the disease. Keep this remedy and use it: your doctor's bills will be light. Price 25 cents per bottle. Sold by Druggists and Storekeepers.

GENIUS AND LABOUR.—Alexander Hamilton once said to an intimate friend, men give me some credit for genius, all the genius I have lies just in this, when I have a subject in hand I study it profoundly day and night it is before me. I explore it in all its bearings—my mind becomes pervaded with it, and every one who has used the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" can speak of the magical effect it has in subduing coughs, colds, pleurisy, rheumatism, croumps, or all pains of the human body. Sold by all Medicine Dealers at 25 cts per bottle.

A GREAT COMFORT IN TRAVELLING.—In travelling about this season of the year, you are liable to colds, coughs, sore throats, hoarseness &c.; now just you put a box of Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers into your pocket, occasionally slip a wafer into your mouth, and observe the elegant and soothing effect. Sold by all Druggists at 25 cents a box.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health in a few weeks by a very simple remedy, after having suffered several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption—is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure.

To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription used, (free of charge,) with the directions for preparing and using the same, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, &c. The only object of the advertiser in sending the Prescription is to benefit the afflicted, and spread information which he conceives to be invaluable; and he hopes every sufferer will try his remedy, as it will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing.

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY IN CANADA.

The following testimony from a well known and highly respected Merchant of Prescott, is corroborative of the general approval given to Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY:

PRESCOTT, C. W., Dec. 8th, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Co., Boston.

Gentlemen:—

Being solicited by your Travelling Agent, for an expression of opinion of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. I with pleasure assert that it is, in my belief, the best remedy before the public for coughs and pulmonary complaints.

Having tested the article with myself and family, in case of severe coughs and colds, for years, with uniform and unexceptionable success, I unhesitatingly recommend it with full confidence in its merits.

Yours truly,
ALFRED HOOKER.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of twenty thousand dollars for the purposes therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $20,000 in constructing, making and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County.

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $20,000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $2,200 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole ratable property of the said Municipality of the said County of Peterborough, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the temporary investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised assessment rolls of the said Municipality, is the sum of $2,260,228.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of $20,000 and interest, as hereinafter mentioned, it will require an equal annual special rate of one mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same, upon the credit of the electorates hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $20,000, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than $100 each and not to exceed in the whole the said sum of $20,000; and that the said debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden and counter-signed by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable in 20 years at the furthest from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first day of April and the first day of October in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon, an equal special rate of one mill in the dollar shall, in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the ratable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the 5th day of October, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at its Council Chamber in the Court House, in the said County, on Tuesday, the 3rd day of October, 1865, at the hour of 12 of the clock noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

PIANO-FORTES.

DECIDED NEW PATENT.

ARE THE ONLY INSTRUMENTS constructed on a truly scientific principle. That have greater strength, and will remain longer in tune than any other Piano. The construction is simple and natural, all the extraneous lumber in the body of the instrument is dispensed with; the sound boards are merely two arched planks of thin wood, like the front and back of a violin; the stringsare attached to a strong Iron frame which is separate and entirely independent of the case, thereby dispensing with the old harp form of stringing by substituting straight bridges, preserving at the same time The Over Strung Bass, of which Mr Dunner is the inventor. By these improvements we gain much more vibratory power, at the same time preserving all its purity and richness of tone.

They have received the highest testimonials from the Press, and all the principal artists in the country, among which are:

Harry Sanderson,	L. M. Gottschalk,
Max Maretzek,	S. Thalberg,
Theodore Kinfield,	Wm Mason,
Herman Wollenhaupt,	A Barili
Francis H. Brown,	M. Strakosch,
Wm. Henry Fry.	Charles. Fradel.

Mr. SIGESMUND THALBERG, the great pianist, says:—I have examined your new Piano-fortes and I cordially approve of its system of construction. Its principle, by which great increase of vibratory power is obtained, being very simple and perfectly philosophical. The tone is grand and noble; it has great capacity for sustaining the sound or singing, and its volume of tone or power I have never heard excelled in depth, purity and sympathetic sweetness.

Wm. HENRY FRY, late musical critic of the N. Y. Tribune says:—I have examined your newly invented Piano-Fortes. They merit all the praise given to them by Messrs. Thalberg, Gottschalk, Strackosch, Mason and others. As regards the structure, they are original and philosophical; in purity, volume, and continuity of tone; in vocal versimilitude, that crowning excellence which enables the pianist to "sing" on the instrument. Your Pianos deserve the highest rank. Your invention, in my opinion, is destined to work radical changes in the manufacture of Pianos throughout the world.

From the N. Y. Herald, Sept. 8:—Upon a careful examination of Dunner Piano-Forte, we find the results obtained are a very fine singing tone, great purity and brilliancy throughout the entire instrument, not often found in Pianos constructed upon the old plan.

The N. Y. Times, July 12, says:—We have now an instrument without an equal. It can sing with a smoothe delicacy, perfectly unattainable on any other instrument; and an ordinary player obtains with no exertion, the fullness of a Grand Piano Forte and they must speedily supercede the old styles.

GENTLEMEN:—Having thoroughly examined and tested the Piano-Fortes invented and patented by Mr S. B. Dunner, I am of the opinion that the tone resulting from his improvements, as exhibited in the instruments under examination, in point of richness, depth and brilliancy, equals that of the best Grand Piano-Fortes, and excells them in pure, musical and actual tone, power thus approximating closer to what I consider perfection in the instrument than has yet been achieved by any other system of manufacture.

Yours respectfully,
L. M. GOTTSCHALK.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN

SEWING MACHINES.

EMPIRE SHUTTLE MACHINE!

PATENTED FEB. 14th, 1860.

Salesrooms, { 536 Broadway, New York, / 252 Washington St., Boston.

THIS MACHINE is constructed on entirely new principles of most unique, possessing many rare and valuable improvements, having been examined by the most profound experts, and pronounced to be

Simplicity and Perfection Combined.

It has a straight needle, perpendicular action, makes the lock or shuttle stitch, which will neither rip nor ravel, and is alike on both sides; performs perfect sewing on every description of material, from leather to the finest Nansook Muslin, with cotton, linen or silk thread, from the coarsest to the finest number, having neither CAM nor COGWHEEL, and the least possible friction, it runs as smooth as glass and is

Emphatically a Noiseless Machine.

It requires FIFTY PER CENT less power to drive it than any other Machine in the market. A girl twelve years of age can work it steadily, without fatigue or injury to health.

Its strength and Wonderful Simplicity of construction renders it also at impossible to get out of order, and is GUARANTEED by the Company to give entire satisfaction.

We respectfully invite all those who may desire to supply themselves with a superior article, to come and examine the Unrivalled Machine.

But in a more especial manner do we elicit the patronage of

Merchant Tailors,	Corset Makers,
Coach Makers,	Gaiter Fitters,
Hoop Skirt Manufacturers,	Shoe Binders.
Shirt and Bosom Makers.	Vest and Pantaloon Makers,
	Dress Makers.

Religious and Charitable Institutions will be liberally dealt with.

One half-hour's instruction is sufficient to enable any person to work the Machine to their entire satisfaction.

Agents wanted for all Towns in the United States, where agents are not already established. Also for Cuba, Mexico, Central and South America, to whom a liberal discount will be given.

HOMŒOPATHY.

HOMŒOPATHY AND LIFE ASSURANCE.—The directors of a London life assurance office—the "General Provident"—at its recent meeting have placed on record their opinion "that persons treated by the Homœopathic system enjoy more robust health, are less frequently attacked by disease, and when attacked recover more rapidly than those treated by any other system; that with respect to the more fatal classes of disease the mortality under Homœopathy is small in comparison with that of Allopathy; that there are diseases not curable at all under the latter system, which are perfectly curable under the former; finally, that the medicines prescribed by Homœopathists do not injure the constitution, whereas those employed by Allopaths not unfrequently entail the most serious, and in many instances fatal, consequences." The directors further propose to summon a meeting of the shareholders to lay before them the facts they have collected, and the decision at which they have arrived, namely, "to open a special section for persons treated by the Homœopathic system, at a lower rate of premium than that charged on other lives."—London (Eng.) Observer.—Toronto Globe.

DR. POOLE, (Water st., Peterborough,) is a Graduate and Licentiate of both the Allopathic and Homœopathic schools, and confidently recommends the latter system of treatment, as by far the safest and most successful, in both Acute and Chronic diseases.

Poetry.

PADDY TO HIS MISTRESS.

Arrah Kitty, I love you to madness,
I swear by this cross o'er and o'r—
If you let me, I'll kneel down with gladness
And your beautiful self I'll adore;
The ancients, we're told by Herodotus,
Used to worship sweet statues of stone,
Then surely less guilty and odd it is,
To worship the rale flesh and bone.

When Paris loved Leda's fair daughter
(Oh, he was the deuce of a boy),
Away from her husband he brought her
To lofty and wide-streeted Troy;
But I don't intend for to carry
You over the ocean to ruin—
But darlin', I'd ask you to marry,
And be queen of your own little home.

You tell me to wait till the Shrovetide,
But to waste time, you know, is a sin,
And always in summer the love-tide
Far stronger and warmer sets in
Och! look at the birds in the bushes,
How each has a husband though coy;
Then, Kitty, away with your blushes,
And make sure of your own little boy.

There are two ways of getting rich, one by adding to our possessions atb other by diminishing our desires; the latter is much the easier and readier.

It is a contracted piety, which chiefly sees the hand of Providence in occasional acts, and overlooks the efficacy of prevailing laws which at every instance and in every particular do his bidding.

Counsellor (afterward Chief Justice) Bashe, being on one occasion asked which of a company of actors he most admired, maliciously replied; "The prompter, sir, for I've heard the most and seen the least of him."

"I wish, reverend father," said Curran to Father O'Leary, 'that you were St. Peter,' and had the keys of heaven, because then you could let me in.' 'By my honor and conscience,' replied O'Leary, 'it would be better for you that I had the keys of the other place, for then I could let you out.'

An officer down in Georgia tells the following story:—"One night General—— was out on the line, and observed a light by the side of the mountain opposite. Thinking it was the signal light of the enemy, he remarked to his artillery officer that a hole could easily be put through it. Whereupon the officer, turning to the corporal in charge of the gun, said, 'Corporal, do you see that light?—'Yes sir,—Put a hole through it,' ordered the captain. The cesport sighted the gun, and said, 'Captain, that's the moon!"—Don't care for that,' was the captain's ready response, put a hole through it anyhow.'

Mrs. Billington, the queen of all English singers, came one night to Drury Lane Theatre to perform 'Mandane" in Artaxerxes," so hoarse as to render it a question whether it would be possible for her to appear before the audience. To add to her perplexity, her maid had mislaid the key of her jewel-box, but persisted that her mistress must have got it with her. 'What can I have done with it?' said the siren, 'I supposed I must have swallowed it without knowing it.'—And a lucky thing too,' said Wewitzer, 'it may perhaps serve to open your throat.'

In 1680, a trial took place in Connecticut, under the section of the Blue Laws, prohibiting kissing. The offenders were Sarah Tuttle and Jacob Newton. It appears that Sarah dropped her gloves and Jacob found them. When Sarah asked for them, Jacob demanded a kiss for his pay, and as the demand did not seem extravagant, she adjusted it forthwith. The facts were clearly proved, a d the parties were each fined twenty shillings.

FINKLE & LYON'S
NEW PATENT ROTARY FEED
Sewing Machines.

The following facts demonstrate that these Machines comprise the highest improvements in the Sewing Machine Art, viz:

1. Each Machine is guaranteed to give better satisfaction than any other Sewing Machine in Market, or money refunded.
2. They have taken many of the highest premiums at the most important Exhibitions and fairs ever held in the United States.
3. They make the lock stitch alike on both sides—thus saving more than half the thread and silk used in the raveling-ridge-seams of the loop stitch and single-thread Sewing Machines.
4. They are adapted to the widest range of heavy and light sewing.
5. They have no rattling wires, or delicate attachments to keep in repair.
6. They require no taking apart to clean or oil, and no "Lessons" to set needle, regulate tension, or operate Machine.

Please call and examine, and demonstrate for yourself, or send for Circular, with samples of sewing.

AMERICAN
Button-hole, Cording, Braiding and Embroidering
SEWING MACHINE!
COMPANY,
627 Broadway, New-York.

THE BUTTON HOLE made by this entirely simple and novel machine, are not only equal to the best hand-made in the pearl or right side, but greatly surpassing them in beauty on the wrong side, which is formed by a beautiful braid stitch, made by an extra stitch, which no hand made button-hole possesses; thereby imparting to the same a much greater strength, which renders cording or barring altogether unnecessary.

Our Needle and Two Threads are only Used.

Unlike other Sewing Machines it manufactures its own Braid and Cord.

The best Merchant Tailors freely admit that its beauty, finish and strength cannot be attained by the most skilful hand.

Simplicity is one of its great merits, therefore not liable to get out of order, and it can be worked with ease by any young lady, who will, after a few days' experience, make from 1,000 to 1,200 perfect button-holes in one day.

This is the only machine produced that will throw a stitch over the edge, so as to bind and cover it in a manner indispensible for Button-holes, Cording and Braiding, each of which can be done with colored, shaded or chine silks, and produces a fabrique of varied colors unexcelled for beauty and taste.

To Ladies at home, Dress, Mantilla and Cloak makers, Shoemakers, Tailors, Hatters, Bookbinders, Saddlers, &c., &c., it is indispensable; it is also admitted to be of great value, to other branches as it Brands, Embroiders, and Cords plain and fancy on all kinds of Cloths, Cassimers, Linen, Velvet Leather, &c., &c.

Instructions and Needles accompany each Machine.

Every Machine is Warranted for Twelve Months.

Machines can be seen in full operation at our Spacious Store, 627 Broadway, near Bleaker, where Instruction Rooms are reserved for Ladies.

See what the most popular and widely circulated periodicals say of our Establishment:

From the "Dispatch" of February 25, 1865.

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the announcement of Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, Silver Ware, and Fancy Goods, in our advertising columns. We are personally acquainted with the members of this firm and know them to be gentlemen of sterling worth and integrity. Their stock of goods, for variety and extent, we have scarcely seen paralleled.

From the "Mirror of Fashion," March 1, 1865.

Messrs. Devaugh & Co's Great Sale of Jewelry, etc, opened on the 15th ult., and we venture to say that no finer display of goods was ever exhibited by any establishment in this city. The ladies thronged their bazaar almost to suffocation, although the streets were rendered nearly impassable by the melted snow and slush. We predict for them a wonderful success.

From the "Ledger," February 28, 1865.

Our lady friends should visit the extensive establishment of Messrs. Devaugh & Co., No. 15 Maiden Lane, if they wish to indulge themselves with a sight which they will long remember. Such a profusion of elegant Watches, Chains, Rings, Earrings, and, in short, of Jewelry of every name, kind and description, we never before witnessed. Their silver and plated ware is superb and almost casts into the shade the other splendid establishments which have long been the boast of our city. It is estimated that their stock is worth not less than one million of dollars.

How You Can Get a Prize.

Send Twenty-Five Cents to us, and as soon as we receive it we will mail you a Certificate, showing what you are entitled to. If the article or articles please you, send back the Certificate and One Dollar and we will forward you the article, no matter how costly it may be. If the article is not what you wish, state, when you send the Certificate and dollar, what other article of the same value you prefer and we will send it. If you wish more than one Certificate send us $1 and we will send five; for $2, eleven; for $5, thirty; for $10, sixty; for $15, one hundred.

Agents are wanted in the Army and in every place. We have an immense stock of goods to dispose of, and need a large number of Agents. Our terms to Agents are very liberal and some even of our Lady Agents are making from $5 to $20 a day. We give Agents 50 per cent. on all Certificates they sell provided they remit not less than $1 for eight.

Cabbage as a Field Crop.

Among the profitable crops to be grown on the farm, cabbages hold an important place. They are not so extensively cultivated as they deserve to be. We have reference now to their cultivation beyond a place in the vegetable garden, where of course, they are esteemed as indispensable for family use. About 10,000 plants can be grown on an acre. Throwing out the 900 plants as producing imperfect heads, we have 10,000 heads, which at the low estimate of three cents per head, amounts to $300. But if taken from the field and sold at that price, there still remains the loose leaves and stalks, which afford a considerable quantity of nutritious food for milch cows at a time when grass begins to fail, which is not easily obtained from any other cheap food. Last season we commenced feeding the loose heads and leaves from a patch of cabbages, and found that the increase of milk nearly, if not quite, paid for the cost of cultivation. A part was fed from the field, and the balance was stored in the barn so as not to be affected by frost. We believe cabbages can be grown profitably for stock feeding. Where the soiling system has been adopted, they are one of the crops to be used in succession. Some regard cabbages as a profitable crop to raise for feeding stock in spring, or during the latter part of winter. Properly stored, the heads may be kept without loss or decay. As a market crop cabbages have been regarded as among the most profitable that can be grown. They can be grown on any soil that will produce good corn; but care must be taken not to plant them on the same ground two or three years in succession; they do best on fresh lands.

There are a great number of varieties of cabbages, many of which are inferior. The Winningstadt we place among the first for excellence. It is a choice variety for the table, comes in early and keeps well. The Wakefield, Ox-heart, Drum head, Red Dutch and Sugar-loaf, are popular varieties, all of which make good returns.

The cabbage is a very nutritious vegetable. According to Johnston, the dried leaf contains from 30 to 35 per cent. of gluten, and is in this respect, therefore, more nutritious than any other vegetable food which is consumed to a large extent by man and animals. We do not know what amount of green food could be grown from an acre of cabbage by selecting the larger varieties; but it is larger than one at first thought would imagine. Supposing however, that an average of five pounds per head be obtained, and this is certainly too low an estimate, the 10,000 heads would turn off 50,000 pounds, or twenty-five tons—an amount which would seem to induce their more extended cultivation as a field crop.

Hay Cutting and Stacking.

The 'Canada Farmer' contains an article on the science of hay cutting and stacking which is worthy of the attention of farmers in general. It shows that hay generally, is not cut sufficiently early, and hence, a large proportion of the natural juice of the crop (the sugar and the starch) is allowed to escape, and its place, the dry innutritious fibre of the matured stalk is all that remains. It says:—Grass should be cut when it begins to blossom, as it then contains the fullest development of nutritive qualities. It is well to mow it when there is no dew upon it, and it should be spread out at once. The best practice is to gather it into cocks every night and spread it out each morning as soon as the dew is off, until it is perfectly dry and ready to secure. The cocks should be small at first, and increased in size each evening, till it is in a condition to be stored. When hay is sufficiently dry it should be removed from the field to winter quarters wi hout delay. For stacking the site selected should be perfectly dry; the bottom of the stack may be formed of the required shape and extent with an outline of stones or wood as convenient. Its whole surface should be covered to the depth of ten or twelve inches with branches or straw, rails or some other material which will prevent all contact with the ground, and thus provide against the tendency of hay to gather moisture. The width or diameter, as the case may be, should not exceed fifteen feet in order that the air may the better penetrate, and thereby obviate the liability of the stack to heat, from the effect of saccharine fermentation which is always generated, and continued for a short time in a newly-made hay-stack. In oblong stacks it is better to construct the side of considerable length, for no harm accrues although the stack in any year does not occupy its entire length. The building process, and post of stacker should belong to the most skilful workman.

THE BREAD QUESTION.—A French contributor, A. Vaillet, Madison Co., Ill., sends the following receipe to the "American Agriculturist" which we translate:—"Cook a handful of hops in a half gallon of water, until it is reduced to about half; pass the liquid through a seive and turn it while hot upon enough flour to make a thick porridge, and when nearly cool, add a pint of brewers' or other yeast, and set the vessel in a warm place until it rises. This yeast will be fit to use in about 12 hours. It should be put in a well closed jug and kept in the cellar. In using it a pint should be kept with which to make a new quantity when needed. To make bread, take 1 pint of this yeast to 10lbs. of flour, and with water and salt make a stiff dough which should be well kneeded on a moulding board. Let it remain 10 or 12 hours (in a warm place in wintar) or until it is well raised. Then take pieces of the dough of the size of an egg and roll into biscuits and place them in a pan so close that they will touch one another; let them remain to raise another hour and then place them in the oven. If these conditions are observed with good flour, you will have light and spongy bread, and never sour when it has raised a little too much. If the flour is not good, still good bread may be made by using milk instead of water. In making new yeast, it is well to wash out the jug in order to avoid sourness. If preferred, the bread may be made into larger loaves."

SWEET CIDER.—A. M. Ward, Hartford Co., Conn., writes:—"After five years of 'fussing' with cider to 'make it good' I have this season found the short road to perfection. Took cider direct from the press, heated nearly to a scald over the fire, returned it to a barrel, and have since made daily use of it with great satisfaction." American Agriculturist.

The St. Louis Republican says that after experimenting for five years, Mr. Robert Moore of Bloomington, Illinois, has discovered a method of crystallization, by which the syrup from Indiiee and Chinese sugar cane can be advantageously reduced to sugar.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?
A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!
CAN BE FOUND IN
Holloway's Pills.
Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!
BY THE USE OF
Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER name internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experience of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the RADIX OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL AND FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs UPON THE BLOOD ITSELF, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable curatives. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Vernal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicine or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

☞ Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 88 cents, and $1 40 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33

To the Surviving Veterans of Waterloo.

ON THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

Hail! scattered remnants of that noble band,
Who bravely fighting for their fatherland,
Stood dauntless in the very jaws of death,
While nations wondered, trembled, held their breath;
Stood, yes, though thousands upon thousands fell,
A rock unmoved, though torn by shot and shell,
A phalanx firm as ever foe withstood,
Sealed to the spot by its own streaming blood.

Youth ben was yours, that youth has passed away,
Your forms are bent, your locks are reverent gray;
Spared 'mid the horrors of that woeful scene,
Spared by the fifty years that since have been,
Spared to receive the tribute of their sons,
Who were your brothers, friends, familiar ones;
We don't forget the debt so justly due;
In thought and heart we still remember you.

We think how you revert to days of yore,
Over their thousand memories love to pore,
How comrades round you stand, and once again,
Ye hear the clanging arms and mustering men.
How martial notes still fail on fancy's ear,
Or blast of trumpet tells the foe is near;
And then the breathless pause precedes the strife,
While crowds on thought the varied all of life.

We think, with you, of when the battle raged,
When, fear forgotten, foe with foe engaged;
When blood like water flowed, and scarce a thought
Was given to those who dying victory bought;
We think with you of when the fight was o'er,
When victory's pennous streams o'er fields of gore,
Ah! then, no more forgot, a generous tear,
Dropped on each fallen fellow's funeral bier.

But 'tis with deepest interest that we view
Your latest best fought field at Waterloo;
For you, that scene we need not, dare not paint,
To those who saw, all words are poor and faint;
But on that day before you stood arrayed,
Men, brave, as ever with war's dice have played,
Led by a Captain, prince of martial men;
Yet skill nor valor could avail them then.

Ye paid that day her fearful price for peace;
Ye caused the long, long, bloody strife to cease;
Itigh in the temple of immortal fame,
Deep ye inscribed your's and your country's name,

Beside the Spartan Band ye won a place;
Impressed the legions fierce of other days;
Of the same metal as your iron Duke,
Ere then transformed to steel by fire and stroke

Since then, Time's gentler hand has thinned your ranks,
And few are left to share our humble thanks;
Your Chieftain mingles with his country's clay,
Your elder brothers all have passed away,
Only the young and strong have lived to see,
And celebrate this year of jubilee.
To you with lengthened life may peace be given,
To you with names on earth, a name in heaven

Miscellaneous.

MAYNOOTH AND ITS TEACHINGS.

A public meeting, which had been convened under the auspices of the Protestant Electoral Union, was held in the large room at St. James's Hall, Piccadilly, on Monday night last, for the purpose of hearing addresses respecting Maynooth and its teachings, and also of the depravity of the Roman Catholic priesthood. Sir George Grey, Her Majesty's Minister generally, and the members of both Houses of Parliament, were specially invited to attend, for the purpose of receiving instruction as to what they are supporting and imposing on the people. The advertisement calling the meeting appealed to the electors of the British Isles to determine whether they would be Papal slaves or British freemen, as "Peace with Rome was war with God and ruin to man—Rome must perish."—Young men under 18 years of age were forbidden admission, as well as all ladies, except those who attend the confessional. The charges for entrance were—reserved seats, 2s; unreserved, 1s.

About ten minutes to eight o'clock, a gentleman appeared on the platform, and said that Mr. Whalley, M. P., was unable to be present. He was at this moment engaged with his constituents, and they would not allow him to leave them.

The assembly, which numbered about 200, including four women, received the announcement with perfect indifference. Shortly after, one or two gentlemen took seats on the platform, and

Mr. Paul Foskett was requested to take the chair.

The Chairman said that he had taken the chair for two or three reasons. The first was, that he was the friend of the Roman Catholics, and not their enemy, and desired that husbands, brothers and fathers might know the infamy of the confessional, so that they might rescue their female relatives from the polution of the priesthood. (Applause) His second reason was, that he found this platform was not filled as it ought to be. Several who were to have taken part in this meeting were not present. He was not the man to desert his friends in an extremity. (Applause.) When they had no others to stand by them he would. (Cheers. Two or three gentlemen here appeared on the platform, which caused the chairman to say he was glad to see them.) Another reason why he took the chair was because Mr. Murphy had kindly promised him that he would not pollute their ears with the filth of the detestable confessional. (Hisses and cheers.) If those abominations are not fit for one man to speak to others in an open hall like this, were they fit to be taught by the public money? (Cheers and applause.) The chairman having contended that it was a shame and disgrace that the public should be made by Government to support Maynooth, proceeded to say that there were a few fallacies which he wished to expose. They were told by some that there was no danger. Why, the fact was that the Pope wanted to regain his dominion in fair England. Was that nothing? He believed that Protestantism was rightteousness and Popery iniquity. (Hisses and cheers) In the book of Revelations it was said that the Church of Rome was the mother of harlots. (Interruption.) Why, Italy was shaking off the chains. Would England fasten the fetters? (Interruption.) A popular fallacy was this, that it was uncharitable to speak of Romanism as they did—"No," and "Yes."—because the Roman Catholic was a system of religion. He denied that it was a Church. (Oh!) He was prepared to prove that it was no such thing. There was no Church of Rome—(Oh! oh!)—but there was a Corporation of Rome. (Laughter.) It was a political system—not a Church. The Pope desired political power—that was all. The chairman then quoted from Dr. Johnson's Dictionary as to the meaning of the word "Church," and concluded by asking the charity of the meeting towards those from whom they differed in opinion. Let them defend the cause of God's truth and Bible Christianity, whether it was from the Church of Rome, the Church of England, or any other church. Hear, hear.)

Mr. Murphy then stepped forward.

Several voices—Name, name.

The Chairman—Mr. William Murphy, a convert from Popery, and a true Protestant Christian.

Mr. Murphy then addressed the meeting at great length, but it would be utterly impossible to report his speech, from the fact that the leading passages were not fit for publication, and also that he spoke throughout in such an excited and singular manner, that it was frequently difficult to understand what he was saying. It will be sufficient to state that he fiercely denounced the Roman Catholic priesthood and their teachings, attributing, in particular, most of the woes of Ireland to their agency. The way in which the audience appreciated the instruction may be judged from the following, which was only one of the many such scenes.

Mr. Murphy—Popery teaches robbery, not to Protestants in England, but to Irishmen.

Interruption, during which the people at the back of the hall, whose numbers had largely increased, stormed the reserved seats. The uproar which this proceeding occasioned having subsided,

Mr. Murphy went on to say that the "Santiago fire" was a judgment of God. (Interruption.) They were giving the glory to the Godess Diana, and offering sacrifice to a graven and molten image, instead of the true God. Well, the fire opened and swallowed them up. (Interruption.)

A gentleman here rose to protest against the proceedings, and a disturbance took place, in consequence of some individual expressing his conviction that it was a "humbug." A posse of Mr. Murphy's supporters hastened to put the offender out, when

The Chairman said—If any respectable Roman Catholic will give me his name and address, and will come on this platform, he shall have the utmost courtesy and the freest liberty to express his sentiments, within a reasonable time. (Cheers.)

Mr. Murphy, with great energy—Don't put him out, I will be man enough for him. (Laughter.) Don't you say put him out? I will be both sergeant-major and drum-major. (Great merriment and interruption) Listen again. This request having been complied with, the speaker drew attention to the shocking error of transubstantiation. Was it true that the Roman Catholic priest could change bread into God Almighty? (Interruption.) If Catholic priests would do this, his advice was—change sixpences into shillings. (Laughter.) Let them look at the bread with their eyes.

A voice—Look with your nose. (Interruption.)

Mr. Murphy—I will now go on with the confessional.

The Chairman—I rise to protest against the abominations of the confessional being introduced.

Mr. Murphy promised that he would not and that he would only give the most modest portion. The "modest portions" which Mr. Murphy adduced were such as not to be stated in detail. He read from several books to prove that Roman Catholic priests often committed adultry, &c., and that the confessional gave rise to the grossest immorality.

A quarrel here took place in the body of the hall.

Mr. Murphy, in support of other assertions, said he would take them to Cardinal Wiseman—he begged their pardon, he should be roasted if he went there. (Considerable interruption.) Well, the Church of Rome said that he was in purgatory, and that was a hot place, was it not?—(Hisses and cheers.) If Father Pat seduced a beautiful penitent in the confessional, he could go to Father Pat in the next parish and get absolved, and vice versa. Were they to give the public money to support such things? (Cheers.) He asked them how the priests could be good men?

A man here came forward and said he wished to speak. The chairman requested his name, and the stranger said first that it was John Bogmore, which some one in the gallery denied. The person then admitted that it was Boswell, and this having satisfied the assembly,

Mr. Boswell said—I wrestled in my chamber like Jacob of old.

This commencement so disconcerted his hearers that they refused to listen any further and Mr. Boswell retired.

Colonel Brockman was the next to speak and began by regretting that ladies were not present. Why was it? Why, through the filth and abomination of the confessional. If they tolerated the confession in England, they would not have a pure-minded woman in the country. (Oh, and cheers.) The gallant officer then illustrated the worship of the Catholic system by reading at length from "Maria Monk". He was interrupted by a sort of "free fight" in the back of the hall. This of course created great confusion. For some time the chairman and those surrounding him vainly appealed to the meeting for order. His request was responded to by cries of "Knock off his hat," &c.

One of the young gentlemen who had been engaged in mortal combat was here pushed on to the platform, when the meeting resumed something like order.

Colonel Brockman proceeded to read from "Maria Monk," respecting those "legs' Sodoms called nunneries," but was soon met with cries of "Time," and "Dry up." Accordingly Col. Brockman retired.

Mr. Francis Dockery, the young man who had been fighting in the rear of the hall, came forward to defend the Roman Catholic Church, but though the meeting seemed disposed to hear him, he proved a very sorry champion. He assured those present that he "was not a fool," but they refused to believe it, and he acquiesced by retiring in favour of Mr. Murphy, who questioned Mr. Francis Dockerey as to his creed, and obtained some answers, which highly amused and delighted the meeting, and operated so powerfully upon Mr. Murphy himself, that some anxious friends entreated him not to give up the ghost.

The Chairman concluded the business by saying that this was the first of a series of meetings, at which it was intended to expose, not only the Romish confessional, but that whica was almost as foul, the Tractarian. He saw that the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Chancellor of the Exchequer were present at a meeting of the Middle-class School last week. Well, he (the Chairman) had written to the managers of this school, to ask if they approved of the confessional, but they had not answered. If they did not reply no, he would expose their system.

The benediction was then given by the chairman, and the assembly dispersed.

Dr. Caird on the Clerical Teaching of the Present Day.

The following is a portion of Dr. Caird's speech at the induction of the Rev. Mr. Burns, as minister of the High Church:—

"There are minds not noble enough to be won by the love of Christ, yet which are not base enough to be the slaves of money. A magnet more potent than comfort, ease luxury, to many such is to be found in popular applause—in the social publicity, influence, power—which, in less or greater measure, the successful minister is sure to win. Few positions lead so directly to publicity, or satisfy so readily the craving to be seen, known, and talked of, as that of a popular divine. In all communities, rural or civic, the parson is a man of mark and importance. Even if he be a man of little ability—one who in any other walk of life would never be known or heard of—here there is an adventitious deference and respect, which, due to the office, is in most minds transferred, apart from his own merits, to the man who occupies it. The squire receives him at his table; the bow obsequious of the smartened artificer, the wondering homage of children, await him as he goes forth on his parochial rounds; a very general atmosphere of deference surrounds him, very pleasant to a weak mind, not unpleasant to a strong one. And, then, translate the youthful and ambitious minister from the modified publicity of the country parish to the unmeasured publicity and manifold excitements of a town charge, and is there not much, then, to feed the vanity and satisfy the love of display or power or praise, and so present irresistible fascination to many a mind which higher motives would fail to move? Who, if he be accessible to such influences, is so much sought after, feted, flattered, as the young and popular preacher? For whom do competing congregations contend, whose presence is so eagerly solicited by charitable societies, Sunday-school managers, and churches that have a debt to clear off? Whose name is so eagerly coveted by getters-up of soirees and public meetings, and plastered on walls and boarding in big letters as a sure attraction to the hunters after religious amusement? Who wakes in susceptible breasts an admiration the semi-sacredness of which blinds the subject of it to the human element that mingles with it, and to whom do tasteful gifts and presentations so often hint a homage which the tongue may not speak? Then think of the weekly excitement which the pulpit brings to him whose passion is for popular applause. The crowded pews, the thronged aisles, the preparatory fuss and commotion, and the stillness when the object of unusual interest appears; the half impatience of psalms and prayers as mere preliminaries to the great point of interest; the hushed waiting stillness, the kindling eyes and flushed countenances, while the skillfully constructed climax is being brought up, and sentence after sentence rising in interest, fall from the orator's lips; and then, as the goal is reached, and the exhausted speaker pauses, the long-drawn sigh of relieved suspense, the interchanged glances of sympathetic admiration, the momentary rustle over the auditory, and then the settling of themselves anew for another dose of rhetorical excitement! What an ordeal is this for a weak head and a vain heart to go through! What incense rises on such a scene—a sweet odor in the nostrills of the too conscious idol of the hour; There is inherent weakness in such a ministry amidst the superficial flutter of success. The secret of the popularity hunter is sooner or later found out. Discerning minds perhaps see through his shallowness, pious minds fall back from one who lives for self, and the educated, supercilious, sceptical class, instead of being influenced by him, pride themselves on penetrating the clap-trap of religious excitement, and find in the whole affair a fresh theme for disdainful criticism and epigrammatic articles on popular preaching."—Glasgow paper.

Landlady, (deleretially)—"Mr. Smith do you not suppose that the first steamboat created much surprise among the fish when it was first launched?"

Smith (coolly)—"I cant say, madam, whether it did or not."

Landlady—"O! I thought from the way you eyed the fish before you, that you might acquire some information on that point."

Smith (the malicious villain)—Very likely, marm, very likely; but it's my opinion, marm, that this fish left its native element before steamboats were invented."

Effects of Smoking.

The effects of moderate and immoderate smoking on the organs of the body are stated to be as follows: In an adult man, who is tolerant of tobacco, moderate smoking—say to the extent of three clean pipes of the milder forms of pure tobacco in the twenty-four hours—does no great harm. It sometimes stops waste and soothes; but here are times when it unsettles the disposition. To an immoderate degree—say to six or eight pipes a day, especially if strong tobacco and fine pipes be used—smoking unquestionably is very injurious to the animal functions. The blood is made too fluid; the biliary secretion is arrested, and the digestion constantly deranged; there is dryness of the tongue and frequent nausea. On the heart the symptoms are very marked. They consist of palpitation, a sensation as though the heart were rising upward, a feeling of breathlessness, and in bad cases, of severe pain through the chest, extending through the upper limbs. The action of the heart is intermittent, and faintness may be experienced. Extreme smoking is also very injurious to the organs of sense. In all inveterate, constant smokers, the pupils of the eye are dilated, owing to the absorption of nicotine, and the vision is impaired in strong light; but the symptom which most of all affects the vision is the retention of images on the retina after the eye is withdrawn from thee. Thus, if he turn his eyes from a window, he retains the impression of the window, the panes seming red and the bars dark. When such pictures are seen for some minutes, the smoker may be assured that he has carried his indulgence out of the pale of safety. On the sense of hearing inveterate smoking produces disturbances; these consists of restless deafness, and ringing or whistling in the ears. The circulation of the brain is sometimes also disturbed, and giddiness and vertigo are produced. The muscles, after extreme am long, are prostrated. Long smoking, also affects the mucous membrame of the mouth, causing "smoker's sore throat." There are also some other effects occasionally produced in the mouth—viz: sponginess of the gums and tartar on the teeth. On the whole, however, smoking does not injure the teeth. These are the worst effects of tobacco; they all point to functional disturbance. They question remains whether worse effects ever follow from over-indulgence in smoking. The great effect of tobacco is to arrest the fonctional processes on which growth and development depend. To the whole body of the youth, therefore, the act of smoking is decidedly deleterious. When, however, the body has ceased to grow, the effects of tobacco in this regard are not felt; and, when the body is falling into decay, smoking seems conservative in its action. As regards the production of specific diseases by tobacco, the hypotheses that have been raised are too loose to be accepted. It is said that tobacco dulls and destroys the mental faculties. The facts are that, when the body is in full vigor, smoking does lessen the power of the faculties; but, when the body is over-worked and worn, tobacco soothes and conserves. If there were any foundation in the idea that tobacco produces insanity, the fact would be at once broadly making in the difference of numbers of the insane in the difference sexes. This remark is, however, less applicable to paralysis. It has been urged that tobacco produces cancer; the statement is utterly groundless. Neither consumption nor bronchitis, in the chronic form, can be induced primarily by smoking. At the same time, it must be admitted that smoking does mischief in both these disorders when they exist, except in asthma. In the main, smoking is a luxury which any man is better without. Of nearly every luxury, tobacco is the least injurious. It is innocuous as compared with alcohol; it does infinitely less harm than opium; it is in no sense worse than tea, and, by the side of high living, altogether contrasts most favorably.

Anecdote of Dr. Nott

On an evening preceding thanksgiving many years ago, two students left the college, with the most foul intent of procuring some of the Doctor's fine fat chickens, that roosted in a tree adjoining the house. When they arrived at the spot, one ascended the tree and the other stood with a bag ready to receive the plunder. It so happened that the Doctor himself had just left the house, with a view of securing the same chickens for his thanksgiving dinner. The rogue under hearing some one coming, and immediately crept away without notifying his companion up the tree. The Doctor came up silently, and was immediately saluted from above as follows:

'Are you ready?'

'Yes,' responded the Doctor, dissembling his voice as much as possible.

The other immediately laying his hands on the old rooster exclaimed,

'Here's old Prex, will you have him?

'Pass him along,' was the reply, and he was soon in the Doctor's bag.

'Here's marm Prex,' said the all unconscious student, grabbing a fine old hen, 'will you have her?'

'Yes,' again responded the Doctor.

'Here's son John, will you have him?

'And here's daughter Sal; take her, and so on till he had gone regularly through with the Doctor's family and chickens.

The old man walked off in one direction with the plunder, while the student, well satisfied with his night's work, came down and streaked it for the college. Great was his astonishment to learn from his companion that he had not got any chickens, and that if he had given them to any one it must have been the Doctor. Expulsion, fines and disgrace were uppermost in their thoughts until the next forenoon, when both received a polite invitation from their President, requesting the presence of their company to a Thanksgiving dinner. To decline was impossible, so with hearts full of anxiety for the result, they wended their way to the house, and were pleasantly received by the old gentleman, and with a large party were soon seated around the festive board. After ashink a blessing, the doctor rose from his seat, and taking the carving knife, turned with a smile to the rogues, and said,

'Young gentlemen, here's old Prex, marm Prex, son John, and daughter Sal,' at the same time touching successively the respective chickens; to which will you be helped?' The mortification of the students may be imagined.

A Strange Stranger.

BY THE REV. JOHN TODD, D. D.

Suppose a child or a grown up man or woman could meet himself in the street, would he know himself? I say no—not his own face of person. The experiment has been tried. In a certain store, the new proprietors fitted up at the further end a very large mirror. It reflected the full figure of every one in the room. An old gentleman who was deaf, and who had not heard of the large mirror, went into the store. As he advanced, he noticed another old gentleman coming to meet him. Belonging to the "old school" in politeness, he bows to the stranger, and the stranger bows to him. He stretches out his hand as if to shake hands, and so does the stranger. "Sir," said he, "you have the advantage of me. You seem to know me, but I can't recall your name, though it seems as I had seen you before! Please to speak a little louder, sir, for my hearing is most impaired!" By this time the clerks were too full to hold in, and broke out in a laugh. The whole thing then flashed upon him, and he enjoyed the mistake as much as any of them. Let any one go into a room lighted by the moon only, and pass by a mirror, and he will start at seeing an unknown face moving in the room, not recognizing his own face. I once knew a very polite old gentleman of the olden time, who was at a large dinner party. At the call to a table in a distant room, he was naturally expected to take the lead; but as he was leaving the room, he saw another old gentleman, who ought, as he thought, to have the precedence. Accordingly he paused and bowed, and tried hard to get the stranger to advance first. The company were too polite to shout, but they nobed to shout. The panels of the doors were mirrors, and he was bowing to his own image.

Singular Case of Hydrophobia.

A remarkable case of hydrophobia came to our knowledge a few days ago; and may be of interest, inasmuch as it suggests the possibility of a cure. Almost twenty years ago a man named Clarke who resides in Jamestown, Ky., a little town about three miles from this city, was bitten by a dog which proved to be rabid, and in a short time afterwards was taken with the most violent symptoms of that terrible disease. The malady which, as is well known, a time exists in the system for a number of years—one or two cases are known of twenty years standing—before it makes its appearance in all its violence, did not, in this instance, prove immediately fatal, and by the exertio s of his physicians and his friends the spasms, were, for a short time allayed, and the patient regained a good degree of health. A few days, however, only elapsed when he again perceived a recurrence of his disposition to bite and snap, together with the hatred of water and a spasmodic contraction of the throat by which the disease is characterized, and he had severe and much more violent attack than the first, during which even the physicians who attended him gave up the case as hopeless, and left him to die.

By some means, however, this fact came to the knowledge of some person who had heard—from what source we cannot tell—that a medicine known to Botanic Physicians as the Third Preparation, had been found beneficial in such cases, and he was recommended to try it. His friends, who had no hope that he would be saved, at first thought it would be kindness to allow death to end his misery, and refused to make any attempt to further prolong an existence which, if preserved, could only keep all by whom he was surrounded in constant fear of being contaminated, and in danger of violence from their parent and friend.

After much deliberation they at length concluded to try the experiment, and procured some of the medicine we have named which is composed of capsicums and the tinctures of lobelia and myrrh, and making it very strong of the tinctures, gave it to him in sufficient doses to produce a thorough emesis. He threw from his stomach a large quantity of frothy mucus, and from that moment the spasms ceased, and there was also a relief from the other more prominent symptoms of the disease. He gradually grew better as this treatment was continued and at length became able to attend to his duties, which he has done with but slight intermission ever since.

Almost every day, although, we believe, he has not been at any time confined to his bed, there has been a recurrence of the disease, which, however, has been promptly checked by the same means which brought such a miraculous change in the first instance. He now attends to his business daily, and when this contraction of the throat makes its appearance he doses himself largely with the preparation, which he keeps continually about him, and immediately upon this discharge from the stomach becomes well.

Among the numerous cases of this terrible disease, which occur every season in large cities, where no prospect is left for the escape of the sufferer from what is even more to be feared than death itself, if one could be thus saved all the writhing agony and pain of even one day which is spent at the mercy of those spasms, which are its peculiarity, our purpose in making this publication will have been attained.

The story, as we have related it, is strictly true in every particular, and, as the medicine may be obtained at almost any drug store in the country, its use may prevent a great deal of suffering, and probably save many a life. At all events the case is worthy of note, as showing that although the virus may not be entirely eradicated from the system, it at least may be cast off in its effects.—Cincinnati Inquirer June 5.

THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1865.

The Wisdom of Legislative Enactment in relation to Rate of Interest.

The wisdom of interference in regulating money transactions, by some, appears to be doubted, and it is asserted that by so doing the very end intended would be frustrated. It is argued that dealing in money is like any other kind of dealing, and consequently, should be regulated by the immediate parties concerned; hence, for Parliament to interfere, would be destructive to the best interest of the country, as by limiting the rate of interest, the capital would be diverted to some other place where the capitalist would be able to reap greater profits. There are two classes to be represented in this question, and, of course, two different interests. There is the capitalist and the borrower; and the great question is, whether should the interest of the capitalist only be considered, or the interest of the borrower only, or of both? By permitting the present system of high rates to continue, the capitalist only is considered; by lowering the rate of interest to a merely nominal rate, the capitalist would be ignored. Neither of these courses we would consider wise; yet the question at the end must be, which would benefit the greatest number? Now, unquestionably, the greatest number would be benefitted by limiting the rate of interest; for there are more borrowers than lenders at the present time. If it should be urged that the capitalist would refuse to lend his money when the rate is low, and, as a consequence, those who require to borrow would thus be made to suffer more than if they had even to pay the present rates of high interest. This, however, cannot be shown to be true in experience. No man wishes to lock up his money in a safe, when he can make anything of it. Nor do any refuse to loan unless when security is doubtful, or there appears an opportunity of making more off another or by another transaction. Those, therefore, possessing, would continue to lend on proper securities. By limiting the rate to seven per cent., there would still be the same amount of money to lend as at present; and as farming will not pay more than five to six per cent., unless when cultivated by the individual owner,—and rarely, if ever, pays more than four, if rented,—why might we not reasonably expect the same amount in circulation as now.

In England the capitalist rarely realizes more than four to five per cent., and even under the system now prevailing, the real capitalist seldom reaps more than seven or eight—the remainder is eaten up in agencies and other doubtful ways—so that in reality, if the Legislature did interfere, there need be no fear of driving English capital out of the country.

Free trade in money has been tried, and it is now found that it has ruined the country. It is, should it not be checked by wholesome enactments and restraints, which would grant to each individual proper checks and guarantees that neither would suffer by the action of the other. We have heard shrewd, wealthy men say that if interest was six or seven per cent., they would make more than they do now at ten and twelve, for then they could convert other property into money, and instead of, as now, receiving three to four or five at the most, which they now receive as a rent, they would then be enabled to double, even treble the amount of their money investment: and it requires no great stretch of imagination to see that $12,000 at six per cent. is better than $6000 at ten per cent. Besides, by the present system of high rates, the land of the country will fall into the hands of a few, and, as we showed before, will thus neither benefit the borrower nor lender; whereas, if the rate was seen, if the farmer borrowed a few hundred dollars, there would be hopes of his paying it. Now it has become a proverb, "Better sell than mortgage." If once mortgaged, you may as well rise and leave. This, too, is one of the great causes of the general depression in business of all kinds. The people have been borrowing, and they find themselves oppressed already; they fear to undertake anything more, until relieved from the present burdens. The general cry is, "Hard times!" principally brought about by this oppressive system, together with too much speculativeness. Speculation, however, often benefits all parties, which can rarely be said of the other. The mercantile, therefore, of our County Council we think very opportune and prudent, and trust that the Legislature will do something to relieve the country of this incubus. It does perhaps it will be said that it will not be respected, and consequently it would be a dead letter on our statute books. But, then, may it not be said that there is not an enactment of the Province duly respected; but because of this, shall there be no laws or restraints at all? Shall men be permitted to do as they please, without power of punishment, simply because they do not truly respect the laws? All concede the wisdom of Legislative enactment. If laws were duly respected by all, Lawyers would find little to do. We hear the burden of law cost, and acknowledge the wisdom of enactments to restrain the lawless in other matters. Why should we not also in this, if it is an evil, as unquestionably it is? That a law is not fully respected, however, is no sound argument against the principles set forth in the law; but, on the contrary, this disrespect may arise out of vitiated public habits and opinions, as is frequently the case. For, the love of gain or selfishness may powerfully counteract every idea of right, and destroy every notion of mutual justice, although righteousness and justice should nevertheless abound. We see cases of this every day. On the contrary, when law is not respected, it is strong evidence that more stringent enactments are required. Enactments are often acknowledged wise and necessary, but the people are not prepared for them, it is said. This, therefore, only argues depravity; but, in consequence, does not prohibit using means of redress, if possible. More united action should be taken in the matter, and numerously signed petitions presented to Parliament at the approaching session to reduce the rate of interest to at least seven per cent., and we feel assured the people would be as ready to respect the law as they were before the present law was enacted.

FIRE IN ASHBURNHAM.

On Tuesday about half past 12 o'clock in the day, a fire broke out in the stables of the Messrs. McDougal & Ludgate, in Ashburnham. The stables were in the lumber yard of the Steam Saw Mill; and the fire caused considerable alarm for a time, lest the lumber might take fire also. Very fortunately the wind blew from the south-west at the time; but for this, the damage must have been very great. At the time the fire was first noticed, some of the teams were in the stable; but these were got out safely. There were a few loads of hay in the hay-loft; this was consumed, and the building. This, we are glad to say, is the amount of damage done, amounting probably to $300. The dwelling house of Mrs. Stewart was in imminent danger, and was on fire in several places; but Mr. Ludgate, who was present, directed the attention of the men to it, and by the timely aid of a load of water in barrels this building was saved, but still the things in the removal, suffered severely. The most remarkable case of fire proof building that we have seen, was in the case of Mr. S. Adams' dwelling house. This house was almost directly before the draft of the flames, and, to add to its danger, two piles of boards ends were piled very near the house for fire wood; they also took fire, and for a long time the flames rolled over and round the roof and sides, as if to devour it up. It was almost impossible to get near enough to save the contents; yet, strange to say, although the house is only of boards, battered, and whitewashed with water lime, and although it is burned black, it did not take fire, yet only a very few pails of water were poured on it. Mr. Adams' furniture suffered in the removal. The cause of the fire was a spark from the smoke-stacks of the mill. We have not learned whether there is any insurance. We noticed that the ends of several piles of the lumber are blackened, but none took fire: had this taken place, a fearful loss would have to be chronicled, as about 2,000,000 feet are now in the yard. The escape, however, was very narrow indeed. It was very favourable for those persons whose houses so narrowly escaped; while they have suffered, yet they have a shelter themselves.

A SUDDEN CALL.

It becomes our painful duty to chronicle the death of an old and very respectable inhabitant of the Township of Cavan, Mr. Wm. Russell. Deceased, it appears, had been at the funeral of Mrs. Errett, mother of Richard Errett, Esq., of this Town, and had returned home in company with another friend as far as his own gate, where, our informant tells us, he fell down and expired. Mr. Russell was a very pious man, living continually in fear of his Heavenly Master. He was also a strong believer in the doctrines of the Millennium, something as taught by Mr. Baxter while here. He believed that he would be permitted to see with his eyes the introduction of the Millennial season, and that he himself would occupy no mean part in the new order of things. He lived in continual expectation of going up to Jerusalem to worship. In a small book or pamphlet published by Mr. Russell in 1863, we find the following passages, which he said were revealed to him:—Page 8, "At another "time, whilst silently lifting up his heart to "God, he saw heaven opened, and from it a "bright light shone down upon his head, "and from above that light there came a "voice saying: 'YOU ARE ANOINTED THE "SAME AS KING SAUL.'" • • • • "But "afterwards the Lord gave him to understand that he is to fill in Palestine in the "Millennium, the same office that King "David fulfilled in past time, and also requested him to make it known to the "people." Again: "During his stay at a "camp-meeting, he saw the Lord as in the "act of reaching down to him a shepherd's "crook, and saying: 'YOU ARE TO GO "BEFORE MY PEOPLE.'" This act seemed to leave Mr. Russell powerless, he said, until the Lord said to him again: "YOU SHALL "GO UP TO JERUSALEM, AND I WILL SEND NONE "AGAINST YOU BUT SUCH AS I AM DETERMINED "TO GET OFF." All this he firmly believed would take place, and not later than 1877. Mr. Russell also believed that the Lord had told him personally that "he would not only "live to see the commencement of the Millenium, but even a long time into it." But God disposes often different to man's calculations; He has removed this good man at His own time, and left others to wait to see those things fulfilled. Mr. Russell leaves a large circle of friends, before whom he walked soberly, righteously and godly, and is no doubt gone to realize the blessedness of Heaven sooner than he anticipated. The wisdom of fixing times and seasons receives a strong rebuke; and this sudden call almost audibly says, "Be ye ready!"

We have been favored with a view of the river, bridge and scenery around it, and also of the Western slope of the village of Ashburnham, in which the residence of Rev. M. Burnham, and from that to the Otonabee mills is very distinctly and clearly represented. This picture is from the Fine Art Gallery of R. D. Ewing, Esq., and does great credit to the artistic skill of that gentleman. We understand that Mr. Ewing is now taking pictures of private residences and other scenery around the Town which affords a rare chance for obtaining neat pictures of familiar and interesting localities that should not be despised or neglected. Mr. E's pictures will be found taken according to the latest improvements in the Photographic art.

Fire at Paris Station—Three Women Burned to Death.

Loss About Twenty Thousand Dollars.

From the Hamilton Times of the 18th instant we extract the following particulars: The International and Commercial Hotels, the Station houses, Freight and Custom House and all the offices of the B. & L. H. and Great Western Railway Companies were totally destroyed. Also two private dwellings. The fire originated in the Commercial Hotel. The flames spread so rapidly that the hotel was soon enveloped in flames, and most lamentable to relate, three girls perished in the fire. Their names were Mary Ann Preneval, aged 21; Jane Warrington, aged 12; Susan Wickham, aged 18. The other inmates of the Hotel barely escaped with their lives.

BARNUM'S MUSEUM BURNED DOWN.—This very attractive place of resort has been consumed by fire. The loss is immense, amounting to $300,000. Barnum had an insurance of about $75,000 in the city companies.—No lives have been lost, but every thing else is destroyed. He is determined to rebuild and refit another of greater dimensions, better architectural design, and replenish it with as rare curiosities as are to be found. He will succeed.

BURGLARS ARE STILL AT WORK.—In Toronto they have been very successful: have blown open one or two safes with gun powder, and extracted considerable sums of money. The late revelations have not discomforted them much.

FIRE ALARM.—On Sabbath evening the alarm of fire was given by two or three tolls on the bell. It turned out to be a window-curtain that had caught fire, but was soon put out. We trust we shall be saved from fires during this dry weather at least.

TWELFTH OF JULY IN TORONTO.—A vast concourse of Brethren and others assembled in Toronto to celebrate the anniversary of the Boyne. From 8,000 to 10,000 persons are said to have been present. The whole passed off very quietly. The day seems to have been remarkably so every where this year.

THE 12TH HERE.—The day passed off very quietly. Everything seemed hushed to rest. The brethren arrived from Omemee in good time. We believe they had a very pleasant time there. No disturbance, individual, or otherwise, has been heard of.

NEW WHEAT.—H. Collins, Esq., of North Monaghan, has shown us a handful of Fall-wheat of the most beautiful appearance and excellent quality. Mr. Collins has about 10 acres of it. It is as nice wheat as we have seen.

We have received several communications on the Bobcaygeon rowdyism report, by our correspondent Z, of last week. They have arrived too late for this issue. They will appear next week.

We have to return thanks to R. Hamilton, Esq., of this town, now in England, for several late English papers.

Communications.

SIGHTS AFOOT.

One day last week I took my departure from your town for a short trip West and indebted to the Port Hope and Peterborough Railway for a seat in one of their cars, by means of which I was enabled to reach Port Hope somewhere in the neighborhood of 6 o'clock P. M. I cannot say, however, that I am indebted to it, for the uniform liberality extended by any of the other lines of communication wherever I have travelled. After satisfying the cravings of the inner man, provided by mine host of the "Hastings House," a party numbering something less than a dozen started to take a peep at the Town and the scenery that abounds in and around the place. I must confess that Port Hope is a pretty place. The business portion is well built, and as for public buildings I do not think they can be surpassed in any town of its size. The private dwellings are nicely situated and beautifully ornamented with trees, walks and flowers, a great many presenting the appearance of Lepidic Paradise, if I might be allowed to draw on my imagination. The hills dotted with buildings, the beautiful ravines crowded with trees, one vieing with the other in stateliness and grandeur; the dashing of the crowded waters at once presents to the beholder the beau ideal of beauty. Although extremely fond of the wild and romantic, I must say that the pleasure of the stroll is very much lessened when in order to behold its beauties, you are obliged to climb up hills and precipices nearly always at an angle of 45 degrees and then down a corresponding descent. Before the weary journey was brought to a close the pedestrians who accompanied me presented a pitiable appearance. Some with a lachrimose and gloomy countenance, were wishing to return, others with grim looking visages were now and then enquiring "how's your poor feet," while the pilot or leader of the van seemed satisfied, and appeared desirous of taking us into still unexplored parts; but the spirit of admiration suddenly changed, and the majority seemed after their great exertion to remain for a while in statu quo. About 10, P. M., the G. T. R. train whistled —arrival at the station—the Conductor, in an extremely bass voice, says "all aboard" and in a few moments I found myself ensconced in a very comfortable seat, with a friend on my right. In front also were a number of friends; on my left were seated a young lady with her gay "Lothario" who appeared to be enjoying themselves very much, and continued to do so to the end of the journey. The passage to Toronto was without any peculiar feature other than is usually known to persons accustomed to Railway travelling. A beautiful sight in going into the city at night is the Rolling Mills; you cannot help seeing them unless in the arms of Morpheus. If we can judge from "Disraeli's" description of a Pandemonium, it looks like a small one on a small scale; the fire belching forth, men and boys running hither and thither, seemingly unconscious of the boiling lava that surrounds them in every direction, and the result should they come in contact with it; in fact the large space occupied by the mills appear a perfect mass of living and terrible flame.

The most of your readers are so well acquainted with the public buildings here that it is unnecessary for me to make any allusion to them at present, with one exception, and that is the Bank of Toronto. Your respected and gentlemanly townsman, Mr. Gilbert, with that uniform courtesy and kindness that he always connected him took the trouble of showing me through the building [illegible] the safe, former the costliest. The office is beautifully fitted up, in fact it is the best I have ever seen, heated by steam, luxuriously furnished, and in every respect worthy the institution.

About 4 P. M., I took a walk down King Street to see the sights; it is well known that this is the "Broadway" of Toronto, and in the mornings and afternoons can be seen on promenade the great, small, the common dandy, the swell get whiskered pate prim old maid; the dear young lady of sweet eighteen; the grave and the gay; the old and the young; the pretty and ugly; the blackleg and the philanthropist; the nurse with a perambulator; the butcher boy and reel coat; Miss after a fire, and the street Arab with a bundle of papers. From the last intelligent animal we are informed of the latest news and also "ores" the evening; Leader. It is here, also, where "Charles Augustus" promenades with his dear "Angelina".—About this time the dens of iniquity take a vomit and throw into the crowd their quota of the moving throng, this is made up of blacklegs, gamblers, pick pockets, bounty-jumpers, cringe, thieves and prostitutes, who peregrinate the streets, and make night hideous in some localities; the waste making a heterogenious mass hard to be equalled, and affording a capital opportunity to the Physiognomist to study the human character. Before closing allow me to speak a few words with regard to the hotel accommodation. I can safely state that the best place for travellers to stop at is the Revere House, corner of King and York streets. The proprietors, [especially the senior partner, Mr. Riley,] are gentlemanly, kind, attentive and obliging, and always ready and willing to pay the utmost attention to their guests. I would recommend your readers whenever visiting Toronto to try the Revere House by all means.

Toronto, July 11, 1865.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR, EDITOR.—As you have been hitherto noted for your liberality in affording space in your valuable journal, for the insertion of each and every improvement of social progress or religious advancement, calculated to benefit the community in any degree. I send you the following synopsis of the first anniversary of the Wesleyan Methodist Sabbath School in Hastings for insertion, which took place on Friday, the 7th inst.

Soon after dinner the young folks had collected began to assemble at the church, in due time the officers and Teachers arrived, and at once set to work and put the "School" in proper marching order. The procession being formed, the command 'march' was given by the Superintendent, Mr. Mason. They began to move, preceded by a flag, a loyal flag of red white and blue, with an appropriate inscription, and proceeded to the "Delany Clearance," a pleasant and picturesque spot on the banks of the majestic river Trent, (most admirably adapted by nature with beautiful scenery, a smooth swelling and merry falling stream of living water gliding through the landscape, calculated to impress upon the minds of both old and young their nothingness to the Creator of all things, and which had bestowed them so richly on fallen man,) the distance from the village to this locality is about half a mile, where innocent amusements had been provided for the pleasure of the young, and which they enjoyed to their heart's content. The proceedings was interspersed with singing and "stump speeches" by the children. The time passed pleasantly, and too soon the hour for closing this animated scene arrived; the procession reformed, accompanied with a goodly number of the parents of the children and others, who had witnessed these interesting exercises, and proceeded home, marching through the principal streets of the Village to the Temperance Hall, where a most excellent tea had been provided by the parents, and others who took an interest in the success of the school. The children were immediately called to the repast, and every one seemed anxious to do their duty in diminishing the weight, and relieving the tables of the burden with which they literally groaned. When the young folks were satisfied, the Teachers, parents and visitors sat down to tea, and they did their very best to dispatch the good things provided. Tea being over, all repaired to the church to witness the improvement made in the children. Mr. Brown, Principal of the day-school, was called to preside over the exercises of the evening, which he did most ably. The exercises consisted of singing, recitations, dialogues, &c., &c., by the children; the pieces were spoken with clearness and no faltering, all done well and were repeatedly cheered by the audience. It would be invidious in me to select any names from the number of speakers engaged, but in my opinion Miss Lucy Sanborn and Master John Fuller excelled in reciting, they spoke with clearness and promptness, and applied the emphasis in proper places. The success of the anniversary may be attributed to the untiring efforts of Mr. Wm. McCone ell, who has been unremitting in his efforts to drill and instruct the children for the occasion, especially in the singing department. At the close of the exercises of the children the Chairman announced to the audience that the Rev. Mr. Perrin would deliver his parting address to the school, which he did in a most impressive manner, exhorting them to be obedient to their Teachers, and to persevereance in the good way they had begun. he then distributed some valuable prizes to those who were entitled to them by reciting the largest number of verses during the year. he (Mr. Perrin) then presented the school with a library of choice books, and closed his address with a prayer for the success of the Sabbath School. A vote of thanks was given to Mr. Perrin, for his very liberal gift and also to Mr. Brown, who had so successfully conducted the proceedings of the evening, after which Mr. Perrin pronounced the benediction, and the meeting separated pleased and positive by the day's proceedings. Thus passed away the first anniversary of the W. M. Sabbath School of Hastings. The thanks of the parents are due to all who take an interest in the School, and the anniversary just past reflects great credit on the Teachers, and all who take an active part in teaching the young. The anniversary was a success, and should encourage the Teachers to renewel exertions in their work of faith and labour of love.
